THE IMPERISHABLE LEGACY.

BY C. H. RALSBALGH.

To Sister Enoly R. Steller .-

I HAVE kept you waiting long for a response to yours of three months ago. To me they were months of grinding agency. But pains are neant for blessings, and eternal henchetions will be their issue, if we accept them in their foreintent. Life is a fearfully solemn reality. To have it all "hid with Christ in God," is the gred and often unsuccessful struggle of existence. In our probationary period we shape the flow of the eternal years. The human will predestros the endless rapture, or the intermobilitie was. Made in the image of God we are emboued with the sovereignty of immortal being. All the baculities of the Godhend at our command for the attainment of the Divine ideal in Jesus the Christ; but not the shadow of a shade of arlutiary is laid on our volutions. Clarist his suspended from his Godden Girdle the keys at death. and of hell, of Heaven and Gehena, but it is through our will that he unlocks the Code of Pearl for our admission, or holts the thomagdoors of dampation, probibiting all returns Morachering is not holmess, and endless (moral being is not Eternal Life. Hat God mannest in the flesh -mour flesh individually is, for its both. We live, and we cannot but live forever: Whether it be elemal life, or eternal death-the the of God for the life of Jevils - will depend our our vedentary choice. "Because I have ve shail ave also," is more than conscious moral meing -In this sense Christ is the life of the fallent angels no less than the unfallent "In Hou is hte"-all life-and from this uncreated. Fount, H so, by what authority is it the established or The made happy freely as angels and saints. To live God's life is more than to live. It is the normal state of being, which is salvation. Heaven "The high calling of God" is on a level with His own being. He cannot live a life beneath Himself. He can manifest Himself on a lower plane, but not in a lower character. Whether He sits on the Throne of Universal Empire, or lies in swaddling bands in a manger, or is suspended on a Cross of ignominy, He is God, "the same yesterday, to-day, and forever." WHAT HE ISthis is the goal of our vocation. A lower aim is a practical denial of the Invarnation. "Be we HOLY, FOR LAM HOLY," Emmanuel is the Model, the Holy Chost is the power. Both are Divine. To believe in the One, is to secure the unfailing services of the Other. The Spirit draws upon the exhaustless fund of God in Christ for the regeneration and sanctification of alienated souls.

"And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life as an His Son? J John 5: 11. Salvation does not mean simply to live coeval with God, but to live His LIFE. With what pertmence comes the solemn injunction; "Work out your own salration with FEAR AND TREMMAING." It requires constant watching, praying, wrestling, agonizing. Every day the nails must be driven deeper into hands and feet. The glorious, imperishable Legacy that came by death must be gained by crucifixion of self. The Holy Ghost consecrates all His temples to the Cross-slain, sin-slaying Messiah.

SPRING.

BY GEORGE IC ZOLLERS.

O gentle Spring, for thy genual rays we yearn, With hearts exultant we welcome thy return 3 Thy presence breaks the spell of Winter's gloom, And wakens nature from the dreary tomb. Na scene more lovely on this rolling sphere, Than the stately coming of the vernal year: Then verdure decorates the dale and hill, And flowers Idossom by the sparking rill; Then groves appear in their tidiage grand, And life and beauty feenes all der the land, And cheerint warblers, in their plantage gay, Chant their sweetests songs in the snuny ray. Gam. Winter's gone with its frost and chill, With Joy, ale Christian, does thy bosone thrill? Creation number in the neerty strains And you resounds through all its wide domain. Then pilgrims, sing, bound to the glorious land. There trees percuraal bloom on the golden strand, These I ats of Spring, these merry voices slow, To you a clime where beauties ever glow. No bleak wintry blas's or surges more shall heat, On that leight shore where all the saints shall need sweet Spring, an earnest of the joyful mongue, When triends long lost in tennaph shall return, And sing the song of victory o'er the grave, Through him who died the ransomed host to save In takes of beauty I yearn with them to stand, In largid array along the golden straid. With raphinous pay coview the landscape deta Where songs ne'er cease, and parting is no more

THE DRESS QUESTION AGAIN.

BY ALEX W. HEESE.

"And he would not for awhile long afterward he said within himself, Though I tear not God, not regard man, yet, because this widow troubleth me, [I will invenge ber, lest by her continual country, she wepry me." Luke 18, 4, 5,

DY our delegate to the Annual Meeting, of D last year, was sent a query from the Dis trief Meeting as to what should be recognized. among us as the established order of the coursele as constituting the details of Christian dress.

As there seems to be various and often conflicting views among the Brotherhood at Jurge, on this number vised subject. I was univious to segable Annual Meeting express its mind. I placed in the hands of suir-delegate, to be preconted it deemed propert the following unterra-concerning Christian does? It so what is it healthy, and only by thought that labor can-in the naked sense of being, devils drink as der of the church-is it from heaven, or is it from men? If from heaven, why not obey it? If from men, why seek to impose or enforce it?

> This, to my mind, is the sum and substance of the matter, it is the dress question simmered down to the capacity of a nat shell. I learned from our delegate, on his return, that no suitable occasion seemed to present itself for laying these questions before the meeting. It is important that these matters be clearly settled, by the proper authority. As ministers of the gospel, specially set apart for the work in the Brethren church, we are expected to preach humulity, plainness, and nen-conformity to the world in dress, as specifically typified in "the order of the charely!" and not only to preach it to others, but to practice it severely ourselves, thus setting a good example to the flock. These things—in my imperfect way, being as it were, but a babe in Christ—I have tried to do; but I must say, that when I have put forth some carnest, special effort in this direction, in the hope that the cause of our adorable Redeemer might be promoted thereby-sinners induced to torsake the sinful vanities of the world, the church edified, and the samts built up in their most hidy faith,—it is not a little bewildering, and Those who are and have been in authority are no less discounging to a novice in the work like myself-to pick up a church print and there find it solemnly and emphatically declared that "there is not a scrap of Scripture to sustain the Brethren's order of dress," Well now, here is a very serious dilemma for us, for of all men in the world it is expected that a preacher will tell the truth! We can scarcely conceive of a more paradoxical character than a lying preacher!! Though, by the way, I heard one of our old fathers say in a sermon, not a great, while ago, that he believed preachers told more stories than anybody else. This is, I must confess, a very bad state of affairs.

I sincerely hope the morals of the clergy may nujerove in the nigh future! Would it not be well for the laify in general, to think about this a little also? The agitation of the dress question is assuming serious proportions-"there is no small stir" about this matter, and yet there seems to be no definite conclusion reached Where shall we find "safe ground" in this matter?

Wraild it not be well for the church to give some decided expression of its views prelify soon, so that all might know what we do believe on the subject? There is serious need of a unifour faith and practice. The dress question is one of no little importance, and it is a question considerably betogged in the minds of some and especially cloudy to the understanding of others. The church seems to be a good deal like the people were down at Ephesus in Paul's time, "Some cried one thing, and some another, and the whole city was filled with confusion." The peace and welfare of the church demand a valisfactory solution of this question a clear, defunite. Scondard exposition of this important. feature of the Christian bath. Let the frimpet make no uncertain sound, and there need be nuclamor. Why should there be "an uprour! among the people?" "Let your moleration beknown of all men." Can we know the divine a brush and take off some of the mind. [Oh, no. wourds as among "the commandments and that to know-who shall name this Gordian bloot's , rold the glorious truth?

ADVICE.

BY S. J. BARRISON,

TWOSE who give best advice always give the least, and those who give most need it all themselves. Good advisers follow good advice themselves, and the best advisers are kept so busy following good advice that they never have any time to give it to others. Advice is a very poor thing by which to decide a question, An adviser cannot and will not become responsible for his advice. Advisers are to a man what the wind is to a weather cock; the wind changes the cock without doing it any good; so an adviser changes a man without doing him any good,

People ought to decide questions by evidence, proof, argument; not by opinion, assertion, or assumption; for nothing is so abound but what it is or has been believed. And whatever an adviser thinks or believes another one lought to do, of course that is what he will advise him to

There is no man who does not or has not at some time pretended to know what he did not. only men, and all have pretended to know something they did not, which should be done, and therefore bid or advised their subjects to do them. By means of these men, our first mathcondicions, philosphers, scientists, and mechanics were murdered in cold blood. All now know how extremely absurd such a condemnation was; nevertheless murdering for the same cause is done to-day among the people of every mittion on the face of the glabe. The most usetal men are those who often receive the worst treatment. Who knows how much we owe to the martyrs of by-gone years, for social, intellectual, spiritual, and mechanical advantages which we now enjoy? True, at this day, men are not every where burned at the stake, thrown to wild heasts, disjointed on racks, &c., but they are starred to death. they are thrown; out of church, out of society, and of lasiness, and the only alternative is starre socially, spiritually, and picysically. Out of church generally means out al society; out at society, and of business; oul of business, starvation.

This terrible chain of events which is and has been taking place in the lives of many of the country's best men is exclusively the result of advisors. Indement day will certainly reyeal the fact that many superiors have here been condemned by interiors; many pure by the impure; many godly by the imgodly. Oh, what an awful thing to condemn a man better than ourselves!

"LET THE MUD DRY FIRST."

TERE is a capital lesson sent as local brothoer who clipped it from another paper of t may be well impressed upon the memory of , both young and old: Mr Spurgeon, in walking a little way out of boudon, he preach, chancel ta get his jointalours quite middy. A good deacon met him at the door and desired to get mind in this matter? Is the record God gave, said Mr. S., "don't you see it is wer, and if you for his Son obscure? Is the volume of misjoner, thy to tousin it now, you will run the same actor from silent as bowhat shall constitute Christian, the cloth? Ther it dry, when it will come of dress, or are we left to individual, "God-given basy chough and loave no mark". So, when tastes" on this point? Is there even a "scrap" | men speak evil of us faisely-throw mud at usof divine testimony for the confer of the chorch. I don't be meachurey adout brushing it off. For or does said order figure conspactionsly on the Egrent engerness to rub it oil, is apt to rub it in. liset it dry; by and lo, it need be, a little effort addiens of men : Ife c is the point we long will remove it. Don't tester scandal about yourself or others, or stouble an a society, or an a Who shall solve the serious problem -who are charely, by haste to do something. Let at alone; let it dry; it will be more easily erada ited than you think in the first heat of excitement. Time Is there are est Calche London of the clostele. It is only by labor that thought can be made that a wonderful power in such matters. Very many things in this world will be easily got as a by indiciously "letting them day.

A WAIL FROM THE WEST.

ITIELL me, ye winged winds. That round my dwelling blow, Do you not know some spot Where smokers do not go? Some quiet, pleasant dell, Some valley in the West. Where freed from pipes and smokes, A soul in peace may rest?

Tell me thou ocean deep. Whose billows oft I see, Knowest thou some island home, To which our sex may flee? Safe from tobacco quids, And streams of filthy juice. Riccted from men's mouths? Oh, what a vile abuse!

And then bright silver moon, When on thy mighty round, Thou lookest down on earth. Hast thou not somewhere found A spot yet undefiled by those Who use the weed?

Tell me, ye spirits bright. That now are hovering e'er. Most we endure this curse For ever, evermore? O search beyond this earth? Search regions of the blest; t'an ve not find some place Where we unsmoked may rest?

The foul winds dwindle to a whisper low, And sighed for pity as they answered. No! Behind a cloud the moon withdrew her face; A voice in sadness answered. Not a place!

A FEW OBSERVATIONS.

RY FNOCH BPERY.

HIANE observed, for a number of years, that in some of the congregations some of the elders and other officials of the church are extremely careful. to keep their members in the old order of the church in regard to planness of dress. This is all right: I approve of this watchfulness against the ever-change ing fashions in regard to dress. But there is another fashion of the world, which, in my judgment, and in the judgment of great deal worse than, for convenience, or comfort, to deviate a little from the generally adopted order of dress in the church. The fashion to which I allude. I am scory to say, is too greatly include: ed in even by some of our good old elders, other officers of the church, and laymembers. I allude to the worldly fash (that ion of raising and using tobacco.

select the very best part of their farms land and bestow extra labor on it to prepare for tobacco; and then special enre is taken to tend it well while grow ing, even sometimes to the neglect adtheir necessary crops of corn, wheat, and potatoes. This certainly ought not to be so amongst the platin dressing, hum. ble pollowers of desus Christ, Could my of us for a moment suppose that. Christ or his apostles raised or used, the weed as some of our larethren raise and use it? Dr. -We are not quite ready yet for that. I purpose to be an honest druggist. and, consequently, feel it my duty to tell you the probable consequences at tending the use of this medicine.

Y. M. If there is any danger connect ed with the use of it I should like to know it. I thought when you said it was so extensively used, there certainly was safety in using it. Please tell me all about the effects it will produce.

Dr. Perhaps I had better tell you first about the expense of its use. The first ten years it will cost you from five to ten dollars a year, and, as you continne, the use of it from year to year, it will become so pleasant to your (artificial) taste you will naturally want to double the doses and take them more frequently, so that in the course of fif teen or twenty years, the expense will be about double that of the first few years.

Y. M. Why, doctor, that is discour aging! both in regard to expense and in regard to the length of time necessary to use the medicine. Is it possible that it will take you that long to remove this little trouble in my throat?

Dr. That trouble in your throat will he removed in the first two or three months; but, as I just told you, your taste for it will become so strong that you would rather take it than not. In a good portion of the brotherhood, is a fact, you will pretend to think you can seareely do without it.

Dr. Certainly I have. Here is a medicine that won't cost you the hundredth part that tobacco will, and it will remove that trouble in less than three months. But as I said in the start, [I thought you wanted to be a popular man, I thought this would just suit you; why the use of tobacco is one of the most fashionable things I can think of? Why, my dear sir, there is searcely a lawyer or doctor in all my range of acquaintance but what uses to bacco; and as for the officers of our great, and good government, from the President and his calmet, U. S. congressmen, state gov ernors, state representatives, county officers, and so down to supervisors and schood-directors. I will venture the as sertion that two thirds of them use to bacco in some form.

Dr. They contracted the habit before they were Christian men, and now they imagine that it is searcely possible for them to quit. I think all that is bodying is a little more visulation, and a little more Christian firmness and they will soon get rid of it.

As you advance in years and in the ing tobacco, but acknowledged that it was an unnecessay and expensive habit: adding that the use of fine cigars and tolucco cost him about two hundred dollars a year.

Another circumstance. A few years ago the writer was seated at the com. munion table in a crowded and warm house. The brother next to me asked me to change seats with him, saying that the brother next to him used tolutero and the smell of it was making him sick, Is it possible that the body of a Christian, which should be a dwelling place for the Holy Ghost, should become so defiled with tobacco as to sicken his brother at the communica table! Brethren, please think of this.

Lest I be considered radical, I will in conclusion say that I agree with the BURTHEN AT WORK in advising old breth ren (that have used it perhaps from their youth up) to use it very moderately; and to middle aged ones I would say, quit it while you can; and to the young I would say, in the name of every thing that is good, don't commence it. And further; let me say to parents and guardians, by ail means, don't allow the lmys under your care to commence it under twenty-one years of age.

"CRY ALOUD AND SPARE NOT."

BY H. P. DRINKWORTH,

THE truth of God's words ever and anon come resounding in our eurs; and ofttimes we mourn that the pure word of God is so widely misrepresent. ed. Especially so when we find that those who profess to be his childlen often ignore the doctrines therein taught. Paul says, "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed; and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard; and how shall they bear without a preacher?"

Now, dear readers, tell me does this M. Pray tell me what class that refer to missionary work or not! Does it really mean that that work must be Dr.—They are the educated, refined, | confined to any particular country, locality, or place? Does it not refer to the command where it reads, "All un-

Yes, I believe it would be well if we could do that, and we hear of locaturen that are in the work, carnest, untiring and zealous, doing much for Jesus; we see sinners returning home. Oh, we thank God for it! yet we are unde to mourn. Brethren, sisters and friends, lask you in the name of my medicine. I shall certainly never use it, 'Master, Lappeal to you in Jehovah's awful name, in whose name we all trust. will you help! Is there any one who will read these words, these appeals from day to day, from week to week, from year to year, who will come to the front? ECHOES FROM THE EAST.

NUMBER XVII.

PRIL 6th.—This morning our meeting was at the Welty meeting. house. A pleasant day and a good attendance. Services were begun by singing a hymn and exhortation to prayer. What is more needed than this exhorta tion in order that we may come in the proper manner to the throne of grace? We know of some of our ministering brethreu who neglect this very impor tant duty. May Heaven help all to see the beauty, propriety, and power of the order of the church in this particular. The apostatized churches of sectarianism do not have their members

EXTRUCTED TO PRAYER.

Shall we indeed be found to follow them? God forbid! We have not so learned Christ. We have a better order of things, and would do well to see that we let nothing slip. It is the aggregate of small departures that causes the "candlestick" to be removed. Brethreu, let us be faithful in all the doctrines of the church. It is a good doctrine. See that ye do good service with it, and not be found wanting in the end.

An old deacon brother read, by request, the third chapter of first John. A minister then chose for his text, the words: "Now are we the sons of God." We deduce the following:

Our Heavenly Father.

H. Our adoption.

III. Our future inheritance.

Thoughts.—We were strangers to God reconciled in Christ—begotten of God born a second time received by faith and repentance into God's dear family on earth sons and daughters of God admitted to all the privileges of the true church of Christ - the hope of life eter nal set before us. Heaven in prospect.

OR R 10184 N SAV 1040. April 18th.-- This beautiful rest-day morning we are permitted by the kindin the Price's meeting house. How soul- esied of the time when swords should he has committed adultery. If Mr. A lout it cannot be made white again." ness of our heavenly Father to assemble gregation sing.

"I love thy kingdom, Lord, The house of thine abode: The church our bless'd Redeemer saved. With his own precions blood."

O how comforting to know that those outside the pales of the church do love the church! We shall be made joyful in their full surrender to the government of this glorious kingdom. But it is a saddening thought that some are in the kingdom who have not under the surrender, and who neglect their duty to "adorn the doctrine" in all things. Come, brethren and sisters, let us in very deed love the church; for, in doing so, we shall be obedient and faithful in all things.

The 55th hymn was lined and sunga hearty expression of gratitude. After exhortation and prayers, the twentieth of John was read to all the congregation. A preacher then dwelt upon the consfession of Thomas, the apostle: "My Lord and,my God," We deduce,

I. Christ risen.

II. Faith confirmed.

III. Blessed hope.

Thoughts. The time of year when the most interesting scenes in the life of our Lord occurred Christ crucified and buried—raised from the dead—a sister first at the sepulcher- an empty tomb the living Master - meetings of the believers- -lesus appears the confirmation of faith--the most doubtful established in faith -they are blessed wine believe without seeing - no resurrection, no hope--the resurrection gives us hope and comfort--faithfulness to Christ and true love to his church will bring us at last to a home in heaven.

 Λ deacon brother offered some remarks of testimony, and exhorted us all to faithfulness, so much the more as the Master's second coming may be very near at hand. Dear brethren, are we ready for his appearing and kingdom?

That beautiful and appropriate hymn was sung:

"Mary, to the Savior's tumb, Hasted at an early dawn; Spice, she brought, and sweet perfume But the Lord she loved had gone."

Read it all it is well worth reading. As Christ is resurrected from the dead. so we should be risen with him from the death of sin to live in "newness of life." May God grant every reader this gra-D. B. Mentzeb. cious experience.

THE ANCIENT JEWS AS FARMERS.

TN his laws, Moses made agriculture the basis of the State. According to this principle be appointed to every citizen a piece of land, marked by fixed boundaries. Land gralding speculations were prevented by the law, which required all ground in the Commonwealth to revert to the heirs of the original owner on the juffiles year. The ocempation of the farmer was held in honor through being thus protected. Various means were resorted to by the Hebrews. to increase the fertility of their soil. The and not of man. The 9th verse reads, "who stones were gathered and built into walls, great distances, and many kinds of manure were used. The hills were terrac ed to the tops, and planted with vine yards and gardens. They cultivated wheat, barley, millet, beans, and rice. In agricultural implements the Hebrews were not so far behind the present age as we are prone to think. Isaiah lived day iron plows were in use, for he proph-

THE LIFE OF MAN.

BY J. W. SOUTHWOOD.

THE life of man ■ Is but a span, It is so quickly o'er; 'Tis scarce begun Till it is run, Then he's on earth no more.

To life he's born In childood's morn, Then quickly passes on To youth and man; Then ends his span; Theu he's forever gone,

He's gone from time To try the clime Of bliss or endless woe; If he's lived well He then shall dwell Where none do sorrow know

But if his life's Been spent in strife, And wickedness below: His doon will be, As he shall see, Eternal death and woe.

Come, then, live right, Of Christ, keep sight In darkness and in day: Be always true, Your whole life through, Don't mind what skeptics say.

Be firm, be bold, The truth unfold In all yen do or say; Help others, too, The truth to view, And Christ's commands obey.

Your life improve. And onward move, In Christ's most glorious cause: Then death nor hell Can make you quell-Christ's gespel has no plans.

A life spent well, In bliss will tell. A happier tale than this: It will be joy Without alloy A beavenly home of bliss.

ADULTERY.

BY JOSEPH FARINESTOCK.

TN Matthew the 19th, the question is asked, whether it is lawful for a man to put his wife away for every cause. Christ answered them and said, what God had joined together man had no right to put usunder. The Pharisces again asked, why then did Moses give a writing of divorcement? The answer was because of the hardness of their hearts. But from the beginning it was not so, clearly showing them not to put away their wives for every cause, for that was the question asked, and further instructs them that for our cause only man and wife had a right to sepa rate. This law of separation is of God soever shall put away his wife, except it be water was brought in aqueducts from for formication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery." For a plain view of this we shall call up a case: Mr. A married a wife, she was unfaithful; committed adultery, and he put her away. and married another. Mr. B married a wife and for some other cause, he part her away and married another. New if we take Christ at his word, he has ex | asked to have it dyed white. But the dyer more than 2 lett years ago, yet in his espted Mr. A he has committed no answered; "A piece of cloth is like a adultery, but Mr. B he has not excepted, man's reputation; it can be dyed black, conquinions, there would have been no adultery in either case; but in marrynot; this is clearly seen, but if it be claimed that both have committed adultery in marrying again, then are none excepted; but this would conflict with Christ's language, for he has excepted for one cause which the text clearly

And, again, if it be claimed that they may separate, but must remain unmarried, what then would Christ's law of adultery be for? as we know that man and wife separate for other causes, if they remain unmarried and may be received into the church; but we are referred to 1 Cor. 7: 10, 11, where we read, "let her remain unmarried or be reconciled to her husband, and let not the husband put away his wife," This could not have been for adultery, for Paul well knew such had a right to put, away his wife. According to Christ's law of adultery, it seems to me he would have also said there must be a reformation of life before he would have a Christian unite again with an adulterer, for he says in 1st Cor. 6: 16, "He that is joined to a harlot, they twain are one flesh." The 7th chapter from the 12th verse on has reference to such as had scruples about the lawfulness of living in marriage relation with unbelievers. To put on Christ, we must first be haptized into his kingdom here on earth. And to exercise great caution on the subject I have written, is what we want, not to receive such as have no legal right, and not to prevent or keep believers out of Christ unless we have the word of the Lord in plain language to sustain ns, but how or in what way is it plain to reject such whom Christ justifies? and why is it that so many brethren can't understand or see it so? "Except it be for fornication and shall marry another," if this language is not plain that they may separate and marry again, we confess we do not understand language.

We hope this subject will be thoroughly examined before our Annual Council.

HATE NOT.

BY JOHN BARINGER.

HATE not. It is not worth your while Your life is not long enough to make it pay to cherish ill will or hard thoughts. What if this man or that one has done you wrong? What if your friends have forsaken you in time of need! or, if having won your coufdence, your warmest love, has concluded that he prefers to consider and treat you as a stranger? Let it all pass. What difference will it make to you in a few years when you go to the spirit world? A few more smiles, a few more pleasures, much pain, a little languor, hurrying and worrying through this world, and the injured party will be laid away, and, ere long forgotten, and at the sound of the trumpet all will come forth aml be judged according as their work has been. Is it worth while to hate!

Amona our readers there is quite a call for changing addresses. Many are leaving the land of their childhood in the East and searching for homes in the far West. May heaven's blessing attend them, and may they prove successful in ading to build up new and healthy congregations all over the West. The West has good use for men and women who will let their light shine before the world.

Mr. J. F. Binowng, who travels and lectures in the interest of the anti-secret movement, called on us last week. He says he was haptazed by trine immersion—a Free-will Baptist minister officiated and all whom he baptizes he dips three times face forward for the remission of sins. He has been holding meetings at Ustick, Whiteside County, and baptized five. They practice feet-washing and the communion somewhat after the manner of the Brethren.

Os an other page will be found an article from Brother Alex W. Reese, of Missonri, on the "dress question." He simmers the matter down to a fine point, and in one respect makes the issue clear. Brother Reese is known as one of our strong advocates of Scriptural planness, and is laboring hard to get the order fully established in the localities where he preaches, but wants to see some clear and pointed articles on the dress issue. We can do no better than to turn his case over to Brother R. H. Miller, who, perhaps, has given that subject as much thought as any bridher among us.

Organitention has frequently been called to a weakness of some probably good meaning persons in making an adocover getting some one of "prominence" into the church. Those who do this evidently need "milk." Any one who will honey around certain "leading men and women " in order to bart there into the church are yet carnal. And instead of such persons going as missionaries to preach the gespel to others, missiomaries ought to be sent to them, and when they have become new-horn bales in Christ, they should be fed on " milk" until they can " perceive God is an respectively persons." It is a very poor sign, indeed, for preachers to run after men of "prominence" to the neglect of those who fill more humble stations in life. It is very doubtful whether the leading men in this world, will be the leading men, or the men of prominence, in the world to come. Read Matthew 18: 2-4.

OUR MANUSCRIPT

NUMBER III.

* FMBER 18. A Warning. The writer of this When Christ fumself directs as to consider with in certain localities, and thinks the cause is greatly injured by publishing abusive articles culculated to stir up strife and discord. The sentiment of the article is good, but if published would likely call out replies from other papers. Those who wish to correct what is found in other papers would better do so through the paper in which the error may have occurred. Replying to one paper through another is not the best method. The article is rejected. For the encouragement of the writer, we further and his wonderful creationcour everythingful We add that the evil he refers to is not general, but rather confined to localities where the proper judgment is not used in administering justice. The Brethren's method of dressing is good, but, by some, it is worfully abused. Those who dress in the order of the church and do not otherwise live consistent lives will be condemned as walves in sheep's clothing. These who are all the time harping on the inside of religion only, claiming that if the heart be right all. is right, and reject the necessity of outward apprarance will one day learn that fashionable clothes are not the outgrowth of a non-conformed heart. Trees are best known by their

No. 19. Man a Changeable Berng. The artiale is good in many respects, but contains a little too much of self to make it take well in the community waere the writer lives. The article rightly suggests that if a brother, who is supposed to be weak or over zealors, should do wrong, that those who claim to be on the right roul should labor to restore such an one, and not do all in their power to drive him still farther away from the church. He thinks it no disgrace to change when a man finds he is wrong, that Paul found he was wrong, and in changing received a blessing. We think the writer is mistaken in regard to running ahead of the church. The church is much like an army. If she expects to accomplish good, all should move together, and in perfect harmony. She may not move as fast as some individuals think she ought; their idea of church work may be too visiomary for the good of the cause, there may be wiser heads in the church, hence the body should be consulted. Men who ron alread of the church—make a great noise, get up a lively sensation while others stand and look on in wonder and amazement, are too much like some horses which want to go like lightning and as a consequence, smash everything to pieces, and do no real good. Good horses will always pull together. Sit down by the side of an ant hill and watch them work. You see no jarring or discord. There is no quarreling over plans, or running at lightning speed. In perfect harmony they all work together. Learn a lesson from the auts.

No. 20. The Lord's Supportation into Consideration. This article is well written, but is in a had condition for the compositors. Instead of writing on narrow paper the writer takes a whole sheet of note paper, spreads it out, and writes across the entire page. Paper on which articles for publication are written should not be over five or six inches wide. The writer maintains that the Lord's Supper should consist of a roasted lamb after the demands of the Mosaic law, presents a monder of other similar propositions which we conceive to be contrary to the gospel order, as laid down by Christ and practiced by the apostles.

Of course we all lave flowers, for God made them and they are beautiful, and may be cultivated with faste and advantage. No. 23. The Gift of Healing. The article inquires after the Brethren's views in regard to the gifts of healing, and the diversity of gifts, The writer mentions a man who claims the power of healing the sick and performing miracles Let the man show his faith by his work, If he is possessed with the gift of healing let him heal the sick. That will put an end to all doubts. But if he still contend for the power, yet exercises none of it healing the sick, I have good reason's for doubting his sincerity.

It is a blessed thing when truth does not suffer in the hands of its friends. There are those, who, in defending truth, often do it more harm than good. People should not let their zeal run in advance of their knowledge. Keep knowledge one step ahead.

BROTHER Hope informs us that he has been working at one point fourteen days; had one applicant for baptism, and secured fifty subsembers for his Danish paper. He sometimes had three meetings each day. He asks the brethren and sisters to pray for the success of the mission.

M., and steamed thence to Liverpool, about Li miles, through a dense English fog. The tide was still too low for our ship to enter the docks, so a tender (a small side-wheel steamboat) came to us in the middle of the river to receive the passengers and their baggage. On this tender were three brethien, who introduced themselves to me, and presented to me a number of letters written by various brethren in England They were Bros. Harrison, Collin, and Tuckle. The last named is a son, and the second a nephw. of Brother G. Y. Tickle, of Liverpool, whose name is familiar to all the brothron in America, who have read our English periode ds. They took us through the hands of the custom-house officers in safety, and then conveyed us in a calc to the house of the Elder Tickle, where we were entertained as cordially as if we had been prines of the blood. The next morning we started the line between these elevations were as straight on our way to bondon, but we made two interesting calls by the way. One of the letters delivered to me on board the slop was from Brother W. T. Moore, and if informed that he had passed through Liverpool that morning on his way to Chester, where he would attend the annual " tea meeting " of Brother Todd's place of labor that evening at 5 o'clock; and that Brother Coop was with bim. I was rejoiced to learn this, and to be also informed that I could. go through Chester on my way to London. 1 found Brethren Moore, Todd, and Coop at Chester, which is only sixteen, miles to the southeast of Liverpool, and spent three hours with them, including the dinner hour. Nobody who knows. Brother Moore or meneed to be fold. that those three hours were full of talk. It would be hard to recall all the topics we took up and dismissed in rapid succession; but among them, of course, was the progress of the mission at Chester and Southport. Brother Todd had been laboring at Chester just one year, and the story of his success is briefly told in the fact that the congregation now numbers 96, of whom only seven were disciples, when he went there. He now has baptisms nearly every week, and his audiences are large. At Southport, which is 14 miles north of Liverpool, the brethren own a good house, and have a membership of about 40 members. Brother Moore is obtaining a fine hearing from the outside public, and he feels greatly encouraged by the prospects before him. As for the wives of these missionaries, Sister Todd assured my that as a place for keeping house, England is not the United Stales; and I am informed that Sister Moore is of the same opinion.

Leaving Chester with much regret that our stay was so brief, we came on to Birmingham, and called some two and a half hours at the residence of Brother David King. Unfortnnately, he was not at home on our arrival; but Sister King received us cordully, had "teaspread after the English fashion, and entertained as until Brother King's arrival. A short, but very pleasant conversation with him, followed by a rapid walk to the railway station, terminated our call at Birmingham. The city contains a population of 140,000; and it is a great manufacturing center, the chief articles of manufacture being firearms and pewelry. We came on to London the same evening, and found ourselves at rest in the Charing Cross hotel about 11 o'clock at night.

thar ride through England was very interesting. We saw many things that were new and strange, among them, some that we had anticipated, and many that we had not. We readily recognized from previous description, the peculiar construction of their railway coaches. They are shorter, lighter, and less expensively constructed than ours, and are entered by four doors on each side. Each door leads onto a compartment that reminds one of the inside of a short omnibus fixed to run sideways. It has a front and a rear seat, each long enough for about five passengers, running the entire length of the compartment, which corresponds with the width of the car. Usually the door at each and of the compartment is locked while the train is in motion, and is opened by the guard at every station where the stay is long enough don. for us to get out a tew unmittes. There is a shout two hours, waiting for the tide to compartment when an accident occurs. The this house on our return to the city. We hope potheral whom we call the Conductor, is here to comply with his invitation, and to cultivate cles of it.

What a pity that the entrance into one of called a Guard, and he guards you very care-

Our attention was attracted by peculiar modes of farming. We saw two-horse and three-horse teams, in which the horses were hitched one before another; seldom were even two horses hitched abreast. The hay-stacks were all covered with a thatched roof of straw, as carefully as were the houses of some of the laborers. The lands are cut up into little patches of from one to three or four acres, separated by hedges or very frail fences. But these little fields are cultivated with the same precision and cure as the market gardens near our large cities. They all looked as though they had been graded, and those which were recently sown looked as if they had been raked with a garden rake. In almost every instance, both the meadows and the ploughed lands were worked into slightly elevated ridges about eight feet wide, to facilitate dramage; and the forrows, which marked as a gun-barrel. So, indeed were the forrows of the freshly turned sod. The ploughing is all done with a precision which I have never seen equalled in America, though I have seen some good ploughing, and have dens a little of it myself. The hedges are beautiful, even without their foliage; but they are lower and less compact than I expected to see them. Frank, on whom I depend for sharp observations on stock and farming operations, remarked that he was not surprised that the fox-limiters could make their horses leap the hedges and fences, for he could leap them himself. He said they would not do for mules and hogs. But we saw not a single hog, or pig, or mule, in our entire ride through the kingdom; and, what surprised us more, we saw only one ass, and he was turning the wheel of a brick-kiln.

We found the Charing Cross Hotel the most convenient one in London for our jurpose. It is in the very heart of the city, not far from any of the great centers of business, and from its court you enter the cars for France. On the streets we found ourselves among familiar names. Our walks were chiefly on the Strand and Fleet Streets, both of which names were as familiar as household words, while nearly all the streets running into these were as familiar by name as those of Lexington. I felt strange to be actually looking into streets which history and poetry and romance had made thus familiar from my childhood. I was in Patermoster Row, and No. 15, the celebrated bookstore of the Bagsters. Had I not been prepared for it by Prof. Neville's description, I would have been surprised out of measure to find the salaroom of this greatest of all the publishers of Bibles and kindred works in the world, a little affair about 15 feet wide, and 20 or 30 deep. They sell, however, only their own publications, and they keep only a lew copies of each at their salerdom. Paternoster Row itself also surprised me. It is a dingy street of old houses, and is only seventeen leet wide from house to house. The sidewalks are each five feet wide, leaving only seven feet for the street between the curb-stones. Many of the streets of London are of similar width, and few would compare in width with the ordinary streets of our newer American cities. But in walking the streets of London, we saw | servent people (we didn't count them), and a proportionate number of velocles of every imaginable description except such as we were accustomed to see at home.

The most stately dames we saw in England, and the most lordly gentlemen, were the chambermaids and the dining-room servants at our hotels. The former moved about the house in their white caps with so much sobriety, and spake with so much gravity, that you were tempted to ask them who was dead in the house; while each one of the latter, in his narrow-tailed black coat, white vest and white cravat, looked and walked as it he were the proprietor of the house, and we telt like it was almost an imperfruence to ask him to wait on us. He seemed to feel the same way, too, for of all the dining room servants I ever saw, they were the slowest and the most forgetful. I was about to forget the call-drivers. Next to the waiters, they appeared to be the most important men in Lon-

Faithfully and truly yours,

J. W. McGarvey,

An article of editorial correspondence from Brother Eshelman came a little too late for this issue. It will appear next week.

BROTHER Duniel M. Miller and wife returned from Pennsylvania last Friday morning. Brother Miller says he enjoyed himself well visiting and preaching among his old acquaintances, but did not travel around much while there,

BROTHER Lemmel Hillery, when last heard from, was at Brother Wampler's, near Carthage, Missonri. He has been traveling and preaching considerably since he left Illinois. His family remains at Shannon, Illinois, Sparso has come at last. It is late, but better late than never. The weather is delightful, every body at work, and all nature seems alive to the interest of its great Author. The roads are excellent and meetings well attended. Evcrything looks promising.

Ir a minister's sermon is not just so good, it might be profitable, and even edifying if he would not spoil it by stringing it out so long and thereby wear out the congregation. I never yet knew a minister to lose anything by preaching short pointed sermons.

Just before going to press we received from Brother D. B. Gibson a card stating that he closed his inectings at Appanouse, Iowa, with fifteen additions. He returns home to attend the District Meeting of Northern Missouri, and may be addressed at Norborne, Carroll County, Missouri.

An English writer reviewing the results of the late war in South Africa, concludes that if the money, the war cost, had been spent in teaching and civilizing the natives, both parties would be much better off. That much might he truthfully said of all wars. They are uncalled for, and only tend to degrade the people and rain the country.

MES and women painted with a profession of Christianity, who make a mock of it by contradicting it by their combact, are driving thousands of honest, truth-seeking, noble-hearted, mortids into the dark, dismal waters of that most deplorable and cheerless belief-infidelity; -there to end their career of life with that despaining, herrible thought, "I am lost! lost! Forever lost!"

WRITING about the Southern District Meeting of Indiana, Brother Hiel Hamilton says: There was a very good representation, and the business of the meeting was transacted with the very best of feeling. The home mission was still much approved of, and proper arrangements adopted to carry on the great commission, and as far as I could learn, the Brotherhood in Southern Indiana is united, and but one element prevails among them.

BROTHER D. E. Brubaker, of Iowa Center, writing to the Primitive Christian, says: "Brethren, my say, in the matter of the Ray and Stein debute, is to keep on publishing it by all means. Your readers, with few exceptions, that I have questioned on the matter, say it is doing a good work. With Brother Balshaugh, we may all well thank the Lord for giving us Brother J W. Stem. Our friend Ray's surcusm and ridinle of the plan teachings of the Bible is having a fine effect here. As in contrasting his sneers with Brother Stem's powerful arguments, your readers have another chance to see that when a man's cause is suffering for want of argument he sometimes resorts to ridicale, &c.

The most experienced ministers often tremble when they enter the pulpit to preach. Martin Luther once said. " Although I am old and experienced in speaking. I tramble whenever I ascend the pulpit." Of Elder George Wolf, who, in his day, was one of the ablest preachers in the West, it is said, he never rose to speak without teeling more or less embarrassed.

The absence of the debute this week is not Brother Stein's fault. His speech was written and sent to the Flog in good time, but has not yet appeared in that paper. The delay was caused by the Floor cutting one of Brother Stein's speeches in two, and making two arti-

TME point seems to be who or what is the adversary here spoken of with which to agree quickly. It could not have been Satan, for Christ certainly would not teach as to agree with him, therefore I understand that he has reference to an opposer at law, one which is, perhaps, an enemy and accuses you of having wronged him, then you would better agree with him quickly and compromise with him lest he have you arrested and cast into prison.

IN reading the BRETRREN AT WORK I see al-L most every sulgert written on except " Bywords." I have hoped to see this subject written on by some of our able writers, but have not seen it yet. I do not know why it is, unless it is because we all use them. Tile not think out of a pure heart this is the case. H would be well for some of the brethren that are capable to picture the evils of those little foxes, that have crept into some of our dear brethren's hearts. It is painful to hear thuse professing to be followers of the meek and lowly desns using the temple of Ged to no better purpose than to pridancit! (temple) with those evils. This is not erneilying the lasts of the flesh, for such language is not of God, and, therefore, must be evil. I may you, dear reader, it you are guilty of those evils that you will at once resolve, by the grace of What can be meant by the expression, "And God, to eradicate them from your hearts, and they saw the God of Israel "? Evidently some exclaim as one of old, "Create within me, the glorious appearance or token of God's special Lord, a clean heart." You do not perceive what only mean to perceive by the organs of sight, will say, "Well, I am just as good as such an but also "to perceive by mental vision; to form one, for the or she swears and that is no more an idea or conception of; to note with the mind; than I do, and I do not profess to be anything and they do. This ought not so to be. It is a drawback to the cause of Christ. Such things are the cause of so many skeptics in the world. Now for an illustration:

> As we were traveling from Kansas to lowa we stopped to rest our horses. We stopped at a house where the man and his wife were 'Christians," as they called themselves. There was a series of meetings going on at that time which the man attended, but the wife did not, for she could not leave her little folks. And such hard by-words, I never heard a non-professor use. The evening before we resumed our journey, the wife says to me, " What church do you belong to?" I asked her how she knew I belonged tomy church, or what made her think so? "Why," she said, "you do not use at y by words. It is the fashion now to use by words. church members or not. But you do not use any at all, so I know you belong to some church." You can see what harm it is to use such himguage. She told me that she belonged to the church or I would not have known it, for her words were not those of a Christian. The husband went to town and brought home with him a jug of whisky. But through the ments of Jesus I did not have to tell them that I belonged to the church, for actions spoke lander than words; for which I give God all the praise-for giving me grace to be a light unto the world and not as a condle put under a bushel. Pray God, in the name of a crucified Redeemer, to give us grace that we may let our lights so shine that the world may see by our conversation and daily walk whether we belong to the world or to God.

Pray for us, dear brethren, that we may hold out faithful to the end and receive a crown of righteonsness, prepared for all those that love and obey the Lord.

LOVE.

BY S. T. SWIRART.

"A new confoundment I give unto you, That ye love one another "-John 18: 84.

Nour Savior's last interview with his disci-L ples, before he suffered, he spake very tenderly on this point, and accompanied his words. with the prayer that they might all be one even as he and his Father are one. It was a prominent theme among the epistolary writings, especially so in those of John, the disciple whom Jesus loved. There are many reasons why Jesus thus spake to the disciples, teaching them to love one modder. (1) For we are all followers of the same loving Jesus; (2) for we are all members of the same family of which he is the head, the chief corner-stone; (3) We are all born alike of water and of the Spirit; (4) We have all the same great object in view for which to live; namely: The promotion of the Kingdom of our great Redremer.

We all have similar joys and similar sorrows while in this life; yet we should strive to keep in that strait and narrow way that leads to joys on high, where we will torever dwell and unite in the same ranturous songs and participate in the same delightful pleasures. We nive much to Jesus who bought as with his own precious blood. O, dear brethren, can we not love one another as he loved use Jesus says, " By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye love one another." John 13: 35. Now, if we obey this command we may expect the cause of Christ to be promoted and many be constrained to glority our Father which is in heaven; while, on the other hand, nothing so much larings dishonor upon the cause of Christ as the want of brotherly love manifested among as Whenever we lack in this, the world notices it, and they make the worst of it,—they relish it as the hungry mar does bread, or the filthy man does tobacco. People often make this an excuse for neglecting their duty. And O, how soul destroying is the effect! Then dear brethren. let us strive to love one another more fervently

(b) "Fashionable-that which is sought after by the tops, daudies, and belles of the world-that changes almost with every mail from Paris. (c) Its evils.—Clothing don't make a man in the sense of true manhood, but is often an index of the man; for instance, a man with dirty, greasy, clothing is taken (and not often mistaken) for a sluggard, slouch, or filthy man. So with the man or woman who pats on airs, style, hangs on the most jewelry, wears the largest diamond set rings, the longest trails, the most feathers, flunnees, and overskirts, etc., is known as a feshionable man or woman, and it is readily seen where the heart and its affections are.

The rich often drive many poor, yet good and honest hearts from church, by their foolish and useless fashionable dressing. The rich sometimes make remarks about the poor, -the poor cannot go and do as the rich, and just on account of this abominable style and fashionable cressing in some of the cities, they have a church for the rich, or first class of society, then another for the power classes. Glad News, WillO does not love to hear glad news? Everybody does. For several years a dark cloud has been hanging over the little flock at this place, which seems about, if not entirely, dispersed, and the sun of peace is once more pouring its billiny rays upon us. Our dear brethren and Elders Peter Forney and J. F. Eikenberry came to us on the 12th inst., and labored with as in council. Their labors were effectual, and we trust will prove permanent. Our dear brethren labored not as lords over God's heritage; they seemed to have the welfare and not the destruction of their brethren and sisters in view, which we fear is not always the case with those who are called upon to assist churches. The troubles in this church being widespread, causes us to write the above (at least to as) glad news.

Our brethren left us to-day. May God bless them. The writer of this has been quite intimately associated with both of them for nearly eighteen years, and would say to others if you need help call for such brethren. Men of note are not always the best in council. It wants men filled with gospel love. May God grant that the refreshing breezes of peace and love may fan churches every-where. Brethren, rejoice with us who do rejoice.

CCORDING to previous notice, the Di-- trict Council of Southern Iown met with the Adams County Brethren on the 7th inst. and organized by electing R. F. Flory, Moderator, A. Harader aud M. Meyers, Clerks.

The most important business transacted by the council was to remodel the missionary work inaugurated by the council five years ago at the same place, which proved rather ineffectial. Under the present plan, a committee of three were appointed to act us a missiomary board for the Southern District of Iowa, consisting of A. F. Thomas as Moderator, J. B. Beard, Treasurer, and J. M. Mansfield, Sceretary, with power to appoint a brother in each congregution to collect means, and forward the same to the district Trensurer, to be used as a missionary fined for the Southern Eastrick of Iowa. Each congregation has a voice in the selection of the evangelist to be sent into the field, which is already white to the burvest. as citizens we may aid in the support of the powers that be, in the lawful execution of an-

Our Eleventh Negative Argument shows that the Tunker churches are not churches of Christ, because they make salvation by works of rightconsness which they have done. That we are not mistaken in the Dunkard doctrine on this point, we quote from Safe Ground, by Mr. Moore, the Tonker editor, p. 7, as follows:

"This is the law that says, Thou shalt not steal," 'Thou shalt not kill;' the same law also says, 'he that believeth and is baptized, shall be saved. The same law says, 'ye ought to wash one another's feet; also, 'salute one another with a hidy kiss.' This is the perfect law that governed the church in the time of Christ, and the upostles. They did not pick out part of the law just to suit their rown taste, and then let the other alone; they took the whole law. Their plan of salvation then was safe; about it there was no frouble, because they had the whole law and nothing but the law."

Again, same page, Mr. Moore says:

Northerch can be the church of Christ anless it is governed by the whole law. A church that obeys but a part of the law is not the church founded by Christ, but was founded by somebody else, who neither taught nor adeyed the entire law. About the church that obeys the whole law being right there is no incertainty. at all, the uncertainty is about the churches that don't earry not the entire law."

Also, in a work called One Faith, by M. M. Eshelman, page 25;

"If we can get to heaven without observing feet-washing, why not get there without partaking of the communion? If we can reach beaven by leaving one command and example undone, why not get there by leaving two ourdone? and if the, why not three? and if three, why not all? In fact, why make any effort of σll_i if we can have our $\sigma u r t$ way?"

Page 27, same book, this Tunker says:

"If Greet one another with a kiss, does not teach the necessity of the salvation of the holy kiss, what does it teach?"

The apostle says, Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving.' Col. 4: 2. Now, if Greet one another with a kiss of charity, is not essential to salvation, how do we know that Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving, is essential?

We can give any amount of proof that the Tunder churches claim salvation by works of righteonsness which they have done, but Paul says: "Not by works of righteonsness which we have done, but according to his mercy be saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and cenewing of the Holy Ghost, which he shed on us abound, oith through Jesus Christ, our Savior Titles 5: 5, 6. Surely the Tunker churches that them to be regarded as Churches of Jesus reject the plan of salvation by grace, are not churches of Christ.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

AM so weak that I can scarcely hold my pen, or keep my head from the jullow. But I am pressed by requests from those whose wishes are fantamount to a commandment, to prepare something for Bullyribes at Work on a quesfrom that has caused unnecessary discussion and

It is unlair, to say the least, to strain a word or joessige or flex a jornæiple, in order to make gravision for the support of a theory, or pet idea. Such a course is unjust to courselves, to other-, and to the truth. To yield promptly to the Divine logic, and accept without quibble a Divine statement, is emmently christian. God. is the author of Babel, and He understands the import of the words He employs. He is neither tantological, nor ambognous, nor erroneous.

The word "compt" in Matt. 19:9, is a lunger of explication, giving a sudden, isolated turn to the current thought of Christ which any school how of moderate sense can understand. It is not necessary to go lack to the creation, and penetrate the mysteries of our sexual duality, in order to get the true premises for the selflement of this problem; when God makes on ercontinuat is an exception, and to set it aside in our ecclesustical legislation is to prefer landiand superiority to God.

That payof-word mosels every argument ever attempted against the induction of those whose first wedlock was nothfiel to the conjugal in- the scene was changed, they fell on their faces fidelity of the other half. CLOUDS.

BY TIZZER B. MYERS

NOMETIME ugo I read an article on the "Ev-(i) er varving beauty of the clouds" wherein the writer portrays the beauties, of the clouds in a manner that cannot ful to give pleasure to every lover of unture. My mind was carried beyond the "beauties" to some very important events connected with the charls. The first, I just now think of, was when the children of Israel were about crossing the Red Sen. "The angel of the Lord stood by them in a pillar of fire and of cloud," and when the Egyptians pursued them it went from before their face, and stood behind them, thus serving a double purpose, guiding them and protecting them from their enemies. Had the Lord withdrawn the cloud, what might have been their doom? "WHAT DOEST THOU HERE, ELIJAH?"

BY LNOTH LLY

"And it was so, when Flipalcheard it, that he wrapped his tace in this mantle, and went out and stood in the entering in of the cave. And beheld, there came a voice unfolding and said What doest thou here, Physic?" A Kings, 49

ffHIE above language of the Land was the cave on Mount Horeb.

Elrigh had become exceedingly troubded and disheartened at the sad condition of Israel. Hear him "I have been very zealous for the Lord God of hosts, be cause the children of Israel have forsak en the sevenant, thrown down thine altar, and slain thy prophets with the sword, and I, even I only, am left; and they seek my life to take it away." And in his extreme trouble, and grief and anxiety of mind, into which he had fallen, by looking constantly on the dark side of the picture, he finally began to entertain erroneous views concerning the true character and combition of Israel; though it was bash it was not quite so had as he thought. I presume so far as have left me seven thousand in Israel, all the knees which have not bowed unto Baal, and every mouth which bath not kissed him." Verse 18, Had Elijah viewed things in the proper light, and seen things as the Lord saw them, his grief would not have caused him to with draw a day's journey into the wilder ness, and sit down under a juniper stree and request to die; (see verse 4) and the result was, he fell asleep, and the angel came, and baked a cake for him, and awoke him and told him to arise and eat and drink. He did so and went in the strength of that meat forty days, and came to Horeli, the mount of God, and lodged in a cave, where the Lord addressed him in the language of the above text. "What doest thou here, Elijah! Go and anoint Hazael king over Syria, and Jehn king over Israel, and Elijab shalt then anoint a prophet in thy room: and it shall come to pass he that escapes the sword of Hazael shall Jehu slay, and he that escapeth from the sword of Jehu shall Elisha slay," 4 Kings 19: 17.

Mark well, dear reader, the manner in which the Lord addressed himself to Elijah in the cave: "A mighty wind rent the mountains and break the rocks, but the Lord was not in the wind; and then an earthquake, but the Lerd was not in the earthquake; and next a fire, but the Lord was not in the fire; and last of all n still small voice; and when Elijah heard it, he wrapped his mantle about his face, and went and stood in the cutrance of the cave; and then a voice came and spoke to him."

While there are some good practical thoughts suggested to our mind, in the history of good old Elijah, may we not, with propriety, make an application, of at least some of them, to our own indithem with the history of the church in [the present age, with the feelings, and dear firethren?

was wrong; for hear the Lord: "Yet I grievous wolves shall enter in, not sparing the flock; even of our ownselves shall men arise of corrupt minds, speaking perverse things, and shall draw away disciples after them."

The church in different periods, has had a similar element to contend with, and always had lead, unruly members. who would not walk according to the spirit of the gospel; some went back while the Savior was here among them; and many in the apostles' day walked disorderly and at last went to the world again; and the apostle says the end will not come until a falling away come, (if not in number, it will be in principle).

Dear reader, let me here remark, if you excuse yourself from uniting or remaining with the church on the simple grounds, that there are some proud, highminded, disorderly members in it, you never will enjoy a spiritual home, or the presence of Jesus in this life or in the world to come eternal life, for he that cannot exercise patience and self-denial enough to stay with the church, simply because he cannot get everything the way he wants it, is not qualified for the kingdom of glory. The Savior knew Judas was a devil when he chose him as an apostle, and associated with him to the last night, and he certainly had an object in view in doing so.

Admitting, my dear brethren, that, at least some of the above statements, on reference to many of the members of our own beloved fraternity, are correct, is it not, nevertheless possible, yea even probable, that some of us, who feel a greater concern for the welfare and purity of the church than many others whose experience has not been so extensive, to take a magnified view of the condition of things like Elijah did, and become disheartened, and perhaps, bear a greater, burden. vidual advantage? by that may take years of praying and fasting, and holy living to wash it away? Is there not a lawful way and place to determine such matters? We think there is: if there is anything current in the church that would suggest the propriet; of a division to the minds of any of our dear brethren, let that proposition be made to the church at home, and if they ap. probate it, send it to the District Meet. ing, and if they approbate it, send it to our Annual Conference, and let it be de. termined there in a careful assembly, and not through the press. I feel very cer. tain it would have been better if the first proposition for a division would have been answered privately, or sem back to the originator instead of publish. ing it: but I sympathize with the editors' critical and perplexing position, beace can easily throw the muntle of charity over it, and feel to pray for them, their important station demands the prayers of the faithful.

It may, however, with some propriety. be said, that hitherto the government of the church has failed to reach and arrest the growing evils of this age; for, while she seems to be laboring to retain her holiness, corruption and a spirit of rebellion to her wholesome counsels, is still on the increase; not because the government is not right, (for that is per. feet, and hence will apply to any ease); but because there is failure, oftentimes on our part to execute that government; hence matters become worse instead of better. But, while we strongly advocate meckness, mildness, and gentleness in all our executive labors, we, nevertheless just as strongly urge the propriety of applying church government to the full extent of the spirit, as well as the letter of the Gospel.

Let us look at the beautiful type of church government given to us in the language of the Lord to Elijah as given in the chapter above alluded to in the 17th verse, where he was required to g_0 and anoint three different officers, so that if they escaped the sword of one, they would fall into the hands of another. So the Savior said in reference to individual tresposses, first go to him alone (with the sword of the spirit which is the word of God); but if he will not hear thee, take one or two more; use the sword lagain, but if he escapes again, tell it unto the church; if he tries to escape the as a heathen man and a publican. This, however, only applies to individual cases.

But now we will consider that mem-

Has not our beloved gotten a stain there, accomplish the desired end, the salve

jon of the refractory member and the in love, and not separate and alienate purity of the church), or neglect to do their duty, let the matter be sent to Angual Meeting; if they neglect to send it unitedly, as a church, a suffering minorky can appeal to Annual Meeting and be heard, and ofttimes, at least, it would be very profitable, after A. M. has conidered and decided a matter, to send gen of their own company with them to explain the nature of the decision, and the importance of complying therewith, the hest that could be done in the tand united in the faith. So they did at the first Conference at Jerusalem. Acts 15.

In the minutes of A. M., of 1849, Art. s, is a request of somewhat similar naure, that is for A. M., to send brethren sound in the faith and much experience. poor by two, to visit all the churches, to labor with them for a greater unanim ity in practice and appearance. My appropriate is if that were done in the right way, much good would result from it, from the fact that those who are present and hear the investigations are better qualified to give the reasons for such dea psions, and show the advantage of heeding such advises, and that they are in perfect harmony with the spirit of the $\frac{\tau}{gospel_s}$ and that the $\Lambda, M, only$ gives the best advice she can in the absence of plant Scriptural specification on the sub- $_{\rm ject,\ nml}^{\prime}$ that the $\Lambda,\ M.,\ does\ not\ claim$ to be a law making power, (as some erroneously assert she is), but simply gives advice in harmony with laws already made. The Supreme Court of the United States does not legislate, she on ly decides matters agreealdy to the law already made; precisely so with A. M., and, to my great satisfaction, be it said that I never heard one of the objectors to the decisions of the A. M., prove any thing to the contrary; but all will acknowledge, if carried out, they will have atendency to parify the church, and keep her humilde and separate from the world, and surely that is gospel.

Furthermore; my convictions are that if the above thought was properly taught, and understood, by many of our dear bethren, we would never hear the very ampleasant, and uncharitable, shall l say, unchristian remarks, or phrases? yoke is easy and burden light.

brethren will, and do say, there are many we cannot get into the church if numbers should govern us in this matterf or is it the gospel? The Savior did not get all into the church either, not because he had not power, but he taught certain principles of self-denial, and these they would not accept, and even some, after being with him as followers, for sook him again; he made no compromise in order to retain them in church fellowship with the church without its timeself-denying principles, as their characteristics will only deceive, in the end, listead of save.

There are two extreme elements in the church, is a fact that cannot be demed; (the one may be stronger and more dangerous or injurious than the other). and I suppose always has been, and al-Ways will be. But that there is a conservative element is equally plain; and hitherto has been, and, I trust in the future. will be strong enough to form a nucleus around which the two extremes can be come reconciled upon a safe gospel basis, and labor together as brethren, and let our difference of againion only draw us closer together, for bearing one another like the days of Noah.

our feelings toward each other, and in order that we may labor together suc cessfully in that direction, I would reconmend much fasting and prayer by all who feel a deep interest in the welfare of Zion, especially our dear editors, whose influence materially effects our beloved fraternity, through the medium of the press, and who, in a few instances some of them recently have not manifested that Christian courtesy and spirit of forbearance toward each other, nor yet ese; and then exhort them to be firm and their editorial criticisms contain as much salt, as their high, responsible and important positions, (in our judgment) would | deluge, which swept all men from off seem to demand?

M., of 1848, and generally responded to by those present. (The greater part of those old posts who signed those minutes are fallen asleep,) and if they, 31 years ago felt, the necessity. of fasting and prayer, surely we at this time should feel it, if possible, more so. The minutes read as follows:

"Lastly, at the parting meal Wednesday noon, it was proposed, and heartily responded to by all, to recommend. every Monday, of our future Annual Meeting as a day of general fasting and prayer, not only to the members that may be gathered at the place of meeting, but to all the members in every part of the Lord's vineyerd, who yet desire to be faithful, and to see the household of faith continue steadfast in the apostles doctrine, and in fellowship, and in breaking bread, and in prayers, even until he comes, who liath said, 'Surely I come quickly, Amen. Even so come Lord Jesns." The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with us all. Amen.

THE DAYS OF NOAH AND THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

We actually find among the Christian race, men profess ing to believe in Christ who have strange forms of faith, and strange forms of unbelief, and auti-christ in their creed; we find men believing in science, philosphy, and literature, believing in the illimitable power and progress of our race, but setting aside the gaspel of the grace of tiod; setting aside the cross of our Lord desus Christ by means of which God proposes in his own time and way to redeem us. But has it was in the days of preached. Christ, and judgment, unto Noah, so shall the coming of the Son of them, we fold then to the the wrath to man be." The days before the flood, and the days before the coming of the Son | and safety, then sudden destruction comof man are to resemble each other. If eth, and they shall not escape. Broth men's hearts during that time were evil, | ren, as the days of Noah was, so shall we are sure that those same hearts will be the days seem new. Let us, therefore, found speaking out to the last; and that | feel whatsoever our bands find to do, do the days before the Son of man- the it with all our might, "for the night days in which we live, will be found cometh wherein no man can work."

Our Lord distinctly lays down the comparison between these two periods. That which gave such prominence to the days of Noah was the termination in the flood; that which gives such interest and solemnity to our day, is this; that it is to terminate in the "coming of the Son of man." What profound solemnity the deluge throws around the days of Noah, as we real the past history! What pro found solemnity the prospect of the of the Son of man' throws over our days, when we read of them; for as sure as the days of Noah ended in the drowning the face of the earth, so sure shall our And as a day of fraternal fasting and days end in that more terrible consumbut a flood of fire—a fiery deluge in which this earth and its works of wickedness are to be destroyed; for "he cometh in flaming fire taking vengeance upon them that know not God, and obey not his gospel; who shall be banished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of his power." But when the Son of man comes, shall be find faith on the earth?

In 2 Timothy 3, we read that in the last days perilous times shall come. This chapter seems to be a recapitulation of the evil of the days of Noah, as carried out in the last days. In the second chapter of Isaiah, we have a similar scene: darkness and desolation and crime and judgment. Then in the third of second Peter, a similar scene: "scoffers shall come, walking upon their own Justs, and saying where is the promise of his coming?" These passages, and several similar ones, loring out the likeness of the two times. I want to show you, in reference to men, the two periods are like each other; and how, in reference to God, they are like each other.

1. In reference to man, we see in creasing worldliness, forgetfulness to God, crime, we hear the voice of the scoffer speaking; we see God set at naught, righteons men despised, judgment of God set aside; and whereas in corr day, they say, "where is the promise WE are so apt to underrate the evil said in the days of Noah; "where is the of his coming?" So, doubtless, they flead for which you are preparing this tion with second Timothy, third chapter,

But we find, on the part of God, forbearance and longsuffering. "A hundred and twenty years in the preparing of the ark wherein eight souls were saved," we in this land, have not only had a hundred and twenty years, but more than twice that since the reformation. God says "my Spirit shall not always strive with man;" but as wickedness increases, it seems as though this striving increases; God's striving with men, pleading with them, and saving, "turn ye, turn ye for why will ye die?" Brethren, shall we not seek to be faithful, with grace on one hand and judgment on the other, that on that day when we shall be asked to give an account of the deeds done in the body, we shall be able to say, we come?" When men are saying, "Peace

Is it possible that Christians should depart so far from the simplicity of the truth that brother will go to law with brother, and that before unbelievers? Is it possible that a church should be so careless as to allow nembers to do that? Is it provable that elders have coased to watch over the flocks in certain localities, and allow members, thus to violate the Scriptures? Is it possible that these least extremed nubeliev ers should be set to judge? I speak it to the brother to go to law with brother. painfully evident, however, that, as a people, we have not exerted ourselves in behalf of those children that need Bible instruction. There are many whom we might lead into the truth if we would make the effort. Why we should not make the effort, doth not yet appear.

The qualifications of Sunday-school workers were urged as being good character, Christian virtues. Bible knowledge, holy life, purity of speech. The physical, intellectual and spiritual natures of children need to be developed. By food and exercise the physical is developed; in our common schools the intellectual is developed, and by the Bible the spiritual is developed. Parents perform part of the work, but find it necessary to employ helps in the development of their children. They find it convenient to entrust the intellectual part, in a great measure. to others, and most of them entrust the development of the spiritual to those of "like precious faith." The remainder of the toremoon was spent in discussion. To the careful observer, it was clearly evident that Moldle Indann, like many other districts, has a large held to work in . One brother has a territory of 2,400 square nules to travel over. He arose to show how he had to labor under severe difficulties. Calls from all directions, came to him to preschithe gespel, but being poor, he could not fill them. The people are nungry, but he has not the ability to get the bread of lite to them. LETTER NUMBER OF

On the 23rd of April I had the pleasure of meeting with the Brethier of the Middle Distract of Imbana in conneil at the Sugar Creek Church, Whitley County. Meeting opened by singing and prayer. Damel Neff was chosen Moderator, John Welle, Clerk, and Algan Miller, Reading Chirk, Call of chareles and enrollment of delegates was next in order Nearly all the charches were represented. The first query related to a change in the manner of doing laisiness at the District Meeting. The leading tentines were, the delegates to elect moderator and cherks, speakers to be lumbed in ime, and unal decision to be made by delegate only. The meeting retused to make any changes. The second query asked A. M. to amend Art. 18 of 1853. It was stated that no such article could be found in the lood, being tabled The third asked for sisters to local, bread and divide the cup as brethren do, citing in support of the same I Cor. 10: 16; 37 d. 3: 28. Sent to A. M. without an iniswer. The fourth desired a change in time of holding $\Omega_{i}(M)$. Agreed by change to second Wednesday of February . The fifth requests A. The Bible never causes men to fall out and dispute about what is in it. All the confusion has arisen about what is not in the Bible. One man thinks this is the way to do, another thinks his way is right; so they pull apart and finally separate in association and fellowship. Now, if we cling to the Bible, say what it says, do what it bids, answer Bible questions with Bible answers, and leave "toolish and inflearned questions" (2 Tim. 2: 23) alone, there will be unity of fuith. No. 33 is a well written article on the beard question, and is from a locality where the Brethren have had considerable trouble in regard to the wearing of a full beard. We do not admi. articles on this subject, it being a question about which the Bible is silent. If brethren want to wear a full beard, and will keep it de cent, let them wear it; God made it, and we presume he wanted it to grow. My individual preference is favorable to the shaving of the upper lip-but I do not want to digtate for my bruther on a question, where God does not dietate. If some of those who are making themselves much trouble about this matter would spend more time spreading, the gospel and less discussing questions about which the Bible is as silent as the grave, the church would be much better off. Let us leave that and all other questions, just where the Bible leaves them. However, care should be taken to wear the it is right for brethren to fishion their beard after the prevailing style of the world. The absurd fashion of leaving the mustache grow and shaving the rest of the lage is neither beneficial nor reasonable. There are many other as kward ways of wearing the beard that our members ought not to follow. As we are a scienate and a distinct people from the world, we ought to be actuated by pure motives, and have some good reason for what we do.

THE FLAG'S SCISSORS.

The Battle Flag refused to publish the closing part of Brother Stein's 12th affirmative in its proper place. They simply cut off part of his article and returned it to him, so Brother Stein sends it to us to be published and read in connection with his last article. It is hoped the Flag will not do the like again.—BRETHREN AT WORK.

The Flag will do the very same thing again should Mr. Stein overreach his bounds so far. He has the privilege of writing as many articles as he desires, but must keep somewhere shout the limits as to length.—Baptist Battle Flag.

Brother Stein overreached his bounds only 31 lines, but the Flag was unfair enough to cut off 96 lines, thus making Brother Stein's 12th affirmative 65 lines shorter than was agreed upon. These 96 lines were returned to Brother Stein who sent them back to the Flag again, hut preserved a copy for us. We pronounce this scissor business an unfair game, and do not want to see the Flag do it any more, unless it will do the same with Ray's articles. The allotted space, for each article, ends in the fourth column of the Flag, the 24th line from the bottom. We shall carefully watch the Flog, and see if it allows any of Mr. Ray's articles to go beyond that line. Brother Stein's 13th affirmative has now been in the hands of the Flag about two weeks. J. H. A DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.

DECENTLY, in the Ogan's Creek congregation, south-east of North Manchester, Indiana, one of the most distressing accidents occurred in the history of the county. Mr. David Strife's wife, a young woman in the full bloom of life, attempted to start a fire in the cook stove with kerosene oil. It appears that there were some live coals in the stove, and these set the oil on fire, bursting the can, enveloping the poor woman in flames. Her husband who was out doors at the time, heard her screams and non-to-her mid, but the late to do any good. He barely saved two children from the flames, and succeeded in patting out the fire. All. Trades and Trie is are learned. People often disgredit the truth about things which they do not understand. It is a wonder to some how we can tell whether the person who sends us an article for the paper is a plagramst or not. There are many ways, by which this can be ascertained from the article itself, and that without ever laying so not before either. We regret that any one should be so dishonest as to send as articles, which they did not compose, and sign their names to them as if they had composed them. To do so is cheating; it is trying to show one's sell to be more intelligent than he is; and it is trying to get credit for what he does not deserve. It is also one way of acting the hypocrite. When any one sends an article which he did not compose, let him say he schedul it.

BAPTIZED FOR THE DEAD

AMIERE were those in the church at Corinth who denied the resurrection of the dead. hence to correct these errors Paul writes on the resurrection of the dead, (verse 12) and takes haptism to show them how inconsistent they ure, for they had all received buildism when they believed, which is a figure of the larrial and res urrection of Christ. There is no hope in a burial without a resurrection, therefore Panasks them this question, "Why are they or you baptized for or in the likeness of the dead, or of Christ's death, if the dead rise not all all?" For if they were haptized, or buried in the likeness of his burnal they are also in the likeness of his resurrection, and should walk in "newness of R. R. Moos. life."

FEET-WASHING; FLAMING SWORD.

Will some one prease explain whether feet-wisle ing took idace under the old at new dependations? Is the cherman, or daming swood stall between man and the tree of life?

E suppose our querist wishes to know whether the tore our transfer. enjoined by our Savior on the night of his betrayal took place under the old, or new dispensation; to this we would answer, under the new, Luke tells us that "The law and the prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached and every man presseth into it." Since that time all the commands and ordinances that were enjoyed belong to the new or Christian dispensation. Christ came to fulfill the old law and take it out of the way, that he might establish one that was faultless Query 2. " Is the chermann or flaming sword still between man and the tree of life;" We answer, not between those who have accepted salvation among the lost sheep of the house of Paul. Hear his language, "To the weak heof the glorious plan of salvation, and the tree of | Israel, which he desired to have done below his life. In Rev. 2: 7 we read, "The that both an (suffering took place, which he knew was not ear let him hear what the spirit saith unto the | far distant in the luture; hence he tells them churches: to him that overcometh will I give to just to stop to dispute, or argue, or in any way eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of give offence, lest they be cast into prison and

Man, by his disobedience, forfeited his right to the tree of life which grew in the earthly paradise, and the sword of divine justice was placed to gourd it, or to keep man from partaking of it; but by his obedience, man may have a right to the tree of life which is in the midst of the heavenly paradise. PROVIDING FOR HIS HOUSE.

Please explidin I Tim. 5:8, which reads as follows But if any provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith and Is worse than an infidek"

THE great apostle, to the Gentiles, is here instructing Timothy what he should teach the brethren is their duty-toward their own relatives, who may be destitute and dependent on them-father, mother, or even grandparent, and especially those of their own house; such as wife, children, and such as belong to their own families. He that will refuse to do this practically denies the faith by disobeying its known requirements "and is worse than an infidel," begause unbelievers, and even heathen believe this to be a duty and often practice it.

THE NEW COVENANT.

I would like to have some one explain, through your paper, Helg 8: 8-40. It read cas follows 22 For finding fault with them, he south. Behold, the days ronne, saith the Laid, when I will to do a new covemant willetbe boorse of Israel and with the boorse of Audate and according to the covernor that I unide with their lattices, in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the band of Egypt - because they continued not urmy covercant. and I regarded them not, saith the Lord. For this is the coverago that I will rouke with the house of Israel after those days, such the Lord, 1 will put my laws into their name, and write them in their Insurfs: and I will be to them a God, and they shall he beme a people,"

IN this communication Paul is feaching the I Helicews the divinity of the Savior's priesthond, and draws a composition between the Levitical pric-thood and that of the Savior; the covernant of the Levitical priesthood was written upon tables of strone and placed in an ark called the ark of the covenant. Of this covenant Moses seems to have been the mediator, as he reggived it and gave it to the children of Israel. But the Suvier addained a more excellent ministry than Moses, and is the Mediator of a better covenant, which was established upon better promises, for if the first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second. The Savior's covenant was written in the minds and hearts of his people. He told them that he would bring all things to their minds whatsoever he had commanded. And whatsoever they bound on earth would be bound in heaven, and whidsoever they loosed on earth would be loosed in heaven. He poured his spirit upon, them and they spoke as the sparit gave them utterance, and when they wrote, they wrote as the spirit directed; as, John upon the Isle of Patinos. Thus the new covernmet gives the people was banded down from that time to this, and we have it in the form of the New Testament

The Scripture referred to in the second query is part of Paul's charge to Timothy, and means that he should not receive widows to be supported by the church unless they have the qualifications named. In the 11, 12, 13 verses of the same chapter be gives his reasons for it.

GOD'S ELECT.

Please give an explanation on Acts 2: 47: " And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved."

Romans 8: 93; "Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect "

Thmothy 2: 10, "Therefore I endure all things HENRY SCHRANTZ. for the elect's sake."

THE first passage, as it stands in King James translation, is in the potential mode, and conditional present tense. Should denotes fitness, or obligation of propriety, "Such as should be saved." The above phrase being in the passive voice, represents the subject as being acted upon, that is, the Lord added to the church daily such as are fit, or in a proper condition to be saved. In the Bible Union transtation it reads, "And the Lord added to the church daily those who are saved," or as the margin reads, "who are being saved." This rendering makes the passage plainer, but the sense is radically the same.

We suppose our querist desires an explanation on the word "elect" in the second passage. Election and choosing are terms that are used interchangeably in the Scriptures. There are three kinds of election spaken of in the Bible. 1. The election of individuals to perform some particular or special service. 2. The election of nations, or hodies of people, to emment religions privileges, that they may be fifted to accomplish certain purposes of God. 3. Personal elections, or the election of individuals to be the children of God, and heirs of eternal life. Those persons, termed the elect, are those who have been obsidient to the truth, those who have partified their souls in obeying the troth through the sporit unto unleigned love of the brethren Peter gives an explanation of personal electron. He says, "Electaceording to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the spirit, unto electiones and sprinkling of the blood of Christ. It follows then that election is an act of God done in time, and that it is subsequent to faith and obedience. The Savior says, "Many are called, but few are chosen." All are called or suvited to the gospel feast, but few accept the terms, and consequently few are elected. The apostle asks, "Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's elect?" Who dare accuse those whom that hath chosen? Who dare condemn where he approves?

We will now try to consider the third passage. In verse 9 the apostle speaks of his sufferings. and of his bonds, for the gospel. "But," says he, "the word of God is not bound." Therefore, for this reason, because the gospel is free, anconfined, because it is fully adequate to the varied wants of luminity, because it is fully alde to free the race from the power and guilt of sm. "Therefore Lendure all things for the "clect's sake," for the sake of those who have been chosen in Christ, and who have received Tthe adoption of children. And why does this great immister endure, so much for the sake of God's chosen? That they may also obtain the of the lighthren and sisters to which the worksalvation which is in Christ Jesus with electron ers of the church was entrusted, we concluded glory. How indetatigable were the labors of this wonderful man! Fully did he approprie his noble, his glorious calling; thoroughly did he realize his responsibility. His divine Master had committed into his hands, a most sacred trust, and his fidelity to his great Master would not permit him to indulge self, to slack his real or abate his energy. It only be could secure the salvation, the parity, the classify, of those committed to his trust, and at last see them. eternally saved, that was all he desired. For this he labored, for this he suffered, for this he endured privations. The abnegation of this apostle was truly wonderful. He had so theroughly unbled the society of his glorious Mastered upon his ministerial duties. There seems eter, that like him he could stoop to all the weaknesses, and infirmities of his charge. There was no baughtiness, no dononcering sparit in came I as weak, that I might pain the weak; I am made all things to all men, that I might be all means save some." Oh that many of the ambassadors of Thrist would wick in the foot

The Natural Way-The Falling of a Tree. A Day's Work in Wolf Creek Church Brother Stutzman's Labors—Death of Young Sister.

BY JOHN PALVIN BRIGHT.

N investigating a trouble in school a few weeks since, the scholars laid the hlama one upon the other. Some one clay had commenced it some one else was the cause of it This is wrong. We have examples of it is the first pages of the Bible. The progention of the human race gave the example, and their large family has followed it only too well. Wa have a remarkable example of it in the circum. stance of King Saul and the Amalekites, Saul blamed the people for his violation of the dis vine decree. But the kingdom was rent from him, and he fell by the sword. God's blessings never did rest on such conduct, and they never

One pleasant evening, as 1 stood in the school. cosm door, looking over the surrounding land. scape, my attention was called to a large oak tree, one mile west. As 1 was admiring its stateliness it fell. The woodman's ax had laid it low. And as I was in one of my meditative moods at the time, the following cogitations rashed through my mind:

1. This tree is a fit emblem of all below, It matters not how mighty the structure is it will pass away. Time in his career has seen the proudest cities in the world crimble to the dust. And the mighty man of valor, "though les spear a hundred weight," has been brought low. Death is the end of all earthly perfection. Boast not thyself therefore of to-morrow. We know not what a day may bring forth. To-day we may think all is "peace and safety," but sudden destruction may come," "In the midst of life we are in death."

"The moment we legin to live, We all begin to die."

Death on his tireless pinions is in the land. and we may be his next victim. The lovely babe, the smiling youth, the fond young wother, the man in his prime, the aged grandparent are full of life and hope to-day, to-morrow, the place that now knows them may know them no more forever. Such is life.

2. We should stand firm, rooted and grounded in the vine of everlasting truth. We should dig deep and found our faith on the rock of eternal ages. We should only use such material as will stand the fiery test-gold, silver, precious stones; faith, hope, and charity, and all ther essential concountants. Then "Let cares like a wild delinge come," and the very "gates of hell" open their fury upon us, we are, nevertheless, secure. For he that cannot be has said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."

The Wolf Creek Church convened on the 27th of February to call furth more laborers into the vineyard, and to advance other brethren. Brother Jacob Garber was ordanied, Brother John Kimmel advanced to the second degree in the ministry. Brother Henry Garher called to the ministry, and Brother George Echangh called to the deaconship. From the solemnity that pervaded the meeting, the peace and love which the members mainlested to each other, and the antecedents or qualifications that the church did a good day's work. The bretteren and sisters wept for the great responsbility under which they were placed. God bless them and the church, and help us all to mate our labors to promote personal sauthication, the unity and prosperity of the church, the spread of the gospel and the conversion of sinners, and the honor and glorification of the eternal majesty on logh. Amen-

Brother J. Stutzman, of Dark County, had s tew meetings in the Wolf Creek Church, April 5th and 6th. He made some felling ponds and impressed them forcibly upon the minds of his hearers. We synopsize a few of them.

1. Grace and truth. By grave we under stand the undeserved tayor of God. By grace are ye saved. By truth understand the writen word through, or by which, we are sanctified and parified. "Sametify the notice ough the truth." Thy word is truth " "Particl your souls by obeying the truth. Some want to be sared by grace alone. In the Surudine grace and truth are connected. "What God has poped together iet no man jort asunder."

2. Hourt selignon By heart, as used in the Holy Scriptures, is meant the affections. "For jout of the aloundance of the heart the month

3. Work. Work is the order of the universe All Father worketh hitherto and I work." ors le-us. Again, "I must work while it is alled to-day." And again, "I have finished the rock which thou gavest me to do." Deity Torks, that men may see them and be conmanner. And though the Devil himself works nih untiring energy, yet he has concocted the to line souls to everlasting

4. Non-essentials. God is a perfect being. the needed not that any should testify of man. of he knew what was in man," and what was secessary to redeem him from his fallen state, He gave us the Holy Scriptures as a transcript of the divine mind, and admits that it is safe to obey them. And to find non-essenteds therein gto question either the integrity or intelligence of Desty. Startling thought!

At the conclusion of the last meeting it was agnounced that one of the lambs of the flock had gone to her reward. Sister Susie Echaugh and April 4th not having quite completed her twentieth year. Disease, inflimation of brain. Her death caused a deep sadness to pervade a happy boundy, from whence the flower and cenprotatiraction had been removed. This sadges, was tell throughout the church and a "large circle of her acquaintances. Yet poy was mugled with this sadness! Her tungral was preely attended and profitably improved by Beilinen Stutzman and our home ministers. In the canclusion of the exercises, as an appropush offering to her memory, as an acquiessence to the Divine Providence that called her home, and as a tribute of praise to the Lord. the 014th hymn was song. to be based upon their representative membership, and the congregation holding A. M. to share equally in the division.

Our Annual Meetings are beginning to be burdensome, and should be self-supporting; for it has been urged that the business be entirely transacted through delegates to the exclusion of the church in general in consequence of the great expense; but surely in a multitude of counsel there is safety—let the church do business for the church.

It may be urged that there is too much speculation in this plan, but we cannot see the speculation, but verily believe that when Jesus fed the multitude they had more in the fragments they gathered than they had in the loaves to begin with.

From Juniata, Nebraska.

Dear Brethven:—

D ROTHER Kindig and I have spent some 1 time in this part of Nebraska.

The soil, climate, and water are good, but it is very windy at this season. There are no members nearer than eight miles. I learn there are six south of Juniata. There are good people all around, but still it is not settling among the Brethren. Brethren will always find it more pleasant to settle near a church.

A Methodist minister met me in Hastings, Nebrasko, and asked me if I was not a Dankard. I told him I was. He said he could tell one wherever he would see him. He appeared to be glad to meet me. We, of course, differed on Baptism, but agreed on the Communion, Feet-washing, etc.

I asked bim it Christ was our pattern. He said he was. I asked him if Christ was baptize ed in Jordan. He said he was, and that he heheved in immersion but would sprinkle and pour also, just as the candidate desired. Tasked lim if that was following the pattern. He seemed puzzled, and I remarked we should fuldow the pattern very closely and we will more certainly be safe.

There is preaching close by. We would be glad if some of the ministering brethren would stop and labor for us. I think a full liouse could be but at any time. There is only one goodly separating us from Jewell County, Kansas, where there are able ministers whom we should be glad to have call on us. We live three miles S. W. of Juniata; are stopping with a friend now; have not built yet.

We now have seven members in this neighborhood, and we believe soon will have more; we need more preaching; our brothren are doing all they can. Will not some of the good brethren come and help is some time this year? Buthren, let us hear from you. We live one and one half imles of Lymbus, and would be glad to meet the Jackbren at any time.

We helieve the time is id-hand, when God's people should use all their power for the cause of Christ, "Watch therefore; for ye know not what hear the Lord doth come." Math. 21:42. We see the Scriptures in e tast fulfilling. We shall see Jesus coming in the cloud, of heaven, Breffinen, are we watching? H so, oh what with Christian that happy land. Oh how it Title our heart to think of these things! The Lool lides you in your good work and give you grade to be anally our trials.

FR (IIIe hand of bothren and sisters is stal increasing in number, eight more since the latter part of Estimacs, one of which Three The mency thorsoft and, and also is our beloved Brother Same I Brangh, an experienced elder and good housekeeper. We truly thank the Lord for the gift of elder, which we so much stood in need of. Brother Samuel emigrated from Dark County. Ohio, to this place; had the oversight of the Oakland Church. Brother Samuel is well stricken in years; has lived among the Brethren in the Oakhud Church for a long time, and we have no doubt his absence from the Oakland Church will be greatly felt.

The brethren and sisters in this congregation are all well as far as we know. We also feel to raise our voices in thanksgiving to him from whom all plessing, flow for the beautiful rain which he sent us last night, which we so much needed. This morning all the vegetation seems to speak forth words of praise to God. We sometimes fear we are too much inclined to find fault about the weather; let us remember that God's ways are not our ways, and that he is much wiser than man, and knows what is best for us. Man can't change the least of God's laws, (if I am allowed to call any least). but he can violate them; therefore let us watch. The Savior says watch; we can't watch too much.

Thanks be to God for his merejes and favors manifested towards us from time to time. The Brethren at Work still makes its weekly visits to our lomes, giving us wholesome news. Oh how we await its arrival.

Now may the grace of God and his spirit be with all the brethren and sisters, is the prayer of your brother in Christ, Н. Sиомити. April 22nd, 1879.

Brother Gordan was prostrate t early in the Winter. During the revival seasons his friends were much interested in his present and eternal welfare. The ministers of the various denominsticus called in to see him, but he was not inclined to take any council of them. Finally one of his friends proposed to lam, to send for the Dankard preacher. I wend soon after I received the message; found the man in a precarious condition. I laid before him our Buth and practice. He said that was in harmony with the teneling of the word of God. I then left him, but in a few days he sent for me to come and haptize him. We went and did the last we knew how. Dear Brethren:-

UMBER 16 of BRETHREN AT WORK, dated April 17th, so far has failed to reach me. Lunderstand my neighbors have it. Lam sorry. I do not want to lose a single number. Go on in the course you have pursued; let others do wrangling. Stick to the principle. Work while others offer plans and suggestions. It is labor rightly directed that will be rewarded; wrangling and strife will also receive their just recompense.

The Disciple who wanted to debate with me could not persuade himself in the month of March at any church or school-house between us, and would not risk to affirm a proposition involving single immersion, but wanted me to deny that "An immersion of a proper subject upon the authority of Jesus Christian baptism." I offered to affirm "That the immersion upon the authority of Jesus Christ is trine immersion," but he can not see the awkwardness of his proposition. He says he would drop it if it were not giving me the indvantage of reporting a back out on his part. Lam sorry for his dilemma.

Dear Brethren:-

YPR quarterly church meeting came off on the 19th of April. The teelings were good and all seemed to be alive to the good cause. We decaded to hold our Love-feast at the house of the undersigned, being five builes southwest of Garnett, beginning on the 30th day of May, and holding four days. The charch will commune on the evening of the 2nd of June. The usual invitation is extended.

The church is in a prosperous condition at the present time, growing both in layor and number. It numbers about eighty-five souls. On List Sunday five precious souls came out on the Lord's side, and were buried by baptism, and rose, we hape, to walk in new ess of life All five are in their youthful days, being from about fitteen to eighteen years of age. We feel that there are others near the kingdom. May the good Lord hasten the day when all may lears to know and tear his holy name, is my P. H. Watson. prayer.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE PERSON OF JESUS CHRIST.

As it Was to not Anchol Manuscript Sent by Publics Lintalies, President of Judea, teethe Senute of Rome

THERE lives at this time in Juden a man, of singular character, whose mane is desus Christ. The barbarious esteem from a prophict, but his followers adore him as the innucdrate offspring at the immortal God. He is endowed with such appendicted vietre as to eal back the dead from their graves, and to bent every kind of disease with a word or touch. His person is tall and elegannly shaped - his aspect annuable, reverend. He had flows in those hemitiful shades which no united colors can match, falling into graceful earls below his ears, agreealdy concloug on his shoulders, and parling on the erown of his head, like the head-dress of the sect of the Nazzontes. His forehead is smooth and large, his check without spot, save that of a lovely red; his nose and month are formed with exquisite symmetry; his heard is thick, and suitable to the hair of his head, reaching a litthe above his clun, and parting in the middle like a fork; his eyes are bright, clear and serene. He relatives with imagesty, comisels with mildness, and invites with the most tender and persuasive language; his whole address, whether ina word or deed, being elegant, grave, and strictly characteristic of soexulted a being. No man has ever seen him bough; but the whole world hehold him weep frequently, and -a persistive are his tears that none can refram from joining in sympathy with lum. In short, whatever the pheromenon may turn at in the end, he seems at present a man for excellent beauty and divine perbeliness, every way surpassing the children of men.— Selected by J. W. Chrok.

"Ye are complete as lum". Cid. 2: 10.)AUL has written these encouraging words to the believers who resided at Colosse, yet they apply with equal God m all ages and in every clime,

This truth, though expressed in different forms, frequently occurs upon the sacred page. The completeness and perfeetness of Christian character consists in taking them as a leady of believers and not as individuals. How couch virtue there is in a concentration of efforts throughout the churches is often made manifest by results affecting the good of the race, and what is thus effected here on earth through the dictates of the Holy Spirit, is ratified in heaven. The many titles used to designate our high calling of God in Christ suggests to the spiritual mind its honorable and dignimed position.

The things of the Spirit me not to be discerned by the natural mind, and when unbelievers profess they cannot under wand the plain, written word, they thus only bear testimony to what they discred ti the light that is in them is darkness to then, lan through the grace of God the sunts incre been translated from the kingdom of darkness into the kingdom Traffic diens Son

The relation saints bear to Christ, such buffeting and malignant treatment. earth, we have become sons and daughters of God, and in heaven will share in the unscarchable riches of Christ.

We are commanded to be perfect, even as our Father in heaven is perfect. By this Scripture we would understand that all should make carnest endeavors to ar rive to such degrees of advancement in the divine life as rapidly as time and eircumstances will permit, using the ability which God giveth to grow in grace and the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Christ, speaking to those who were willing to enjoy the benefits arising from a dutiful regard to the perfect law of life erty, informs them of this consoling fact "that if the truth make you free, ye shall be free indeed;" and one of his inspired writers pens a similar thought; "Where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty."

Freedom from the bondage of sin, and liberty for a fully enlightened conscience. places the saint on a plane far above that enjoyed by any of the world's noble men, either by king or emperor, that is not education to him who is King of kings.

The reason the Christian holds such an exalted rank in the scale of being even here in this life is by virtue of the atoning blood of Christ, they having been born again of the water and of the spirit, are walking in newness of life and do no longer devote their energies in scarch of the graveling things of this earth. They have come to Mount Zion, the city of the living God, and to an innumerable company of angels and to Jesus who has purchased their ransom, enabling them to associate together in heavenly places in Christ.

THE DYING HOUR.

BY JENNIE WILSON,

T is a solemn thought, that for each one of us there awaits an hour, in which the soul shall leave all things that pertain to earth and time, and pass through the shadowy portal beyond which lie the infinite mysteries of the spirit world. Then all life's fleeting in. terests-its hopes and fears-pleasures and disappointments will fade away like a feverish dream, as we feel that we are nearing the threshold of eternity.

When the final moments of our earth. life shall come, we must hid farewell to those around whom our tenderest affections twine, and whose care and companionship have blessed and brightened our ofttimes weary pathway. The gen. the ministrations of human loveand sympathy can attend us no farther, when we are summoned to enter the miknown realms of the hereafter. Fond, familian faces may bend tearfully above us, in that parting hour, but they will become more and more indistinct to our dim and dying vision, until they are lost in the gloom that gathers around us. Loving voices may call our name in grief-laden accents, but they will sound fainter and farther away until they can no longer reach our failing consciousness, and all grows still as we drift out on death's silent river alone. Yet, we shall not be left to cross those cold waters alone, if we trust in him who said, "I will never leave nor forsake thee." Clinging close. ly to the hand of the crucified One, sur. rounded by the glorious light of Calva. ry, which for centuries has shoul through the darkness of sin, we may peacefully depart from the scenes and associates of earth, hoping soon to join the angel chorus in the home of the redeemed.

This world affords no joy so sweet as that restful confidence in Jesus, which alone can solace and sustain the soul in the hour of dissolution—nothing so precious as the promise, that, if we consecrate our hearts to him, he will be with us always through life and death and eternity.

May we possess the impliable consolation of divine love, and the unfaltering faith that can ever say, "Father, thy will be done; glorify thyself in me.

Mecale she stead behind the Lord, And on his head the continent poured, She gave no heed to those who said, "Why was this waste of pintoent made?

White o'er his body it did spread, ther taithful heart in auguish ided; at e kness ber land would soon depart, Him whom she loved with all her heart. As she the precious outlinent spilled, With sweet pertune the house was fill'd; She filled her anssion as was meet,

She heeded not the crowd around, But meekly bowed in grief pantound. Belond the faithful marden fair, She wipes his feet with her own hair!

And washed with tears the Savior's feet,

And little thought of future bliss, As on his feel, she pressed a kiss; Not that he'd ever her cononend, I or living faithful to the end.

But he who knows when sparrows adl, Will let no good thing pass at all: And what seems little in our eyes, They are the things hell sometime prize.

CHRISTIAN UNION.

Eph. 1 of Phil. 201, 2, all of which are That through good report, and well justly therefore we say, by the word of of the same import as the one quited.

The Savior also says, "A house divided against itself cannot stand " The necessity of union is an established fact with military men. An ultimate resort on their part when well nigh beaten is to form a hollow square which means standing in a circle, thus presenting to the foe a bristling front, let him approach from which ever direction be may.

Christians are wariors.* It is true, the weapons of their warfare are not curnal, but spiritual, yet on the part of their general, Christ, the same essential principle, unity, is recognized as highly neeessary. Such is also the case with his subordinate officers under his command. The clurch at this time ought, to think of these things. Something is stirring up muting in the camp. What is it brethren? Has the enemy got in? "Is Satan appearing among the sons of God?" Job. 1: 6, "Have grievous wolves entered among you?" Acts 22: 20. PAre men among us speaking perverse things?" "Are there heresies among us?" I Cor. 14: 19. "Or are we living in the time prophesical of by Paul C 2 Tim. 4: 5, 4. H'so, it is time for us to form a hollow square and more fully concentrate our strength.

In our next we will take a glance, at the means provided for unity, and how to hush to silence the usurper of our lilecrities. In the meanwhile, locathren and sisters, let us remember in heaven the spirit of schism is not allowed. The accuser of our licthren will be east out, In heaven nothing can exist but love, joy, unity, Idiss, unspeakable and full of glory. No principle allowed there that will mar communicat between God and the chiuts. Perfect peace will reign there. Peace permanent in the eternal hills. Spotless will be the robes of the bride. In that spotless, purity may we all shine.

THE INFLUENCE OF RELIGION.

DEOPLE talk about religion, being a restraint upon men. In some senses, it is a restraint. But this is not its chief idea. There are in men certain destrucrave tendencies, passions, appetites and inordinate affections which med the earls; and religion operates as a curb upon these and reigns them in. But it has other and larger uses than this. Fetters and cords and gags do not represent it. It plants more than it aproads. When the work of correction is ended, it has confe just begin its operations in the soul operations which will continue in force eternally. Negatives do not express religious duty. We love to think MONG all the topics discussed either that religious life means the growth of all the faculties, and not a slow strangcramps a man than wings docar bird, or tins do a fish. Piety is not a ship at anchor on a level sea; it is a ship in roce with wind and the waters around it crest ed with white. Christianity makes a ery, in which people consent to be tied or others. But there is no such religion The gospel Christ taught, is a gospel of gies, not a narcotic. It makes him a doer, not a hearer. Scheled.

EDITORIAL JOTTINGS.

PHOUGH the weather was not such as to induce people to attend meeting, there was a fair audience at the Ogan's Creek Church on the avening of the 25th to hear what message the stranger had to deliver. On Sunday the 27th, 10 A. M., met with the Brethren at place where A. M. was held last year. At 11(30 the friends of Brother Basinger arrived bearing his corpse, and before proceeding to the last resting place of the dear old brother, the people were addressed on the subject of death, resurrection, and life. At 4 P. M. again met, and addressed the children. The dear youth are to be commended for their attention and good behavior Here were temter hearts which seemed near the kingdom "Peed my lambe," says Jesus. O why should they not be fed! They need in struction; they need our love, mor care and our sympathy. Certainly the North Manchester Church need not be asliamed of the conduct of the young people there. But they are looking and longing for good instruction every day, and we hope their parents are supplying their wants. Bring them together each Lord's Day, sing and jury with them, point them to Jesus, and you will have no regrets. Be gentle and kind, and be careful how you speak in their presence. It you, as social beings, need to associate, so also should your children have good associations. If you need to assemble to be editied, so also ought your children. ON THE WAY TO PALESTINE.

Throne the "Theretian Standard" by special Arrangement NUMBER IV.

N the eve of our departure from England our party was increased by the addition of Brother H. S. Earl. One of the letters which were delivered to me on the arrival of our ship a) Liverpool, was from him, and it informed me that he had made all the arrangements necessary for joining our party. I communicated with him by telegraph, and he joined as in Loudon. I have known him intimately for many years; he is an experienced traveler; and we are delighted to have his company. He leaves his work at Southampton in the hands of Brother Meadows.

There are three routes from London to Paris between which the preferences of travelers are hyided. The most northern, with the shortest sea passage, is via Dover and Cabais; the most southern, with the longest sea passage, is rot New Haven and Dieppe; between these is that ine Folkestone and Bonlogue. We chose the last, and we had a smooth passage of two hours across the channel.

Our first experience of hotel-life in France was at Boulogue; and we were there both surprised and delighted at the contrast between French and English waiters, illustrative of the difference between the two nations. Instead of moving with slow and stately step, the French waiters fairly flew around the room, and we gould hardly eat for laughing at them. We were equally amused, though not a little perplexed, at their Indicrons efforts to make us understand them, and our still more tudicrous efforts to make them understand us. They took it all in perfect good bumor, seeming neither aimised nor vexed by our stopolity. So it has been all through France and Italy, except ; and the house was filled with about 200 persons. that some of the Italians have appeared as much ammsed at us as we at them.

We pushed Pans at 40 a clock on a pleasant. afternoon, and drove at once to the residence of Brother Delaminy, whom we had requested by telegraph to procure rooms for us near his own. The drive led as through the heart of the city, at cause introducing us to its most reded localities. We found the people also in their gayest mood, and in holiday dress. The streets were swarming with men, women, and children: velibles tilled with well-dressed people were a kind of carmival which the Parisians celebrate in the middle of lent.

With the guidance of Brother Delaunay, we next day saw all of the principal streets and quares, and many of the public buildings of Paris; and although I have read of this city much, and conversed much with those who had seen it, I was forced to realize, like the Queen. it Shebu, that the half had not been told me. Indeed, it is impossible for any verbal description, or any painting, to give an adequate conception of the splendor of this most splendid sty in the world. Ats wide streets, called book evands, are from one hundred to two hundred. feet in breadth, and are lined with rows of fine morning. Our route to Pisa, by through Mayoung trees on each side. In some instances con. Modane, the Mont Cemstunnel, Turin, and there are two rows id trees on each side, with Highia. walks between them twelve or litteen feet in width, and a side walk twenty or thirty feet [ring them on Saturday, at S.A. We had also entered the reallowed to accomplate. On the right and left gion of the clouds, which we had previously buildings of a beautiful light corored stone, and 'mountains. As we ascended, the mountains as mountments full of 4 istory.

picture to yourself the most magnificent city could not see both ways at once. After gazing paper, which the genius of man and the wealth of a for a time with delight upon the grand peaks great nation could build, you would find it excelled by the reality, should you see Paris on a fine day. We entered a few of the finer churches, and were both pleased and pained by the sight; pleased to look upon their spleador and their enormous proportions; but pained to think how the simple religion of Jesus Christ is corrupted. and degraded in these temples built for the glory and honor of man. It is said that Notre | them and above them, and the white surface Dame can seat 20,000 persons; and I would suppose it to be true; but sure I am, that not half the 20,000 could get a view of the preacher. in his pulpit, so numerous are the columns to obstruct the view, and the deep recesses into which the people would be crowded, . In former times these temples were not supplied with seats of any kind, the people being required to stand, or to kneel on the marble floors during the service; and even now very few fixed seats are found in them; but the church of Notre Dame is supplied with several thousand small rush-bottomed chairs, rougher and more unsightly than we usually have in our kitchens at home. I was astonished that chairs so rade would be allowed in admittance into buildings where all else is so splendid. Brother Delaumy has his little meeting place sented with the same chairs. I thought, when I first saw them, that they were too mean for even that place; but when I saw them in the most splendid churches of Paris, I concluded that they would do very well for our French mission.

We learned something of Brother Delaunay's work, and found it more important and more promising than we anticipated. On the night of our arrival he had a meeting of those children who had been regular attendants at the Sundayschool, and they numbered about lifty, nearly equally divided between boys and girls. They spent a few minutes in singing, and were then treated to some cakes, and some kind of cheap drank, which they enjoyed exceedingly. At $ o'clock the parents and others were admitted, An hour or two was spent in hearing recitations from the boys and girls, and in singing, when the andience was dismissed and went away much delighted. Many of the people came forward. at the close of the services to give the American strangers a warm grasp of the hand, and a hearty good wish for our safety in our journey. The hypans that were sung were French translations of our American Sanday-school songs-some of them translated by Brother Delinnay

The location of this mission seems to me to moving lessurely about in every direction; ever have been wisely selected, being in the midst of erybody wore a smile, and nobody seemed in the largest mass of laboring people in Paris, a larry. We began to think that it must be Priesteraft has, to a great extent, lost its power a fete day; and we soon saw figures in masks with these people, and many of them hear the and grotesque regalia walking and riding truth gladly. I look for good and permanent about for the amusement of the crowd. He was results, if this mission is properly sustained. Our party made a little contribution to its fund-Brother and Sister Delannay are laboring with a most devoted and self-sacrificing sparit, and I sincerely hope that they will be supplied with means fully to just their work to the proid. I hope to see more of them and of their work on my way homeward.

> We regretted to leave Paris so soon; but the necessity of completing our journey in Palestine before the hottest weather sets in, forbade a lished among the Brethren: longer delay. and ridges, advancing and retreating, as the train moved on, I exclaimed to my companions, This is finer than Paris. But when we came in sight of the mountain just named, I said, This is grander than the ocean in a storm. And so it was. Light, fleecy clouds hung round it, but it lifted its eraggy ridge above them, while fields of snow whiter than the clouds gleamed through was broken and varied here and there by dark musses of naked rock. A deep narrow valley between us and the mountain enabled us to realize the vastness of its height, and it was near enough to us to make us feel its awful presence. I kneeled at the window, so as to get an unobstructed view, and as I gazed upon it with an admiration I had never felt before in the presence of any created thing, I could not hold back the tears from my eyes. I had seen God's occan in its fury, and gazed upon it with a feeling akin to exultation; but when I saw God's mountains in their glory, my heart sank and melted within me. I know not the name of that mountain, but when I remember it, I seem to be thinking of a wild, mysterious dream, and not of a reality. Brother Taylor said that it was worth our trip thus far to see this mountain and some others almost its equals in grandeur; and we all assented to the remark.

The tunnel through Mont Cenis (pronounced Ce-need, seven unles in length, is one of the marvels of modern engineering. It took our train twenty-six minutes to pass through it. We ascended a steep grade, running slowly about hilf the distance, and descending quite rapidly the remainder. We had passed through at least a dozen smaller tunnels in climbing up to the elevation of the great one, and after leaving it we passed through about twenty in descending to the elevated plain called Piedmon!. (*) We reached Turm, the principal edy of Piedmont, a little after dark, and on our journey thence to Pisa we saw nothing of the plendid scenery through which we passed.

It is painful to read what papers outside of the clutreh are publishing about the prospects of a division in the Brotherhood. One of the leading papers in the United States contains a long editored about prospective troubles among us. We doubt the propriety of publishing to the world the differences that have risen among us concerning the application of gospet principles. Difficulties that arise in local churches should be settled there, and not joildish them to a cold, and careless, world. As a body, we are too firmly united on what is written in God's baw to be divided on matters of judgment, So far as we know there is not likely to be any division. We hear nothing indicating separation, from our numerous correspondents, therefore cannot regard the danger as maninent. As men of God, let us be cautious about giving publicity to the cry of division, set affort by a lew who are, perhaps, a little rash in their ideas.

ment of this remarkable prediction or warning of our Savior. He tells us in the wars of the Jews, Book 2, chap. 19, sec. 6, 7, that Certius Gallus brought his armies and laid siege to Jerusalem, and after the seditions had been frightened away, and had fled from the city, and the people were about to open the gates and admit Cestius as their benefactor, he (for some ninaccountable reseon, or as Josephus says, " without any reason in the world") recalled his soldiers. and retired from the city. Jumphus says: ' Had be continued the siege a little longer, he had certainly taken the city." That historian makes the following remarkable reflection: "Hot it was, I suppose, owing to the aversion God had already at the city and the sanctuary. that he was bindired from potting an end to the war that very day."

When the Christians, who were in the doomed city, saw the warning, which their Savior had given them, they numediately heeded it, and that to Arabia. The abomination of oc-selation spoken of by our Savior, was, no doubt, the Roman ensigner with the images of their idals engraven on them.

The termeta verse, we think, alludes to the second coming of Christ. Paul, in I Thors, 4: 17, says; "Then we which are adversal remain, shall be caught up together with them in the glouds to need the fixed in the air; and so shall we be ever with the Lard." The services of the first meeting were similar to those of our ordinary meetings. On the weeeding day, which was Sunday, an unusually large andience was in attendance, and the morning services were likewise conducted after theusoal way. At the close it was announced that a meeting for the children of fourteen years and under would convene at 4 o'clock.

At that time the little ones gathered together immediately in front of the stand, and were addiesed about fifty minutes on such topics as Christ blessing little children, and God calling Samuel, etc. They appeared to appreciate and stopy the exercises.

At night a large audience assembled and one Mour prowhers delivered a discourse, and, at is carclasion, went out among the conregation, through the aisles and courts, and, whorted the congregation undividually to re-Jentaine and newness of life.

At night the Father's children, 52 in number, gathered around the sacred boards to hear and engage in the examination and other attendant services. The spacious audience room was crowded with attentive spectators, and it was the general verdict that a more quiet and happy Love-feast never was held in our congregation. God certainly blessed as abundantly with his spirit.

Sunday was a lovely day. How bright the sun shone and how happy the people appeared to be. A large assembly again responded to the appointment, and were addressed by Brother B. F. Moomaw in his usually vigorous style, much to the edification of the congregation.

In summary the meetings were righly filessed. During the serial meeting the neighborbood appeared to be deepty impressed and an extraordinary solemnity prevailed throughout, and the members took up active interest in it. Some attended every night from a distance of six miles. One of the converts was a little maid of thirteen years. Think of that, loys and garls, and do likewise.

Brethren, I am strongly in favor of such meetings. If they are conducted right, they will result favorably. But don't wlopt the folly of the monrners' beach. Don't sing sensational songs. Work on the heart, Wound the beart with the arrows of truth and then pioir the love of Jesus into the wounds and you will sneeded. Never try to work up a spasmodic excitement. New Praise Elicited-Joy and Sorrow-Our Quarterly Council-Happy Workers-In the Mission Field of Indiana At Home-The Sunday-school.

MRE sick of whom I made mention in my last are convalescing and we feel that the many prayers of God's children have been heard which elicits new praise and thanktolness from our hearts to God the preserver and hydrolder of all. How glad I mu for the religion of Jesus Christ which influences our natures, to the extent that when God works to our joy, we are ready to praise him, when to our sorcow, that we can say "it is the bord. he doeth ail things well," and thus resigned to his will we have him but the more. Thus if we have a proper trust in Christ we can, under all circumstances, have poyous emotions awakened in our bearts making melody to the ever Idessed, While we have joy because of the return of health to friends who are dear, other hearts are filled with sorrow, because of the hopeless return of health to hearts that are dear to them, Thus prayer and praisicuscends to God through joy and sorrow. Through the channel of one it is sweetened by rapturous strains of the inner being. By the other it is softened by the finer feelings of their inner nature turned by the finger of the eternal, and by those avenues the ear of God is reached and the condescends, hears our idamtive cries and supplies our wants ! from his abundant follows.

To-day we met in church connect in the Old. Church, and had a very enjoyable meeting. The members were well represented, which exhibits a good interest. young were looked after with a jealous eye and therefore the interests of the church, and upon the spiritual welfare of the children rests the future prosperity of the church. Then who would not lend a helping hand to instruct the youth, whom God has placed under our care, in the truth as it is in Jesus? Ah, is heart so hard as to discard such glorious opportunities as the Sunday-school affords? I trust not. May God operate upon all our hearts by the softening influences of his holy spirit.

Next day met in the interests of the missionary cause, and the spread of the gospel. A plan was adopted for the presecution of the work and referred to District Meeting for approval. Active workers were on the ground, and I think, from the spirit manifested. Middle District of Indiana will have her evangelists out looking after the erring ones throughout her borders

To-day we met in District Conference; large attendance. Considerable business was brought before that body and adjusted, upon the whole, satisfactorily to all converned. Considerable discussion was elicited on the Sunday-school and missionary questions, but the plans were approved and adopted to the joy of many earnest workers in the great cause of salvation Public preaching was held in the surrounding churches by the foreign munisters present. Had the good pleasure of meeting Editors Sharp and Eshelman, representing their respective papers in the Sunday-school work. Spent several pleasant moments with them and think they are the right men in the right place.

In company with Brother D. Miller spent a few hours cruising on the placid, waters of one of the many little lakes of that country, on a fishing expedition. Tried my first experience in the "art," and of course had my first linek, which was, no fish. However I was not discouraged as my partner could eatch some if my efforts were a failure. But if I made fruitless attempts in that direction I could steady the boat or row, and of course you would say I was of some account at least. My brind was carried back to the days of Incarnation, when Jesus and his disciples were on the waters. I thought of the humble fishermen whom Jesus called and made fishers of men. Oh noble calling! How many have they caught? They were successful through great tribulation. Are we as patient, yet earnest and faithful? thid will give us like success if we use like means,

Next day returned brone. Saturday, in company with some of the brethren, went to Pleasant Ridge, Ohio, to labor with and for them in the Master's cause. Presched for them in the evening, and had a good hearing.

On Lard's Day we assisted in organizing a Sunday-school at that place, whereupon the fellowing officers were elected: Brother John R. Spacht, Superintendent; Brother Leonard Hauman, Assistant Superintendent; Brother Willmin Hook, Secretary: Brother A. Bengle, Treasurer; Brother J. Waltermire and Sister Lazzie Thomas, Librarians, Teachers were selected and all completely arranged for the work.

Thus Engle Creek Church, has two schools in successful meration, and trust much good will be the result. The dear youths must be looked after spiritually if the cause of thrist and the church will prosper, for upon then depends the juture welfare of the church.

May God Idess us all, in corr efforts in the cause so far as agreeable to his divine will.

In the afternoon started for Spring Creek Church, the place of the Missionary Convention for Middle Indiana, and on next day reached the place just after meeting was opened. The meeting was an enjoyable one-one which brought forth many warm and heart-felt remarks on the missionary cause.

At this place I met with Brethren M. M. Eshelman, S. T. Bosserman, and many others, whose presence I enjoyed very much. In the evening, in company with Brother Eshelman, went to South Whitley, where we had the pleasure of listening to Brother S. T. Bosserman from that blessed book—the Bible, Next day went to District Meeting. The meeting was a pleasant one. Good feeling pervaded the hearts of all, we trust, and hope that it met the approbation of our heavenly and diviue Father.

Again in the evening Brother Eshelman and I returned to South Whitley, where, by request, I labored to have us all look to desus and live. Meeting closed by Brother J. Snell. Next day reached lume feeling thankful to the giver of every good and perfect gift for the pleasures enjoyed while gone, and the safe protection and healthful keeping of my family.

An Epistolary Response,

To Sister F. E. Teague, of Covington, Ohin;— TVIII clostle over your signature addressed to us in the issue of April 24th produced min fled feelings of joy and anxiety. As Christians our joys and sorrows are reciprocal; hence the apostle bids us to rejoice with those that do rejone, and weep with those that do weep. Rom. 12: 15. How could we do otherwise and be the "one hody?"

Although your name had escaped our mentory your person had not, it being one of those that we had called up with pleasure in converse by our fireside. Your epistle led us anew to call up that stormy bour of twilight's dawn that we spent in your room, where, after houring your humble confession with some and events of your past, we all, with hearts rout with sympathetic sorrow, bowed in prayer and thus wrestled together with God,

We repeat, dear sister, "Be of good cheer for my grace is sufficient for you," says our lilessed Jesus. We trust you can draw comfort from the thought that the husband to whom you have thus wedded "will never feave thee nor forsake thee," Heb. 43; 5. Kir "Lam married unto you." Jer, 3: 14 Further, he has a mansion prepared for you. See John 14: 2.

We were encouraged to learn, that the peace and happiness you experienced in the borial of "the old man" beneath the gentle rittle of that chilly stream is perpetual; it is designed by its anthor as is seen in Isidah 48; 48. We took considerable interest in your case, not that we deemed your soul of more value than others, but we did and do yet entertain the fond idea that your public ble and the event of others, being commutted to your care for instruction, will afford you many apportunities of doing good that are not afforded others. We hope you may not tail in doing good, therefore, as you have opportunity, unto all, but especially unto the household of furth. Gal. 6: 10, Your good jurposes God will buward although you may never be permitted to execute them as you desire. This is seen in the case of David purposing to build a house for the Lord.

BIG LANDON BIRST

It is not a little surprising to many of us, that there should be, just at this time, so Beached the place of the sad scene just a lit- many new items presented for the consideration Entering Saturday our Love-teast began. A carrying on Sunday-school work. The meets the while before time to repoir to place of the brotherhood. We do not say this to find tacit, but we do feel that there so we present so many questions under consideration, and all regarded as more or less important, that it is altogether blody that some of its work may be overlooked.

We will now mention some of them, and because we do so, we do not wish any one to take offense, or to feel that we are uncharitable,

The first we shall notice is in regard to changing the name; or to having a new name for the brotherhood. There may be reasons for this, which have, as yet, not been offered, but we do not feel that those presented are enough to call for the change suggested. Hesides, there are few things that we now have that have an intelligent name-one which is regarded by all, as fully applicable to the condition and character of the thing named. For example; We speak of our race, and say man, and all understand the term, but there are few, if any of us, can say why he was called so And it is far too late, to obtainpt to change the term and have it aniversally applied if it be thought a misicure. Just so do we think in regard to the name Dank cor Dunkard; a lashad its beginning years no constituted by all whouse it; better, or as well, as any other term, and is now too late to name the child

In regard to the legal name, German Boy tist, by which we are also known to many, and requestably in the public records of the States, it is now too late, we think, to ask for a change

The real estate already conveyed to the brotherhood is in every case, we believe, in that name. Amiltor us to change the name and then texto go back for near a century and in some ensest more, and ask to change the records of both church and State, is more, we believe, than any should expect.

Therefore, Brethren, left the name go as it has been, but let the patience, the real and the love, with the humbity of those who were first branded with it, the more be not changed, but mereased, and let us go on to the oldn uring. of that new name above, which is not to be known to others so much, as to each happy soul that gets it. | See Rev. 2: 17.

MISSIONS AND MONEY.

The work of preaching the gospel, throughout the States, and as we hope throughout the world, is another topic who had present is be ceiving considerable attention, but as yet and anything like it should receive. Note the few who talk and write about it, and they abone should consider it, but every one who repeats the Lord's prayer should not only ask that God's longdom come, but work for it that it may come; first within themselves and then for others. Any one who will not work in aid of this kingdom's coming, should omit that prayer; for to us it does not seem right for any to ask the Lord to do a thing which we will not and in doing.

In the matter of anserous there seems to be quire a union in feeling, but as to the manner of doing the work, not all are agreed, will do nothing because all are not agreed; others do not tayor it because they are alrant it will run away with it elf. Others again, waid first the lanction of Annual Meeting on everything done in this direction, and so they do nothing until this is accomplished. Others again say, "thre as the array and we will have the missions," while one call was made, if we mi-take not, for the nich and nothing more. The last, we think, is the proper one; it is men that are wanted for this work and it is the obfice of the church to call them and send them The church is to select the mon; heaven gives the commission, and the territory is the would,

As to those who are atraid of the movement, of whom we hope there are tew, we think they should read of the work done on the day of Penticost, the day now relebrated by our Aumuai Meeting. And we would to God that the obl, old fight could, in some new place, he repeated every year, that the flame might blaze again

The sanction of Annual Meeting we already have, but like the laws in most States, the sentiment of the body will not support, in this work, the decision already passed. In support of the statement we cite the reader to minutes. of A. M. for 1867, page 327, Art. 30; and also page 325, Arr. 21 of minutes of 1868. It does caustion this work whenever it is deferred to on this subject. But the time still thes, while we talk of means and ways, and we let those I St teler matters doort, as it were, our aftention From Ft. Defiance. Augusta Co., Va from the man thought. Sickness is the result of sin. The violation of physical as well as moral law, is sin. Were we to live in holy obedience to the laws of christianity, we would have but little sickness. This is one of God's remedies.

6th Characteristic. The church is Christ's betrathed heidr. Isa 54: 5, 6: 2 Cor. 11: 2 Hence it should be separated from all unboly alliances. It is "not of the world," but "chosen out of the world."

My first reason why the Brethren passes this characteristic, is that they will not take oaths of confirmation under any circumstances. lest they should belray the smothly of their esponsals to Christ. The Savior, referring to the problem of perjury under the law (Lev. 19). 12; Num. 50, 2), says: "If hath been said by them of old time, thou shalt not forswear, thyouths." Matt. 5: 93. Notice this atlades disrectly to "teaths of confirmation," which the apostle says is to men "the end of all strile" Heb. 6, 16. The law allowed outlis of confir mation, but terbade then violation; but Christ, who is the end of the law to the believer, for-"Theory, I ask Mr. Ray to many our Jac. 5, 12. My second reason why the brethien profess this characteristic, is, that they do not allow identity with secret world's societies, believing such alliances to be a species of spiritual adultery. (a) No one can be faithful at the same time to any two institutions which differ in any one of their essential principles. (b) Societies which ask christmas to take caths, ask them to disobey Christ, (c) These caths bind men to support institutions before they have an opportunity of becoming acquainted with their true character. How different are the laws, duties, and penalties of christianity. (d) These societies keep their laws, obligations, and penalties, secret from the world, while christianity offers her benefits to all | John 18; 20; Mark 16; Lc; Matt, 5; 16; John 3; 20, 21; Eph. 5; 11-13. I QUIT.

R. R. MODN,

WAS first attracted by an article on tobacco, while carelessly looking over the pages of the Brethmen at Wom while at a neighbor's house. I am always glad to see any one have courage to speak out against such au evil, for I was a slave to the monster for many years. I found it injured my health and I made several attempts to quit, but all in vain. At last I felt it a duty as one professing to be a follower of Christ, so I took the matter to the Lord, and asked his help, and the result was a victory, yes, a complete victory. I often hear people say, O I can't quit the use of tobacco. I presume there are many people who can't, but I do not believe there is a true hearted, humble follower of Christ that will try to quit, and ask God to give him grace and strength, but what will be able to do it. I am now a subscriber and admire its boldness and outspoken manner.

WHY WE SHOULD DRESS ALIKE.

BY S. J. HARRISON.

NUMBER OF

THILE extravagance in dress is not always the result of pride, it is however, evil and the purent of untold evils which himder in every good, work of society. It never does any good to unybody and therefore should be condemned. If any one dresses contrary to the Bible, no difference why, we know it is not from any real good cause; for a good cause must produce a good effect. Neither do we regard that it is any more reasonable to tolerate un erfor in dress because a person had become confirmed in the babit than that we should permit a person who had become a confirmed drankard and swearer to indulge in intoxicating drinks and protone language because they were confirmed balats with him. The very same pleacan be made in behalf of the one that can in the ather.

Extravagance or vanity in dress does not exist without a cause. The cause may be a proud or vain heart, and it may be early home training. It it were wrong to learn the English language and our parents taught lit to us, would we be to blame it we learned it? No. If a parent teach his child the English hinguage. does not that show that the parent is in sympathy with that form of speech? Certainly it does. Well, then, it a jureut indulge his child in evil dressing, does not that not indicate that the parent's heart is in sympathy with that evil: Might be not as well aftire himself in unnecessary dress as his child? Have we not good reas in- to doubt the sincerity of that person's belief who will impart to his child what it dare not practice in life? what will drag it down to rum and Cespair? Hundre's of Brethren's children stand outside the church to-day for no other reason than that they are debarred the privilege of dressing as they were taught to do by their parent-

We should, however, distinguish between parents who permit their children to do these things, and those who encourage and train them v, do -o. When a child is self-willed in the matter, unable to comprehend the reason for this cause, would feel that its parents were unkind to it because other parents did not treat their children so, and would be likely to lose all respect for its parents on account of this, then the parents may be justifiable in indulging the child's folly until it can be shown its course is wrong. Parents do not always manifest that spirit of patience and perseverance they ought to do in reasoning and explaining to their children why it would be better for them to do differently. The parents are too rash and arbitrary; they use too much physical force and not enough intellectual. You may overcome the body of a child, but unless you covince the mina-overcome the offections, your work will all be in vain. The evil will break out, in course of time, in worse form than ever.

We now turn our attention to the church order of dress. There is a diversity of sentiment on it and we desire to know the cause-why is it so? Why do not all dress in the order? As nothing exists without a cause, we shall try to find out what it is.

- 1. Some do not conform because they are not fully released from the world. They are afraid they will be called "old grannies," "old fogies," &c.; they lack individuality and Caris-
- 2. Some do not conform because it is not convenient. (This is true of brethren, not sisters). In most places better suits for less money can he obtained which are not in the order of the church than those which are.

3. Some do not conform because of an erroneous idea which has been associated with the order. In some places some brethren teach that outside of the order is outside of the church materide of the church is outside of Christ. This is obviously error and the vehemence with which it is some places advocated has so comidetely disgusted those who have more thoroughly studied the subject, and more prayerfully read the Scriptures that in view of the harm done by this injudicious course they will show by their conduct and dress that they do not believe any such-dogma. To conform to the order, they feel, would be indiesting their adherence to that doctrine which elevates a command of men to the standard of a command from God. This a traly conscientious person cannot do. Then it has been observed that some of those who have been so very strict about the order of the church have been most sadly deficient in some Bible requisites. Greater disgrace by brethren has never been perpetrated upon the church than by those very brethren who enforced the order in dress most rigidly; and now ation over the same pattern which we are, those who are so excessively anxious and their clothing as neat, constantable, about "the order" are regarded with suspicion. People say that is the way - - used to talk, and see what he was! These brethremattempt to prove this doctrine is a Divine command by bending, twisting, and wresting certain passages of Scripture out of their connection; such as, "Be ye not conformed to this world." No one who had not been taught that this verse referred to dress would ever think of such a thing from reading the chapter—at least I have never keard of any who did. The word dress, or any thing like it, does not once occur in the whole chapter; but some who preach from this text get about ninety nine hundredths dress out of it. To be candid about the matter, they pervert the word. Where it reads "And be yenot conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your minds," Rom. 12:2, to suit their ideas it would have to read, "And be ye not conformed to this world: but he ve transformed by conforming to the order of the church in dress." Another passage brought forward to sustain the more wealthy, more talented, more tasty, idea that the people of God must have a peculiar form of dress is 1 Peter 2: 9. "But ye are a chosen generation, a royalpriesthood, a holy nation, a peculiar people." No one who would read this taught that it refers to dress would ever think that it did; for not once in the whole chapter in there any allusion to

2 Cor. 6: 17, is also given to prove we should not be dressed like the world; but not one word in the whole chapter can be found which says anything about dress. The verse referred to reads as follows: "Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you." The context of each of the pas sages which are here quoted explain them; not once are they found to teach any order or form of dress. So when brethren try to force a peculiar dress on others and resort to the method of gar bling the Scriptures to do it, only secure the contempt of the intelligent who are sincere and honest.

These are some of the reasons why the order of the church in dress is not accepted, and so long as the causes remain as they now are so long will the effects be the same.

I shall now give some reasons why I think we should have a uniformity in

- 1. We are brethren and sisters, members of the same family, sons and daughters of the same Divine Parent, heirs of the same promise, subjects of a God who is no respecter of persons; in view of these facts should we not keep down all nnnecessary differences in appearance which would excite feelings of envy or jealousy? Ought we not, therefore, when we come together as members of one family to worship our God, come at attired alike-dressed as nearly as possible alike—in uniform?
- 2. We should dress alike because we are alike. We all need the same things. One Christian dresses for the same pur pose another does. Then since our wants are the same ought they not be supplied alike? Now if we are all ereated over the same pattern why should we not cut our parments over the same pattern? If we are the same shape and our garments are made to fit us why should they not be made alike? And if our grandparents were fashioned in creand convenient as ours, why should we not cut our ciothes over the same pattern they did theirs?
- We should dress alike now because when we reach our Father's blest abode we will all be dressed alike. That will be the church friumphant: we are now in the church militant. These churches are subject to the same un changeable eternal God; they are governed by the same laws. Just imagine for a moment those composing the church triumphant assembled and dressed in every different form and quality of apparel! Could anything be more absurd? Well now as our church militant should be like the church triumphant does it not look reasonable that we should dress in uniform? Should we not conform to the same regulations in the church militant that we will in the church triumphant? Certainly the desire to be different from each other cannot proceed from any good motive. The only excuse for it must be to show differences between us; to show we are etc., than others, all of which motives we know are not good, It is self-evident that the nearer the church militant is like the church triumphant the nearer right it is; and, as we shall appear (dress) troduction abroad, an ornament to sod chapter and had not been previously alike in the church triumphant, therefore we should appear (dress) alike the church militant.

- 4. We should dress alike because tends to hind us together. When are alike in dress we seem to be alike sentiment. And why should not like ple who are alike look alike?
- 5. We should dress alike hees our dress will serve as a badge indice ing our profession. This is benefici in two ways: 1. It serves to introdu us wherever we go as brethren or sisten 2. It keeps constantly before the min of those with whom we meet that the is a difference between the world a Christianity. It is an advertisement our religion. Every thing else that good is advertised, and why should n Christianity be?
- 6. There is heauty in uniformit and true beauty is from Il aven. should udorn ourselves as become children of God. 1 Tim. 2; 9, 1 Pet.

THE PIVOT WORD.

BY WM. GISH.

WE must consider who Christ w talking to here in Matt. 19:9

The Pharisees asked him if it we lawful for a man to put away his wi for every cause. Here he answere them positively, what God has put to gether let not man put asunder. The said unto him, "Why did Moses the give a writing of divorcement?" answered, "Because of the hardness of your hearts; but from the beginning i was not so." Here it seems he did n wish to give his own opinion of the law But it seems, from the conversation, the they would not be satisfied without i so he answered according to the law But when his disciples ask him private ly in Mark 10: 11, he saith unto then "Whosever shall put away his wife an marry another committeth adultery."

Whose pet idea is this? or whose up fairness? is Christ unfair? God forbi that I should ever say so.

In Luke 16: 16 we find the law and the prophets were until John; sine that time the kingdom of God preached. This is the law, I understand that Christ was talking about to the Pharisees. Now since that time we d not find it taught, but we find it positively forbidden. Paul to the Roman 7:3: " :- o then if while her husband liveth she be married to another ma she shall be called an adultress." Als in 1 Cor. 7: 11, "But and if she depart let her remain unmarried, or be record ed to her husband: and let not the hus Also 1 Cor band put away his wife." 7: 39, "The wife is bound by the law! long as her husband liveth; but if he husband be dead, she is at liberty to married to whom she will: only in the Lord."

Now we may think it unfair and the just that we cannot marry whom w please or as often as we please, but of sinful men are we not willing to submi to the glorious teachings of Christ and the apostles? but must we satisfy the lusto the flesh to the fullest extent? Did not Christ even suffer and die for us! But we are not willing that our flesh shall suffer in the least for him. have all our wishes and desires just to suit us or they are unfair and unjust.

THOUGHTS UPON DIFFERENT SUBJECTS.

BY MARY COMPLIER.

₩E should never, under any circumstance, be afraid to stand up for The when the time comes for us to do bliethren and sisters, in fear there Storment. We are not free when full Mear. There is no fear in love, but Met love custeth out fear; because but hath torment. "He that feareth is Yes, it may be so. If the case is so with

1 John 4: not made perfect in love."

In nature there are two forces. One draws matter toward the center, the other repels it. Christ is the great center in the religious world. He says, "I will draw all men unto me." But there is another force, another power, which works continually to drive man away from Christ. John came and preached that the kingdom of heaven is at hand. Jesus preached the same. What is this kingdom of heaven that was at hand? One of the inspirered writers tells us "the kingdom of heaven is not meat and drink, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost." Was it any wonder the people wished the same words spoken again the next Sabbath, such gracious words, words full of peace and joy and of the Holy Gliost.

Love and union are two great powers. It was through love and union that man's redemption was accomplished. The Father and Son loved the world What did and desired its freedom. they do? They worked together. They laid a plan that was long enough, deepenough, wide enough to accomplish their purpose. They worked not selfishly, but together and consequently they were victorious.

The love of God to man is a theme upon which we may dwell with profit.

"They that strive are not crowned except they strive lawfully." What a sermon in those few words. It is not the lenghty discourses which make a sermon; for even the crowing of a cock, brought powerful and lasting convictions to that great man, Peter the apostle.

The grape that is pressed yields its juice. Paul being pressed in the spirit, testified to his brethren, the Jews, that Jesus was the Christ.

We do not wish God to harbor any coldness toward us. We wish him to forgive us our sins, and blot them out of the book of his remembrance." Then if we wish him to forgive and forget, and treat us as dear children, we can answer our own prayers in this particular, by forgiving from the heart those who sin against us. I find that those 'who talk to me of the shortcomings of other people are the ones that talk to others of my failings. Oh, pray for me, brothers and sisters, That I may ne'er part with the prize; But may reach the portals immortal, And reign with you all in the skies.

And pray that we all may be numbered, Among the Immanuel's throng, And sing in the reading of bright glory, The bliss of the Savior in song-

We all must be tempted by S dan. To try us of what sort we are: And if we, like Jesus, resist him. We must then be instant in prayer.

SPIRIT AND MATTER.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

To Brother P. E. Whitmer, of Missouri:-

THESE are essentially different. Spirit is plasmatic: matter is passive. Spirit is fundamental, eternal, self operative; matter is phenomenal, derived, mutable. Spirit alone has sensation and consciousness; matter is its vehicle.

"God is a spirit." John 4: 24. spirit hath not flesh and bones." Luke 24: (9). It is viewless, intangible, uldquitous. A body has corporeity, however ethereal its substance. "A spiritual body" without matter is a contradiction in terms, "Handle me, and see," are the conditions of physical exploration. Luke 24: 39, 1 John 1: 1. Spiritual things must be spiritually discerned. 4 Cor. 2:14. 4 John 2:20. 4 Cor 2:10. The ressurrection body owes its existence wholly to the Eternal Spirit, and is hence a "spiritual body. Rom. 8 11. Philpp. 3:21. Our mortal body is not the direct product of Omnipotence. Although God is the ultimate Author of all being, we were originated through the intervention of organic arrangements. We "are carnal, sold under sin," not spiritual; that is, not sufficiently so to furnish our corporaity a basis of perpetuity. Even the Christian is not enough Christian to arrest the disintegration of sin, and defeat the assault of "the last enemy." "It is appointed unto all men once to die." Helo 9: 27. The resurrection is a necessity. Humanity is immortal. The "hody of death" is spiritual no less than that of the saint, so far as the agency of its finar prickening is concerned. The resurrection unto damnation will be as lit.' dependent on organic instrumentality as the resurrection unto life, and will, in this cospect, reconstruct a spectual body equally with the redeemed. body and parts," if by these terms we mean materiality. Self-existence must be necessarily prior to matter, and independent of it.

Man's image of Deity could not, for this reason, have been material. such physical change followed the primal apostasy as to correspond with the spiritual rupture. Constitutionally man lost nothing: characteristically, everything. His perfect identity with righteousness was his likeness to and oneness with God. The first breach of his fundamental law was the loss of this integrity, his relation, and his Divine similitude.

Christ's pre-existence "was with God, and mas God. His incarnation was the assumption of humanity in order to "the manifestation of god in the flesh," not the revelation of a pre-matal corporeity. God is not without form, but it transcends our conception, because all forms with which we are conversant are material and tangible. Philpp. 2:

 The resumption was the resumption. of the body. The human spirit was not divorced from Deity by Death. The Incarcuation was an eternal wedlock of the Divine and human. There was no ruptare on the Cross. The most truly human never felt the sentence, Dust to Dust.

A WORD IN SEASON

🌃 ILSTEIN, a pious German minister, once heard a laboring man use the most awful curses and imprecations in a fit of passion, without reproving him for it. This so troubled him that he could scarcely sleep the following night. In the morning he arose early, soon saw the man coming along, and addressed him as follows:

"My friend it is you I am waiting to

"You are mistaken," replied the man; 'you have never seen me before."

"Yes, I saw you yesterday," said Kilstein, "whilst returning from your work, and heard you praying."

"What! heard me pray?" said the man. "I am sure now that you are mistaken, for I never prayed in my life."

"And yet," calluly and carnestly replied the minister, "if God had heard your prayer you would not be here, but in hell; for I heard you beseeching God that he might strike you with blindness and condemn you to hell fire."

The man turned pale and trembling ly said: "Dear sir, do you call this pray ing? Yes, it is true: I did this very thing."

⁴Now, my friend," continued Kilstein. has you acknowledge it, it is my duty to beseech you to seek with the same emnestness the salvation of your soul as you have hitherto its damnation, and I will pray to God that he will have men cy upon you."

From this time the man regularly attended upon the ministry of Kilstein, and ere long was brought in humble repen tunce to Christ as a believer.

Last Friday, at 2 o'clock P. M., the funeral of Elder Jacob Garver was preached in the Mohican Church, Ohio. He was one of the old pioneer preachers of the church, and lived to a good old age. DURING OUR ABSENCE.

S both of the editors, and our clerk are away H -attending the Annoal Meeting it may be interesting to our readers to know who has charge of the paper in our absence. Hence, for their benefit, we will explain.

The type on the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd pages is set by Sister Cenie Long, who has been in the office over two years. Her regular lossiness, each week, is to set the type for these pages, correct it, and make it up to the form ready for the press. So in our absence she has charge of these three pages, and will do her best to get them up in good style. She will do her own "proof rending "

Sister C. K. Bishop, my wife's sister, has been in the office ever since it started. Her busines is to set the type that is on the 4th, 5th, and 6th pages, correct it, and make it up in the form ready for the press. In our absence she has charge of these three pages, and, of course, will do her best to get them up in good order.

The 7th and 8th pages are put up by Miss Maggie Barkley, daughter of Brother Ezra Backley, of this place. She has been in the office but a short time, and has very difficult pages to handle, but will get them ap in good style ready for the press. The matter for her pages will be selected and corrected by our mailing clerk, Brother S. M. Eshelman, brother to M. M. Eshelman.

After the forms have been thus made up, they then go into the hands of our pressman, Brothor Martin V. Sword, who runs the paper off. ready for folding,

All mail matter, received in our absence, will be opened and attended to by our mailing clerk. who, of course, will have his hands full while we are away.

We have now introduced you to those who have charge of the paper in our absence, and if they should happen to make a few mistakes please do not write them any ugly lefters about it, but rather be willing to encourage them. This is their first juper, just up and joinfed by them in our absence, read it carefully, and wait for the next number which will likely reach you in good time, л. н. м.

EDITORIAL OBSERVATIONS.

Y the grace of our heavenly Father, accom-1) panied by Brother Enoch Eley, I was permitted to meet with the members of the Eagle Creek Church, Olno, on the 23rd at May, Quite a number of brethren, from other charcles, were present beassist in the missionary cause A good interest was manifested throughout the meeting, and the church prepared a plan for doing missionary work in the North-western District of Ohio, and agreed to send it to the District Meeting for consideration. I was gladto see so much brotherly respect and such great Christian kindness among all who took part me the proceedings. Where the spirit of Christ is there will be good work, and prosperity in the

from the various churches comprising the Northwestern District of Onio, assembled in the Eagle Creek Church, Hannock County, to attend to the husiness of the district. There are twentyone churches in the district, eighteen of which were represented by delegates. John Brillhart. was chosen Moderator; Levi Dickey, Reading Clerk; I. J. Rosenberger, Secretary.

Unfinished lorsiness being first in order, a query from last year's minutes relating to mission work was read. All queries upon the same subject were called for, when a number of papers were presented. The following plan, sent ty Eagle Creek Church, was taken up and after some amendments, was adopted, hence stands as the method of sounding out the word of the Lord among the people of North-western Disfrict of Ohio.

ART. 1. The Board of Evangelism for the North western District of Ohio shall consist of five visiting brethren, who shall select a Moderator, either from among the Brotherhoud of North-western District of Ohio, and also a Secretary and Treasurer in the same way.

ART. 2. The Board shall be elected by the delegates to District Meeting, and hold their office for one year.

ART. 3. The Board shall select evangelists from among the ministers within the congregafromal district. Any brother may suggest the name or names of brethren, but the Board shall determine who and how many there shall be such evangelists to be in the field not over three months in the year, and for less time at the diseretion of the Board.

ART, 4. The Board to appoint a solicitor or solicitors in each congregation of the Northwestern District of Ohio to solicit contributions for missionary purposes of all such who may deel willing to contribute.

ART. 5. The above Board shall be the Board of approintments and distorrsements. It shall be their duty to see that all ministerial and other vacancies be filled, and shall send out only such larethren as evangelists who will teach the gospel, respect Annual Meeting, and carry out the general order of the Brotherhood in dress, &c.: and it shall be governed by decisions of Annual Meeting in going into the territory of any organized charch. It shall direct the payment of all expenses as finances permit.

ART, 0. The Treasurer shall receipt for all monnes received, and pay out only on an order signed by a majority of the Board.

Ant. 7. The Secretary shall keep a record of all business transactions of evangelical work, attend to correspondence, and report to the Board all the work requiring aftention, who. with the Treasurer, shall report quarterly to the Board and annually to the District Meeting.

SOME OF THE CAUSES OF CON-TROVERSY AND DISAGREE-MENT.

NUMBER IL

DAUL heard something from the church at Corinth, and he told them what it was. "I hear," says he, "that there be divisions among you." What more? "I partly believe it" says he; not altogether, but partly. Divisions among them were caused by heresics. What is heresy? Luck of sound belief. Then there were some among the Brethren at Corinth who lacked sound belief? Certainly there were. They had not the faith of the Gospel. They lacked in some things, refused to accept all that Paul had taught them, bence were hereties. Whatever caused division then, will cause division now. If heresy caused division at Corinth, it will cause division in the United States. Does not the gospel say, "Watch and pray?" Certainly, and more, "Pray without ceasing," and "In everything give thanks." Very well, if some who have been set apart to feed the flock of God, should neglect to pray and give thanks, and thus become cold, and make the congregation cold, would not the cause be, want of soundness in the faith? If persons who are called as overseers should deal dishonestly with their fellow-men, but in such a way as to be beyond the reach of the church, would they not be wanting in soundness? If those who are set apart to not for the church as servants of the church and the Lord, should impede the work of the church, refusing to permit the church to consider its legitimate business, thus usurping anthority, would there not be disagreements. controversies, divisions? Disguise the fact as we will, this is one of the most fruitful sources of dispords mentionable. Let officials, or rather servants, retuse the rights and privileges of the church to discuss and deliberate upon subjects pertaining to its welfare, and that church will be noted for its discord, its strifes, and wranglings. Romanism puts forth its strong arm to bind men's months, and refuses to permit the great majority of its members to take part in its work, (except the paying id money). In this way they are kept in bondage, and the very worst kind of bondage. No such work can be tolerated in the church of Jesus Christ, and let him who thinks of bringing such rule into the church take heed, for God will not permit it.

Does it not savor of district for a few men to stand in the way of the church? Why a few should regard themselves as the only ones to decide matters which belong to the "one body," is yet to be answered in a satisfactory manner, to the meek and lowly in heart. " Let another praise thee and not thyself." Yet some must insist on praising themselves by acting as if they were better or holier than others.

Suppose some overseers should get themselv into difficulty through self-will or by some other carnal means, and then go to others who hold the same position, just all the nicety on their side at the case, and then go to the church and induce it to accept of their choice of hishops to adjust the difficulty, would that cause division? Certainly it would, and the very worst kind of division at that. We find such things going on in the world, but since Paul says "Be not conformed to this world," we do not see how this worldly practice can be tolerated without causing division. Perhaps the church desires to work more effectively in the conversion of precions souls, but the overseer refuses to permit it, what then? Why the church feels oppressed, sorrowful; she weeps and mourns because of the self-will and knows not what to do. Will such overseers cause division? Yes, every time. It is these extreme measures on the part of some that causes outburst, of indignation, controversy, scathings, that burn to the very heart. Remove the cause, and these will cease, or if not from pure motives wdl manifest themselves in other forms.

Another source of division lies in the fact that there is too much of a disposition on the part of appearance of hiding certain acts and evidences. which causes destruct on the part of members It has the appearance of, "We know how to do this work; you do not." I say there is an ap-Dearance of this, an appearance of secretism. Should not all matter be done openly before the church: We are required to put no stumblingblock or occasion to fall, in our brother's way out of the church. I wonder if there are any I themselves in a very becoming manuer.

(Rom. 14: 13), therefore should not put the stumbling-block of secrecy in our brother's pathway. "Well," says one, "can you not trust us?" I answer, "Can you not trust the church? Who began distrusting?" Just so soon as a few members step to one side and hold a private consultation, they have made a line. The church stands at one place, the few servants at another, and the space between them is the line. There are now two bodies instead of one. Will not this cause division in heart since it is one in appearance? For the sake of pence, for the sake of precious souls, let us quit that kind of business. If a member speaks evil of what is considered in his presence, deal with him as a disobedient child, rather than set up lines in the church. I find the more open and candid we are to each other the better we feel, but we have cultivated ourselves so well in the habit of getting our feelings hurt, that we can scarcely tell each other of faults and bad habits. Instead of cultivating a disposition to tell each other of faults, and to receive correction, we cultivate the disposition to get our feelings hurt. This is all wrong. It causes divisions, discords, and bad government. But to return to secretism. Why do anything secretly? Will the truth suffer in the hands of the church? In these days of anti-secret agitation, would not the church better insist on the practice of the gospel on this subject? If we cease our timidity, our "getting hurt" when told of our faults, we can soon have all things done openly. Surely a people who are opposed to secret societies. should not think of having secretism or secret parties among themselves.

The habit of pointing out, and treating coldly those who do not at once dress as we do, is causing no little disagreement. It has ever been a principle in the church to persuade men, to help them grow in grace and knowledge. Shall we continue doing this? or will we turn aside, cut a birch from our own planting and lay it on those who will not submit to our ideas of things? No, we will not go that way; it is the wrong way; it causes divisions. We have no promise of eternal life for possessing domineering spirits. I believe in the simplicity of dress, because the Bible requires it, and I do not find any Brethren who do not believe in it, but I have met with those who insist that some are carrying this matter too far-are making it too strong, much stronger than the gospel, bence they must hold back a little or we will soon have idolutry. Observation has taught me that there is entirely too much said about dress to the exclusion of other weighty matters; so many sermous are delivered on this, so much seed put into one hill, leaving the whole field to grow up in weeds, that no crop can be gathered. I found that if I all the time forbade my scholars going fishing for fear they might fall into the stream and drown, they would be sure to go at every opportunity. So if we all the time preach "the order in dress," and insist on people not going after vain dress, they will finally go just where you do not want them. The heart needs variety. and if it fails to get it, die it must. Nothing but bread would finally kill a man. Remove this cause and one source of division will be

"I write unto the church; but Diotreplies, who loveth to have the pre-eminence among them, receiveth us not; * * neither doth he himself receive the brethren, and forbiddeth them that would, and casteth them out of the church." 2 John 9, 10. Diotrephes was a church member. He seems to have had authority—perhaps was the elder of a church. Somehow he got into office, whether by apparent zeal, profession of piety, smooth talk, or appear ance of humility, we do not know; but he had authority for he east some out for receiving the brethren. He was not only willing to fill his office, but tried to fill that of others, until he controlled the church. He loved pre-eminence, and secured it; he coveted power then usurped it; he longed for notoriety, and got it. His jócture has been sent down through eighteen conturies, and it has had its imitators, its dethe servants of the church to do some kinds of Escendants, all along the line. The Apostle John work in the absence of the church. There is an I was loved and revered in his old age for his loving character, but there remains on record the fact that one Diotrephes received him not John's epistle was treated by this demagogue with contempt. He went about prating against the apostle with malicious words, and got so conceited that he would not receive the leath- dulge in ille talk to a disgraceful degree, but if this peristyle, povements inlaid with the rarest

Diotrepheses now? Well if you should happen to find one who will not receive the brethren. who is ready to cast them out because they do not think, talk, and act, just like himself, then you will see one who has the spirit of Diotrephes. Such do not magnify their office, but themselves. May divine grace illuminate our hearts so that we may know how to forbear and how to be long-suffering, kind, gentle, meek, and useful. There are other sources of division. but I forbear mentioning them now. Grace be with the church of God.

ANNUAL MEETING ITEMS.

 $T{f E}$ are in receipt of a copy of the Spirit of the Valley, duted May 24th, and published at Harrisonhurg, Rockingham County, Virginia, not far from where the Annual Meeting is to be held. From it we glean the following, which, just at this time, will be interesting to our readers:

"Since our last issue the Brethren of the German Baptist Church have continued their work of preparing for the National Annual Conference, which convenes at Linville Creek Church, near Broadway, in this county, on the 2nd day of June, 1879.

"After throwing up the immense boarding tent on Tuesday of last week, the work of preparing tables and benches to make complete the arrangement to feed and seat comfortably the members, was commenced and kept moving until the entire work was finished. Then the building of the foundations and flues of the kitchen boiler arrangements was earnestly gone at, and at this writing may be ready for the immense boilers where the food will be prepar-

"On Tuesday of this week they were building the Conneil Hall in a little dell, but a short distance from the church, where will be transacted private business, the details of which will not particularly interest the public.

" If the weather proves favorable the Conference will be held out of doors, in the delightful grove that surrounds Linville Creek Church, as the church itself will be too contracted, although a very large one. Preparations to this end will be made in the erection of a platform and the arrangement of benches. No horses or vehicles will be allowed in the church enclosure. but ample provision has been made outside, a field belonging to M. E. B. Kline, containing probably twenty acres, well fenced, being set apart for that jumpose,

"The greatest precaution, as we have heretofore observed, will be made looking to good order during the conference sitting.

" Booths, tables, and stands will be permitted adjoining the church grounds to private parties. who may desire to assist in feeding the people; but permission must first be granted, and such restrictions will be exacted as will render all such persons under the control of the committee.

"Broadway, will, of course, be the grand landing point of the great influx of visitors who will come by train, and will be the ' head center' of business operations for her business men.

"Ample back accommodations are being made to carry the public to and from the ground by enterprising backmen.

" Already, every train north or south is bringing the Brethren and friends to this county and Valley, who are scattering to the houses of church members and friends through the country. This feature is noticeable in the increased passenger travel that at present prevails, and which will continue to increase as the time draws near, when the in-pouring will be very extensive—so much so that more rolling stock than has been anticipated necessary will have to be brought into requisition by the railroad anthornties.

We are pleased to announce that satisfactory arrangements have been made with the B. & O. Railroad, for a daily train, morning and evening, carrying the public to and from the Conference at two cents per mile, either way This will enable the undititude to spread over the country along or near the line of the road and permit all to be lodged comfortably.

" Between what points, and the exact schedale of the ranning of the trains, we are not posted, but thie notice will be given."

Egypt, The Pyramids,

[From the "Christian Standard" by special Arrangement.] NUMBER VIL

T Naples we made the first change in the A original plan of our tour. Finding that we could there take the French steamer which runs weekly from Marseilles to Alexandria, and reach Alexandria one day sooner than to go by rail to Brindisi, and thence by stenmer, we made this change and thereby secured a pleasanter and cheaper, as well as swifter, passage. There was not an officer on board who could speak English, and only two passengers; but through the politeness of the French, and the free use of signs, we got along very well. We left Naples on Saturday, March 29th, and in sailing away we had a fine view of its beautiful hay; but we concluded that its beauty has been exaggerated. At the north-western part of it once stood Putcoli, where Paul landed on his voyage to Rome as a prisoner; and the thought that he once crossed this sheet of water, gazed on that same Mt. Vesuvius to The south-east, and saw Pompeii, then reposing in security at its feet, while Naples was but an insignificant town, gave the buy and our passage across it their chief interest in my mind. I had crossed the land track of Paul in coming from Rome to Naples, and now I was sailing along the same path through the water by which he came in one day from Rhegium to Putesh, a good south wind filling his sails. See Acts 25: 13. Night closed in shortly after we passed out of the bay. We expected to be awake next morning in time to see our ship pass between the celebrated Scylin and Charybdis, and also to see Rhegium, now Reggio. But our ship, being lightly laden, made rapid time, and passed both places too soon for this. On Sunday morning, however, we saw a grand and lofty mountain in the distance to our right, on the Island of Sicily, cevered with snow from its summit one-third of the way down to its lase, and rising just this distance above the neighboring mountains. We at once recognized it as Mt. Etna, the celebrated volcano of Sicily, whose fires have long been extinguished. I was not prepared to see it so lofty, nor to see it so extensively covered with high. After losing sight of Mt. Etnn, and of the southern coast of Sicily, which disappeared almost as soon, we saw nothing more of terre fixma until Wednesday morning. Tarose early that morning and took a send at a table in the saloon, expecting to spend at least all the forenoon in writing; but on rising to chee a window through which the air came in touccool, I looked toward the horizon and saw land. knew at once that we were nearing Alexandria; so I put away my porttolio, pucked my value, and stood on deck till the ship came to anchor in the hurbor. We had no somer reached the anchorage than we were surrounded with about twenty Arab bouts, each containing four or five boatmen of various colors and costumes, all crying at the top of their voices, and seeking to engage passengers for the shore. Such a jourdemonium I had never heard before; but I was prepared for it by the statements of travelers. and I ametly waited to hear some boatman call to me in English. Finally I heard good English from a dark skinned Arab, calling Aldot's Hotel, the one we had whosen, and me two or three minutes more he and his assistants had hurried us and our baggage into his bout, and we were off through the yelling and struggling crowd, toward the enstom-house.

snow at the end of March. It is 11,000 feet

So few articles are subject to duty in European and African ports, that the examination of baggage is a more form, and is very carelessly executed. At this custom-house we were for the first time asked for passports, and we lind none. I gave the official my letter of introduction from Governor McCreery, with his official seal on it, and with this he allowed Brother Taylor, Frank, and myself to pass. Brother Earl had an english passport, and was all right

We spent the alternoon riding about Alexandria, guided by the dragoman who had met us at the ship. We saw Pompey's Pillar standing in a dusty lot near an Egyptian cemetery, and seeming altogether neglected. We saw near the old and now abandoned harbor, the last of the ancient obeh-ks left standing near Alexandria. The others have been taken to London, Parce, and Rome. where we saw, them, and regretted that they had not all been left where they were originally erected, that they might be seen in their natural associations. We saw the Turkish quarter, the Jewish quarter, and other -trange quarter- of the city, and we encountered more strange people, strange costumes, strange customs, strange tongues, and strange nouse- than we had ever seen or heard before.

at every curious object, the natives all recognized us as Americans, and many of the young idlers would call out such American by-words as they had picked up. Some looked at us quizically and said, " All right."

On Thursday, April 3, at 81 A. M., we took the train for Cairo. Our route lay through the Delta, crossing both branches of the Nile, and bringing into view the richest agricultural district of Egypt, I will try to speak of the general features of the country, and the peculiar modes of cultivation hereafter. At present I must hurry on to the antiquities of Egypt which possess greater interest.

Our first day in Cairo was spent in visiting Heliopolis, the Dance of the Dervishes, the Nilometer, the Coptic Convent, the oldest mosque in the city. Heliopolis, the uncient city of the Sun, called On in Exodus, was the place of residence of Joseph's father-in-law, Potipherah. It is five miles north-east of Cairo. Nothing is left there but mounds of rubbish, the debris of uncient buildings, and an obelisk which is probably the oldest one in the world. It is 66 feet high and 6 feet square at its base, and it now stands in a little wheat field with no wall or fence about it to protect it. It is covered with hieroglyphics on every side from battom to top, but many of them are covered by the dark cells of a swarm of little bres who have taken posses-

The dance, or rather the whirl, of the Dervishes, is the strangest, and wildest exhibition of religious fanaticism I have ever seen. They are a kind of Mohammedan Monks, and they live at Cairo in a dingy, tumble-down old convent. At a certain point in their Subbath worship (Friday is their Sabbath), they walk out upon a circular space in the middle of the large room, surrounded by a railing, and commence whirling like children, turning round on their tiptoes; and they whirl so fast that their long skirts, shaped like a woman's dress, shand out nearly straight. They kept this up, accompanied by screeching music from a choir in the gallery, for just twenty-five minutes, with only two intervals of rest of about one minute each; yet nome of them seemed to be dizzy; but all walked straight when they were through.

In the Copt quarter, we were led down into a cellur under a cellur, where was a dirty and rudely constructed place for saying mass, and were shown two recesses in a wall, which looked very much like old bake-ovens with the fronts knocked out, and were told that Joseph sat in one of these and Mary in the other, when they were in Egypt with the infant Jesus. 1 asked the ignoramus who conducted as, what Joseph it was, and what Mary; and he puzzled his brain not a little in trying to make me understand who they were. In approaching this place we very anexpectedly encountered an illustration of a familia Bible scene. We heard a loud wailing from women in a house, and asked our guide what it meant. He said it was the wailing for the dead; that for forty days after the death of a person the neighbor women come to moorn with the family, and there is a lendwailing every time one of them comes in. On the same day, while walking through some privute grounds to see the Nilometer, Theard a grading noise, and looking into a dark passage in the house. I saw a woman seated on the ground heside two small undistones, turning the upper one by a wooden pan let into the topod. it. Again was a familiar scripture scene brought unexpectedly before me in the land of Israel's

The Nilometer is nothing more than a square stone pillar, marked with figures, to show the rise and fall of the water. It stands in an excavation near the river, walled with stone, and connected with the river by an under-ground passage. As we stood between this and the river, next to a perpendicular wall, which at this point constitutes the tiver's bank, our guide pointed us to the place on the opposite bank. where Moses was picked up out of the bulrushes. The great city of Memplis, in which the Pharmolis then resided, was situated a short distance above, and it is lightly probable that the place where Phasiob's daughter went to wash at the river's brank was not far from the eny. The course this requires us to suppose that the parents at Moses then hved near here, and not in the land et. Goshen; but in this there is no improbability.

Our second day in Unite was devoted entirely to the pyraonids of Gizeli, so called because the () have nothing except victuals and clothes." district in which they are situated has this name. In going thither we crossed the Nile on a magnificent bridge, as massive and handsome as the London bridge across the Thames, and much | 1 m most holde feeling of the heart is frue love. ;

As we rode along gazing with both eyes open longer; then we rode up the river about two miles, then in a straight line nearly due west for six miles-the pyramids being eight miles from Cuiro. The entire ride is over an elevated road about forty feet wide, smoothly macadamized, and completely shaded in most parts by rows of trees, planted standing on hoth sides and meeting overhead in the middle. We rode ont in an open carriage, with the thermometer about seventy degrees, and all agreed that it was the most pleasant ride we had enjoyed since we left home. The traveling public must thank the present Khedive of Egypt for this road and these trees, and also for a very comfortable stone house at the foot of the great pyramid in which to rest and take lunch.

Within a few minutes after alighting from our carriage, I was clambering up the great pyramid, with two Arabs climbing before me and pulling my hands, while a third pushed me behind, and a fourth carried my field-glass and my umbrella. Notwithstanding all this help, I stopped two or three times to rest and to look about me. With my corporter's tape line, I measured many of the courses of rock, and found that they vary very much in thickness. Some are as little as two feet thick, and some more than three feet. I measured individual stones that were four feet thick, and one that was six feet. The stones of the latter two sizes, however, usually run through two courses perpendicular, like a brick of double thickness with two of ordinary thickness by its side. When we reached the top we took seats on the rocks, and remained more than an hour, surveying the widespread landscape, and conversing, as well as a dozen buldding Arabs would let us, on the various topics which it suggested.

To the west of us, and stretching as for as the eve could reach, was the great Libyan desert, with its ocean of yellow sind, as hare of vegetation as the palm of your hand. To the east, beginning within a few steps of the pyramid's hase, was the green valley of the Nile, growing narrow as it stretched away to the south, and spreading out like a fan its it stretched along the Delta to the north. Farther east, this green and beautiful belt was limited by the rocky cliff cust of the Nile, which rises up to the naked desert stretching away to the Red Sea. Many towns, villages, palaces, palm groves, and yellow fields of ripening grain, diversified the view along the plain, while nothing relieved the nakedness of the desert, but the four smaller pyramids at our feet, and a dozen more stretched along the same desert chill to the southward. For a distance of 12 or 15 codes, these tombs of great kings mark the ontline of a cliff of limestone one or two hundred feet high, which is honeveamiled with the rock-cut sepulchers of humbler persons, together with the sepatchers of cuts and sacred bulls. All this space was found necessary to bury the dead of the great city of Memphis, the city of Phiraohs, of Joseph, and Moses. In the valley beneath us and extending southward, he the crumbling runs of the great city, with here and there a broken statue or column half huncil in the earth, to tell the mournful story of its desolation.

The Bedawin Arabs are full of curiosity, and very quick witted. When I laid my pocket compass down to get the bearings of the pyramid, they watched the needle how it would mont one way, and dance back to it when disturbed, and they cried out " Good; very good." When they heard me call out to my companions the number of fect, as I measured the top of the pyrimid, they were puzzled to know what I meant by feet, and they held out their own teet in all manner of positions to get an explanation. I tried to explain, but made a failure. The Tomb-Sunday's Labor-Visit to Shelby County, Ohio-Rejoicing among the Saints-By the Waterside-At Home Again-Special Meeting - The Last Resting Place-Later from the Mission at Shelby.

CROSS the street, the silent signal, unfurled to the breeze, speaks to the passer by that within that domicile are hearts full of sadness, mourning over the loss of a loved one. We oft met with that family and offered words of consolution to the afflicted husband. Read to him words from the Book of God and prayed for him and endeavored to point him to the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world. Others labored with him and finally he expressed himself willing to depart, and to-day he lies a silent sleeper awaiting the resurrection morn. The bell is tolling the funeral dirge and we hasten to the house of mourning to assist in the solemnities of the occasion. We departed in the procession to the church and listened to a discourse delivered by a minister of the Methadist fraternity. The theme of his discourse was on the mortality of man, and many good thoughts fell from his lips. This is the end of man. Oh solemn thought! May God help us to prepare for the hour of dissolution.

To-day the different appointments were filled m our congregation, (Eagle Creek) and I trust some good has been accomplished. The writer met the appointment at the Beech Grove schoolhouse at 10:30 A. M. Met a pleasant andience and had good attention, and hope the day is not far distant when God will bless our labors in the couversion of souls.

On the 5th inst. started for Shelby County Church, west of Sidney, Ohio, to labor a few days among the Brethren. Found our dear Brother O. F. Yount in the field, having preached three sermons already. We continued the meetings until the 9th, when the writer returned home. The meetings were of growing interest, having baptized four and reports of more to tollow Brother Yount remained and preached Saturday evening and Sunday morning at which time the meetings were to close. There was great rejoicing among the saints when the wanderers returned to the fold. I was forcibly reminded of the peculiar adaptation of the religion of Jesus Christ to the wants of man when I saw presented before us a little lamb of about eleven summers and an aged gentleman of about seventy years as applicants for haptism. Unfolding more fully to the mind the pleasant thought that the aged sinner's wants can be supplied, their sins washed away, peace of mind restored, and joyfully tread their few remaining days on the highway to heaven, and all o that the young can find a Savior, a friend that will be their refuge, their stay and consolation while traveling over life's rough

By the waterside we repaired and a more pleasurable yet-solemn scene my eyes never witnessed. The dear little girl was led down into the rippling stream by Brother Yount and in humble obedience to the command of Jesus she yielded submissively and returned to the shore with a countenance beaming with angelic sweetness. The aged brother returned from the watery grave rejoicing that, as the "brand from the harming" he was rescued, and a home. in heaven is his in prospect.

During the meetings the funeral of Brother David 1', Younker took place. Proceeded to the house of the deceased and accompanied the procession to the church where the sermon was preached by the writer and our dear Brother O. F Yount, to a large andience. The age of Brother Younker was 59 years, 9 months, and 20 days. Mother and children, you mourn the loss of one that is near to your hearts; prove faithful, and in his own good time God will call you home, where no farewell tear is shed and Where sickness and death can nevercome. We Wandered about in the cemetery and noticed several silently approaching a tembstone where a loced one was sleeping, and were giving ventto their feelings in tears, by calling up fondrecollections of the dear departed. How forcibly the thought, thus the end of all flesh.

Betured home on Saturday and taking a good rest, telt like going to work with renewed ener-

Christian. Being so impressed with the performity of bis immediate duties he resolved to call a special meeting. Having secured the use of the house he requested the services of the writer. Whereupon we responded, and met a large audience, and in the fear of God deliberated to the people as we received ability, after which we repaired to the waterside, where he was baptized according to the divine plan. Oh what joy in that dear brother's heart. May God help many more to come and enjoy similar happiness.

Having received a message to conduct a funeral occassion I started to-day for the house of mourning six miles distant, and found a large concourse of people assembled at the house of the deceased. After a short season of devotion we repaired to Mt. Zion Church to deliver a funeral sermon and speak words of comfort and consolation to the large assemblage of people; was assisted by Brother E. Bosser-

After services we deposited the aged mother in the tomb-the last resting place for the dend. Yes, dear children, mother was your comfort and stay for many years, and like a ripe sheaf, ready for the garner, was she gathered, yet it was hard to give her up. Many tears were shed, tears of sorry and grief, tears of sympathy and affection. You were loth to bid farewell to mother and let the clods of the valley receive your treasure from your sight. But why this endearing fondness, this continued love for the departed ones? Is it not the voice from the soul within telling as that we shal live again? and that when life with us is over that we shall again be re-united and dwell with God forever? Bless the Lord for the hopes the Christian has of heaven.

Returned home and received a message from my co-laborer, Brother O. F. Yount, in the mission field of Shelby, stating that his stay over Lord's Day resulted in the addition of four more precious souls to the church; in all, eight accessions during the eight days meeting. Oh! what joy the freedom of sin. May God bless the success of Zion every-where, is S. T. Bosserman.

Stirring of the Waters in Wolf Creek Church -Our Love-feast-The District Meeting of Southern Ohio.

M/E have had a season of rejoicing in the Wolf Creek Church. Some ten have heen added to the fold by baptism, within the last three weeks. They are mostly young people. As usual some had been brought up "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord," and others had been "aliens from the wealth of Israel." May they walk worthy of the vocation wherein they are called.

Our Love feast was held on the 5th and 9th of May. The congregations were large. We had preaching at two places, severally and profitably addressed by Brother Wagner, of Ill., and Brethren Hixon and West of Southern O., and some of our neighboring brethren. A large number of brethren and sisters communed in the evening. Brother Wagner administered. The various topics and ordinances were ably discussed by the ministers present.

The Southern District of Ohio convened on the 13th day of May in the Donald's Creek Church, Clark County. The meeting was organized by appointing Brethren S. Garber and A. Flory, Moderators; Brother S. Mohler, Reading Clerk; and Brother S. Kinsey, Writing Clerk.

The first query asked for the repeal of articles third, 1867; and sixth, 1875; and that poor and dependent members have the privilege of moving into any church they may wish to without counseling said church. Tabled.

The second asked whether it was in harmony with the gespel for brothren to wear grape on their sleeves, when acting as pall-bearers. Decided in the negative,

The third a request that no tax or assessment be unde for the Kentucky mission, but that the necessary funds be raised by voluntary contributions. Tabled.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The ninth and tenth queries asked for the decision of D. M. on several points, viz.: Traveling preachers out of order, going into organized churches without permission, and holding meetings out of order, receiving applicants ont of order, writing against the order, calling it "iron rule," &c. The meeting condemned these practices, but as the various charges were not all sustained, the queries were tabled. The eleventh related to the same, inquiring whether members had the right to co-operate with outsiders to get such brethren to come and hold meetings. Decided that members should not do so. The twelfth requested D. M. to ask A M. to stop Brother H. R. Holsinger and his contributors from publishing such bitter personalities, and unbecoming and slanderous expressions, &c. The request was granted.

The thirteenth was about expelling members without gospel authority and referred to several decisions of A. M. on that subject. Tabled. The fourteenth requested A. M. not to send brethren to settle difficulties who are in difficulty themselves. As this had never been done when it was known to be the case the query was tabled. *

The fifteenth referred to long exhorations before prayer at opening of meeting. The D. M. disapproved of the practice. The sixteenth subject before the meeting was the report of the various missions. The Kentucky mission barely has an existence. Three visits made within the year. The members have nearly all moved to Minmi Valley. Only four remain, Brethren G. Siler and S. Murray were appointeducommittee to set things in order and see whether it is prudent to continue the mission. The Meigs County mission was reported to be in a more encouraging and prosperous condition. Brethren S. Garber and A. Flory were appointed to see that it was continued during the year. WEDNESDAY MORNING SESSION, MAY 14.

The seventeenth requested D. M. to devise or adopt some plan to promote missionary work, and suggested that the plan formed at the Ogan's Creek Meeting be adopted. There was a general acknowledgement made that Southern Ohio did not do as much missionary work as it is her privilege and duty to do. The meeting, however, did not sanction the Ogan's Creek plan or the plan of '68; both of which were examined and criticised. After discussing the subject a good long time it was decided that each church in the district appoint one delegate, and said delegates shall convene at Wolf Creek Church August 13th to confer together and devise a plun.

The eighteenth and nineteenth were cautions and protests on the following points, viz.: Meetings, Single mote of feet-washing, Conformity, Writing against the established order of the church, &c. One of these was tabled. The other sent to A. M.

The twentieth requested that Brethren make the same distinction that Christ does in the divorce question Matt. 19: 9. Tabled.

Brother Abraham Flory was chosen member of Standing Committee, and Brother William Cassel as delegate to A. M. The meeting adjourded with much good feeling existing between the participants in its labors.

John Calvin Bright.

We are sorry thir query was tabled, not because we want the A. M. to have more to do, but because something of that kind is needed. Persons, who are not themselves at peace with the church, should never be appointed an commuttees, and had this some before the $A_i(\Sigma)$, it would have been so decided. We hope the Standing Commutes will give this matter speeced attention - i. ii. si ends, to instruct, warn, entreat, invite, and exhibit the beauty and saving power of true Christian religion. This is essential. And for the professedly converted, the members of the church of Christ, he will write or publish what will be consistent with his high profession, not only of being a true Christian, but of using the press like a Christian,

How many "foolish" virgins there are within the enclosure of the Lord's Vineyard to-day! Let that consolation of our blessed Master be the portion of all the faithful. O how often we are pained and sorely grieved to see how the press is used to misrepresent our brethren to defame, to dishonor, to blacken, to irritate, to punish the servants of God. This is one of the signs of "perilous times," dear brethren and sisters. Let us be "wise as serpents and harmless as doves," for so teaches our dear Master. Let us live out the profession of onr faith, assist in every good work, deny our selfish selves, labor for peace and oneness in all things within the church, and yield ourselves to the Lord to live "holy, harmness, and separate from sinners."

Sometimes we read statements made about brethren, and thereby we are made to doubt, and if our love is not gennine we will begin to believe the report, and worst of all help to circulate the evil tidings. This is wrong, and doing as the wicked do. If any have done so, they should be greatful that it is their privilege to do so no more. Our gospel law says, "Speak evil of no man." It is just as bad to CIRCU-LATE such wickedness. Let me conclude this paragraph by quoting an appropriate scrap from a country paper. It begins thus:

GOOD ADVICE FOR YOU,

"Think twice before you believe every evil story you hear; and think twenty times before you repeat it, especially if it is about a woman, Say to yourself: this may not be true, or it may be exaggerated, unless you have positive proof of the verucity of your information. People sometimes tell falsehoods, they often make mistakes, and they sometimes simply 'hear.' There is auricular illusion as well as optical illusion. Take all there into consideration before you believe. And as for repeating the story, ask yourself if it is necessary. Then do it with the fear of God before you, and the remembrance of the golden rule. Let us give the helping hand not the downward push, so the angels may reach their hands toward us when we stand in need."

GOOD NEWS TO TELL.

Wednesday, May 7th,-This afternoon in company with another visiting brother, it was our joyous duty to visit an applicant for memhership in the body of Christ. It was a brother's daughter, but sixteen years of age. She has had convictions of Christian duty for six months, and in our examination found her ready to "enter by the door." These examinations are held in the presence of the family. So we have always had it here, but at some places it is not just so. We believe it is better, in order that applicants may be more free to High Schools, Sabbath-schools, Protracted express their motive for uniting with the church; to tell their state of mind, their knowledge of the doctrines of the church, their willinguess to adopt all the principles and gospel rules of the church even to non-conformity to the world in dress, in conduct, and everything not becoming the saints on earth. We were made to rejoice in hope.

Sunday, May 11th -Our meeting at Amsterdam. Just before the services were opened, the members retired to the outside of the house. and the applicant was named to the church. No adjections being offered, and examination being reported satisfactory, we returned, and the services were opened in our common manner. The 11th of I. Cor. was read, and a ministering brother spoke very acceptably upon our duty in regard to the approaching communion occasion-its importance-revery-day examination—our readiness—solemn and prayerful consideration.

Another brother following with remarks in regard to joining the church in Christ, and read the 18th of Matthew, from the 10th to the 22nd verses inclusive. After some appropriate explanations, the applicant arose and was asked the usual questions in regard to taking and giving offenses.

After dismission we repaired to the waterside, was led into the flowing stream and

And after a little while the blessed Master, who died for our sakes, will come again and gather his "chosen" ones-the "wise" and obedient. O may be watch over us! We would not again stray out into the vain things of the world, but rather get nearer and nearer to Jesus, until, like that loving Mary we read about, we sit at his hallowed feet learning of him to lead a life of prayer, to talk of the good things he talked about, and to live the pure, and gentle, and holy life he lived. Notes by the Way.

Dear Brothern :-

N company with Brother J. M. Mohler, we left home on the 15th to visit the Brethren living in Bates County, for the purpose of organizing a church. On the way we fell in company with Brother John Harshey and Brother A. W. Reese, from Warrensburg, also bound for the same place. We searcely need say that we were quite glad to meet with those brethren; and have the privilege of a few days association with them.

On the 17th, met the Brothran in council near Crescent Hill in aforesaid county. Found a good working body of twenty-two members, with old Brother John Kniselv as deacon, who has been there for some years. By his interest and care of the few members with him, succeeded in keeping the cause moving until they number twenty-lwo.

After an agreeable church council, a choice was held for two ministers and two descons. The brethren chosen to the ministry are Francis Peak and Isaac Lambert. The deacons are John L. Brown and Eldiriam Funsler. These, with Brother Knisely, make three descons, and the two ministers compose the official body of the "Mound Church" at Crescent Hill, Bates County, Missouri.

One very desirable feature of the council meeting consisted in the unanimity of sentiment on the necessity of maintaining the order of the church in the matter of plainness of dress, while there seemed to be a corresponding desire for active Christian life and growth in boliness. If now they can succeed in working together in harmony, they may hope for a promising future.

We were pleased to meet with Glasgow Mc-Clintick, who was formerly a minister among the Brethren, aml who still preaches in connection with those who were separated from the brotherhood by the committee from A. M of 1872. He manifests great respect loward the Brethren, and is frequently at our meetings. We hope that a way may be opened that be may, at no distant day, choose to take up his fellowship with the Brethren again. The brethren living near him speak tavorably of him as to his ability for usefulness. We were in like manner favorably impressed toward hunby a few minutes conversation with him-

On the 14th of the prese, t month, the day before leaving home for Bates County, Brother Lemuel Hilbery came to our place and preached for our people during our absence. He is still with us. His labor is highly appreciated, and promises good results. As preaching the doctrine of the cross he has strengthened the hearts and hopes of the brothren. The accessions to the church of such a ministration of the word will not be the "mushroom" growth of a night, but the result of the "beams" of God's temple, to be creeted in the heart, being faid deeply, and carrying with it, the energies, and the resources of those furning to the church. This, and this only, will lead to transformation of life, apart from which we can look at best only for the numbers of a Christian life.

On the 21st we intend starting on a trip south to visit the churches in Henry and Clay Counties. Brother Hillery will accompany us. In the meantime arrangements are being made to have him spend several months, among the chorches here, and visiting and preaching among isolated members, as the calls for preaching the word from various parts of Southern Mission far exceeds the ability of the namistry located here, and many of the calls come from merchers who live ac considerable distance from at times out once a year

But to the true and faithful it is easy and having the opportunity by a little extra exersweet. O may it ever be so to our dear tion in the way of securing means, we hope we will succeed in retaining Brother Hillery for several months. We further hope that brothren elsewhere will freely consent to our arrangements to have him stay. We are persnaded if the situation here were properly understood none would object to him remaining awhile. More anon. S. S. Mohler.

From the Maple Grove Colony.

To Whom this may Convern:-

INTILL say that we, in company with several other families, started from Montgomery County, lown, for the colony location in Norton County, Kansas, March 19th; had good weather and good roads all the time, except the second day; met with no serious accident; had some sickness among the children, but all recovered; landed in Norton April 8th, being twenty days on the road. Thank the Lord for his preserving care over us. We found some Brethren already here, and quite a number have come since. Held our first meeting last Sunday, May 11th; twenty-two mem bers present and a few friends. Had a good meeting, probably the first meeting ever held in this county. We have meeting again next Sunday. Our first conneil will be next Saturday, at which we expect to more fully organize, and make arrangements for regular meet-

There are several calls now for the Brethren to hold meetings. Among them is one by a lawyer in our county town. We want to fill those culls as soon as arrangements can be made. The people all seem to very common and sociable. All our members and friends seem to be well pleased with the country. Many are coming here and all locate before leaving, which speaks well for the country, ut least so far as appearance is concerned.

We have thirty church members here now Others will move in soon, and many others will come here the coming Fall. Our school will commence to-morrow with about twenty scholars.

· We are in much need of a blacksmith in this neighborhood. We have eight miles to a smith. We expect to have a post-affice in the cidony soon. Horse feed very scarce and high. Winter and Spring grain look well. Some government land here yet, but going first.

Pray for us, brethren and sisters. N. C. Workman.

The subject of this notice last her health by taking cold while teaching school. About two weeks before she died she called for Elder David Culler; he came and read the Scriptures, sung and prayed with her, after which she desired to unite with the chorch. The case was then brought before the brethren and sisters then present, and decided that we would receive her with the right hand of fellowship and hiss of charity. She expressed a strong desire a few days before she died that "If I only were baptized." She died with the hope of a blissful immortality. She prayed daily on her deathbed, and asked God to forgive her sins. told her friends not to weep for her, but to try and do better for themselves. Thus you see my young friends what a dangerous thing it is to neglect our duty too long. How many are snatched away without a moment's warning! We should always be ready to say "I am not afraul to die."

UR Sabbath-school was organized April 6, 1879. Brother Simon Greek was chosen Superintendent, and S. B. Thomas, Assistant Superintendent. The choice was a good one. The school started; but Sabbath-schools conducted by the Brethren were not known in this neighborhood, therefore the school had rough sailing for a while, and we thought it would sink; but as the storm has moderated to reach the hoped for end. STEIN AND RAY DEBATE.

lst-Brethren (or Tunker) Churches pos-Table Characteristics which entitle to be regarded as Churches of Jesus

J. W STEIN, Affirms,

D. B. RAY, Dennes,

CLD. D. B. BAY'S FOURTFENTH REPLY.

has proved, by overwhelming testimony, that the Tunker churches hold that his in works of righteonsness" which acido Char "triend's furning and twistswing and admitting, does not deliver were from the unserable doctrine ideal. Such churches are not the es of Tosts & United had their origin under the ministry of Jesus Christ and the apostles; therefore the churches which had their origin under the ministry of Mr. Mack and his disciples, in the eighteenth century, cannot be churches of Jesus Christ, The Tunker churches are wholly destitute of the scriptural church succession. The original church of Christ ras established in the first century, but the original Tunker church was established in the lighteenth century; therefore, the Tunker churches, which spring from this origin, are not churches of Jesus Christ.

Whatever Mr. Moore designed, he honestly confessed that "the Dunkard church did not exist nutil after the seventeenth" century. Mr. Moore is too well informed to pretend that there was ever a Tunker church prior to the eightcenth century. Whatever may be our success in tracing it, the kingdom of Christ, as represented by his churches, has maintained an unbroken organic testimony for the truth through all the centuries of the christian era to the present day. The Tunker writers admit the necessity of succession. Mr. J. H. Moore, the Tunker author and editor, has a work which he calls "Trine Immersion Traced to the Apostles"!! And on page 35 of this work Mr. Moore says:

"We have already traced trine immersion, to within 32 years of the apostolic age, and barned that it was the christian practice in the beginning of the second century, before any change in the form of numersion took place in any part of the civilized world; and we have already seen that that part of christendom known as the Greek, Eusteen, or Oriental church, reaches lar back into antiquity, and they alone, as one bearing and advanta correctly with a desired the unchanged use of the Greek language, from the age of the apostles; and also their religious practices have never been corrupted by either the Papal heresy, or the doctrine of Euromius, so that aimd all their ceremomes, they have preserved both the mode and form of haptism in all its divine and apostolic perbetion."

From the foregoing it is seen that the Tunkers are so auxious for succession that they are willing to accept the aboundable succession of the anti-christian Greek Catholic church. Peter Nead, in his "Theological Works," page 381, admits the succession thus; "God has always had a remnant, who in the worst of times have observed the ordinances, according to his holy will." Why did not the original Tunkers unite with this "remnant," instead of setting up a rival denomination to the church of Jesus Christ? Verily the Tunker churches, which had their origin in human wisdom in the eighteenth century, as not churches of Christ

In the time of miraculous healing the sick were anointed "with oil in the name of the Lord," When the apostles were sent out armed with miraculous powers, "They cast out many devils, and anointed with oil many that were sick, and healed them." Mark 6: 18. The instruction of James evidently refers to the same custum. No one should practice the "anointing with ml" unless he can "east out devils" too. When the miraculous healings ceased, the custom of "anointing with oil," connected with it, ceased also.

Mr. Stein states his 6th characteristic thus: "The church is Christ's betrothed bride," Astomshing! that anyone in his senses would suppose for a moment that a self-constituted socicty, in the eighteenth century, is "Christ's hetrothed bride"! Where was the "bride" during seventeen centuries? Will be attempt to tell? We suppose not. As a reason that the Tunkers claim to be the bride, Mr. Stein says: "They will not take onths of confirmation under any chronistances, &c." The Tunkers evidently misapprehend the teachings of the Bible concerning oaths of confirmation. They claim that all oaths are forbidden, yet they contradict themselves by receiving and advocating

Mr. Stein, in his third athemative, claims that persons are baptized into the name of Christ, i. e., "Inducted into it by a solemn sacramentum as a foreigner receives the name of citizenship, and a bride the name and heirship of her betrothed." He knows that this solemn "sucrunontum" is a solemn oath sworn in the name of Dathery L. P. L. B. Ghost. Therefore it is right tieswoar a sidemin oath, according to Mr. Stein himself.

Peter Neal, in his Theological Works, page 359, says: "At the time of your baptism you solemnly vowed allegance unto long Jesus, &c." And on page 383, the same writer says: "The people of God are styled virgins; they have solemuly vowed to Christ." Every one with a gram of intelligence knows that this solemn you in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit is a solemn oath. Therefore, according to the Tunker "Theological Works," swearing a solemn (ath is authorized by the word of God. Mr. Nead is so thoughtless that he is guilty of probabity in his "Theidogical Works," in which he takes the name of the Lord in vain, by exclaiming, "Oh! my God," without any connection whatever with his subject of discourse. See page 368 Concerning oaths as mentioned in the libble we conclude that though profine swearing was posi-Mr. 5 ein introduces another reason for the lively foriadden under the law, yet men were Tunke church claims, that they anomit the sick allowed to swear in the name of the Lord, and forgiveness of sins." His argument upon the propriety of christians joining secret societies does not bear upon his proposition. But the fact that the Tunkers undertake to legislate upon the manners and customs of their membership, where the Bible is silent shows conclusively that they are not churches of Christ. The ridiculous nonsense exhibited by the Tunker church in making laws to coptrol the membership in parting the hair, in the shape of the coat collar, and in the furniture used in their houses; shows that it is not Christ's bride. Upon the same principles upon which the Tunkers dictate to their members concernmg secret someties, they may dictate to them concerning societies that are not secret. DY Nebo's lonely mountain. D East of the Jordan's wave, In a vale in the land of Moab, There lies a lenely grave, And no man knows the sepulchre, And no man saw it e'er. For the angels of God upturned the soil And laid the dead man there.

He was the truest warrior That ever inckled sword, He was the greatest poet That ever breathed a word. And never earth's philosopher Traced with his golden pen. On the deathless page, broth half so sage As he wrote down for men.

His was the grandest funeral That ever presed on earth, But no man heard the transpling Or heard the train go forth; Noiselessly as the daylight Comes back when night is done, And the crimson streak on ocean's check Grows into the great sun.

And had be not high honor? The hillside for a pull, To lie in state while angels wait, With stars for tapers tall, And the dark rock pines, like tossing plumes, O'er his bier to wave, And God's hand, in that lonely hand, To lay him in the grave?

THE SLEEP OF DEATH.

RY B. F. WISSLER.

"Consider and hearing, O Lord my God; lighten mine eves, lest I sleep the sleep of death.

TIMS has been the prayer of every re turning prodigal since the world began, and will be to its end. The fit ness of the clause, "Consider and bear me, O Lord my God," becomes manifest when we investigate the circumstances into which the whole human family has fallen. Morally, and, no doubt, physically degraded, man out of his first es tate. Having strayed from God through disobediene, he has forfeited all rights and claims to the favors and Idessings of his Creator. So it is only through the fere, numerited, emulescending favors of God that man is saved. Paul truly says. " So then it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that sumueth, but of God that showeth message "By grave are ye say ed." Goel was no more bound, by duty or obligation, to save or redeem the lan man family than to redeem fallen angels Merit would place us by the side of the hosts of Lucifer, once "heaven's great light-heater." to await the vengeance of a just God.

Upon this, too, may the repenting rebel. as he returns from the deserts of unrighteonsness and approaches the con fines of the "kingdom," send in his petition to the great King, for mercy and pardon, and citizenship with the saints. This is the only line that reaches the place of our King. DO NOT INDULGE IN THIS WORLD'S VANITIES.

BY E. SMITH,

TE are taught in the Bible that we are not to be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewing of our minds. So then it we have our minds renewed as we should have. we will seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. We are commanded to set our affections on things above, not things on the earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt. Remember, if the rightcons scarcely be saved, how needful it is that we should watch and keep ourselves unspotted from the world. Then let us not be so easily led astray with the foolish fashions of the world; such as fairs, shows, celebrations, pienies, and festivals; for these are all of the world. We are to abstain from even the appearance of evil: "for the world passeth away with the lust thereof." We are not to be "conformed to this world; but women should adorn themselves in modest apparel with shamefacedness and sobriety, not with braided hair or gold or pearls or costly mray, but which becometh women professing godliness with good works." And for all we can read so much in Christ's holy will, yet many are so easily led astray with the foolish fashions of the world.

Dear brethren and sisters, let us read and search the Scriptures more and more so that we can find the true fuith in which we can follow our dear Savior's steps. Yes, let us all be subject, "one to another, and be clothed with humility: for that resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble." Why is it that so many will spend so much time and money to decorate their mortal bodies, after the fashions of the world? Oh, how it pans my heart when I see people professing to be followers of Christ and at the same time are so fixed up that we would not think they belonged to the church of Christ until they tell it. Can we keep correlves unspotted from the world and yet follow the fashions of it? We cannot serve God and mannon. We bute one or the other. Let us serve God who has done so much for us.

Dear sisters, let us not spend so much time in dressing our dear little children after the fashions of the world; for, in doing so, we are just leading them on the broad read, and we certainly do not want them to go on that road that leadeth to destruction. But what better can we expect of them if we bring them up in that way. Let us be more careful alom such things,—let us bring up our eliatren in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Let us try to live a Christian lite in all our dealings, in dress and all holo conversation. "Be ye holy as be which bath called you is holy." Let as take apour cross daily and follow our Swia in all his appointed ways. Let us has the life of the righteous, and die the death of the saints, and be taken home to glowy.

FROM THE ANNUAL MEETING.

OUR last report was finished on the cars, near Mansfield, Ohio, May 28th We reached Cumberland, Md. the next morning about three o'clock, and was joined by a number of brethren and sisters en runte for the A. M. By six o'clock we were at Harpers Ferry where we spent four hours looking at that which seemed most interesting.

Near the depot, is an old brick building known вя "John Brown's Fort." Most of our readers are perhaps familiar with John Brown's attempted raid. It was in this old building that he was captured. From that point a number of us undertook to reach what is known as the Jefferson Rock. The hill was steep, and in some places the steps were cut in solid rock. We found it quite an uphill business, especially for two hundred and twenty avoirdnpois. On the way we found a neatly finished Catholic Church at a point where no team could reach it. We certainly would not favor the idea of climbing that hill every Sunday for meeting, but it seems that people in these parts are used to the business. A little farther up we passed an old church in ruins. It was likely destroyed during the war, and is a standing monument of the wastefulness of this barbaroan practice. We finally reached the noted rock, which consists of a few massive stone lying on the edge of a lufty overhanging precipice. I pen the top of the large topmost stone is a large that rock. about ten feet square held up by heavy posts about three feet high. We climbed to the top of this, and while standing there, viewed the landscape o'er. Thomas Jefferson once said that it was worth a tracacross the ocean just to stand on this rock and take a view of the grand scenery to be seen from this point. We confiest it was grand indeed. But herore leaving we | Brother E, and 1 | thought to do like thousunds who had been there before, and inscribed our names upon the rock.

We next visit of the Freewill Bajdist Seminary, intended for the education of golored students. Prof. A. H. Morrell had the kindness to show us through the to dding, and describe all points of interest. How we find colored men and women who act as polite and gented as the best lovel white talks. This shows wheel education will do for the colored people.

At this time our contemy consisted of Enoch Ely, Edmind Forney, S. J. Harrison, (who had joined us at Cumberland, Md J M. M. Eshelman. his son Harvey, and sell. Our tramp was interesting, and we saw much well worth remone bering. We returned to the depot, and by eleven o'cluck was on our way down the Suenundoah Valley, Virginia. We found the reed in a most excellent condition, and the fram men very accommodating. Many points of interest were passed. Wimboster was pointed out as the scene of several lead tought battles and the effects of the war can still be seen on many of the buildings.

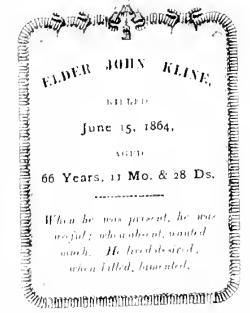

This is a beautiful valley lying letwore (we mountain ranges, and contains some as good land as there is in the State. During the war nearly all of the burns and unils were burned. thus leaving the country or a sala emblion but since then most of the larns and mills love been rebuilt, though the country has not fully reconered from the backset discovid darage the rebellion. The meachers stopped off at different points along the road, but we went on to Broadway, which point we reached about three oblock, when we were met by baethren and soon found our was to Brother Jojan Zigler's about one uple from the fewn. On the way we passed the house where the lamented Elder John Kline lived at the time he was killed. The place where he was killed is in the woods about two imles north of this house. We have not visited if yet, but expect to do so before leaving here.

At Brother Zigler's home we found an excellent resting place. To me everything comes interesting. It is lost from varils to Edder John While's old home, and just 200 yards to the west. is the former home at Elder Peter Nead, and Therman case. It is here that he was implized also his old fanning yard where my father once held his membersh, and, finally tried and exhved and learned the toole. Here we also met be in servicated Brother Isaac Maller, of Michigan

After support we took a walk to the Brothren's parties to large meeting house, a short distance east of her of Bridler Zigler's, the place where the Annual latew Meeting is to be held. The house is a large | B | 1 support himself and not leave the church to commodious building situated in a beautiful the grove. A short distance east of the meeting. The house is a large temporary boarding tent 48x158 | 100 feet, with capacity for seating about 800 persons at the tables at one time. The cooking arrangements are well arranged. North of the house is a natoral basin, gradually rising in all directions from the center and well shaded by large trees. Over a part of this basin the Brethren have erected a temporary roof, with arrangements for the Standing Committee in the center of the basin and seats arranged all along the sides somewhat in the form of an amphitheater. In this respect the situation is the best we ever saw. The house has also been well arranged in case it should be too cool or rainy to hold the meeting in the grove.

We were next taken into the graveyard, near by, and shown the grave of Elder John Kline, beneath the branches of a beautiful cedar tree in the west end of the graveyard. How sad the reflections! We thought of the great good he had done, his labors of love, his many journeys to and tro preaching the Word, and then, we thought of his cruel death. To this day memhere speak of his death with tears in their eyes. We knell down beside his grave and copied the following from the headstone:

We arose and cut from the tree a twig to pre-cive in remembrance of that sacred spot, and then retired from the grave with a sail heart. The horse on which Brother Kline was coling at the time he was shot had carried him over digical males, or more than twice the distance around the entire globe. Of these things w may give some further accounts in the fu-

We learn that great numbers of members have stopped off at different points along the road, expecting to come down to the place of meeting on Monday. Everything indicates that the attendance at the meeting will be very large, and the members here are doing their best to get everything in good readiness to becommodute all what may be in attendance. This is a very large congregation, having a membersup of nearty 500, and other churches equally Lage and prosperious are scattered up and down the valley.

The most of Saturday was spent on the A. M ground, conversing with the brethren who class of tabe there. So the evening we were convered to the vicinity of the Green Mount Church. and spent the evening pleasantly conversing with is ligives some of whom we had not seen for twenty-time years. Our associations were pleasant and afforded much enjoyment. EBB AND FLOW SPRING, situated at the toot of a hill, on Brother Jacoh Meyer's farm, about five miles south-west of Broadway. The spring is about eight feet square, three feet deep, and the bottom corered with gravel. When we arrived not a particle of water was to be seen, so we sat down on the bank to wait for what one brother called " the troubling of the waters." Another brother suggested that it would be more appropriate to quote this Scripture: "What went ye out for to see," Our crowd kept increasing till it numbered nearly forty, some of whom were from various parts of the Brotherhood,

At the end of about one hour and a half some one called out, "here she comes," and sure enough the water commenced boiling up with such force that in three minutes the large basin was filled. For six minutes the water flowed from the spring in a body sufficiently large to run an ordinary mill, and then commenced subsiding for four minutes when the water stood only about one foot deep. But little, if any, motion could be noticed for six minutes, then the water commenced disappearing and in a short time not a particle of water was to be seen. Of course, we all took a drink. The water was cool, and so clear that a pin could be seen in the bettom of the spring.

When the senson is wet this process is repeated every hour, and sometimes even oftener, but when the weather is dry, several hours usually pass between the flows.

From the spring a Brother Kline took us to our boarding place, near Bowman's Mill, about one mile from the A. M. ground. We have a pleasant room to which we can retire at the close of each day and obtain a good night's rest.

Monday morning we arose very early and walked to the A. M. ground. The members began assembling at an early hour. Much of the for noon was spent renewing old acquaintances, and becoming still further acquainted with many whom we had never before met. This was a great pleasure, and we did our best

The Standing Committee convened at eight ablack and elected the following officers:

Moderator, R. H. Miller: Reading Clerk, Enoch Elw; Writing Clerk, James Quinter.

The arrangement for feeding the crowd at this meeting is good. The Brethren here understand their lusiness will, and know how to reduce things to a system. Every waiter has pinned on his or her clothes in front, near the left shoulder, a printed card stating his or her place at the tables. This is what we call order. There is no contasion, but every one seems to understand his hu-mess, and they perform it with Christian courtesy. Most of the waiters are sisters, neatly but plainly dressed, and exhibit the best of health. It is plainly noticeslde that they have not runed their health by following the rumous and unlealthy fashions of the age. The members in this part of the State are belief commended for their real and planness. Most of them are in the order of the church, and a better hearted set of Christrans we never met. They spare no pains to make a'l combutable, and du their utmost to make each one feel at home. Hundreds of letters are received and handed to those who call for them on the ground. Several reporters and visited the newspaper men are pre-ent to take down and

At Breadway, one mile from the place of meeting, is a daily Conference paper, giving a daily report of the proceedings of the meeting. Many m attendance are having it sent to their families, thus giving them an early report of the meeting.

Towards evening it commenced raining and rendered surroundings a little unpleasant. $W_{\rm P}$ walked about one mile through the rain to our room, but did not get very wet, but we fear others did. Of course every house in the vicinity of the meeting was crowded.

Tuesday. We reached the A. M. ground about 7 c'clock, soon after which time it commenced raining, hence it was found necessary to hold the Conference in the meeting-house. In a short time the house was filled to its utmost capacity, and not more than half the people were able to get in, while many others were left out in the rain. The time was spent in singing, and listening to several addresses on the power and efficacy of prayer, till 9:30, when the Standing Committee entered the room, and took their places ready for business.

The Conference was opened by R. H. Miller who announced hymn No. 682;

* And are we yet alive, And see each other's face? Glory and pragge to Jesus give, For his redeering grace; Preserval to power drame To full salvation here. A gain in desure printer we foun. And in his sight appear.

Brother Miller then delivered a fourthing appeal to three who had assembled for business He mentioned the importance of the business before the meeting, and the great neessity of Davine assistance that all things might be done to the glory and honor of God. He then called to prayer, and dienot up prayer, followed by Enoch Bloy After prayer, Josse Calvert steppolicers a frost and announced the organization, consisting of other as mentioned above. The Annual Meeting Plan Committee, appointed last year to draft a better method for holding the A. M., reported by presenting their plan in writing. In substance the plan is about this: The meeting is to be made self-sustaining by such brother who attends the meeting paymg 51 mg the sisters to may what they may issis. The hearding tent to be arranged with an arse, running lengthwise through the center at the building, and all the tables to extend from the able to the sides. There is to be a does for each table, thus dividing the people into many parts so as to avoid crowding at the doors. The women to enter from one side of the building, and the men from the other. The meeting room - to be far enough away so as to and annoyance, and to be erected in a manner so that all the seats will rise gradually from the senter in all directions. There are several other leatures which we will not take the space to mention they will appear in the minutes.

Considerable discussion was included in by many of the brothren. The strongest apposeton was in regard to each one paying a dollar; was shown that those who are able to par-

It was entirely filled with people all of whom could see and hear just what was said and done.

The unfinished matter, left over from forenoon, was then taken up and pretty freely discussed, and finally passed as drafted by the Annual Meeting Plan Committee, hence the next A. M is to be held on the self-sustaining basis. It was thought best to give it at least a

BEFORE, OR AFTER?

Is it the order of the church, to connect needing, when a member is in trouble, to ask lim it he is satisfied with the decision of ito church before he knows what that decision is, or is if the order to tell him what that decision is and then ask him if he is satisfied? John J. Milliam.

Asswer It is the order to fell him what the decision is and then ask him if he is satisfied In confirmation of this we refer to the Minutes of 1878, Art. 6, which reads as tollows: "Which is according to the word of God, to ask an accused member, whether he is salished with the decisions of the church on his pending case, before they are made known to him, or offerward. Ans. - Afterward."

It would not be consistent to ask a man whether he is satisfied, with a thing, he knows nothing about. People should not be required to do a thing blin My. They should not with their eyes open. The gospol asks no man to accept a thing before it is made known to him.

This is the way Masons take the advantage of newly installed members — they make them sums thought this would exclude the poor, but swear to keep the secrets of the redge before they know what these secrets are; and this is one the represent the meeting, and it they were (practice in the church the very thing we oppose mothers,

ORIGIN OF SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

If not inconsistent with the character of the BRETHRES AT WORK I would like to ask a few questions to be answered through the columns of your very worthy paper,

t. What was the origin and object of Robert Rarkes starting his Sunday-school in London, England? Was it for religious instruction, or only a school or education?

2. When was the first Sunday-school started by the Briethren? Was it before Mr. Raikes started his school, or after? We have heard it asserted that the Brethren had a Sunday-school thirty years before Robert Raikes ever thought or his school By answering these questions you will oldige many ABRAHAM WOLLES

I. Robert Raikes, the founder of modern Sunday-schools, was an English philanthropist, and editor of the Glowester Journal. He commenced his Sunday-school work in Gloucester, England, in 1781 by gathering the poor children from the streets and employing female tenchers at a shilling a day for their services. The children were taught from fen A. M. to twelve; then after an hour's recess, read a lesson and went to church. After the close of church services they were instructed in the catechism till after five in the evening, and then sent home. The school was of a religious character, though other instructions were probably given. It is clear that Mr. Raikes introduced his school with a view of teaching the poor children the Bible. It was flien but a few years till Sunday-schools were established all over England.

2. We have no way of knowing who was the first brother to introduce these schools among the Brethren. About 1740, Ludwig Hacker established a school at Ephratah, Laneaster County, Pennsylvania, which continued a number of years. This man, however, did not belong to the Brethren at that time. He was a member of the Seventh-day Tunkers, a body of people who split off from the Brethren Church about 1726. This school at Ephratah was established about 21 years before Robert Rankes introduced his system in Glomester, England. But as early as 1674 there was a Sanday-school in Roxbury, Massachusetts, and also one in Plymonth, Massachusetts, in 1680, Sanday-schools were established in the Christhan Church near the middle of the second century. They were then called schools of catechannens, in which the young were carefully instructed out of the Scriptures. Less formal instruction of children prevailed much earlier.

Speaking of schools, among the Christians in the first century, Mosheim says: "The Christians took all possible care to accustom their claldren to the study of the Scriptures, and to instruct them in the doctrines of their holy religion; and schools were every-where erected for this purpose, even from the very commencement of the Christian Church. We must not, however, confound the schools designed only for children, with the yymmisia or academies of the ancient Christians, erected in several large enies, in which persons of ripor years, especially such as aspired to be public teachers, were instructed in the different branches, both of Inman learning and of sacred erudition. We may, undoubtedly, attribute to the spostles themodves, and to the injunctions given to their disciples, the excellent establishment, in which the youth destined to the holy ministry received an education suitable to the solemn office they were to undertake, (2 Tim. 2; 2.) St. John rected a school of this kind at Ephesus, and one of the same nature was founded by Poly. carp at Smyrna; but these were not in greater repute than that which was established at Alex andria, commonly called the catechetical school and generally supposed to have been creeded by St. Mark." Volume 1, page 43,

One of the most rehable works now publish d, is the American Cyclopedia in 16 volumes. Treating of Sunday-schools it says: "The earliest recorded Sunday schools were the schools of catechumens, organized, according to Tertuilian, the resonance to the Annual Meeting would reason why our Brethren oppose Masonry. It | Caristian children and novitiates provoiled early in A. D. 180, though less formal instruction at brandy ocable to pay one dollar to help defray I would not be consistent for as to furn round and per. The schools of the catechamens flourished till the sixth century. In 1527 Luther established Sunday-schools in Wittenberg for the instruction of children who could not aftend the day schools. In 1560 Kinex imaginated

THE WHITE STONE.

Will you, or some one else, please give un explanation of Rev 2: 17? It reads thus: "He that both on ear, let him hear what the Spirit softh unto the churches: To bim that averementh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new mone written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it." MARY ZIDLER.

COME, in commenting upon this text, apply the manns, white stone, and new mone, to spiritual blessings to be enjoyed in this life; but, like all the other promises made to the laithful, we believe it refers to the future, and that the come that they shall receive their reward. The following from 11. Blunt is as satisfactory as anything we have ever seen on this subject:

"It is generally thought by commentators that this refers to an ancient judicial custom of dropping a black stone into an urn when it is intended to condemn and a white stone when the prisoner is to be acquitted, but this is an net so distinct from that described 'I will give thee nite stone' that we are disposed to agree those who think it refers rather to a cusof a very different kind, and not unknown te classical reader, according with beautiful priety to the case before us.

.n primitive times, when traveling was reaered difficult from want of places of public enertainment, hospitality was exercised by private ndividuals to a very great extent, of which indeed we find frequent traces in all history, and in none more than the Old Testament. Persons who partook of this hospitality, and those who practiced it frequently contracted hubits of friendship and regard for each other, and it became a well-established custom among the Greeks and Romans to provide their guests with some particular mark which was hunded down from father to son, and insured hospitality and kind treatment whenever it was practiced. This mark was usually a small stone, or pelddle, cut in halves, and upon the halves of which the host and the guest unitually inscribed their names and then interchanged with each other. The production of this tissaga was quite sufficient to insure friendship for themselves or descendants whenever they traveled again in the same direction, while it is evulent that these stones required to be privately kept, and the names written upon them carefully convealed, lest others should obtain the privileges instead of the persons for whom they were intended.

How natural, then, the allusions to this custom in the words of the text, 'I will give him to eat of the bidden manna,' and buying done this, having made him partake of my hospituhty, having recognized him as my guest and friend, I will present him with the white stone, and in the stone a new name written which no man knoweth save he who reverveth it; I will give him a pledge of my friendship sacrol and inviolable, known only to houself. $R_c R_c Moos_c$

UR work within the passages and chambers of the pyramid of Cheeps was very fatigu-The entrance passage is just 3 feet 9 inches wide, and 2 leet 11 inches high, measuring at right angle to the floor. Of course we had to descend in a shooping posture, and the angle of descent is 26' 41. Moreover, the thoor is of white marble smoothly polished, and our only mode of descent was to slide down, and buttour brains out at the button, or have a rope tied at the outside to which we could held as we descended; but for the fact that notelies have been chiseled in the floor at irregular intervals to furnish a foot-rest. These are so radely out, though, that our boots were constantly slipping on them, and but for the help of the Arales whose hare feel, seemed to stick to the stone as if they were glied to it, we would at last have alropped into the sliding method above mentioned. With two Arabs to help each of us and one apiece to hold a candle before us, we managed to get along without breaks or bruises; but to take accurate measurements under these circumstances required some patience and much straining of our muscles. The mouth of this entrance passage is on the north side of the pyramid, about midway between its cast and west corners, and 48 feet perpendicular above the base. Measuring from the beginning of the markle floor, we descended $5 feet 1 inches to a pile of sand which has accumulated at the point where this possage meets with the first apward pussage, and which prevented as from complet ing the measurement with accuracy. Below this pile of sand which has been blown in by the winter winds, the passage continues in the same direction as before until it reaches a chainher 101 teet below the initial surface of the rack on which the pyramid shanks. This lowsaints will receive them when the time is fully er part of the shaft is stopped up, and covered could not explore it. The pile of sand not only prevended us from completing the measurement of the entrance passage with accuracy, but also came so near cholong up the passage, that we had to stoop our lowest, and snotl up a considerable quantity of dust that smell like anything else than enlogue, in order to pass over it. We measured, however, its horrizontal surface, and according to the best estimate we could make, the length of the floor of the deseemling passage to the point where the flow of the ascending passage begins, is 56 bet. It was originally more than this; for several feet. and perhaps yards, of the exterior base of the pyramid have been removed. Here I mide the first serious inaccuriay of the measurements given in the little land, of Mr. Seiss, called The Miracle in Stone." He gives the length of this chamber (p. 84) as 1,000 mehes, which equal 83 feet 4 inches. I am certain that it is several yards longer than this.

We had now descended within a few feet of the natural rock. From this point we began to climb upward at about the same angle by which we had descended, still going toward the center of the pyramid; but the first litteen feet of the original passage apward is blocked to by masses of granity, and a rough possage has been cut around these to the right through the soft limestone of which the pyramid is mainly built. These granite blocks were probably plured here to keep out introders. The passage toreed open around them is very difficult to ascend, and still more to descend. We had to have help both ways, and in coming down an Arabstood below me, took me on his shoulder and swang me down and around the most dangerous point. This made me nervous; for if his feet had shipped, broken hones would have been the certain result, and perhaps samething worse.

From this grante obstruction the passage upward, now only 3 feet 5 inches wide, extends 110 feet to what is called the grand gallery. our estimate of 15 feet for the obstructed part is correct (we could not measure it accurately) the entire length of flus part of the passage is 125 feet. The figures quoted to Mr. Sess tp. 811 makes it 1,542 inches, or 128 feet 6 inches, and are probably nearer correct than ours.

When we reach what is called the grand gallery, the ceiling of the passage anddenly rises to 25 hel in hight, and while the width of the floor remains the same as below, at an elevation of 20 inches above the floor the passages widen 20 inches on each side, making the entire width of this part 6 feet 9 inches. The entire length of the floor of this gallery is 151 net 4 inches according to our measurement, 15% leet according to Baedeker's Guide Book, and 156 feet 10 inches according to Mr. Seiss. We measured with care, but we may possibly have made some mis-

Thus, the entire length of feet high along the pyramid's sides. From the floor to the point of this arch is said to be 20 feet 4 inches. We had no means of measuring it. This chamber is entirely emply.

Retiring from the Queen's Chamber to the grand gallery, we continued our ascent until we reached a horizontal passage leading into the King's Chumber, the central and most important opening in the entire pyramid. We had now reached a perpendicular hight of 1391 feet. The horizontal passage through which we reached the chamber is 24 feet 10 mehes long, measuring along its level floor 3 feet 5 inches wide, and 34 feet high.

When we entered the King's Chamber, our Arabe, whose noise had already been very annoving, set up such a label of loud talking to us, and loud quarreling with one another, that we could have no conversation. Every one wanted to magnify his own importance by telling us what we already knew, and he was equally mixious to push his neighbor into the back ground so as to get all the expected backshees to himself. I finally succeeded, by yelling holder than all of them together, in bringing them to silence, and in posting four of the candle- to the pidience of the editors, and to the endurbearers near the four corners, while the fifth candle was held near us to throw light on our measurements. We first measured the coffee, or stone, coffin, which stands, near the western end of the room. We found its inside measurement exactly 6 feet 6 inches in length, 2 test 2) melies in width, and 2 feet 5 inches in depth. These figures show that its internor culocal capacity is exactly 66,144 inches; whereas Mr. Seiss, in making it appear that its capacity is the same as that or the ark of the covenint made by Moses, represents it as 71 250 mehes. This is one of the emphatic points which he makes in his argument, and I am sure that in it he is mistaken. He also affirms that this coffer could not possibly have been brought into the pyraand after the latter was built, and from this draws the inference that it was not intended for a cettin. The interence would be by no means logical it its premises were granted; for it is obvious that if the pyramid was intended as a monumental femile of the king who built it. his coffin might have been put in position while the work was going on. But it is not at all certain that the coffer was not trought in through the present entrance passages.

Its external width is exactly 3 feet 3 niches. and the norrowest part of the passage is 3 feet 5 melies. Its hight is exactly 5 feet 4 melies. and the lowest part of the entrance passage is 3 leet 6) inches. Consequently it could have been slid all the way along the smooth straight floor, and between the straight sides of the passuges, from the outside to its present position.

I was disappointed in regard to the external condition and appearance of this pyramid.] had been led to think that it was built of the hardest and most dorable limestone: but in fact the stone is of the most perislable kind, some of the blocks almost as soft as sompstone, and many of them very tornus. Evidently the huilder depended on the outside casing of granne, which carce covered it, for its preservation, and since that was taken away, a very rapid disintegration has been going on. The extent of this is best appreciated by standing at the points of the original corner stones, which were discovered and uncovered some years ago by

I found it difficult to coalize the vastness of the pyramid. It was not middled stood close to ils base and looked up, that it appeared, what it really is, the loffiest structure on earth built by homan hands. The highest cathodral tower in the world is that at Strasbourg, which is 473 feet, while the pyramid was originally 483, about 30 feet of its top having been removed. And it was not until I walked along the entire length of its western side, under scorching afternoon sun, the thermometer in the shade stamling at 93 , that I realized the almost incredible fact that this high mass of masonry covers thirteen acres of ground. Like all well proportioned structures of great size, if appears to the eye smaller than it is.

I would be glad to speak of the sphinx, which we studied and measured; of the vast and costly sepulchral chambers which we explored; of the other pyramids, of which we saw about twenty; of the wonderful Scrapeum, as it is called; in which twenty-four of the sacred bulls worshiped by the ancient Egyptians, were buried, each in his own soperate chamber and his own granite coffin of 65 tons weight; and of many other objects about Cairo that interested us much; but there is a limit to the space in the papers, ance of my readers; so I must deay myself this

LET US PRAY.

BY A. F. EBERSOLE.

OW often the ministers alone do all the praying, and when so it becomes monotnous and looks as though they had a special contract to take people to heaven. We say, divide that part of the exerci-o and leach people to pray by thrusting duty upon them.

How shall they pray? Why just as they would talk. More persons pray as though the lood was very posterular about the language used, when, in tar, all that is required is the language of the heart, - something that will reach down rate the niner man and open the add rusty doors and windows, and flood his whole soul with on his radiant light that saints will exclaim, "it is good for us to be here," and conners will response, "men and brethren, what: shall we do?

Visiting the Saint -- Council Meeting -- Missionary Convention-North-Western Ohio Conference-Love-feast - Calling additional Laborers-Pleasant Visit-Sad Farewell.

PORTION of territory being assigned to A u. Brother Teeter and the writer took a drive into the country to visit the members prior to our prospective control meeting preparatory to our hove-feast. We made pleasant ealls, and enjoyed a few minutes in social interview with one another, and talked of our kopes and fears, our engagements in the church, the appeares of God, etc. Found all in peace and harmony, and received the expression from all of their determination to labor in the cause of Christ, for an increase of boliness and for the salvation of souls. It was an enjoyable trip and one of profit to all.

However much such visits may be enjoyed, the minister being pressed with many other duties, we think he might be relieved from this labor with rightful propriety, as this special labor rests upon the deacms to attend to. However we bear the burden one with another and onward we go in the grand cause of our hely Christmenty.

Toolay we met in church council to adjust church business, of which we had considerable amount. Considerable debute was elicited, yet all passed off in a manner that was accepted, and we trust by a proper forbearing and forgiving spirit perfect love and union will continue

Treperations were made for a liove-feast, which is to the near fature. What a joyful thought that the Christian can so live as to be analified a lit communicant at the Lord's table! that he can partake of that spiritual meat and drink, that will beget in him more of that true life, enabling him to live torever. "Except ye est the desh of the Son of min, and drink his blook ye have no bie in you." John 6: 53

Next day, met in Conference. A large representation. Considerable business before the meeting, and adjusted, we believe, in the fear of God and to the general satisfaction of that body. must break up the fallen ground, sow the seed or we will have no horvest. The heart must be broken up, renovated, and prepared for the reception of the spirit, which will give rapidity | of growth in Christian stature.

3. There is nothing likely to grow without cultivation. We may break up the ground and sow the seed, but in the absence of cultivation the plants would perish. Hence cultivation is highly essential. So the Caristian most cultivate and improve his spiritual life, that he may become purer and holier as he advances in life, and be better prepared for the home beyond.

4. Man works by will. He can will to do or not to do. "If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and be with me." If he will open the door the best of consequences will follow. The world goes out and Christ enters the heart, and that man becomes a Christian, a worker in the cause of Christ. He concluded by urging exactness in the work essential to salvation as all our works shall be tried, hence must be perfect to stand the test.

Our dear Brother M. M. Eshelman Hollowed with an interesting address to the Sundayschool children, which was appreciated by all. Our dear editor has the cause at heart, and labors faithfully for the good of souls.

Held an election for two deacons, resulting in the installation of Brethren William Bradford and Leonard Hanman. It was a sidemn scene, and they seemed to appreciate the force of their high calling. Concluded the exercises in the evening by commemorating the sufferings and death of our dear Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. A large attendance and many communicants.

Next day, had a pleasant and enjoyable visit with Brethren Ruoch Eby. M. M. Eshelman, and his son Harvey. How strong is the tie that binds God's children together! It was hard to part with friends so dear. But white there is sorrow in our hearts at their departure as the train bore them out of our sight, we are payful to know that in the world to come, -the home of the Christian,-we can met and nev er, never more shall part. 114 God, grant as accounters to three, that this may us our hap-S. Draw Reetheren: -

DESIRE to say a few words to the brethren I through your paper, concerning Southern Kansus, and Libette County especially.

Labette County is situated on the line of Indian Territory, the second county from Missouri - It has a population of nearly 18,000,- | through lowa, blinois, and Eistern Kansas. mostly from Indiana and Himors. The society is of the first class. We have excellent schools, | the southern part of the county, and they are | school-houses are generally used for Sundayschool and church services.

Our drainage is perfect, naturally, as our country is rolling enough to dram it thoroughly; but it is not fully. We have no sloughs nor marshes. The soil is of the very best quality in the southern half of Labette County, and it is adapted to the raising of all kinds of grain. and vegetables common to a country in this latitude. Wheat gives an average of 15 to 30 bushels per acre; corn, 25 to 75 bushels; oats, 40 to 75; and other grains yield proportionally. We have good promises of a very large yield of gram and vegetables this year. We have as fine a fruit country as I ever saw. Fruit of all kinds does well. Bushels of peaches rotted on the ground here last season. Apples do well, but there has been heretofore a scarcity of this article, because there were but tow orchards old enough to hear, but those that did hear yielded largely. In a few years, there will be a surplus of apples, as there are many of the very linest orchards in this section of Kansas. It lies in veius from dishelination to activity in the Christian race, fourteen inches to four feet thick. The inner veins lievery near the surface along the creek hottoms, and the thicker veins lie at a greater depth. It sells at two and one-half to four cents per bushel at the mines.

We claim to have as fine a climate as there is any where. The health is very good. Many come here in ill health, and in the course of a year regain their former vigor and usefulness I might give numerous instances, but I think it not necessary now,

PRICE OF LANDS.

Improved quarter sections can be purchased from $700 to $4,000, according to improvements. Many farms, and indeed 1 might say all the farms that are sold at present, bring about what the improvements are worth. There are, in the southern part of this county near Chetopa, and also about Oswego as nicely improved farms as any in the older States, except in the line of burns. These sell for four and five thousand dollars. It is foolishness for people to go on the raw prairie to make "a start" when improved land can be purchased for nearly the same money.

LOCATION TO MARKET.

Labette County has a ready market. There are four outlets by rail from this county, two direct lines to St. Louis, one to the Gult Coast, and one to Northern Kansas. The Missonri & Western is preparing to extend their road from Oswego across the middle of this county on west to Witchita. Our principal market for grain and stock is St. Louis, which is as good as Chiengo or Cinciunati. Our grains and shipping cattle sell for nearly as much as in Indiana or Ohio, there being a slight difference in the freights. We have a splendid home market for all kinds ofgarden vegetables.

My jurpose in writing this letter is to awakon an interest in getting the brethren coming west more compactly together. I have talked with some of the brethren in the county to have them write, and make known the lands here, and the advantages we possess. Some promised they world, but I have 'not seen anything from their pens. I have lived in Labette County nearly one and one-half years, and have travelled all over the Atchison, Topeka, and country to the state of the state and I have nowhere found all the advantages placed together as they are here in the southern part of Kansas. I travelled with the express jurgose of seeking a location, and I claim to have a good idea of our soil, water, foel, and climate, and I will say that I found it nowhere better. John and Abraham Replogle, from Indiana, were with as a few weeks ago and travelled over much of Labette County, and they claim the southern half of this county to be the best location they found in their travels

The Brethien have organized a church inand numerous church buildings. The country very anyons that the bothren coming West should locate with them, as they believe they live in a country which they can becommend,

> We think it a good plan for the Brethren to send some able men, to seek a location in Kansas for the benefit of those brethren croning West and scattering through all parts of Kansas. It would be better for the church, and the brothren would be more certain of securing good lands and enjoying the benefit of good

> It any of the Brethren have different propositions as to the manner of getting a location 1 would like to be advised of the plan, and also of a better location can be found in Southern Wansas than the southern half of labette Co., I will move into such a locality.

> I will gladly answer any question any one may desire to ask, and if my send me their name and address I will send them a paper giving much information of the lands here.

2ml. A treasurer shall be appointed by D. M. to receive all monies appropriated for that purpose. He shall keep an accurate account of all monies received and paid out, and report annually at D. M. He shall pay out no money except as ordered by the board.

It shall be the duty of the several churches to pay once in six months to the treasurer, as God may prosper them, to support this fund; and that the first installment of the six months be sent as soon as practicable after the adoption of the above; and the Board shall in no case send brethren in advance of the funds in the trensury. The Board shall be chusen for a term of two years, and the treasurer for the same length of time.

We desire that tried brethren be chosen in all this work, and that all money appropriated be judiciously applied.

We also recommend that preaching be done, not only in parts never before occupied, but that some time be spent among churches already organized, as the Board may dictate, Amended by D. M. that this conneil make choice of the missionaries instead of the commattee, then let the missionaries be subject to the committee.

The meeting chose for missionaries Brother desse Studebaker, of Anderson County, and Brother M. T. Baer, of Bourbon County. For Treasurer, Emmunel Hufford. His address is Garnet, Anderson County, Kansas. For comunttre, Jacob Back, Sydney Hodgden, and George Myers.

This is evidently a move in the right direction. I shall ask a few questions of the members of the district of Southern Kausas, Shall we allow the move to fail for the want of means? If it fails it will be for the want of money to carry it on, and why? The plan calls for tried brethren in all this work; and who shall say the brethren selected by D. M. do not fill the requirement? I think no one who knows them can say so. Do we fear that our missionaries will become lifted up with pride if we thus send them? on Said is not are west to they need not bear the burden alone. Are twe alraid some one else might get more benefit of their labors than we? A soul is of as much value in one section as in another. Let us be willing to trust that our committee will, without partiality, divide the labors of the missionaries. Have we not the means? Let us try and see: If we cannot give the tenth of our income perhaps we can give the twentieth or

When we came to the church we should have made an entire surrender of ourselves to the Lord, and also of all that he, in his goodness, has intrusted to us. Let us then make wise use of the Lord's property, and bring to him an offering that his house may be, filled with meat; and see if he will not pour upon us a great blessing, (Mal. 3: 10.) I think it is the daty of the overseers of each arm of church to bring this matter before the members, and exhort them to their ibity. There is an important responsibility with them; but should they fail to do their duty, then each one may east in their mite, by sending it to the district treasurer, whose address can be seen above. I feel impressed to write much more, but think this article already full long. May the Lord enable us to open our bowels of compassion unto J. C. ULBEY. every good work.

Although the road was very dusty, the genial disposition of our company made the distance seem short and very pleasant.

Sunday 10 A. M. attended services at Silver Creek. A heavy rain caused the attendance to be small. Brother D. Price preached from the text, "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernucle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens," 2 Cor. 5: 1.

Aftertaking dinnerat Bro, W. Felker's, returned to place of meeting to assist in organization Superintendent; Brather D. Stover, Assistant Superintendent; Brother E. P. Trostle. Secretary: Brother W. Felker, Treasurer; Brother L. Miller and Sister El. Rowe, Labra-

The school was organized on Bible School plan. The prospects, we think, are very length. The little boys and girls deserve special credit for their good behavior. Whatever they were requested to do they did promptly and cheerfully. Where there are good boys and girls there will be good men, and women. The unanimity of sentiment, the zent and perseverance of the members, their unselfishness, "in honor preferring one another" are indeed very encouraging to Bible School workers. At the close of school Brother Stein made a few remarks to the teachers relative to their duties and responsibilities. We never so felt before how goat, glorious, and yet solemn the teacher - ling is. May contrite hearts never cease to proc for Bible teachers.

Tuesday, 10:20 A. M., the sisters and I separated, they remained for Silver Creek Lovefeast and I took train for Chicago. Arriving in Chicago all right, as soon as P. Ft. W. & C. train backed up to depot I boarded it and took possession of a seat. As soon as I had done this I walked out on the platform. As soon as I stepped outside the car I saw two men who looked like Brethren. One of them smiled and spoke as soon as he saw me. I felt sure I knew who it was, and taking his hand, suid, "Why, how do you do, Brother Calvert?" Said he, "When and where did you see me?" Said 1. I never saw you any where." Said he, "How did you know me, then?" Said I, "How did yon know me?" I knew you were from banark as soon as I saw you, by your hat; but how did you know me," said be again. There are two ways by which I know you; one is you have on a hat which was sent to you from Lanark, another is by a picture of you which I saw. "Well, well," said he, "to have a noniformity in dress is some advantage after all, isn't it?' "Yes, it certainly is," said I.

I arrived at Pittsburg 12:15 P. M. 28th. Affer getting dinner I took a stroll through the city. There were just two things of which I make special note; one is the dirty black coul smoke and dust that finds its way theverything in the city. As it seemed so dack and just in the middle of the day I thought we were going to have a rain or storm, and that I had better make my way lack to depot soon as possible. But I stopped a moment with a confectioner and inquired if he thought it would rain soon. He looked a little surprised at first, and then grinned, us he saw from the innovency of my look that I did not know much about Pittsburg atmosphere. He said it was about as light as it ever gets in Pittsburg, that there were no clouds, that it was only smoke that made it look so dark. In all of my stroll I did not see a clean house, mun, woman, or child. I thought if some of our sisters who semb and scour so much had to live there, here would not be much pence for oour Adam.

The second thing I noticed was the immense number of sulcons. It seemed to me there are more saloons than all other business houses together, being about twenty times as many them of the comforts and necessites of life, as there are to supply their wants and remier them Imppy. The first train to leave Pittsburg for Harper's Ferry was it o'clock at night. But I got so tired of the dirty place that I took a 4 o'clock train, which went as far as Connellsville, and remained there until Harper's Ferry train came along. Arrived at Comberland Junction very early in the morning. Here I met Brethren Elay, Forney, Rowland, Moore, Eshelman, and Howard Miller. Several took the train at Meyersdale, Pennsylvania. But all of these whom we knew were Brethren C. G, and W. G. Lint.

As Brethren Moore and Eshelman were all around, up and down the fulls and rivers at Harper's Ferry, I presume they will report all that is of interest about that tamous place; so I pass it by without further notice at present. To give a description and history of Shenandoah Valley would, no doubt, be interesting, but would not be admissible in this article as it would be sufficiently long to make an actube

ACOB M. Zuck, A. M., was born near Mercersburg, Pennsylvania, in the year 1846, and died in Huntingdon, Pennsylvania, May

The subject of this notice was a graduate of two of the leading educational institutions of the country, viz., Millersville State Normal School, Pa., and the National Normal School, behimon, Ohio. He taught several years in the common and graded schools, both before and after his graduation. On the 17th of April, 1870, he opened a Normal School in Huntingdon, Pa., with less than half a dozen students, but by his scriticing energy and constant devotion to the work, against opposition and other serious drawbacks the school had a constant growth from the first; and at the time of his death, a little over three years from its beginning, had over one hundred students in attendance, and is now known as the "Brethren's Normal College," of which institution he was Principal at the time of his decease.

J. W. Stein's 15th Appropries.

Y friend fails to respond to my arguments. I His objections do not meet the issue on bouth question. Suppose olions are required benter Christ's church by solemn oath of alle-Name? Christ for lads his subjects to swear at all. at Mr. 10 admits that the outlis allowed by the is are larladden by the gospel. This condennes secharca as violators of the grospel. Paul's ying, "Heliold, before God, I be not," is a very English thing from the common form of oaths confirmation. The fact that such an oath is men an end of strife authorizes no christian ctake it. Christ command+ them to "swear "at all." My friend thinks they may never-Eless swear sometimes. True, find confirmed spromise by oath. He also hills and does Cay other things which he torials us to do onot believe that Brother Nead called upon " ^{Lord} in an implous, irreverent or reproach-Marit so as to blaspheme his name as Mr. R. uses him of doing. But suppose he did? It hid menther refute my argument nor the Methren's position which regards all oaths Tong for Christians. If the violation of a law I the worldly eye, and destroys true moral conrel Lowisian, and others.

on the part of one of its subjects must condemn | age. It often leads to hypocrisy, crime and ruthe law, we will have a species of logic before which no system can stand,

But he thinks it."solemn mackery" and "blasphenous assumption" to do what the New Testament commands. (Jas. 5; 12-15). My irrerol's church used to do the same thing. See Mosheim's Eccl. Hist., pp. 501, 729). Was that blasphemous? The abuse of a divine institution by Catholics or others does not invalidate its claims. Anointing the sick and graying over them, is not working miracles. It is obeying Christ. The command to work miracles was to inspired apostles. James addresses the whole churen. He says; "Is may sick, let him," &c.

But my friend asks: "Where was the Torde" during seventeen centuries?" Ans. Wherever men and women contended for the faith once delivered to the saints and kept, the ordinances as they were delivered by Christ and the apostles. We do not doubt that Christ has always had churches somewhere on earth, which, have held and practiced substantially what the Brethren teach and practice now. Church organizations of like faith and practice are not "rivals." "God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation be that fears bin and works righteons ness is accepted of him, ' Acts 10: 34, 65, "The ministry of Christ and the apostles"continues wherever the christian scriptures are read and faithfully taught. The perpetuity of Christ's church is not contingent upon the acquaintanceship and connection of its associated parts or organizations, but upon the stability of his authority and gospel, and the fact that men and women will always be found somewhere to beheve and obey it. Whenever and wherever penitent behevers submit themselves to the faith and practice of the gospel, they are churches of Christ, connected with the apostolic churches (not through apostate and rebellions pretenders who claim the keys of the kingdom and keep, themselves, and others out, but) through the gospel which hinds every obedient believer to the throne-through the spirit that unites the faithful in heart; and through Christ Immself in whom all the faithfulunife as members of one head and branches of one vine. The origin of our faith and practice dates back to the apostolic age. They were peculiar to "religious organizations" then as we have shown from the Christian Scriptures. Beides Thave shown that the very "organizations admitted by my triend to be "true cliniches of Christ" held this taith long before 1708. It our peculiarities are "blasphemous" so were their. If we cannot be churches of Christ for the very same reasons they cannot be. Churches having the faith and practice of the gospel, of whatever age or clime or by whatever name called, are one in Christ their common head, though they may never have heard of each other, let alone having been organically connected; neither are they "self-constituted," for their constitution is from Christ. Lask my friend for just one passage of Scripture proving that "Scriptural church succession" requires an aubroken organto commection of churches from the apostles to this time through a people just like themselves? He cannot mention such a denomination, as the sequel of this debute will show.

My third reason why the Brethren possess this characteristic is, that they refuse to conform to the world in the costliness and Jashion of their apparel, &c. Postly and fishionable at tire is contrary to the spirit of christian jumdence and economy. It often forces a distanction between the rich who can afford it and the poor who cannot, which is reproachful to God It is rumous, to health, smedal in character, and like drunkenness and war, fearful in its ray ages. Yet Mr. R. thinks we cannot be chare! es of Christ, because we labor to restrain it. It tends to corrupt and degrade the intelectual and moral faculties. It promotes junic, becomean object of veneration, emplayes to the dust of

in. Dress is an index to the heart, and honce should become the christian. Paul tells us that christians should "whorn themselves with modesty and sobriety; not in braided hinr, or gold, or pearls, or costly raiment; but, which becomes wemen professing godliness, by means of good works," I Tim. 2, 5, 10, "Whose adorning," says Poter, "let it not be the outward one of braiding the lear, and of wearing golden ormsments, or of putting on apparel; but the hidden man of the heart, in that which is imperishable, of the mock and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God is of grout price." I Pet. 3: 3-5. Yet Mr. R. condemns our efforts, to obey this, Foundalge in vain after is to conform to this world. Paul says: "Be not conformed to this world." Rom. 12: 2. "Know ye not," says James, "that the triendship of this world is enmity with God," James 4: 4, "Love not the world," says John, "neither the things in the world. If any one loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him, because all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eye, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but of the world," I John 2: 15: 16. Vain attire was one chief cause of God's displeasure with the "daughters of Zion," Isaiah says they "are lunglity, and walk with stretched furth necks and wanton eyes, walking and mineing as they go, and making a tunkling with their foot," and the Lord was displeased with "their trakling ornaments about their feet, and their cauls, and their round tires like the moon, the chains, and the bracelets, and the untillers, the bonnets and the ornaments of the legs, and the headbauos, and the tablets, and the ear-rings. the rings, and the nose jewels, the changeable suits of apparel, and the mantles, and the winiples, and the crisping pins, the glasses, and the fine linen, and the hoods and the vails," &c. Isa, 3: 16-23,

One peculiar characteristic of the apostate church is, that she is "clothed in purple and scarlet, and gilded with gold and precious stones. and pearls." Rev. 18:4. If we look at John the harlonger of Messiah, his affire was remarkably idam. Mart. 8: 4. God's ancient worthies often "wandered in sleep-skins, and goat-skins." Heb. 41; 37,

An uncount inquisitor says of the Waldenses, They avoid all appearances of prode in their dress; they neither includge in finery of attire, nor are they remarkable for being mean or raggod 7 Jones' Ch. Hist., vol. 2, p. 64. My frieud claims them as the true church of Christ, 4 therefore prove by him that this peculiarity of the Brethren is characteristic of the church of

At this point I will notice our sister's headcovering, of what imy friend complained. The woman's head-covering enforced by Paul (1 Cor. 11: 3:-16) is not the bur, but a special covering. designed for special accasions and for special purposes (1) Had it been the hair, there would have been no need at admonstron on the subject. Nature itself teaches that short har is a suitable natural covering for a mon's head, and long hair for a woman's. 2 Cor. 11; 11, 45;

- (2) The man is to nucover his head, while the woman covers hers. Is the man, therefore, to take off has baie? Is the woman to just hers
- (3) The original employs different words to represent the two coverings. The special covoring is represented by "killipto," "to cover with athing," "or to put over as a covering," &c. see laddell & Scott - Our sisters, wear a plain. mentings because it does this, and as yell they dave found nothing more soutable or convenout. The natural covering is "Periboleum," from "Pecihalla," "Yoeshrow around," &c.
- (4): This distriction is recognized by all leadang commentations, as Scott, Godwyn, Oill, Hammond, Loghtfoot, Pierce, Whithy, Shaetgen, Clark, Benson, Barnes, Patrick, Lowth, Arnoid.

- (5) It has been the universal custom of the church through all ages. The patting away of the woman's head-covering is a modern departure. It prevailed among the primitive christions. See Cave's Prim. Christianity, p. 139. Writings of Tertullian, 1, pp. 195, &c.; 2, pp. 15-1-180.
- (6) It is a mathematical axiom that "things which are equal to the same thing are equal to each other." If, then, the natural covering (verse 15) is the same that Paul allades to inverses 4-6, the word "bair" may be used in those verses and make sense, thus: "Every man praying or prophesying, having his hair on his hand, dishonoreth his head." "Every woman that prayeth or prophesieth with her hair off her head," &c. "For if the woman have no limit on her head let her also be shorn," No. Will that du?
- (7) The head-covering is a token of woman's proper relation to mun (see verses 7, 8, 9), and hence becomes a token or covenant of authority, and has regard even to the angels (verse 40) who are ministering spirits sent forth to minister to the heirs of salvation.
- (8) It is to be observed in time of prayer or prophesying. This includes seasons of private and social prayer, as well as seasons of social christian interviews,
- (9) It is urged by divine authority. Paul urged it by his authority as an apostle of Christ. 1 Cor. 14: 27. He derives it from the divine relationship between husband and wife in the creation. TSec verses 9 and 10.)

The known disregard of the smallest duty enforced by divine authority, is a virtual rejection of such authority. Matt. 7: 12.

MISSIONARY,

BY 1, P. KELSO,

ETHOUGH, living in a land of Bibles, it is an established fact, that the pure groupel is withheld by many ministers. And why? Because they have a lack of fidelity to the Scriptures. If faithfulness is required in him who takes upon himself any secolar care, can too great attention be given in performing that duty which includes the salvation of souls? Chrtainly not. An ambassador for Christ. What a responsible calling! "Be not dereived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall be also reap," (Gal. 6: 7), print in 'etters of gold, yet if they have not charity it profits nothing. One whole-souled assertion for the Christian religion has more influence over souls than all the ouscriptural aboquence that ever has enraptured unconsecrated admiration.

The divine commission directs, "the yethere-6 re, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and, lo, I am with you alway, even inito the end of the world, Matt. 28: 19, 20. This appointment authority of God, with the universal consent of the Christian church in all lages, gives the nunistry of reconcibation a presemmence. The congregation will follow the example set by the numster, whether it be acrognice or hismulity; superfluity or con-istency. Then bow important to choose one not glorying in 1800alarity, not indulging in auscriptural phrases and sentences for the same of estentation. "But he that glorath, let him glory in the Lord. For not be that commendeth, houself is approvedbut whom the Lord commendeth." 2 Cor. 17:

Comparatively speaking, how her are the ministers who can foracsh thorough, anobjectional sermons! How vast are the responsibilities of those who are sent alread over the world to proclaim the glad tidings. They may speak with the tongue of an angel, and that dare not be neglected nor disregarded. White passessing the prerequisites will refine to work for the sakvarion of souls that they may inherit the amanthme lowers of eternal birs? Hence the most important part is in the selection of unaisters. O consistency where are the jewels,

IN REMEMBRANCE.

BY JAS, Y. RECKLER.

To Elder Michael Bollinger, of the Cherry Groy Church, Carroll Co., 111.

EAR brother, some memories pleasant Come over me once in awhite, Like rays of the sun through the shadows, That soften their glance with a smile. I think of the seasons departed, The brethren with whom I conversed-And tokens of love in remembrance, Which scarcely I noticed at first.

Dear brother, my love for the brothren Shall never diminish nor fail, If even through tempests and trials, And floods of uffliction, I sail. The love that our Savior has granted-His love to redeem us from sin, Must move on the chords of affection, The sinner from darkness to win.

O, hrother, how well I remember Those meetings and sensons of love, The time of those many conversions In your flourishing church, Cherry Grove. Thank God for his bountiful blessings Bestowed on bis children so free, To grant them what ever is needful, And more than is needful, we see.

Dear brother, in your congregation, The call from young Hansen was heard, For brithren to cross the Atlantic, To Denmark to preach the pure word. And I was a silent spectator, Whose heart felt aglow for the youth Just calling from yonder for brethren, That he might solicit the truth.

O, brother, how small the beginning Of things that God wants to have done! How great the achievement of wooders When things are accomplished or won! The church fluit in Denmark is plunted, Is growing on seed that is sown, The fruit it will yield in its season, Not only in Denmick alone.

Dear brother, how scant is our knowledge Of things that are bid from our view! We scarcely have faith like a "musturd," Or know what through faith we can do. I look for great things in the future, The spread of the gespel abroad, And many conversions of somers, Who are called with the calling of God.

Dear brother, since writing the former, Ailliction ensuared me severe. And friends and physicanes considered My feet at the Jordan were near. But thanks to the Lord for his nercy, Who wounds and he leads it again. My bealth new once more is improving, And thinking the Lord. I connet complain.

HOLD THE FORT.

RY J. S. MOHLER.

"Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life." Prov. 1: 23 MHE world is the great battle field in which for long and bloody ages a fearful contest has been waging between the kingdom of darkness against the kingdom of light. The world was ere ated for the children of light. Our great Commander, in the beginning gave instructions to his children what they should do, and what they should not do. So long as those instructions were obeyed, they were happy - the fort - the heart | feeling of our infirmities, that - he might was safe; and they doubtless often engaged in sweet conversation with their great Leader. But an enemy made his appearance, and through strategy persuaded the children of God to disregard the instructions of their Commander.

Here the first great battle in the moral world was fought. The fort was taken. The enemy was victorious. The children of God, for their disobedience, were driven from their beautiful home in Par adise to till the soil, and eat their bread from the sweat of their face; with thorns and thistles to annoy them, till they re turned to dust again. Gen. 3: 17, 18, 19.

As a result of this moral, or rather iming results, was introduced into this fair his trial! Every conceivable insult and great Founder has been called away for one was left unguarded, and the eneminated and the eneminated are conceivable.

Eden of ours, and has blighted every thing with which it came in contact. Sin in the moral world, has become fearful in its effects, in the material world. It seems to have effected the heavens above, and the earth beneath, and the elements surrounding us; and every thing we eat, drink, and wear; hence the pain we suffer, and the diseases that are contracted because of improper food and drink. The air we breathe is impregnated with malarious properties, hence sickness and death. Our social relations are sadly impaired; hence those petty jenlousies, quarrels, suits at law, contentions, and wars, with all their horrible consequences.

But while the enemy gained such great power by his success in Eden, his power is still limited by one that is greater than he; hence the prophetic declaration. that the woman's seed should bruise the serpent's head, Gen. 3: 15.

The introduction of the law with its various applications and restrictions, rites and ceremonies, and the rivers of blood that flowed from Jewish altars was given to define sin. To make it manifest. To bring it to the surface, that we might more clearly comprehend it in all its damning influences. The apostle truly says, "The strength of sin is the law," I Cor. 15: 56, i. e., the law gave sin prominence; otherwise our knowledge of sin would be very limited. Not that God through the law created sin. That was already done; and poor fallen humanity is committing sin every day.

But here again, through the subtlety of the enemy, and the deceitfulness of sin and weakness of the flesh, the fort in the main was still held by the enemy. "For the law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope did. Heb. 7: 19. Christ, the author of this hetter hope, "brought life and immortal ity to light through the gospel." For this purpose, "the Son of God was man ifested, that he might destroy the works of the Devil." I John 3:18. "In him was life, and the life was the light of the world." John 1:4, "He that believeth on the Son hatheverlasting life." John 3) (a), —91 nm come that they might have life." John 10, 10. "I am the bread of life." John 6: 35. "He led captivity captive and gave gifts unto men." Eph. 4:8. Many more kindred Scriptures might be introduced, to show the great power vested in the Captain of our salvation, in order to enable him to grapple with, and finally overthrow the prince and kingdom of durkness.

Naturally, before a person is capable of filling the position of a successful gen eral, it is necessary that be frequently come in close contact with the enemy, that he may fully understand the tactics and strength of his antagonist. This only, will make him a safe leader. For this reason, doubtless, Christ was so severely tempted, and touched with the be alde to foil our common enemy, at every point. Paul says, "To make the captain of their salvation perfect through $sufferings.^{st}$ = ${
m Heb}$, 2: 10

Doubtless, the most trying time in the mission of Christ on earth, was his betraval and emcifixion. How intense his ments of the enemy. Soon, however, sufferings must have been, to have fore ed his blood in great drops from him! commander came in full view and told We have read of persons who, while under the influence of some great moral, or things now! In the fort, where a few that oozed from every pore; but never did; was depicted on every countenance, now and agony was so intense, as to wring | necessaries of life are bountifully supplifrom him his life-blood in great drops ed, while their enemies are entirely over- forces in, and overpower us, in the form of sweat! How degrading thrown It is thus with the church. Its the many gates of ancient Babylon, b mockery that the imaginations of wicked men and devils could invent, were east upon him. How ignoble his death! to be numbered with the transgressors, and die the most shameful death the Roman law could inflict.

But while his sufferings were intense. his trials degrading, his death mean and ignoble, yet by his patient bearing, his forgiveness of his enemies during his most intense sufferings, and especially by his resurrection from the dead he achieved the most glorious victory heaven and earth ever beheld. In his resirrection he triumphed over death and hell, and "became the first fruits of them that slept." Says the revelator, "I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold I am alive for evermore, and have the keys of hell and of death." Rev. 1: 18. Christ dethroned the devil from the high position be once occupied. In consequence of his great victory, Christ obtained all power in heaven and earth, and will delegate of his power sufficient to all his faithful followers, to enable them to resist the enemy, and hold the first, till Christ comes, the second time without sin unto salvation. "The gates of hell shall not prevail against them." Matt. 16: 18.

The Old First has withstood many a siege. The rains have descended. Floods of opposition have vented their fury against her. The winds and storms of persecution have threatened her destruction. Her banner has been trailed in the dust, but others have rallied around the cross of Jesus, and to-day her glorious banner is raising over the fort, with this precious motto, "Be faithful until death, and I will give you a crown of life." By the term, or phrase, "hold the fort," we mean the church as a body (at this part of our subject), and as a lady the church has always existed, and always will to the end of time; though that body at times was quite small. God will not permit his organization to become extinct. "Fear not little flock." Luke 12: 32.

The church of Christ on earth may be very fitly compared to a fort with a garrison, who are commanded to hold it to the last extremity.

In the Mexican war the chief com mander had occasion to go into a distant part of the field of conflict, and left a certain fort with its officers and men, with strict instructions to hold it till his return. During his absence the fort was surrounded on all sides by the enemy. Their communications were entirely cut off. Their sufferings for the necessaries of life were extreme. They could not possibly hold the fort much longer. The enemy pressed nearer and redoubled their fire, while the strength of those in the fort was getting weaker, and their amunition nearly exhausted. Their enemies were exulting over their anticipated victory. At this critical moment, the enemy was seen to run to and fro upon the field of battle. All was confusion and disorder. Numbers of them ran into the Rio Grande and perished. All ran for dear life. In the fortiall was wonder and amazement, at the move the approaching columns of their late the story. How different the state of thysical agony, became wet with swear, home previously, gloom, and despair, we learn of one, save Christ, whose pain, joy, and gladness shines forth, and the the time being, but promised to come again. He has left the soldiers of the cross with the officers to hold the fort, To keep the church pure and unspotted that she might be presented as a chaste virgin having neither spot nor wrinkle.

No doubt, just previous to the second coming of Christ will be a dark period in the history of the church. The enemy will deceive, if possible, the very elect. Wars will come and rumors of wars, famines, pestilences, earthquakes in divers places: sorrows and troubles upon every hand, and sin with all its deceitfulness will abound, and the true followers of Christ will dwindle down to a small number, comparatively. All these things will have a disconraging effect, to a greater, or less extent upon the true soldiers of Jesus; and they will wish and ardently desire the return of their long absent General. At his return all those proud, blasphemous enemies of the cross will be forever discounfited, and the true soldiers will be delivered from the contaminating influence of sin, will be changed and fashioned like unto Christ's glorious body, and so ever be with the Lord. Hence the important injunction of our great Leader, "to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you" and hold fast to the doctrine of Christ, that we may be grounded and settled in the truth as it is Jesus.

In the foregoing part of this essay we have applied the phrase, "Hold the fort" to the church as a body; but will now apply it to us as individuals. It is only as we are true individually, that we will be true collectively.

While the world is the theatre in which the bloody conflict between light and darkness, has been saying, "the human heart is the stage upon which those forces, either for good or evil, have been acting and are germinated. All that we do proceeds from the heart. Naturally, a first must have passages for ingress and egress, that communication can be had with the outer world, and that the necessaries of life may be broughtin, as well as weapons wherewith to defend ourselves. It is thus with the heart. It has its passages or avenues through which we communicate with the outer world, and through which things of the outer world make an invade upon the heart, or fort within. Naturally, the enemy makes his approaches to the fort along the passages and weak points, especially if he can throw the sentinel of his guard; but if those passages are well guarded, and the sentinel awake, the fort is safe. This is equally true spiritually. All the evils in the world, first find their way, through the various avenues leading to the heart. If these are properly guarded, the fort within is safe. The great Commander says, "And what I say unto you, I say unto all, watch." Mark 13: 37. Among the most prominent avenues leading to the heart, through which evil may be transmitted to the fort within, are the following:

- The Eye.
- The Ear. 4.
- The Tongues
- The Desires—lust.
- The Affections.
- 6. The Intellect.

Other avenues might be noticed, la these are sufficient for our present put pase. It is not necessary that all the above avenues, or gates, be left unguard ed to give the enemy success. If but o of them, be left open, or unguarded is sufficient to let the enemy with h

We shall briefly notice the above inwe separately that we may be the more mpressed with their importance

By it we see our way no go from place to place—to our daily hor, to the house of merchandise, to the house of mourning, to the house of est and drink, &c. To be deprived of this blessing-of seeing, is one of the gs in this life.

But while the organ of vision is such great thing, it is also susceptible of being a curse to us. We hear the apostle peak of the lust of the eye. It was through this avenue that the Devil tempted and overcome mother Eve, in Eden. She saw that the fruit was fair. It was through this inlet that the enemy tempted Lot's wife. She looked back and became a pillar of salt. It was through this avenue that David was tempted to sin in the case of Bath-sheba. He saw the woman wash herself. 2 Sam. It is through this important inlet that many have fallen, by permitting themselves to be thrown off their guard. his through this passage that fashion with all its evils has attained such prominence in the world. FAITH.

C. S. BOON,

"Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Heb. 11: 11. THIS fundamental element is acknowle edged by all men to be essential to salvation. We can see what great wonders men of olden times wrought. Danid, that holy prophet through faith closal the mouths of the lions (that is the angel did). Through the great faith which Daniel had in the living God, he was saved from the dreadful jaws of the king of beasts. But what became of his accusers when they were cast into the den of lions, not believing on the living God? "And the king commanded and they brought those men which had accused Daniel, and they east them into the den of lions, them, their children, and their wives; and the lions had the mastery of them, and brake all their boxes in pieces or ever they came at the bottom of the den." Dan. 6: 24.

The faith of Ahraham, the father of dl the faithful was willing to sucthe his well beloved Son (in whom the families of the earth were to be ldessed), looking forward at the benefits to be derived therefrom. God promised, and Abraham believed, and because of he faith what great blessings the Lord pronounced upon him. He said, "in blessing, I will ldess thee, and in multiplying, I will multiply thy seed, as the stars of heaven, and as the sand of the means God saved him from being swept away, as all those who did not believe were.

Peter says, "The like figure whereunto baptism doth also now save us." Paul says, "the just shall live by faith." James says, "faith without works is dead, heing alone." We now see what a great thing faith is. "For without faith it is impossible to please God; for he that will come to him must first believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of all God, to read the pages of inspiration, to them that diligently seek him." What we see with our eyes, seems to me ought to prove that there is a great Ruler or nost unfortunate things that can befall kind and merciful God. But when revelation steps up and declares the existence of a God, who created all things visible and invisible, who made the great light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night; most assuredly we ought to believe. Now, all these evidences are so plain, who is it that will not reverence such a Being? honor, love, serve, and obey him who has given us the promise of eternal life upon gospel terms. I fear that there is too much loose living in the church. Lives are not marked by that faith that should characterize the saints on earth. True faith and humility do not always constitute their adornment. It may be of many, truthfully said, "They are not shining lights." Some seem no better after their conversion than before, and if religion make people no better, it is of no use.

> Oh, that we all had faith as a grain of mustard seed that we might "press forward to the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Bible faith, practical faith, faith that works by love.

God will put Satan in the same place, and all the devils. Satan is the father of the wicked, and he and his children will be punished forever. They will not have one drop of water to cool their burning tongues. Many people in bell will say, How I wish I had listened to the words of my teachers! But I would not mind; and now it is too late. I can never go out of this dreadful place. How foolish I have been! Once God would have heard my prayers, but now I weep and wail in vain.

I hope, my dear children, that none of you will ever speak such sad words. Remember, Satan goes about as a roaring lion, seeking to devour you, by tempting you to displease God, but God will keep you from wickedness, if you pray to him.

One day God will burn up this world we live in. It is dreadful to see a house on fire. But how dreadful it will be to see this great world, and all the houses and trees burning! The noise will be terrible; the heat will be great. The wicked will not be able to escape from God. The world will not burn forever: it will be burned up at last, and God will make another much better than this. If you are God's child, you will not be frightened when the world is burning, for you will be safe with Jesus, praising him for having loved and saved you.

A LIKENESS OF JESUS

BY A B OF BANKAFIG

N No. 20 of the Ballines At Work appears a description of our Savior which needs correction.

The original letter of Publius Lentuhas is as follows:

His forehead plain and very delicate, his face without spot or wrinkle, beautified with a lovely red. his nose and mouth so formed that nothing can be repehended, his beard thickish, in color like his bair, not very long but forked, his look innocent and mature, his eyes gray, clear and quick. In reproving he is terrible, in admonishing courteous and fair spoken, pleasant in conversation mixed with gravity. It cannot be remembered that any have seen him laugh, but many have seen him weep. In proportion of body most ex cellent, his hands and arms most delicate to behold. In speaking very temperate, modest and wise: A man for his singular beauty surpassing the children of

This letter serves as a margin or setting to the photographic copy of the likeness of the Redeemer. In the center of the letter, in an oral form, is the profile of that wonderful Person who is "tiod manifest in the flesh." The photograph is taken from a portrait carved on an emerald by order of Tiberius Cosar, which emerald the Emperor of the Turks afterwards gave out of the treasmry of Constantinople, to Pope Innocent brother taken captive by the Christians.

The letter is taken from a manuscript in possession of Lord Kelly, and the picture was bought eleven years ago by a lady in London, and a copy given to a friend in New York State, by whom it was sent to Brother C. H. Balsbaugh, of Union Deposit, Danphin Co., Pennsylvania.

ORANGES and lemons in Palestine are as cheap as Irish potatoes in this country.

Since the death of Brother J. M. Zuck seven of his pupils have united with the church at Huntingdon, Pa May others be induced to do likewise.

Do not fail to read "On the Way to Palestine" on the sixth page of this issue. Mr. Mc-Garvey's letters are becoming quite interesting to many of our readers.

Mr. McGarvey, now traveling in Palestine, thinks it in excellent country for wheat growing, and with proper care would be hard to excel. The fruit raised there is delicious.

Within getting on the train at Winelesster, Virginia, Brother Harper of Ashland, Ohio, had his pockets picked of $60,00 and his rulroad ticket. He was on his way nonic from A. M.

Mr. McGaryry's next letter from Palestine is the most interesting, one he has yet sent us. It was written in derusalem, while sitting in his room near the pool of Hezekiah. It will be published next week; do not fail to read it.

THE order at the Inte Annual Meeting was excellent-the best we ever saw, in fact we saw no misconduct at any time during the meeting, hence we concluded that the Virginia people know how to behave themselves at meeting.

BESTHER HOPE writes that their feast was an enpoyable one. Bridher Tigensen was chosen to the munistry and Brother Jons Madsen to serve as deacon. Both are active young men. The church has three Sunday-schools, and the interest and prospects are good.

The late Annual Meeting, in Rockingham County, Vaginia, was held within forty yards of Elder John While's grave. Thousands visited the sacred spot to pay their last respect to one who had been of surmach service to the church. For a number of years Brother Kline. had served as Moderator at the Annual Meet-

THE Annual Meeting recommended that each congregation should pay its proportional part of the Danish Mission expenses, which will be an average of $2.00 to each church. Wealthy churches should pay more to make up for poor churcues that may not be able to pay so much. Send the money to C. P. Rowland, Lanark, Lianois.

WE never did like the unbecoming habit of grabbing hats and leaving the house just as Virginia, Brother D. N. Workman had his soon as services are over. People should take pocket picked, losing his railroad ticket and time to stop and shake hands, and impart and memorandum book, but no money. In the book receive friendly greetings. Regard each other | were several letters from parties whose names as belonging to the same family, and part as though you had some respect for each other and the church of God.

In England is a man who calls him elf " Eliiah the Prophet." He addresses large crowds of people, and attempts the identification of the British mation with the ten lost tribes of Israel. He said he had received six heavenly visitations, and his holy visitor told him that henceforward he was Elijah the Prophet, and that he was ordained to do this work. He is oddly dressed in sheepskin clothing, with a list of the same muterial; his jacket has scarlet cuffs, and he wears a scarlet searf, both of which are in some way emblematical. He also wears top boots. He is a handsome, tall, gentlemanly-looking fellow, and has paid a visit to the most of the towns in Kent.

It was encouraging to see how many of those who attended the Annual Meeting were dressed in the order of the church. At present, we can remember of but three ministers whose clothes were not in the order, and one of these said he was now fully convinced that uniformity in dress is a convenience, and that he was coming to it. Thank God for that. The sentiment in favor of uniformity, on the ground of convenience, is increasing rapidly, and in a few years we believe it will be adopted all over the Brotherhood, for at present the apposition to it is first dying out, and reason is taking the place of prejudice.

It is sincerely hoped that none of our sisters will take up with this idictic lashion of cutting. the hair short in front and combing it down over the lorehead, or frizzling it up so as to make the hair look as though it had not been comped for a week. If there is anything in the world we detest it is the making of civilized people look like heathen. It will be but a short time till this style will be out of fashion, and then the women will have a fine time getting their lmir to grow out long enough so as to be combed back in a respectable manner. Queen Victoria is so disgusted at this idiotic dishion, as she calls it, that she has forbidden it among my of her maids or female visitors,

One late visit to the Shenandonh Valley, Virginia, afforded excellent opportunities for learning much regarding the condition of the churches, and we must say we were very favoruldy impressed by what we saw and heard Not only editors and preachers, but every body else who affemied the meeting, were treated with becoming kindness and respect. The members here are dressed much planner than at other points which we have visited. Their attire, however, is neat and presents a good appearance, and with proper care and wisdom we believe they can maintain this distructive for time. May God help our churches to keep clear of the vain and foolish fashions of the world,

The mamerise loss of life at the larraing of a large hotel in Hagerstown, Md, and at several other points this season, ought to be a warring to the traveling public, and is of sufficient moment to cause them to avoid hotels not properly supplied with means of escape in case of fire, Every hotel should be supplied with means of escape from each window above the first floor. This can be done at a small expense. We suggest the following to favern keepers: Have a rope, of sufficient length, made hist to the inside of the window frame and coiled up and lining on a book. In case of fire this rope could be thrown out of the window (one end heing fast inside) and would thus afford a means of escape. Were this adopted but few lives would be lost by the burning of taverns.

On a evangelists, are meeting, with excellent success in the Wisconsin mission field. From a private letter, written June 11, by Brother D. M. Miller we make the following extract: "We had three council meetings. Two at Brother Stout's. One yesterday in the Woodstock Meeting-house. Last Saturday, in Camp Creek. Church, the church elected Wm. Peiser to the deacon's office. Yesterday, in West Pine Church, Charles Brown was elected to the ministry: James Renderson and Morris Brown were olected dearwise. They are all good men. Georgee Turner was advanced to the second degree. The members are wide awake and active in the Ma ter's cause. Many supposed this move, last Winter, was spasmodic, but now they view it differently. Up to this date we have baptized I day, the 14th."

WHILE getting on the train at Winchester. ly injure the cause. In all matters of this kind and addresses Brother Workman did not remember, honce if they fail to receive a reply from him they will know the reason why.

JEREMIAH SHORMAKER, son of Philip Shoemaker, of Armstrong County, Pa., died near this place at 5:30 f. m., June 10. Aged 26 years and some months; disease, diphtheria. Deceased was a native of Pennsylvania and came to this county in March 1878, and was making his home at W. H. Harrington's when taken sick. He suffered a little over four weeks, and died without a minimur. A number of neighbors called at the house and listened to a discourse by Brother Michael Kimmel. The meeting comprehed about nine o'clock at night and closed near eleven. After midnight all who were present accompanied the corpse to the Lanurk depot and saw the body carefully placed on the night express in care of Brother Philip and Sister Shoemaker, who came here some weeks ago to care for their son. They return to their former home with sad hearts to bury their dead in Armstrong County, Pa. May God bless them in their old age that they may bear this stroke with Christian fortitude.

THE MOOMAW PROPOSITION.

DROTHER Moomaw's proposition, to have D the gospel more rolly preached in the cities of the United States, has been received with general approval, and already about $200 have been idedged for that purpose, but just how the ministers, who are to do the preaching, could be satisfacturily chosen by the donors, many of whom are and sufficiently acquainted with the numsters, was not clear to our mind, and for that reason but little was said about it; but while at the Annual Meeting we consulted with Brother Moomaw and several others who suw the same difficulty, hence it was thought best that we select three brethren who would receive the money, select the ministers and carry out the wishes of the donors as in the judgment of the Board might be thought best. Brother Moonnew selected S. T. Bosserman, of Dunkirk Ohio; the Primitive Christica, James A. Sell, of Newry, Pennsylvania, and the ERETHEEN VI Work, Daniel Vardman, of Virden, Illinois As Brother, Bosserman lives, in the conter it is suggested that he act as treasurer. Next week we will publish a further report of the amounts promised, and then turn the whole matter over to this Board. These brethren are in full sympathy with missionary work, and we feel confident that they will do what is right in this movement, and further, we think all the donors will readily assent to this arrangement.

FROM THE ANNUAL MEETING

NUMBER D.

COUTHERN Illinois came next in order.

 L. Asked A. M. to reconsider Art. 24 of 1877, and so amend it as to give more extended privileges to changing from the double to the single mode of feet-washing. The discussion was long, and a little perplexing on account of the peculiar nature of the case. The request not granted.

2. Asked for permission to change from the single to the double mode of feet-washing where the majority was in favor of the change. It was thought best not to change on the ground of a sample underity, but cadeaver to obtain the unanimous consent of all the members, as it is a matter affecting, the fellowship of each member, hence to bearance for the present was reconsumended.

The this connection we want to suggest that minoraties use much caution in matters pertaining to the interest of the church. If the maconvidesires a thing, that is in harmony with the decisions of the A M., nonorities should have forhearance enough to subnot willingly. Some, however, say they cannot conscientionsly submit to that, which is contrary to their way of thicking, and house plead conscientionsness This they should not do Men and women should not sent then consciences against a thing that has been sauctio and by the united voice of the Brotherhood. The better was is to submit trethe majority in all such unatters, and not allow a small minority to rule the church, and in tims right, and we need have but nittle beast will commence at four collock next Same, some instances turn it. Monorities may some times become seat-willed, and in that way great-however, one party or the other must yield; either the minority or the majority will have to give way, and reason would dictate that the small minority should yield to the wishes of the large majority, especially should this be the case in matters approved by the Annual Meeting, The A. M. permits the practicing of the single mode of feet-washing where it can be doue in peace and harmony, but sometimes two or three will stand out against the whole church and say, "the Annual Meeting will not allow you to change, for if you do it will make trouble." These two or three propose to take it upon themselves to make the trouble, and thereby prevent the body of the church from doing what she would like. This I maintain is not just right. Two or three members ought not to rule the whole church, not that I am in favor of forcing small minorities into measures, but it is my candid opinion that no one should allow himself to become self-willed when he finds himself to be with the minority.

Northern Indiana had no queries. After this we found it a little difficult to keep trace of where the queries came from.

- I. Referred to sisters breaking bread at times of communion the same as the brethren, The query was somewhat complicated in form, bence tabled without discussion.
- 2. This query referred to the impropriety of sending committee brethren such a great distauce, thus incurring heavy expenses, when they could be had near where the difficulties existed. Approved.
- 3. Whether a part or all of the officials could withhold from the church questions on which the church desired to act. The discussion was long and pointed till five o'clock, when the meeting adjourned till the next day.

Wednesday morning opened with a clear sky, though a little muddy under foot. By 8 o'elock about four thousand people were on the ground. and the crowd continued to increase till it reached at least twelve thousand.

At 9:15 the Standing Committee entered the stand ready for laisiness. The unfinished matter, left over from the day before, was then taken up, and decided that no matter is harmony with the decisions of A. M. could be withheld from the church.

4. Asked whether ex-Masons should be per-

- mitted to answer Masonic signs? The discussion was long, tedious, and at times a little perplexing, but it was unanimously decided that a brother, who had once been a Mason should no more answer Masonic signs, and if in doing so he disregarded his oath, he should disregard it.
- 5. Asked A. M. so to amend a former decision that a small minority could not prevent a large majority from organizing Sauday-school. After considerable discussion the meeting adjourned at cleven, to meet at two.

The Standing Committee came in at 2:5 and the unfinished business was then taken up and justify freely discussed. The Moderator made a long speech showing the difference between matters of expediency, and those affecting fellowship. He stated that mything which affeeted the fellowship of every member in the congregation should not be decided by a mere majority, but by the unanimous voice of the body, but matters of mere expediency, such as building meeting-houses, Sunday-schools, and the like-matters which did not affect the fellowship of members may be left to the majority. Others spoke at length on the subject. The ded that small immorities could not prevent large reajorities from organizing Sunday-schools.

- 6. Referred to employing police forces to keep order at Love-feasts. Decided to make no change from former decisions, and recommended that police forces be employed only in cases of alisolide necessity.
- 7. The next laismess before the inceting was the reading of a number of queries from tive different districts, referring to schismatic articles published in the Progressio Christian and other jujors. These queries arged that the Annual Meeting take a firm stand against the publishing of anything that would prove detrimental to our holy religion, and the unity and peace of the Leneral Protherhood, and we were glad to see among our people a disposition to stand up in detense of our distinctive features. The whole lossness was referred to the Standing Committee for an answer to be presented to the meeting the next morning.
- S Is it right for the minority to appose the importly in matters that have received the salt?

not the A. M ? Answered, not right.

9 Referred to members availing themselves of the benefits of the homestead laws, &c. Refored back to the congregation from whence $\frac{10}{10}$. Is it right, and according to the order of the church to baptize so fast that the candidate has not time to take breath between dips? Tnbled in less than half the time it took to read it. 11. Is it wrong for members to take part in organizing a mutual fire insurance company?

Not wrong. 12. Asked A. M. to reconsider a former queof forbidding sisters to wear plain hats. After alittle discussion it was tabled, leaving the deesion as it stood before. It was suggested by some that if members would quit talking and writing about this hat question there would be but little trouble growing out of it.

The meeting adjourned at five c'clock to meet the next day at nine. During the entire day the crowd was immense. About 6,000 persons were in hearing distance, listening to the discussions.

Thursday morning was delightful. The air was cool and refreshing. The Standing Comunities did not reach the stand till 9:50 when the meeting was formally opened for busmess. The paper matter, which had been given into the hands of the Standing Committee the evening before, was the first business before the house. The Standing Committee presented their report only a part of which could be adopted by the ununimous consent of the meeting. The meeting demanded that the editors of the Progressive Christian, Vinoienter, and Dencon, make an bromble acknowledgement for writing and publishing schismatic and inflamatory articles in their papers. It also demanded satisfaction from other members for writing sumber articles against the church, and appointed a committee of three brothen to see that these demands were properly corried out. It jook till nearly four o'clock in the afternoon to dispense with this part of the business, thus detaining the meeting nearly, if not quite one entire day. This more than ever convinces us of the importance of running our papers in peace, and in exact harmony with the distinctive features of the church. had these been strictly adhered to the late A. M. might have closed much sooner and with far better feelings. It is sincerely hoped that future Annual Meetings will not in any way be annoyed by similar difficulties.

The time was already far spent, and it was necessary that the meeting should close at five. so the remainder of the business was rushed through in a hurry - too fast to do justice to the cause, and much was deferred for want of time to attend to it.

15. Asked A. M. to sanction the Brethren's work evangelism. Deferred for want of time to Asked A. M to amend a former query. flequest not granted.

15. On the divorce question. Deferred, no time to examine it.

46. This query had some fair points in it about the qualifications of delegates to the A. M., but would have required considerable discussion to shape them, hence tabled.

17. Asked A. M. to advise the giving of thanks at the beginning only and not at the close of the Lord's Supper. Decided to make no change.

18. Referred to members who claim to have been improperly dealt with and desire to know how to get justice. It was recommended that they first refer to adjoining elders, and if not beeded call on the Standing Committee for a Committee,

19. Shall persons who have been haptized by trine immersion, by other churches, and conscientionsly believe the bandism was valid, be required to be rehaptized before joining the church? Thought best to make no change.

A resolution was their passed, thanking the Radioad Companies, the menders and people in the vicinity of the inceting for favors conferted in the interest of those who attended the meeting. In fact every looly felt that they were never treated better, and of course could consent to the passing of this resolution with a hearty were made for committees, but only seven granted. We could not get the names of all, hence give none in this article.

Next in order was the announcing of the committees appointed by the Standing Comuntire to visit and assist in settling difficulties in surrous churches. About twenty one requests | mu-t tend to that. Then a drive in the largey, | if any one evil is doing more barm than pride. I towa.

The meeting closed at five o'clock, and in a short time the vast crowd began dispersing, most of the people having but little time, after supper, to stop and say good-by. In fact, every body had to be in a hurry, i. e., those who wanted to get home that week, for the train was due at six. Crowds were seen rapidly making their way to the depot, but we concluded to linger and not start till the next day, as the traveling in such vast crowds is not always so convenient and then is attended with more or less danger. Thus closed the Annual Meeting of 1879.

In company with a number of others we leftthe next day, and after a long and tedious ride reached home Monday afternoon and stepped into the office just at a time when our hands were not looking for us, but we found them as busy as bees folding and mailing No. 24 of the Brethren at Work. All parties have done their work so well in our absence that we would not fear to leave the paper with them again. We found all well in our families for which we thank the Lord.

We are now at home, well rested, and feel | it: just like going to work. May the Lord help us to work to his glory and honor, that what we do may be for the advancement of his cause. We feel more than ever constrained to labor in defense of primitive Christianity, and stand up boldly in defense of the faith once delivered to the saints. We are set for the defense of the gospel and shall aim to give no uncertain sound. We realize more fully than ever before the necessity of combacting a paper on peace principles.

During the meeting, and our visit among the Brethren, we had many opportunities of studying the condition and wants of the general Brotherhood and will therefore known little better how to direct our efforts in order to accomplish the most good. We are not working for selfish ends nor for personal interest, but for the good of the church and the cause which we have espoused. As long as we believe the church to be right, and remain a member of it, just that long do we deem it our duty to work for the interest of the church. J. H. M.

HOME FROM ANNUAL MEETING.

N Thursday evening, when A. M. closed, we started for home in quite a horry. Thanks be to Brother John Beechly and M. M. E-belman for making arrangements with the B. O. R. B. to take us on special train to Harrer's Ferry and connect with the next bound train for Newark. We made the connection by the train waiting a little. We rejoiced to he scated in the coach, though crowded it was, because we were en coute for the West on one of the lest managed roads in the world.

We wheeled on finely tiff next morning when we telegraphed aliead for breakfast at Coulton. When we got there all could not be seated at | they said they were going. the table; still our conductor was able for the emergency; he wanted till the second table had eaten. We thought thus to wait till we all could take a good wash and two table-fulls eat was a little ahead of any kindness, we had ever seen to railroad passengers. As we had to eat at the second table we thanked the B. O. R. R. for that breakfast.

But one thing disturbed our quiet a little. By some means a few of our company had been left on the way; one brother telegraphed for his wife to wait for him at Grafton. Of course we wondered how he had been left, as traveling was not a new thing to him. We hope he came all right on the next train. I felt a little bad over this mishap because the brother and his wife had given me their seat that I might be down and get same sleep. We enjoyed this ride more than most of them, we suppose, because, during the meeting, we had but little time for social enjoyment, but gave us a invorable opportunity to talk with the brethren and form some new acquaintances we are glad to remem-

From Grafton we made all connections at three changes and arrived home sate on Saturday morning about nine elclock; tomal our family some better than when we left home. We slept about two hours when another disagpointment came: there was an appointment for a funeral and haptizing about eighteen note from bone. This we hoped others would at- as heard the gospel of Christ. There are many tend to, but at one c'clock we get word that we levils in the land, and in the church, but I doubt all alone, found us at place of meeting at night | It has stolen into the church by degrees, and very much wenried, and thinking if some of those brethren, who oppose belging in missionary work, could have some of our experience, they would not say so much against helping the ministry whose time and strength are spent until exhausted, they feel like the burden is not

On Sunday we had a very large congregation; many could not get in the house. After preaching we baptized one sister, then drove home again about dark.

This is Monday evening and we still feel that our strength is not much recruited, but if the labors of our A. M. is made a blessing to the Brotherhood we do not regret any labor we have done, but hoping God will bless our labors in the past that are consistent with the truth and pardon those that are not, we turn our attention to the future and by his grace hope to do more and better. R. H. Miller.

PRIDE.

TTERE is an article handling pride without gloves. Do not fail to read every word of

"And now abideth pride, fushion, extravagance, these three; but the greatest of these is pride—simply because it is the rout of the whole matter. Destroy the root and the tree will die. It is hardly worth while to waste ammunition in shooting at fashion and extravagance as long as the root is alive. Most persons say that it does not matter how people dress, pride is in the heart. Very true, but straws show which way the wind blows. Plain exterior may cover up a plain heart, but depend upon it, a fashionable exterior seldom, if ever, covers up a plain heart. Some rules work two ways, but some will not. A lady once asked a minister whether a person might not be foud of dress and ornaments without being proud? He replied, 'When you see the fox's tail peoping out of the hole you may be sure the fox is within.' Jewelry, and costly and tashronalde clothing, may all be innocent things in their places, but when hung upon a human form they give most conclusive evidence of a proud heart.

"But is it possible that a man can be found at this advanced age of refinement that dares to write or speak a word against pride, and its consequences? The large majority of that class of men died and were handsomely buried some time ago. The pulpits have nearly all shut down on that style of preaching. The fact is we have passed that age, and are living in better times. Our fathers and mothers were far lelaind the times. They were good enough in their way, but, dear me, they would not do now. They were plain clothes, worshipped in plain churches, and sung old-fashioned bynins. They talked and acted like some old julgrinos that were looking for a better country; and when they left the world they stuck to it to the very last, that they were going to a city where there is no night. And it is my deliberate opinion that the vast majority of them went just where

" But they are nearly all out of the way now, and the people have a mind to try a different route. We can be Christians now and do as we like. Yes, indeed. We can have fine churches. cushioned scats, costly carpels, a fashionable preacher, and have all our fiddling and singing done to order. Why, in some of our modern churches, the majority of the choir are not even members of the church; and they do sing so sweetly-perfectly delightful. The music rolls over the heads of the congregation like the sound of many waters. Not a word can be heard, but the sound is glorious. Sometimes one sings, all alone for a little, while, and then two, and pretty soon the whole choir will chime in, until the whole house is filled with most transporting sound. Now, if this is not singing with the spirit, and with the understanding, also, then what is it? that's the question. I know that it is a little risky to speak out against pride at this day, because the church is full of it. And hundreds who occupy the pulpit, whose duty it is to point out these evils plainly, are like dumb dogs, they don't even back at it. They just let it go, and go it does with a vengeance. And in proportion as pride gains in a church, spiritual life dies out. They will not, cannot dwell together, for they are eternal op-

" It is a sin and a shame for men and women professing Christianity to spend money the way they do to gratify a proud heart, when ten out of every twelve of the human race are yet onsaved, and eight out of twelve have not so much now rules with a rod of iron. Churches that were once noted for plainness, and whose law still stands against pride and fashion, are practically powerless on the subject. It seems that nearly all creation is kept busy in furnishing fashious enough to satisfy the cravings of the deprayed heart. An old Scotch preacher is reported to have said in a sermon at Aberdeen, Ye people of Aberdeen get your fashions from Glasgow, and Glasgow from Edinburg, and Ed-. inhurg from London, and London from Paris, and Paris from the devil.' Now I cannot say that we get our fashions by that route, but I am tolerably certain that they originate at the same headquarters.

"The religion of Christis pure, peaceable, gentle, easy to be entreated, and full of mercy. All Christians are haptized with one Spirit, into one body. They mind not high things, but condescend to men of low estate. Their highest ambition is to honor God with all they have and are. They are not puffed up, not conformed to this world, but transformed by the renewing of their minds. There is no such thing in beaven nor earth as a proud Christian; there never was nor never can be.

"Pride is of the devil—it originated with him; and he is managing it most successfully in destroying souls. But who is to blame for this state of things in the church? First, and mostly, the pulpit is to blame. Men who profess to be called of Gon to lead the people to herven have ceased to rebuke this soul-destroying, heaven-provoking spirit. But why? First for a living, then for popularity. Esan sold his birthright for a dinner of greens. This was n enstly morsel for him. But now men sell out cheap for cash or produce.' Churches that were once powerful for good are now well-nigh lost in form and fashions. We may shut our eyes and wink and white, and cry old fogy, and grandfather, and Moses, and Aaron, and all that, but the fact is before us-pride, fashion, and extravagance, are enting the very life out of many of the heretofore best congregations in the land. The world is running crazy. The rich lead the way, because they can, while the poor strain every nerve to keep in sight; and the devil laughs to see them rush on. Pride 'thrust Nebulchadnezzar out of men's society, Saul out of his kingdom, Adam out of Paradise, and Lucifer out of heaven.' And it will shut many more out of heaven who are now prominent in the church. Neither death nor the grave will change the character of any one. The same spirit that controlled in life will cling to the soul in death, and cuter with it into eternity. The Annels of God would shrink from the society of many a fashiounble Christian of this day. A few such souls in heaven would ruin everything. Among the first things they would propose would be a change of fashion. Those pure while robes that the saints wear would not snit their taste at all. In life they care but little about Christ and spiritual things, and they would care no more for them in heaven than they do on earth. If there were two heavens, one where desired all and in all, and the other with a Paris in it, I presume the road to the Paris heaven would be crowded with fashionable Christians.

" 'Mu,' said a little girl, 'af I should die and o to heaven, should I wear my mairc untique dress? ' No, my love, we can scarcely suppose we shall wear the same attire of this world in the next.' 'Then tell me, mn, how the angels would know 1 belonged to the best society? In the views of that little girl we have illustrated the spirit of many a would-be Christian of this day. 'It ye he risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affections on things allove, not on things on the earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in Bishop J. Weaver.

" The Worth of Truth no Tongue Can Tell."

This department is designed for asking and answering Bible questions, and for the solution of Scriptural difficulties. In order to aromate libite Truth, all questions should be startd with candor, and an wered with as much clearness as possible. Articles for this department, must be short and to the point.

Will some one explain Heb. 1: 1? " And of the angels he saith. Who maketh his angels spirits, and R. Т. Споок. his ministers a flame of fire."

Will some one please explain John 10:97 In particular the phrase, " And shall go in and out and M. M. Dirtz. find pasture."

Will some one please explain 1 Pet, 3: 19? It reads as follows: "By which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison." Who is the preacher? Who are the spirits? Where is the J. W. Barnhabt. prison?

BLOOD AND THINGS STRANGLED

Will some one explain Acts 15: 29? In particular the phrase "and from blood, and from things FRANKLIN ANGLEMYER.

THE use of blood as an article of diet is em-I phatically prohibited in the Holy Scriptures. When the grant of animal food was made to Nonh after the flood, it was added. "but flesh with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof, shall ye not cat." This prohibition was still more explicitly enforced in the law given by Moses. "Whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel or of the strangers that sojourn among you that eateth any manner of blood; I will even set my face against that soul that eateth blood and will cut him off from among his people." After the prohibition is given the reason is assigned, namely, " For the life of the flesh is the blood; and I have given it to you upon the altar to make atonement for your souls: for it is the blood that maketh an atomoment for the soul." Blood is prohibited because it is the LIFE, and it is the blood that maketh an atonement. It is this substitution of life for life, the life of the animal sacrificed for man's life, that gave blood its sacred appropriation. And this is one of the restmints, which it seemed good to the Holy Ghost to lay upon the believing Gentiles, that they abstain "from blood, and from things strangled," which would, of course, retain the blood.

In the face of so express a law three times repeated, and so solemuly enjoined, how any one calling himself a Christian can eat blood, i indeed a wonder to us. MATTIE A. LEAR.

STONES CRY OUT.

Please explain, through the junjor, the meaning of Luke 19; 57, 40. It reads us follows; "Ami when he was come nigh, even now at the descent of the mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoure and jumps Bud with a loud voice for all the mighty works that they had seen. And he answered and said unto them, Utell you that, if these should held their peace, the stones would immediately cry out."

WE suppose our querist wishes an explanation on the last sentence. In Scripture a heart of stone, when applied to persons, means one who is stubborn, senseless, and untractable in disposition. One who recoves no kindly impressions from the Word, Providence, or Spirit of God. The Savior would then sny, should these my disciples, to whom I have tender, tractable dispositions, cease to love me, should they hold their peace, and give no expression of their love, those very stones, these bardened, unfeeling Jews and Gentiles would immediately cry out. Christ must be adored, his majesty and power extolled, if not by his hamble followers, then by those who do not profess to love him. And how often do we see the authenticity of the Scriptures most powerfully attested to by its avowed enemies. Frequently those who denounce Christ bear the most unequivocal testimony to the truth of his prophecies. Such was the case with Volney and Gibbon, the former of whom is the best commentator on the prophecies of Isaah, and the latter on the Apocalypse.

When the light that should be emitted by professed Christians becomes so dim that its building. light is not sufficient to illuminate a benighted least expected, will come a voice clear and powerfal, echoing and re-echoing the truthfulness. of God's precious Word. Surely he can make the wrath of man to prace him.

ON THE WAY TO PALESTINE.

NUMBER IX.

The Red Sea and the Crossing.

[From the "Christian Standard" by special Arrangement] FIND a necessity for omitting many things from this correspondence which are deepty interesting, for the sake of others which I think of more importance. We left Cairo on Monday, April 12th, at 11 A. M. for Suez, and reached our destination at 6 P. M. all the way by rail.

Our object in visiting Suez, was to study the question of the crossing place of the children of Israel; and for this purpose we gave ourselves two days there. Three theories have been advanced on this subject by explorers, the careful study of which left my mind in uncertainty and confusion. Our excellent Consul at Cairo, Mr. Farman, of New York, who has been at Suez. told me that I would probably be worse confused after visiting the place than I was already: but I was resolved to fully test the matter, let the result be what it might.

One of these theories is, that the Red Sea in the time of Moses, extended so far north as to connect with the Bitter Lakes, a series of shallow lakes north-west of the present head of the sen, distant at their south-custern end about 50 miles; and that the crossing occurred at the head of these lakes. Those who adopt this theory suppose that a heavy wind blowing off shore at low tide carried the water out, leaving a dry bench on which Israel crossed over, and that as Pharaob and his host followed, the wind changed, the tide came in, and they were drowned.

The second theory adopts the same supposition in regard to the northward extension of the sen, and assumes that the crossing occurred a short distance above the present head of the sen, where there is a depression a mile or so wide in which the miracle and the disaster might have taken place. Dr. Robinson, whose judgment I have learned to regard with the highest respect, inlopted this view when he visited the place in 1838.

The third theory, and the one which was universal until the former two almost entirely supplanted it among Europeans and Americans is, that the crossing occurred several miles south of the present head of the sea, where the water is deep, and its width is from 8 to 10 miles.

I came to the place determined that on this question, as on all others pertaining to sacred geography, the Bible should be my guide-book. and that I would accept no place as the one at which Moses crossed which fails to meet the requirements of the Scriptures. These requirements are as follows:

- 1. The place was so situated as to require Israel to turn, from the direct route toward Cuname, in order to reach it (Ex. (1:2).
- 2. It was such, that when Israel reached it they were "entangled in the hand," so that Phamade was encouraged to parsue them (14: 3),
- It was such, that when Pharaoli overtook them there was no way of escape for them except by going through the sea (14: 10, 13, 16).

- (5) The distance across was sufficient to allow all the six hundred chariots, and the horsemen of Pharaol, to be within it of one time. and the water was deep enough to prevent the escape of a single person when they rushed together (14: 7, 9, 28).

- It was where Israel, after crossing, could find an immediate supply of drinking water, so that they did not suffer for water till they came to Marah (15; 22, 23).

With these requirements, before as we may dismiss the first theory mentioned above at once; for although in a slight degree it meets. the first three requirements, it is utterly inconsistent with the other four. Indeed, it denies gap, and for this gap we started in our Araboan entirely the miraculous character of the cross- | boat the next morning. A pleasant breeze was ing, and if this event was not miracidous it was he would have reached the head of the sea, and beyond it, and apparently about a mile away. he would not have been required to make a detour of more than a mile to pass around it. Only on the supposition that the main body of this arm of the sea extended many miles above its present head, can this theory be accepted; and this supposition is utterly void of historic evidence. Indeed, the historic evidence is in opposition to it. In order to be safe in our con- atmosphere by the eye. clusions we must take the sea as it is, without mutilating it.

Our next task at Snez was to test the third and last theory, and to this we devoted our two days there. The first day we went down to Aynn Musa, the Fountains of Moses, about 8 miles below the head of the sen on the east side. We took one of the rude Arab sailbouts which abound in the harbor of Suez for about half the distance, carrying in it, beside the four boatmen and ourselves, our guide, five donkeys and two donkey-drivers. After landing, we rode one and a half hours on the donkeys, the drivers running behind to make them go, and to guide them-the rider can do neither. Mine was well gaited, and we had no little fun on the ride. The fountains lie shout a mile from the seashore, and are about seven in number. We dismounted at the largest one, took its dimensions, and nte our lunch in a rude building by its side, mtended for this use.

The fountain rises in the center of an oblong inclosure which has been made around it by building a stone wall some three or four feet high to keep cut the sand. This wall is even with the ground outside, and the basin inclosed is 4% feet long, 3% feet wide at one end and 27 feet at the other. The water forces itself up through soft mind in the center, and with it rises a constant succession of gas bubbles, which explode as they reach the surface. Through an opening in the wall at the north side the water flows away in a lively stream 2 feet wide and 4 inches deep. This stream is led through a garden of three or four acres to irrigate it. The garden is filled with a luxuriant growth of date pulms, acacia and pomegranate trees, and under these, heds of garden vegetables and patches of wheat. Another fountain, which sends off no stream, helps to supply the water for irrigation. There are three such gardens, standing in a line parallel to the sea shore, and separated from each other only by passways like roads. They are watered by five fountains, and they constitute a most heautiful oasis in the midst of a perfeetly barren desert. In the bands of a European of taste and means they could be made a little paradise for resort from the dirt and the heat of

All these fountains rise on top of a sandstone ridge, 15 or 20 feet above the beach which sprends between them and the sea, and nearly that high above the sand immediately east of them; yet they are 30 feet below the general level of the desert which stretches away to the southeast, and along which the Israelites conturned their journey after crossing the sea.

We could see at a glance that this spot answers all the demands of the Scriptures as a landing place for Israel after crossing. A genthy ascending beach one mile wide, and stretching about five males up and down the sea-shore; an abundant supply of water for their namediate use, and an easy march of three days to Marah, only 25 miles distant, are the leatures it presents; whereas, but a short distance above, there is mosen to cross, and immediately below, there is a perpendicular shore at least 50 feet high. Looking directly across the sea, we saw plantly what appeared to be a gap in the mountaims on that side, suitable for Israel's approach to the shore, and we determined to explore it the next day.

A range of mountains called Jebel Atakah, presents an almost perpendicular wall on the west side of the sea, beginning at its head, and stretching along the shore about eight or nine imiles. Further down the shore, there uses the high and dark wall of another range, called Jobel Alm Duraj. Between these there is a H required only my observations from the | sail in a zigzag, and making our paugices very tal to it. If Moses had been led by this route | the Atakah range, another had come into view. After taking lunch, we struck out for it, but found it three miles away instead of one; and we found on reaching it, that instead of being a hill about 50 feet high, as it first appeared, it was at least 300 feet high, and its front was almost perpendicular. We had not yet learned to estimate distances and hights in this clear

Though somewhat fatigued, we clambered to stretching it, and the Bible as it is, without the top of this cliff, and found, that though we had not even yet reached the terminus of this mountain range, the hills beyond grow rapidly lower, and there were unmistakable evidences of a valley several miles wide between it and the mountains below. Here, then, is a valley by which Israel may have descended between two mountain ranges to the sea-shore, and the entire scene of the crossing, meeting in the minutest particular all the requirements of the Scriptures, lay in full view at our feet. About three miles to the south of us and a little west, was the mouth of the pass between the mountains, probably three miles wide. On reaching the sea through that pass, Israel could not turn to the right because of the Abu Duraj mountains in that direction; but to the left a smooth beach, almost as smooth as a floor, and gently sloping to the sea, opened a line of march two miles wide and diverging about thirty degrees from their former course. When their marching column had stretched out nine miles along this beach, its front rank found its progress checked by the body of water four miles across. over which we had sailed in the morning. Here, then, they camped beside the sen, as the Lord had commanded, with the sea un their right. and a mountain wall on their left, the sea also passing around their front and meeting the mountain wall to the left of their front rank. While thus encamped, Pharaoh's host came down the mountain pass behind them; the cloudy pillar stretched itself across the valley in their rear, hiding them from the Egyptians. while it spread itself over Israel and the sea, a canopy of light. The sea was opened from the Abu Duraj mountains on the southeast, to the projecting beach on which we landed in the morning on the northwest, a width of about five miles, and the entire column of the host of Israel marched by a flank movement directly across the dried led of the sea. The fountains of Moses, distinctly in view from our hill-top, are nearly directly opposite the center of this line of march, and the depth of the water before us, according to the British and French soundings quoted by Boedeker in his guide-book, varies from nine to sixteen fathoms, in the midst of the sea. On both sides, the approach to this depth is gradual, as we can testify from having taken a delightful bath in the water on both sides during two hot days of our exensions; and the distance across was about 8 miles for the head of the column, and 10 or 12 for the

I came down from our hill-top with my mind at rest on the subject of the crossing place, and I felt well paid already for the time and money invested in my journey. We walked to the seashore at a right angle to the line of our former walk, and then started for our boats. I had directed our loatmen to come around the beach as far as they could, to meet us; but they had not moved the best from where we left it. I got back to it, leg-weary, foot-sore, and almost ready to drop on the sand. Estimating the distance by my pace and the time occupied, as I have learned to do with great accuracy by my walk of a mile and a half to college every morning, we had walked since noon, twelve miles, and it was growing dark. I reached the shore near the beat last of all company, and found that the eldong of the fide had compelled the heatmen to withdraw their vessel a hundred yards from the shore. I thought I would have to wade through the shallow water to it; but the first thing I knew, one of the Arabs went behind me, stuck his head between my legs, and lifting me up a-straddle of the back of his neck, walked straight to the load with me, firmed around. and scated me on it. The wind had fallen to a gentle breeze; we had drunk up, several hours previously, all the water which we had brought with us from the hotel, and at least two hours of slow sading before us. My feet were almost blowing, making the temperature delightful, blistered and very painful. I puffed off my left if was a confrary wind, compelling as to boots, and sitting on the side of the boat, bung my feet in the cool salt water as we sailed along The effect was a most imagical of join refreshed all over; the soreness soon passed away; my thirst was partially quenched, and after enjoyto satisfy me that the second theory is also un- (a low sand beach, stretching out like a cape two long this baild about half, any hour, I stretched myself on my back, looked up at the stars (thought of home, listened to the sigh of the wind around the edge of the and and the ripple the sea, watching for the indications on this rolling in the open sea beyond, and that it was stell into a sweet sleep. pear Brethrea:- $\frac{m}{N}$ the evening of May 16th, in company with Brother J. W. Smouse, left home, ond met Brother J. B. Wampler at Indiana, where there was an appointment for preaching in the Baptist Church. The congregation was small, but listened attentively to an interesting discourse delivered by Brother Smouse.

On the morning took leave from sister and Friend Jacoby, whose hospitality we had shar ed during the night, and were soon on board the train, bound for Johnstown, Pennsylvania. We sought out a few brethren residing in town, and met with others from the country, who earnestly requested that we should labor for them over Lord's Day. Having a desire to go on to the next town, (Scalp Level) where I expected to do some visiting among relatives, 1 would not consent, but agreed to leave one of my companions in travel, if they could prevail on him to stay, which was done. Brother Wampler labored for the Brethren in the subarbs of Johnstown and vicinity. Brother Smouse accompanied us to Scalp Level, and labored there, with acceptance. On Lord's Day two were restored. Here we also made the agreeable acquaintance of Brother C. Berkley. Visited a few relatives. Among whom is my aged father, now nearly four score years old, in good health and spirits. His companion, our mother, was not there. This was my first visit to the scene of my childhood since her departare. I could only see the little mound in the family graveyard and drop a tear for the departed, while her maternal counsels and instructions seemed to come vividly to our recollection. Sweet is the memory of the pious

On Monday morning we took leave and were soon en route on board our brother's back. bound for a trip-across the Alleghanies, on whose summit we saw the evidences of the fact that last Winter will long be remembered for its abundant snow fall, some of which still remained visible on the afternoon of May 19th. On the 21st it had all gone, yielding to the benign influence of the sun's rays-a lesson to the servant of God. Day after day di i the grand luminary send down his rays of light and heat bringing his dissolving influence to hear on that tank of chilly crystals at first with but little effect, but by and by those parts most easily influenced began to yield and responded to the bidding of unture, when at last, during the two days in which our conneil was in session, the last vestige of Winter in the Alleghames yielded and hastened to return on his path to the vast accan from whence it came.

Our council meeting was organized by electing Brother Joseph Berkey, Moderator, the writer, Clerk, and H. R. Holsinger, Reading

The meeting was small so far as delegates were concerned. Twelve queries and petitions were considered, embracing nearly all the grave questions that had for years claimed the attention of our conneils. The adultery and formcation questions were discussed. Article 8 of 1842 and article 2 of 1855, were recommended as a proper disposition of these questions. The hat question also came opeand was forwarded to A. M. for Scripture authority, etc.

The mission question claimed considerable time and was warmly discussed. There was no real difference in regard to the necessity of missignary efforts, but there was some difference in sentiment in regard to the organization of the "Brethren's work of evangelism."

It is hoped that measures will be taken at the A. M. that will remove the difference, and indicate to all what is best to do, which organization, if any, to support. It is the desire of all that the work should go on, and we pray that it may be so managed that it may secure the confidence of all.

Council closed with good feeling. Measures were also taken to hold a Sunday-school Convention. The time and place were selected. and a committee was appointed to prepare a programme.

On Wednesday evening. May 21st, we, in company with a number of others, returned to Scalp Level, where Brother J. C. Johnson preached an interesting sermon to an appreciative audience, on the language of our Sovior. "I am the way."

transfiguration. On Friday evening we tried to hold forth on Benshoof Hill. On Saturday we walked a distance of fifteen miles to reach an appointment at Belsano, where we labored in the evening and on Sunday morning.

A very good feature among the labors of the brothren where we met with them in our trip, is the Sabbath-school work, of which we have neither time nor space to speak at large.

Ample provisions were made to entertain the delegates and others at the District Meeting, which was held with the Brethren of Dunning's Creek Congregation, Bedford County, Pennsylvania. Brother J. S. Holsinger is the bishop, assisted by an able board of ministers, but one of them, his brother, (C. S. Holsinger) has a call from Northern Illinois. He is now en route for that place, and if he should permanently leave Dunning's Creek it would be a loss felt in Western Pennsylvania. But still we trust his talents and labors will be well directed.

Arrived home on Sunday evening, May 25th, at 9 o'clock P. M., and was very tired, having done a great deal of walking on my trip; found my family well. Thanks to the protecting JOSEPH HOLSOPPLE. care of Providence.

UR Love-feast in connection with the D. M. of the Middle District of Iowa is among the things of the past, ever to be remembered.

On the morning of the 17th of May, brethren from nearly all parts of the district assembled for worship. Late in the afternoon one precious soul made it known that he desired to unite with the church. Accordingly a little hand of brethren and sisters repaired to the Ideasant waterside, where "prayer was wont to be made," and the applicant, in sweet submission, was buried with Christ in baptism. We rejuice to see sinners turn to God. Especially did his companion rejoice who has been a memher for many years. At the waterside she said, "I have rejoiced before, but never felt the joy l now feel."

In the evening we gathered around the Lord's table, once more to commemorate the death and suffering of our blessed Master. May the God of love grant that we may continue in well doing, and grow in grace, that we may be recognized around the table when the Lord will serve his people.

On Sunday the brethren delivered two able sermons. No preaching in the evening. Monday morning at eight o'clock we assembled in council. Churches well represented. Business transacted in order, and to the general satisfaction of the brethren. We can say we had a good orderly meeting, enjoyable by all.

Tu-day two precions souls obeyed Christ's command, by being baptized, and arose to walk in newness of life. We, with the angels in heaven, rejoice to see sinners turn to God, especially when our young associates are made willing to go hand in hand with us, and battle for the Lord. But a few weeks ago five young persons turned their backs to sin, and are now serving the sympathizing Jesus. Dear young reader, you who are in sm, follow the example of those young soldiers who are now battling for Jesus. You have only the present time allotted to you. Then improve the precious moments by saving your precious soul, and work in the Master's cause. Some may read this who know to do different from living the way they are. Remember the Scripture, "He that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, unto him it is sin." What would your condition be if you at this time should be hurled into eternity without a moment's warning? Though you are almost persuaded, remember the touchmg pogui,

"Sad, sad that bitter wail,

Almost, but lost."

Then, as one who loves your soul, I say to you, give ear to the knocking at your heart. The spirit may never again plead with you as now. Do not want for a more convenient time or until you are older. Give your heart to God in the days of your youth, that your years may be spent in the service of the Lord. By your standing out of Christ may be the means of others doing the same.

We all have an influence, either for guod or had. Then enlist in the army of the bord, help the poor utnaster by an example of party, and be not a stambling-block for your young friends.

Oh for a more perfect knowledge of the Lord, and practicing the same. May our petitions be more earnest, and our song be,

"Nearer, my God, to thee, Nearer to thee."

Dear Beetleren:-

TE have no additions to report since our last, except one sister by letter. One of our old and faithful fathers of the Summit Congregation has passed away nearly two weeks ago. He was the father of Sister D. M. Miller, near Lanark, Illinois. It must have been joy to her to have had the pleasure of paying her last visit so shortly before his demise. Brother John C. Lichty was one of our oldest and much respected citizeus, and widely known throughout the brotherhood. He was the father of Solomon Lichty, (deceased) in Dutchtown, Carroll County, Illinois, and lived to see another of his sons reach the highest rank of honor in the church—that of ordained elder, and lived to see all his children grow up, and many filling high stations in the church, and all members. Some passed away many years ago. May his children, grand children, and great grand children, (of whom there are many) remember the good admonitions he gave them, and may they strive to follow him in his humility in his Christian warfare, and may we all strive to be in peace with God.

My visit in company with Brethren N. Merrill, John R. Lichty, and Samuel P. Maust to our District meeting held at Dunning's Creek Bedford County, Pennsylvania, on the 20th of May was very pleasant, as the Brethren had arranged to meet us at Napier, and Brother Snowberger met us and conveyed us to his home four miles from R. R. Here I perused a copy of the BRETHREN AT WORK, as Brother S. is a subscriber.

() in the evening of the 17th we held a meeting at the Point School-house; had three meetings there during our stay with the Brethren, and two at New Paris. All were well attented and good attention. There seems to be room there, too, for a mission work. Hope the Lord will bless the labors of the Brethren.

Dear Brethren:-

THE Brethren from Bedford were with us on I the second Sunday at our school-house; met a good congregation; had a doctribal sermon. The prospects, we think, are still better.

On the third Sunday met with the Brethren at another school-house, near Elington, same county. Had good congregation and good attention, and still more calls for preaching. We felt that the Lord is with us, and that he is working with this people, as well as many other places. We love to read the letters from so many places and hear of so many coming to the church. Brethren and sisters, let us not wait for the ministers to do all; let us be up and doing; let us tell our neighbors about Jesus, and tell them what a good friend he is to those that love and obey him. There is plenty for all to do, and we should try to obey that new command, for he says, "A new commandment I give outo you. That you love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." Brethren, if we show this love to the world, it speaks for Jesus, for he is love. Then let us pray the Lord to give us more of that love, that we may do more good. "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the Brethren. He that leveth not his brother abideth in death." 1 John 3. 14. Yes, brethren, we must love one another, and do just, what Jesus tells us to do, and then ere long we will get to the King and see him just as he is and we sometimes think it is near at hand. The Lord help us to be ready to meet him in the clouds, is my prayer.

Yours in love.

turning to his home in Illinois, immediately; but, learning in the Mineral Creek Church, by a letter from his wife, that his home affairs were favorable, he, with Brother S. S. Mohler, came to us, (Grand River Church, Henry County, Missouri) on the evening of May 21st. He preached that night and the night following, acceptably to appreciative audiences.

Friday following, those brethren, with myself thrown in, visited the church at Osceola, and assisted in adjusting some difficulties.

Lord's Day morning, returned to our (Grand River) church for services. Met a large audience in our new church-house; also services at night. Both meetings were well attended, and the services were ably conducted. Monday evening, services were held by Brother Hillery in the suburbs of Clinton, with good impressions.

Tuesday morning, Brother Hillery, with Brother S. S. Mohler, started for Mineral Creek Church, Johnson County, Missouri, where Brother Hillery expects soon to meet his companion from Illinois. His present intentions are to spend the greater part of the Summer in South-west Missonri, preaching to isolated members and weak churches.

Dear Brethren:-

UR communion meeting is now among the things of the past. It was held at the residence of Brother Abram Bear, as formerly announced, on May 17th, 1879. A good attendance and good order. The word was preached with power and simplicity. The brethren tried to teach the old apostolic rule, faith and works. We had a refreshing season long to be remembered. Brother George Thomas, from Penhody, Marion County, was with us, and preached twice for us. Our elders, Brethren John Humbarger and John Forney, wishing to press more laborers in the field, counciled the church, and received a unanimous consent of its members, and an election was held. Brother Abram Baer was advanced to the second degree of the ministry, and Brother Haugh elected to the ministry, and Brother Jesse Shick and George Sappington to the deacon office. May God help them faithfully to perform their duties. And so the great work goes on; some sinners are made to tremble, while others give no heed to the great work before them.

Meeting closed and each one departed for their home, yet some seemed loth to leave the place. May God add his blessing, is my prayer, S. A. Sutter.

Bible School Report,

Dear Brethren:-

THE Brethren met to organize on the 6th of April; selected D. J. Whitehead, Superiatendent; Auron B. Miller, Assistant; and other officers necessary.

Our average attendance, thus far, has been 60; the interest has been good and is increasing. Number of verses committed up to now, 240, Number of papers distributed, 366. (Children $at(\mathbf{H}ark.)$

We use the Joy Bell to learn the principle of singing, for which we have a suitable teacher selected by the school; though we open and close with the Brethren's Hymn Book.

We had the pleasure of having Brother Sharp in our school on the 4th of May. After he addressed the school we felt encouraged. Brother Sharp has done a good work in this locality. He preached once every Sunday, and in connection, visited two schools.

We as often as possible, have the school addressed on some topic or subject of the Bible, though not to exceed five minutes.

Yours truly,

Dear Brethven:-

I MIE ark of the bord is still moving in this I part of God's moral vineyard. We held our conneil meeting on the 17th, and were made to rejoice in seeing one precious soul came out on the Lord's side, to walk, we trust, a living epistle known and read of all men, for those are the kind of Christians we love to have in our fraternity. Also had before us the Sunday-school question, which, I am glad to say, was agreed upon.

On Lord's Day, at 10 o'clock we organized fruitful one. The officers of said school are as follows: S. M. Ankerman, Superintendent; the writer, Assistant; J. R. Marquis, Secretary; W. Harris, Librarian; D. W. Jones, Treasurer. N. F. BRUBAKER.

Echoes from the Antioch Church, Ind., for the Month of May.

THE Antioch Church is a part of the Middle District of Indiana. It has three points at which meetings are held regularly.

On the first Sanday we met with the Brethren at this place to discourse upon God's Word. Found an attentive congregation, which sho wa their respect for the house of God. On our way home we called to see our uged Sister Bowman, who is afflicted with paralysis, and has been so since last Winter. Found her a little better. Trust and pray that she may bear her affliction with Christian fortitude, and with the hope and assurance that "Affliction shall not rise the second time."

The second Sunday was our regular meeting at Dora, where we endeavored to lead our minds to Jesus, so that all may enjoy this life the more, and after death an eternal life of bliss.

There being no regular meeting on the 3rd Sanday, Brother J. B. Lair held meeting in a schoolhouse in the north-western park of the district. Brother Joseph Loody met with the Brethren in the Eel River Church. Brethren J. Baker and J. Tinkel, who have been preaching in the southern part of our district, baptized three. We met with the brethren and sisters of the Salimony Church, where we labored in the Master's cause, we trust, to the editying of one another. The Brothren here have a large church, which seems to be in peace and harmsny, and we prayerfully hope they may so continue until it is said, "it is enough, come up higher.'

On the 4th Sumlay Elder Joseph Leedy preached in the forenoon in Hart's Schoolhouse, which is one of our regular points, and in the afternoon at Monoment City, a village near by.

On the day previous we drove to Ogan's Creek Church, and met with them in regular council, which passed off harmoniously. There are a goodly number of young members here, which seem to be notive in the cause. Preached on Saturday night, and also on Sunday; but was deprived of meeting with them in their Sunday-school, owing to the fact it rained very bard so there was no Sunday-school.

On last Monday, Elder Joseph Leedy, as delegate for Middle District of Indonna, left home to attend Annual Meeting.

The Brethren bere have organized a Saldoathschool at our new meeting-house, but it is not all in the hands of the Brethren, because there are not enough of us. Perhaps there would be if they would all take an active part. What a pity it is that many of our levelhren, and sisters are so backward. Dear Berthern:-

D ROTHER George Baker, of Polk County, Altoona, lowa, came to us on the 12th of April. Had meeting in the evening and also on Easter Sunday; organized a Sunday-school; preached again in the evening; and also on Monday and Monday evening. Brother George spoke the word with great plainness and with power, giving to both saint and sinner their pertion of meat in due season. The church was much built up. My prayer is that the seed that Brother George sowed may bring forth its hundredfold.

We organized our Sunday-school with 27 scholars, and now we have 40. Our school is increasing in interest.

Muy the Lord bless Brother Baker for his labor of love among us. The Brethren here have had their ups and downs. The tide has turned in her favor. We are in love and union. They have built a meeting-house. It is not yet completed, but it is so we can hold our meetings in it; and we would invite brothren going West, to stop with us, and if ministers to preach for us. Brother George Baker is J. H. Fillmore. onr house-keeper.

From Pettit, Indiana,

Dear Brethrene:—

JUST closed a series of meetings in Bachel – for Run Congregation. Preached six days: haptized twenty-two, and rechained one. Some years ago this meeting was one of the best I ever attended or conducted. All the dear brethren and sisters seemed to be alive to the Brother Abraham Miller was to assist me. and did preach two very good sermons, when he received a dispatch to return home at once. and baptize a dying man. Oh! why will men put off the Lord until the dying hour? Serve the enemy all the days of their lives then at death want God to accept them. I am glad that God is very mercitud.

Brother Miller returned again just as the meetings closed, on his way to Annual Meeting. During the progress of the meeting the Brethren held an election for three ministers and four descons. The dear old brethren who have labored here for many years, viz: Brother Isans Ikenberry and Jacob Flory, begged the church to grant them more laborers. and were then administered to pray the Land to send forth more faithful laborers into bis vineyard with much sedemnity. The church cast her vote, and the following dear brethren were elected: Brethren Sunford Scawright, A. J. Flory, and Balser Gorden to the ministry. and Brethren Jonas Flory, Abraham Brubaker, John Kingery and Henry Landis as deacons. O may the Lord bless these dear brethren, that they may be efficient workers in their several callings. Dear Brethren, you have voted and weld when the dear larethren were installed into their office, help them; never discourage them; but pray the Lord in his behalf. May God bless all his dear children.

Yours fraterially,

Dear Beethern:

17 E had our Love-feast on the 17th and 18th of May. We organized and called this the Dorrance Church, Brother John Newcomer was ordained to elder and Brother Daniel Shank and Jacob Keller were elected to the office of deacon. Four were received by baptism, fifteen by letter, one was reclaimed, and some came since our feast,

This church is in union and love, and in a prosperous condition. If numbers about lifty members, and prospects of others coming soon We have preaching at four different places, and intend starting inceting at two sor three other places. We have five speakers, viz: John Newcomer, Casper Hasfelt, William Henn, Calvin Cover, and John Hollinger; and Damel Shank and Jacob Keller are our deacons. We have a very large territory to work in We could use more help to advantage. The sneakers from abroad at our feast were Brother Jonathm Lichty, of Pony Creek; Brother Allen Ives, of Burr Oak; Brother James Bailey, of Salem: Brother John Fuller, of Twin Creek We had our Love-feast in a tent.

() UR Laye-feast was held on the 29th of May Brethren J. Knisely and D. Baer were the speakers. The church was much edified. Indeed it was good to be there. We had a profit able waiting before the Lord. In the farewell address in the morning many tears were seen to flow at what the brethren said. Perhaps this may be the last time for some of us to

On Pentecest two were baptized,—a man and wife. The man was stricken down with a lever, he became alarmed of his condition, having lost a son shortly before, so we hauled them to the water and baptized them. When he came out of the water he was heard to praise God. May others take warning.

Y wife receives the BRETHREN AT WORK sent her by Father David Mayor, which we read with great interest. After reading it we send it to our neighbors. We live fourteen miles porth of Vincennes or forty-five miles south of Terre Haute on the E. & C. R. R. at a point called Oaktown.

I never saw a Donkard in this part of the country. I think there would be a good opening for a clostelt. We have a good many old people, sixty years of age, that belong to no church. If any of the Brethren ministers will come I will see that you get a house to preach in. No doubt a good reward could be resped by holding a series of meeting here. Many are actonished at your doctrine. They say they would like to hear you preach any time you come. Write met my doors are open.

PHE Valley River Church is still prosporing Seven additions since last January. One recently baptized was a very able minister of the Campbellites, I filled one of his appointments at their church recently. In the afternoon their minister reviewed my discourse, and tried to show to his brethren that it was erroneons, and then he challenged us for a discussion. We are not sure whether we will discuswith him, but if we do will probably give you some report of it. The weather is dry and crops are very backward.

THE Brethren here met in church council on the 31st of May. After the opening service, the report was heard, which seemed to say all is well, with two exceptions. A very bew are picking at things that they longht not for their own good and for the good of the church But all was passed by for the present, and we hope for good. After which arrangements were made for a communion meeting to be held on Thursday; June 17, at the Silver Creek Meeting-house. A general invitation is given .

We have two Sabbath-schools in progress. with good attendance and good interest.

will cace Thee the Desire of thy Heart."

ng, 1st-Brethren (or Tunker) Churches posthe Bible Characteristics which entitle Sem to be regarded as Churches of Jesus

J. W. Stein, Affirms.

D. B. RAY, Denies.

ELD, D. B. RAY'S FIFTEENTH REPLY.

'a friend "fails to respond to our arguments" losed on the Tunker church sucmon. As we surmised, he dares not answer t pestion, "Where was the bride during sevwell centuries prior to seventeen hundred and th, when the first Tunker church was organdin Germany under Alexander Mack. Who I where were the mon and women that "kept Endmances as they were delivered by Christ' 'w the third to the eighteenth century? By But hames or nicknames were the true churchknown during the dark ages? Mr. Stein "not doubt that Christ has always had Miches somewhere on earth which have held of practiced substantially what the brethren th and practice now." Now if our friend is groug in the taith of church succession as to signo dould on the subject, he must possess styldence to prove it. Will be tell us of wone local church on earth during the fif-" enturies jajor to the eighteenth that pass 'all the characteristics which he regards Esential to a chare h of Christ's Will be an-And it Christ had true churches prior the eighteenth century, why did not the origa Tunkers unite with them instead of start-Lakew organization? Will Mr. Stein an-"om and originate a church of Christ? Acther church was composed of these buildized church attempts to establish conformity in cuming, dupliency. Craft means artial, and burdened he it is a loud cry in the ear of God. The tection rown testimony, the original connection with the true church.

We again insert our proofs that the Tunker churches are not churches of Christ because they had their origin in 1708. The Tunker historians freely confess that their "origin and history" dates from the year 1708, having taken its [their] rise in Germany about that time." 'Some eight persons in number, who had been bred Presbyterians, except one who was a Lutheran," "all were baptized by trine immersion, organized themselves into a church, and chose Alexander Mack for their first minister." This self-organized society, with Mr. Mack as the first preacher, was the first Tunker church, by the confession of the Tunkers themselves, that ever existed upon the earth. But the churches of Christ had their origin under the ministry of Jesus Christ and the apostles; therefore the churches which had their origin under the ministry of Mr. Mack and his disciples, in the eighteenth century, cannot be churches of Jesus Christ. The Tunker churches are wholly destitute of the scriptural church succession. The original church of Christ was established in the first century, but the original Tunker church was established in the eighteenth century; therefore, the Tunker churches, which sprung from this origin, are not churches of Jesus Christ. Mr. Moore, the Tunker editor, is so hard pressed for church succession that he attempts to tie to the Greek church "as one branch of the christian church" which has "preserved both the mode and form of haptism in all its divine and apostolic perfection." If the Greek Catholic church was one branch of the christian church when the Tunkers started, why did they not unite with it instead of setting up an opposing society?

On the oath question, Mr. Stein surrenders by granting that "alwns are required to enter Christ's church by solemn oath of allegiance." But he tries to dodge the force of his own admission by holding that aliens must enter the church by solemn eath; but Christ's "subjects" must swear not at all! But it has already been shown by overwhelming testimony that every true believer is already a child of God and is therefore not an alien from Christ, therefore. the children of God are to be received into his church "by solemn oath of allegiance." As Mr. Stein holds that christian ministers are to administer this solenou outh of allequance to others, therefore they are not opposed to swearing allegiance to Christ. Even according to the Tunkers themselves the problation, "Swear not at a'l," must not have a universal application.

We did not call it "sclemn mockery" and "blasphemous assumption" to amoint the sick with oil, but to angint with oil for "the forgive ness of sms," as held by Mr. Stein, is blasphemy and assumption. If we are to pretend to do everything which was enjoined apon the inspired apostles, then we must "cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, and cast out devils"! Do the Tunkers obey this command? The questles "cast out many devils, and amonted with oil many that were sick, and healed them." (Mark 6: (3.) It is not true that Baptists have ever attempted to forgive sins by anomiting with inl.

We are not discussing Baptist church succossion now, therefore our friend's questions on that subject are not pertinent.

Mr. Stem's third reason why the Tunker church is the lande of Christ nes in their pecuharity of dress! He says, "they refuse to conform to the world in the costliness and fashion. of their apparel." Some orders in the Catholic, holy." It is written of Christ that no gode of God. The value of all documes, creeds, sys-Incrarchy are not allowed to conform to the rest | was found in his month. The was called the live Tems and religious must be estimated by their of the world in their diess, do they therefore hes by one of God, and it we follow him to his paths power to make men better. All true religion long to the true church of Christ? The Quak- , way through the ble that he lived here upon helps men to lould true, pure, beautiful characers do not contorm to the rest of the world in earth, we will no doubt find out something what ters, bying characters that shall stand the test or another question? Has an unhaptized the costliness and fashion of their apparel." Is constitutes holiness, or a holy life. This is very jid life, and shine longliter and brighter onto " child of the devil a right to administer | the Quaker church therefore the bride of Christ? needful for us to know, for it is written, "with- | the perfect div. We make no apelogy whitever for extravagant built boliness, we cannot see God." The Chrisand superfluous dressing; but when a pretended train aimst live a holy life. Game means craft, by an unregenerated child of Sutan without any dress, we know that it has thereby partaken of one feature of anti-Christ. We are commanded to "be not conformed to the world;" but when we conform to the ecclesiastical nonsense of the Tunker church in its pitiful whims about the style and fashion of our dressing, we have conformed to the world in the most emphatic

While the ancient Waldenses avoided all appearance of pride in their dress, they did not, like the Tunkers, in violation of the Word of God, enact have prescribing the fashion, cut, or color of the garments to be worn. The Tunkers have just as much authority to decide that "sheep-skins and goat-skins" shall furnish the only clothing for their members, as to attempt to ape the miscrable flummeries of the church of Rome by establishing conformity in dress,

Should the next annual conneil, which rules the Tunker churches, make this improvement, then Mr. Stein could make the following wonderful argument; 1. Ray admits that the ancient Waldensean churches were true churches. 2. He might find some instorian to say that the ancient Waldenses wandered in "sheep-skins and in goat-skins." 3. Then, with an air of troumph, Mr. Stein might say, "I therefore prove by him, that wearing 'sheep-skins and goat-skins' is characteristic of the church of Christ!" Such quibbling is unworthy of average school-boys, Again, we illustrate our friend's arguments as follows: 1. We admit that the ancient Waldensean churches were churches of Christ. 2. We also admit that many of these Waldenses lived in "dens and caves of the earth" - thereliere, according to our friend's argument (?) dwelling in "dens and caves of the earth" is one of the essential characteristics of the true church of Christ!

As an example of the superstition of the Tunker churches in regard to conformity in dress, we call attention to the following statements in a small work called, "One Faith," by M. M. Eshelman, pp. 29, 30. He says: "But that the long hair, put upon the head, is the power or spiritual covering alluded to in verses 5, 6, and 10, we do not believe." Again: "The apastle evidently meant just what he wrote, viz: that the long hair of a woman was given for a glory (vs. 15) and that this glory covering should be covered with a veil, in order to spiritual strength and power." But instead of the uncient veil, or head-dress, worn by the sisters in the ancient churches, the Tunkers have established what they call a "spiritual covering," very much like the night-caps of our grandmothers. The wearing of this cap the Tunkers regard as essential to salvation!!! And they are so extravagant in dress that, in addition to this "spiritual covering," the Tunker ladies wear a bonnet, which they usually take off in church. Such refreulous laws and customs established by the Tunkers, do not deserve serious consideration. The Tunkers have enacted laws enforcing conformity in dress, contrary to the word of God; and, therefore, they are not churches of Christ.

HOLINESS.

RY MARY C. MULLER.

"But as he which had localled your is hely, so he verledy in all manner of conversation." A Pet A duplicity means doubt in heart, speech or dealing. How do we find Christ in regard to these things? Do we find any of them in his walk or conversation? If not, then we may be sure they should not be found in ours. Paul says to one of the churches, "being crafty I caught you with guile," then he had to reprove them, for they had departed from holiness, and had become cunning and crafty. But we know that in Christ there was no guile, for it is the opposite to holmess. He was pure, free from sin; "when he was reviled, he reviled not again; when he suffered, he threatened not, but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously." I Pet. 2: 23. Then we find that Christ reviled not, when he was reproached or censured for a fault, or a supposed fault, in a severe manner; he did not answer in the same way, and if wo wish to walk in his footsteps, we must be careful that we do not revile. When he suffered, he threatened not, but what did he do? he committed himself to him that judgeth righteously. Here is comfort for the weary traveler. Though we now suffer wrongfully, if we do our duty, put our trust in our Master, we will be judged with a righterms judgment, we need not fear. And we have the apostles also for examples of true holiness. We read it in their actions; when they reviled, they blessed; when persecuted, they suffered it; when defamed, they entreated. Defamed means to be accused falsely, and know-

See, dear reader, if we wish to be holy and free from sin, we have a work to do, and that work consists largely in watching ourselves, lest we step aside from the narrow way marked out by our Forerunner, even Jesus. To be holy, then, we must lead a life of purity. Our eye must be single. We must consecrate ourselves and our all unto him with whom we have to do. "By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips giving thanks to his name. But to do good and communicate forget not; for with such sacrifice God is well pleased." Heb. 13: 45, 16. Then to be holy we must not defile unrselves with sm.

One of them instantly exclaimed, "Brother, don't be surprised; this is a king's daughter, though she has not yet put on her fine clothes."

CIRCLE of children were sitting In the slinde of the olives one day; Their heads crowned with roses and lillies, At rest from their innocent play.

"And so you saw Jesus?" said Ezra. Who leaned on a sheaf of ripe corn, For he had been out with the gleaners, Since the first breaking of morn.

"Oh yes," cried the children, and Ruth said, "He stopped at the way-side to rest, And called us, and little Nathaniel He lifted up unto his breast.

"And that's why he wears those white lillies, We crowned him for love of the Lord Whose lips kissed his dear little forehead, And, Ezra, you ought to have heard

"All the sweet words he said to us children! We could not go on with our play, But have sat here and talked it all over, And wished that he always would stay."

"I wish be would stay-" sighed Nathaniel, "I love him a thousand and one; I wish I could lie on his bosom Till mother the gleaning had done."

And Ezra arose with his corn sheaf, And thoughtfully went on his way, "O if I could see him!" be whispered, "I wish I had been here to-day.

The tongue, or organ of speech, is certainly one of the greatest blessings and most remarkable organs of our be ing. By it we make known our wants to one another, and pass many hours in social conversation. By it we make known our wants to God, and sing songs of praise to his great name. By it we praise our fellow-being, and express our pain, our sorrow, our joys, and happiness. To be deprived of this privilege is one of the greatest misfortunes that can befall us in this life. But while the tougue, or organ of speech, is of such immense value; it is also much abused. By it men will curse, slander, and abuse their fellow-beings. By it men, and women, will misrepresent, and lie to one another, and speak evil of the God that made them. By it (by good words and fair specches) men deceive one another.

A certain great man of Athens once sent his slave to lary the best thing he could find in the market. When the slave returned, he presented his master with a basket full of animal's tongues. "What!" said his master in astonishment, "do you want with all these tongues?" "Why" said the slave, "I was sent to lmy the best in the market, and I could find nothing better than tongues. By it we talk of all that is great, and noble. and good, and even praise the gods." "Well," said his master, "now, go back and buy the worst thing you can find. The slave returned with another basket full of tengues. His master in amazement wanted to know, what he meant with another lot of tongues, "Well," said the slave, "they were the meanest thing I could find. By it we cause men, slander them, aloise them, and every evil thing under the sun is communicated through the torgue." The master commended the wisdom of his slave. We need an extraordinary sentinel at this avenue. It is one of the most difficult to control. The sentinel seems to be more easily thrown off his guard, than at the other passages. The apostle-James says, (3; 8), "But the tongue can no mantame; it is an unruly evil full of deadly poison.

Again, "If any man offend not in word the same is a perfect man." James 3: 2 Again, "But of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing. My Juethren, these things englit not so to be." Jas. 3: 10." But above all things, my brethren, swear not." Jas. 5: 12. Christ says, "But I say unto you, that every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment." Matt. 12:535. Here we see the importance of chaste conversation. Christ, and nearly all the apostles, urge it in strong language. Hence when our passions are aroused and we are rounded to use improper language, let us be on when temptations offer, the misrepresent But, great as this blessing is, it, like the truth for a little wouldly gain let

The desires are an important element in our being. Desire is a manifestation of something we have not. Desires are strengthened as they are gratified. If a man desires truthfulness and gratifies or fulfills that desire, he will become a very truthful man. If he desires holiness and uses all lawful means to gratify that dcsire, he will become holy beyond doubt. It is thus with all the virtues attainable. We only attain them and grow strong in them in proportion to the desire we have for them. Without this element in our nature we would have nothing to prompt us to duty. But while desire is an important part of our organization, it is also much abused. Some desires preponderate. Our strongest desires bring the weaker ones into subjection; unless they are not gratified. Some men's strongest desire is money, and if it is gratified will become stronger and stronger till it absorbs every other desire. Other's strongest desire is intoxicating drink. If gratified, will also absorb every other noble desire, and at last that unhallowed desire will possess the man, instead of the man possessing the desire. It is thus with all evil desires, if we permit their gratifications. We have the power to gratify them, or to crucify them. Then if evil desires spring up, have on the helmet of salvation, that those desires can find no gratification within you. Give them no lodgment in your heart. Close the avenue, no matter how tempting the desire may be; whether it he for money, or for intexication, or for honor, or fashion; the object of the enemy is to deceive [you. "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I | will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels," Rev. 3: 5. part of our nature. The Affections are the medium through which we make turing to itself the miseries of that awknown our attachment, love and esteem [ful place. for any person or thing. If we manifest great attachment for our fellow members; in Christ, our affections are there. If our affectious are there. If we manifest high regard for the Bible, our affections are there. If we love God well enongh to obey his Son in all things, our uffections are on heaven and heavenly things. But while this is an important element of ours, it is also often perverted to a base purpose. Our affections may be placed on things that are dangerous, and will finally destroy us. Our affections may be placed on money, stock, lands, houses, honor, position, husband, wife, children, (unduly) and where our affections are, our hearts are also. Our affections like the desires are susceptible of cultivation, of being taken from one thing and placed on another; hence says, the apostle, "set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth." Col-3: 2. Then if our common for would tempt us at this passage by placing before our mind some ided for worship, whether it be the manmon of unright consuess, or ourselves, or some one else Let us watch even unto praver, and Using into explicity every thought unto the diedience of Christ; having on the Christian armor ready to defend every passage whereby the enemy might make an inroad upon us. "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will he his God, and he shall be my son."

The intellect or mind is the great feed er to the fort within. By it, matter thrown upon the heart that is eithe healthy or poisonons. The safety the fort depends largely upon this pa sage. With our intellect we read t Bible and become acquainted with i sacred contents which is able to make wise unto salvation. With our minwe also read good books and sound religious literature, which often throws light upon some mysterious portion the Bible. With onr minds we also study God's great book of nature the world beneath, the beautiful landscape the trees of the forest, the mountains and hills, the valleys and plains, the brooks rivers, seas and oceans. We stand in awe before the sublime falls of Niagara or the snow capped summit of the Rocky Mountains or Alps. We also survey the wonders of the starry worlds above us and are led to exclaim with the Psalmist "The beavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth There is no speech nor knowledge. language where there voice is not beard," Psalms 19. Again, who coverest thy. self with light as with a garment: who stretchest out the beavens like a curtain; Who layeth the beams of the chambers in the waters: who maketh the clouds his chariot: who walketh upon the wings of the wind. Psalms 104: 1, 2, 3,

The intellect in point of activity also far exceeds any thing else of which we have any knowledge. It is swifter than light or electricity; one moment the mind may contemplate things in our immediate presence; the next moment it may he contemplating things thousands of miles away-in the Eastern Continentthe very next moment it may soar mill. ions of miles above us and contemplate the wonders and beauties of heaven and its blessed inhabitants, with loved ones gone before and their sweet employment. The affections are another important | The next moment the mind may be seanning the regions of dark despair, and pic-

But the intellect, like other avenues to the heart within, may also be pervert. ed. It may be used, and too often is uswe manifest esteem for our ministers, ed, in reading low, degrading, obscene literature, novels of the worst character which have a tendency to damage the efficiency of the fort, and lo, and ly, give the enemy an easy victory. We may also with the intellect contemplate things that are wicked, for our imaginations are wicked cominnally; hence we need a vigilant sentinel at this post; for it is through this passage that evil thoughts are communicated to the castle within. Hence, when we are thus tempted to use our intellect, in imagining, or thinking of unlawful things, of indulging in sinful pleasure, and of momentarily doubting the existence of a God, let us have on the shield of fullh, whereby we may be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. When the fort is thus guarded at every passage, there is no danger of its being taken. And thus it must be judged; for the Hevil, like a rearing lien, is constantly going about seeking whom he may devour. If he finds a sentinel asleep, or off duty, we may rest assured that there he will use his utmost skill to decay the sentinel still farther from duty, that his own entrance and victory may be the more successful. Christ, our great Captain says. "Blessel is that servant whom when his master cometh, he findeth watching." "Wateb ye therefore, for ye khow not

Let us then use all diligence in doing laty for our great Leader. It will not plong till he will return to relieve the of its danger-raise the siege and latroy our enemies, and take us all home to himself, to be forever freed from of dangers, trials, and sorrows here.

The signs of the times indicate his mar approach. "Blessed is that servant shou when his Lord cometh, he find th watching." May we all have on the selding garment, be ready, and hear dejoyful proclamation, "Well done, good in this ful servant, enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

OBEDIENCE.

BY H. P. BRINKWORTH.

"To obey is better than sucrifice; and to hearken than the fat of rams." I Samuel 15: 22. WHILE looking over the various re ligious and political papers of the present day, our attention was called to the signs of the times visibly manifested in the heading of those advertisements calling the people to such and such demonstrations, or asking them to be at a certain festival, or church fair, &c., in favor of the M. E. or C. or B. or some other well-meaning religious association or body. To these various calls made publicly our attention has been drawn, and we have wondered whether all is well-whether or not the present way of conducting the church's affairs is a Scriptural one or not. We would not doubt the ability of those who, leaders, conduct the churches in the high and solemn office of lemlers or ministers of the Gospel of the bumble and lowly Nazarene. But there is a question in our minds as to the reason why Jesus, when here on earth, entered a certain place of worship and drove out nor by legal sanction, but to all intents the money changers, overthrowed the tables, and with a scourge made of cords mention of the conjugal alliance. The drove all out, saying, "My house shall dualistic unity of the first pair by God be called a house of prayer, but ye have includes propagation, else offspring made it a deu of thieves." Was this because there was at that early day those who had lost sight of true worship and had commenced to sacrifice to other gods? Had the religion of Jesus become a byword among the people! Had they for gotten to worship according to the teachings of their Master, and gone astray in worship? and now had well nigh forgotten who was their Leader. Had they depended on some one else to read the Word for them and tell them the way! Deplorable situation indeed! and why is it? I ask the question, Why?

When I compare the teachings of the word to-day, in the nineteenth century, to the calls for religious support, for the building of churches, paying off church debts, salaries of ministers, and various other things, I am made to consider a moment, and ask the question, Is this of God! And then I can only decide by the Word itself. Again, when I take up a leading city paper. I find the words, 'all the fashionable churches turned out." This I compare with the Word; and I hear one say, "Love not the world, neith er the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." "Be not conform ed to this world, but be ye transformed his churches.

able and perfect will of God concerning you." Again, I read "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers. Light hath no communion with darkness, Christ with Belial, or he that be lieveth with an infidel." I hear, and oh, amazed I stand for the mass of professed followers of the meek and lowly Nazarene—they turn their heads aside, they are dividing their time, their talent, and their money between their God and ours. The lowly Jesus they want to bear but little about; but if you approach them on the qualifications, or standing and etiquette of their young preacher; you may hear their eloquence displayed in words too polite to find their way into public print. Did you see how well he conducted the Bazaar last evening? I re ally think he is a charming young man. And when we came to the sale of that lottery cake his voice was purely eloquent as he took the unctioneer's stand and so faithfully labored (in the interest of our church, to pay off our long conrinued debt); and in conclusion, his prayer, it was really a master-piece of elocution and oratory.

Oh, when will we hear and understand the word of God to us? "Be not decrived God is not mocked; whatsoev er a man soweth, that shall be also reap

But there are many who would not go to such lengths in sin and iniquity, were it not that their teacher sanctioned it. They look for him to lead them in the path of true holiness and righteousness. But, alas! they are drifting—they are drifting, and where! Oh, my God! Where? Echo answers, Where? Because the ininister, the leader, says, "Go ahead, I will support you in this or that, and I will be your president," &c. He then removes the landen from their minds, he takes the responsibility, consequently, he leads them into sin, under the cover of religion. Oh, God! how long shall they thus desecrate thy holy and divine will! How long pervert the right ways of our God? and by their hypocritical and contemptnous dealings deceive, if they can, the very elect of God our Father? May they see the error of their ways and turn before it is too late, is my prayer and heart-felt desire.

SELECTED GEMS.

It is the will of God, and the will of every sanctified spirit, that in all things Jesus Christ shall be preceminent; but partyism is opposed to the will of God, and to the will of all his saints and angels, in that it loves to have the pre eminence itself.

As a teacher, the Lord Jesus not only told as what to do, but how to do it. And yet, untold myriads, forbidden by Rome to read the words of Jesus, have lived and died in profound ignorance that he left an example that they should follow his steps.

The authority of the Lord Jesus in his own church is absolute and exclusive; but every sect and party has its own separate and independent government. Hence, there are many conflicting interests among Christians, where the Lord has made but one.

By growing up into the likeness of Jesus Christ, we shall outgrow all sup-

YOUNG man meets a pretty face in a ball room, falls in love with it, marries it, goes to housekeeping with it, and boasts of having a home and a wife to grace it. The chances are nine to one he has neither. Her pretty face gets to be an old story, or becomes faded, or freckled, or fretted; and as the face was all he wanted, all he paid attention to, all he sat up with, all he bar; gained for, all he swore to love, honor, protect, he gets sick of his trade, knows a dozen faces which he likes better, given up staying at home of evenings, consoles himself with eigars, oysters and politics, and looks upon his home as a very indifferent boarding house. A family of children grow up about him, but neither he nor his "face" know any thing about training them, so they come up helter-skelter; made toys of when babies, dolls when boys and girls, drudges when young men and women; and so passes year after year, and not one quiet, happy, homely hour is known throughout the entire household.

Another young man becomes enamor ed of a "fortune." He waits upon it to parties, dances the polka with it, exchanges billet-done with it, pops the question to it, gets "yes" from it, takes it to the parson, weds it, calls it "wife," carries it home, sets up an establishment with it, introduces it to his friends, and says (poor fellow!) that he too is mar ried, and has got a home. It's false, He is not married, and has no home; and he soon finds it out. He is in the wrong box, but it is too late to get out of it. He might as well hope to escape his cof fin. Friends congratulate him, and be has to grin and bear it. They praise the house, the furniture, the cradle, the new baby, and then bid the "fortune" and he who husbands it good morning! As if he had known a good-morning since he and that gilded fortune were falsely declared to be one!

Take another case. A young lady m smitten with a pair of whiskers. Curled hair never had such charms. She sets her cap for them; they take. The dalighted whiskers make an offer, proffering themselves both in exchange for one heart. The dear miss is overcome with magnanimity, closes the bargain, carries home the prize, shows it to pa and ma, calls herself engaged to it, thinks there never was such a pair of whiskers before, and in a few weeks they are married. Married! yes, the world calls it so, and we will What is the result? A short honeymoon, and then they unluckity discover that they are as unlike as chalk and cheese, and not to be made one, though all the priests in Christendon pronounce it so.—Selected.

A FEW THOUGTS ON A. M.

E suppose the business of A. M. passed off as well as was expected by the brethren generally. Some think we are a little too strict is adhering to the rules of conducting luminess in the meeting; but when we have difficult business to settle, our only assurance of order is in sticking close to the rules that govern our deliberations. They secure the rights of all in impartially conducting the business. The smooth and speedy disposition of lusiness depends very much upon abiding by the rales; and we think our brethren should look more to these rules, for they determine the mutter of who is to speak, when to speak, and when not to speak.

The work of last A. M. was as laborious as any we have attended, especially on the Slanding Committee. Their incessmit lubor, and the short time allotted to them, made it impossible to give the attention to every part of their work that it demanded; they were compelled to work till after midnight to get the business rendy for the meeting: under such a landen of labor, during the meeting, they are generally about worn out when the meeting is ended.

We propose a remedy for this: Let the Shanding Commutee meet on Priday before the meet ug; they can bring with them all the queries that have not been answered by the Districts; they can form the proper answers on Friday and Saturday. On Monday, they can come to place of meeting, and hear the calls for committees. Thus the work can be prepared before the meeting begins its labors. Our reason for ruggesting this is, fluit often the Committee must consume finue preparing luismess whole the meeting wants, near an hour after the apcounted time for the business to commence-we lave known the morning session to commence mear ten o'clock, that gave but one hour for hasiness-while we thenk the morning session, should begin half past eight, giving two and cae-hill hours for business. The alternoon session should commente at two reclick, and can till half past four; but the business of Standing Committee often cuts hear an hour off the session. This should be avoided if posthle, and the only way we see is for the Comn ties to meet somewhere in the neighborhood of meeting place on Priday. This may be done with propriety, because their work in putting answers to queries which have none, is a matter n their own hands, and does not require the consultation of any but the members of the Committee. In this way they can have more time for rest during the meeting. We suggest torse thoughts because they will hasten the o so, ess, and greatly relieve the Standing Com-times checked, when trying to obtain unanimous consent to the passage of an answer; it seems difficult to get the consent of all. This is the best rule when it can be attained, but when it cannot, there should be some way of disposing of the case without detaining the meeting so long. Something like referring it to the delegates, and require a majority of three fourths, or four fifths; a very large majority should always be required to decide any case of importance. And we should not deviate from the established rule of obtaining unanimous consent only in cases of necessity.

Another thing suggested by this meeting: It having so many young members on the Standing Committee, caused mainly, no doubt, by the feeling prevulent in the Brotherhood, that we should have frequent changes in the delegates sent by the Districts. At some time the Standing Committee may be mostly composed of brethren who have not had much experience in managing its business. This changing of delegates is a good plan to give the younger brethren an opportunity to learn the duties and labors of the Standing Committee, so when the older ones are gone they may be letter prepared for the work. But more than that, it will tend to engage the interest and sympathy of the younger, to become acquainted with the duties and labors necessary to the work of A. M. And it will fend, too, to bring the old brethren more in conneil with the younger, and dispel the feeling that the younger are not properly regarded by the older. It is important that the younger should be truined in all the business of the church, as the good farmer would train his sons to all the Insiness of farming before it is committed into their hands,

But what we wanted to suggest is this; that the Shinding Committee have the right, to go outside of its own body, to select its officers; it now has the right to go outsale in selecting its Clerks, but we suggest that it may go antide to select its Moderator also; then if the number of young, or inexperienced members should be very large, they still could have the assistance of the more experienced, by thus electing their Moderator from the lanthren present: This would be no uncommon rule of proceedure; for even the President is chosen, on this principle. This would also avoid the dangers that might ause from frequent changes in the delegates sent by Districts

Another thing, we wish the brethren to conaller: The neatter of bringing charges or complaints and having them tried in A. M Such a public trial of cilitors and ministers, is not much light to the world, and requires so much time that should be devoted to other Jaismess: Over half a day was spent in that kind of work at our late A. M., and one half day costs near five hundred dollars; that is to coxpensive; then it is a kind of work that requires more time than can well be given it at A. M. We think it would be lest if all such lusiness could be settled by a committee, and not detain A. M. with if. A committee might be appointed to settle that kind of trouble, as is done to settle other frombles. Such a course would insure more harmony no A. M., and make it a source of greater good to the church generally.

Is the communication from Pettit, Indiana, ast week, the first paragraph, instead of reading the way it does, should have read thus; "I just dosed a series of meetings in the Bachelor Run Congregation. Preached six days; baptized twenty-two, and reclaimed one that had wandered away some years ago. This meeting was one of the best lover attended or conducted," &c. The mistake was ours, and was not discovared in time to have it corrected.

Bicerunex and sisters, when a stranger comes into your meetings do not stand off and stare at him; that is ill manners. Do not pass him by unneficed, but go up and shake hands with him; find out who he is, and invite him to meeting again. Do your almost to make him feel at home in our meetings. Let him come up in front and sit with the members, where he can hear the preaching. It will do him good, and may norke a lasting impression on his mond.

We have on our "puzzle file" a number of letters to which the writers forgot to put their names; some without post-office, county, or State, with post-office but no county or State; some want their paper changed from one office to another, but fail to tell us from what office too hange it. For not aftending to these mutters we are unjustly blamed. Now please don't joss prigment until we are proven to be in the Smlt. - How Mirror.

ir is said that more candy is made and eaten in the United States than in all the rest of the world combined. Boston manufactures about 5,000 tons annually, New York about 7,000 tons and Chicago does a large business in the same field. The exports from this country to Europe include the "best French candies." This, in a great measure, accounts for so many had teeth in this country, and goes far towards making this generation a good deal weaker, if not much

It is very unpleasant to meet a man, give his hand a hearty shake, pass on and then have some one to ask us why we did not salute that brother. Of course, we have to apologize, and say we did not know he was a brother, &c. W_e feel bad, he feels slighted, and others do not feel good, all because we did not know the man was a brother. But by the way, is this not a most excellent reason for dressing alike; A uniform in dress would be an excellent introduction, and then how happy we feel when we know each other.

A short distance north-east of Hebron, in the southern part of Palestine, is the traditional Oak of Abraham. This spleudid old tree stands alone in a beautiful plain. Under it is the green grass, and near by is a well of sweet crystal water. This venerable tree measures twenty-two feet around the trunk, while its branches cover a space ninety feet in diameter. The tree is still sound, and is a favorite place of resort for pleasure seekers. It is under this tree that Abraham is supposed to have entertained the angels on their way to Sodom.

Sometime ago Brother James R. Gish, of Woodford County, Illinois, purchased a good meeting tent, 30x36 feet, with the intention of using it in the Central Mission Field, but having abandoned the idea for the present he now offers the tent for sale. It cost him $125, but he will now take $100 for it. He desired this notice, thinking there were poor churches, having no meeting-house, that would like a tent. It is in good condition, having never been used. For further information, address P. A. Moore, Roanoke, Woodford County, Hlmois.

THE "dog in the manger" has served as a text for many sermons and articles, but is as full of meaning as ever. When we hear of a man persuading another not to give anything in support of the missionary cause the old text will come up in our mind, and we would to God that it would forcibly present itself to the man who is making the trouble. Likely the day will come, when those who will neither preach the gospel where it is so much needed, nor allow others to do it will have a little account to settle with him who requires every member to make a judicious use of his talent.

About the worst thing that can happen a church is when kindred begin to know each other after the flesh and not after the spirit. In some instances it is impossible to do justice; kinfolks will stick together and earry their points in spate of justice. If one of their numher is on trial before the church for some fad act they stand by him, and do all in their power to help him out of his scrape. When it comes to taking the vote, every one who can, will vide so as to make it as easy on him as possible, and of course he toels easy for he knows all los kinstolks will help him, and not allow him deposed. Such things ought not to be. In the church of God we should not know each other after the ilesh, but after the spirit.

HERE is an account of some liberal giving; it shows how other people help their enterprises along: The May number of the Record, Preshyterian, announces that Messrs. H. L. and A. Stuart, of this city, gave about a month ago $25,000 to the home Mission Board; $25,000 to the Torongo Missionary Board; $27,000 to the Board of Church Erection, and $5,000 to the Board of Ministerial Relief, all of the Presbyterian Church. The Examiner and Chringele, Emptist, states that within a short time eight The Mirror should refer his readers to Rom. Individuals have given $142,000 to promote the permanent interests of the Rochester Seminary. Of this Mr. John D. Hockefeller, of Cleveland. | Howksteller, of New York, gives $25,000 for books, to be expended as fast as the money can be spent discreetly; Mr. Charles Pratt, of Brookand Mr. Wolverton, $1,000-the last three of New York.

NEXT week we will publish the Prospectus of the Mt. Morris Seminary, giving all the information about the school that may be desired, Persons thinking of attending school should be prepared to give the article a careful rending. We will further state that Brother Stein's prospects are truly encouraging, and every thing prindicates that he will commence the Fall term with a full school. His effort in this direction Ba poble one, and his institution should be well patronized.

THE following we compile from the Lena

During a heavy storm on Saturday morning, the 14th inst., at about 2:30 o'clock, lightning struck the house of Brother Nicholas Weber, living in the Waddam's Grove Church, and did considerable damage to the building. On hearing the storm, Brother Weber got up and lit a lamp and then laid down on the lounge for awhile; he then laid down on his bed and was not there over fifteen minutes when the lightning struck the house, knocking the lounge on which he had been lying, to shatters. He was stunned and was insensible for ten or fifteen minutes. Sister Weber escaped with slight injary. Their daughter was luckily away from home on a visit, or she would doubtless have been killed, as the lightning passed through the room she usually occupied, on the second floor. As soon as Brother Weber recovered from the shock he took his family to a neighbor's house, where they were cared for until morning. The current went to the cellar, where, meeting with a stone floor, it rebounded, and escaped through an open window, tearing out the side frame in its exit. Fortunately the house did not eatch fire. This was a narrow escape for Brother Weber, and we sincerely sympathize with him in his misfortune.

ANNUAL MEETING FOR 1880.

MOVEMENT is now on foot to make the A necessary arrangements for holding the next Annual Meeting in Northern Illinois. The West is entitled to it, and this part of the State is thought to be a good point at which to hold the meeting. All the housekeepers have been instructed to council their respective congregations and report to Enough Eby by the middle of July, and if all seem favorable, a special District Meeting is to be called for the purpose of perfecting the arrangements, and securing permission from the Standing Committee to have the next Annual Meeting in this part of the West. During the Peast, at Cherry Grove last week, a number of elders and ministers consulted together and agreed to bring the matter before the different congregations in this form:

- 1. Is this congregation willing for the Northem Instrict of Illinois to take the Annual Meeting for 1880?
- 2. Are you willing that the Standing Missonary Committee shall call a special District Meeting to make arrangements for taking the Amoud Meeting?
- Are you willing to take that special District Meeting in case the Committee decides that it should be held, here?

It the different congregations answer these questions in the affirmative, their our Standing Missionary Committee will call for a special District Meeting, when and where they think best, to make the necessary preliminary arrangements for taking the next Annual Meeting. To this Instruct Meeting at will be the duty of each congregation to send delegates, chosen by the church.

DON'T STOP MY PAPER.

Don't stop my japer, printer, Don't strike my name off yet : / You know the times are stringent, And money hard to get; But tug a little harder Is what I mean to do, And sempe the dimes together. Enough for me and you.

I can't afford to drop it; I find it doesn't pay To do without a paper, However others may. I hate to usk my neighbors To give me theirs on loan: They don't just say, but mean it. Why don't you have your own?

You can't tell how we'd miss it. If it by any fate, Should happen not to reach us, Or came a little late; Then all is in a hubbul, And things go all away, And, printer, if you're married, You know the reason why.

I cannot do without it, It is no use to try, For other people take it, And, printer, so must 1. I, too, must keep me posted, And know what is going on, Or feel, and be accounted A foggy simpleton.

Then take it kindly, printer, If pay be somewhat slow, For cash is not so plenty. And wants not few you know. But I must have my paper, Cost what it may to me, I'd rather dock my sugar, And do without my tea.

So, printer, don't you stop it. Unless you want my frown, For here is your year's subscription, And credit it right down: And send the paper promptly And regularly on, And let it bring us mouthly Its welcome benison. Selected by MARA K. FLORA.

Carevul research shows that the China history does not extend beyond the period embraced in Bible chronology. The following tradition shows about how far back they are able to trace their history: "They tell the name of their first king, which would sound in the ear of some as a corruption of the word Noah. The time they assign for his reign corresponds with the age of Noah. They speak of this king as being without father; of his mother being encircled with the rainbow; of his preserving seven clean animals to sacrifice to the great Spirit; that in his day the sky fell on the earth and destroyed the race of men, etc. When we remember that the waters of the sky did this in the days of Nuah; that Noah was the first of the postdiluyan race, and thus without father; that the rainbow is interestingly connected with his history; that he did take into the ark clean animals by sevens, part of which were offered in sacrifice-we begin to discover that the Chinese account is nothing more nor less than a blotted copy of the truth.

Our readers want to keep a careful look out for all kinds of sharpers. Another trick is being played on farmers in certain localities. Λ certain party goes from house to house to buy fowls. He does business very systematically, and when he pays any one money he takes a receipt. Having made a purchase, he takes outhis receipt book and proceeds to write the receipt. He writes rapidly and vigorously, as becomes a man of business, but just as he gets to where the signature is to be added—away goes the point of the pencil-" never mand; here is one of those fountain pens," which be takes from his pocket-" Nothing like having two strings to your bow, you know-capital invention, these pens that carry their own ink."-He hands the pen to the farmer, who signs the recent. A receipt in pencil, with the signature in ink, is easily converted into a promissory note for $150-or $200-as the farmer finds out when he gets a notice from the bank in the next town, that his note of a given date, discounted by the bank, will be due on such a day. Of course this is not a religious item, but we think our readers will thank as for keeping them justed. Tarmers and everyhody else would better keep their signatures off such papers.

ON THE WAY TO PALESTINE.

NUMBER X.

From Suez to Jerusalem.

(From the "Christian Standard" by special Arrangement.)

Y last letter closed with our labors at Snez. The next day we went from that city by rail to Ismailia, lifty miles distant, and half way the length of the Suez Canal, reaching there at half-past 11 o'clock. At 4 r. m. we went down to the Egyptian Mail steamer, which was to convey us from Ismailia through the canal to Port Said. The said steamer we found to be only 40 feet long and 9 feet wide, yet we were asked whether we were first class or second class passengers. After a glance at the dingy little craft, we almost wished that we were no class at all, and felt in doubt whether we ought to laugh or cry at the thought of being compelled to travel on her; but we were encouraged at the thought that, being first class, we would have the best if there were any best, so we deposited our Inggage on deck, had a big quarrel with the Arabs who had brought it from the hotel about the amount we should pay them, hunted for the cabin, which we found to be about the size and near the shape of a big omnibus, waited nearly two hours after the advertised time for the little thing to start, and were delighted by the swiftness with which she cut the water when she did start. The swift motion added force to a gentle north wind, in the face of which we sailed, and we were much refreshed as we sat on the little deck, after the weariness of a hot day. Ships are limited to six miles auhour in passing through the canal, lest the waves they stir up should wash in the banks too rapidly; but our little craft scarcely makes a ripple, and is allowed to run as fast as she chooses. We overtook a large ship, and swiftly passed under her sides. A hundred or two passengers and sailors gathered at the rail to look down on us, and appeared amused to see so tiny a hoat run by them so swiftly. I waved my hat when we were nearly past them, and cried out, "Good-bye; we'll tell them you are coming."

We landed at Port Said at 11 o'clock at night, and were met by an English-speaking hotel runner, who put us and our haggage into a row boat, and rowed us to the Netherland Hotel, situated on the pier of the harbor, and put us into most delightful quarters. From the verandah into which our windows opened, we could see next morning all the shipping in the harbor, and much of the town.

The cost of the Suez canal was more than ninety-two millions of dollars; but it now pay: toper cent, dividends on the stock; its income in the year 1877 was about $6,000,000, and the expense of keeping it in repair only $1,000,000, All this income is derived from the toll paid by steamships which pass through it, the number of which, therefore, is immense. At Port Said and at Sucz they are constantly going and coming, and you can sebloin look along the line of the canal from either place without seeing tall. masts rising above the desert sands. There were 15 steamers in the harbor of Port Said at the time we left there, two of which had just come in from the canal. One of the greatest obstacles encountered in digging the canal, arose from the want of fresh water. The 25-000 men employed on the work had to be supided with water from the Nile, and it required 1600 camels constantly going and coming to fransport it. Finally a canal was mode from the Nile to Ismailia, and thence to Suez, a distance of 153 miles, to convey fresh water, and this canal is now the only dependence of all that region for water for domestic purposes and irrigation. It is large enough to float small canal boats; and although it is used on its course as any little river passing through the country would be, its water, when filtered, is very good. It never rains in Egypt more than two or three times a year, and then it soldom lays the dust: secrain water is out of the question, and the whole country lives, as in ancient times, from the Nile. Whenever the Nile water is not spreiol over the land by arrigation, the surface is as bare ut vegetation as the palm of your hand. I feel tempted here to write much of old Egypt, and of the young Egypt which, under European influence, which is now dominant there, is springing up on the rains of the old; but I must go on to other matters.

as we wish to see again; but we had no sooner entered our rooms in the hotel than we were regaled with so sweet a fragrance as led us to look out at the window to see whence it came; and there spread thickly over several scres attached to the hotel, was an orchard of lemon trees in full bloom. The golden fruit and the pure white blossoms were hanging side by side, and beyond and about the lemon orchard were gardens of oranges showing no blossoms, but an abundance of ripe fruit. When we went down to lunch, a large fruit-stand full of oranges graced the table, and we were so astonished at their enormous size that I measured three or four of them, and found that they averaged 111 inches in circumference. On enting them we found them as superior in flavor as in size. They are entirely seedless, and though less juicy than some varieties, their meat is so compact and tender that we can eat them as we would an apple. There are 400 gardens of oranges at Joppa, containing from two and a half to six acres each, and the export of the fruit is the principle source of income for the city. There were 2,000 boxes, each containing about two bushels, piled up on the pier ready for shipment when we arrived, and our ship remained at anchor twenty-four hours to receive them. Thousands of bushels are also sent away to the interior on camels and asses. The market in Jerusalem is alundantly supplied with them, and they are almost as cheap as Irish potatoes are in America. It is a sight worth seeing to ride among the orchards about Joppa, and see the stout little trees almost covered with the enormous fruit, the hubs bending low, but never breaking. We visited, of course, the house of Simon the tanner, saw the room where Peter lodged, and climbed by an outside flight of stone steps upon the tlat roof where he prayed and saw the vision of the sheet. The representation, however, was so obviously false, as appeared from the modern date of the building, and its unsuitable surroundings, that we did not care to see the equally veritable bouse of Tabitha, which is shown in another part of the town. But not far from these spots unquestionably stood the houses in which the memorable events conneuted with Peter's call to Cusurea took place, and we could but realize that we were now in the midst of New Testament scenes. We had worship in our own room at the hotel. We afterward learned that there was an afternoon Episcopal service at the English school of Mrs. Hay, conducted by a visiting clergyman from England: but the information came too late for us to attend it. Mrs. Hay's school, by the by, is kept in a framed and weatherhoarded house, the only one, I suppose, in Palestine. All buildings here, except the rudest buts, are built of stone-floors, stairsteps, roofs-all except the doors and windows. Many of the huts are also fault of unhawed stones laid in abundance of cement; but many of them are built of sundried bricks, made, not of clay, but of the common soil mixed with cut straw. A pile of brush laid across the walls and plastered over with cement, constitutes the roof. They are miscrable, filthy holes, scarcely fit for the lubitation of an American hog; yet they swarm with women and

At Joppa I bugan my Palestine work. I had prepared for it by spending all the time that my other engagement would allow, last Fall and Winter, in rereading the best books on the subject, and making notes on the places which I expected to visit. These notes were written in a strongly bound blank-book, and blank spaces were left for tilling up the descriptions as the places are visited. As I come to each object of interest. I first read what I have already written concerning it, making corrections, if any are needed, and then I write in the blanks any additional details which I think worth preserving. I am provided with a pocket compass with which to take bearings; a tape line two chains in length with which to test former measurements and take new ones; a good field-glass with which to examine remote or inaccessible objects; and a thermometer with which to observe the temperature of both air and water. With this preparation and these facilities I find that I can make quite rapid progress in my work, and I am correcting some errors made by my predecessors. The work is often quite laborious; but my companions lighten it by cheerfully rendering all needed assistance.

From Joppa to Jerusalem, distance 35 miles, there is a turnpike road, constructed a few years ago by the present Pashu, the only one in Syris except one built by a French company fro n Berrout to Damascus. All other roads are mer. bridle paths, impossable for wheeled vehicles. Along the plain this pike is good and smooth, but in the mountains it is so washed and broken in places by winter forrents, that vehicles can pass only with the utmost difficulty. We sturtour arrival in Joppa, mounted on the horses which had been engaged for our entire tour. Our horses are scrub stock, all stallions, and in this order; but they by no means present the woe-begone appearance represented by Mark Twain: neither do they scratch the flies from the back of their heads with their hind feet: they usually allow the flies to enjoy their feast of blood without molestation. They walk tolerably well, canter pleasantly, and climb the hills, both up hill and down, like goats. Mine frequently trips on level ground, but he never misses his step nor his foothold on the craggy sides of the mountains. We had our choice between Arab and English saddles, but though European travelers nearly always choose the latter, our Western horseback experience taught us at a glance that the former were preferable for a long journey. They are very much like the Mexican saddles, but instead of the large wooden stirrup of the latter, they have an iron stirrup, the bottom plate of which is wide enough to receive the entire faot from toe to heel. Our bridles are very fantastic, being made of woolen stuff of several bright colors, adorned with small white shells, and hung thick along the headstall with red and white tossels. Saddles and bridles are both of the regular Bedouin style.

About four or five miles out from Joppa we turned out of the main road to the left, in order to pass through Lydda, whence Peter was called to Joppa, and where he raised Eneas from his long confinement with the paralysis (see Acts 9: 32-38). It is now a well-built Arab village, surrounded by extensive groves of olive trees. Its only public building is the Greek Church of St. George, the patron saint of England. It was here that the said George was horn, here he was buried, and his celebrated feat of killing the dragon is sculptured on a marble slab over the door of the church. There is a St. George's Church in St. Louis, and I once asked a Indy who belongs to it what George it was who owned that church, but she could not tell me. From Lydda we turned south, and came into the pike again at Rambeli, a place of much note among the erusaders, but not mentioned in the Scriptures. There we lunched in the Lutin monastery, and in the aftermoon we rode to Latroun, a village on a hill-top overlooking the valley of Aijulon, where Joshim made the moon stand still. Mr Howard, of Joppa, has here a comfortable new hotel, just opened to the public list November, and farmishing a most convenient lodging place for travelers. The village of Latronn is nestled among the ruins of some massive ancient buildings, and below it, near our hotel, are some ancient dewish sepulchres cut in the solul rock. Tradition has it that this was the home of the penitent thief, and also the burial place of Judas Macenbeus. An artificial pool below the hotel, walled with stone, supplied with water from a well near by, is as well suited for a baptismal pool as if it had been made for the purpose.

We had now crossed the plain of Sharon at its southern extremity, the land of the Philistines, next south of it, having been in sight all day. In regard to this plain, I must use language which I would have thought extravagant before I saw it. It is truly a rich and lovely country, and even in the hands of its present inefficient cultivators, it sends a large quantity of produce to market. It produces, without irrigation, better crops of wheat than are now produced in Egypt, and if I were suddenly putdown there, I would think myself on one of the rich and rolling prairies of Illinois or Missouri. There is scarcely a limit to the grain and fruit which it would bring forth in the hands of skillful farmers. It has always been noted, and justly so, for the heauty and variety of its wild flowers. The red poppy blooms every-where except on the plowed ground, and in many places the entire surface is reddened with it. Many others, smaller in size, delicate of texture. and of every hue, but nameless in my scant vocabulary, abound on every side.

Our ride on Tuesday, from Latroun to Jerusalem, was up one mountain side and down another nearly all the way. We lunched in the valley of Sorek, 1,600 feet below the hights on either side. This valley heads near Mizpeli, and opens out below in the country of the Philistines. Samuel chased the Philistines along the entire length of its deep chasm on that memorable day when, at the close of the chase, he set up a stone, called it Ebenezer, and said, "Hitherto the Lord hath been our helper."

We passed the reputed site of Kirjath jearim, where the ark rested so long after its return from the land of the Philistines, and that of the boass of Oredsedom, where Uzzah fell when to Jerusaleic, and where, in terror at this event, | not in an exemption from suffering.

ed out out on this road the next morning after | David left the ark three months ere he ventured to take it further. 2 Sam. 6.

I knew very well when we were nearing the spot where the Holy City would first come into view, and I had read so much about the varied emotions with which the sight is first beheld, that I resolved to preserve my equanimity, and approach it calmly. But in spite of my effort, I began to be nervous. I remembered the longings of almost a life-time to be here: I thought of Jesus and the cross; and I covered my face with my umbrella to hide the tears which I could not keep down. And now, as I write, the same emotion and the same tears return again. The first object which I recognized was an unexpected one—the dark blue wall of the mountains of Moab beyond the Dead Sea and the Jordan. The next was the unmistakable Mount of Olives, that dear honored spot,

The fame of whose wonders shall ne'er be forgot. The next was the dark gray wall of the city south of the Joppa gate. I would have seen, a moment scower, the more northern part of the western wall, but for new, unexpected and unwelcome objects that intervened. These were the houses and high garden walls of an actually new town which has spring up on both sides of the Joppa road within the last four years, extending nearly a mile from the Joppa gate. It is a part of a new European city springing up on three sides of the old Jerusalem, and destitted, before many years, to be the principal city of the two. I will have more to say of it

On entering the city we directed our dragenum to lead as first to the office of the American Consul, Col. Wilson, of Iowa, where we found awaiting us our first letters from home. Though mine was written only one week after my departure from home. I felt as if its news and its messages were all fresh, and I tried to think it had been on the way but a little time.

From the Consulate we remared to the Mediterranean Hotel, kept by a German named Hornstein, who was baptized by Dr. Barelay while a missionary here. When I entered the room that was assigned me, I parted the window curtain to let in more light and air, when my eyes fell on the pool of Hezekinh, lying like a bidden mountain lake, in the rear of blocks of houses which close at on every side. Looking above and across it, there stood the magnificent Dome of the Rock, miscalled the Mosque of Omar, with the entire slope of the Mount of Olives beyond it. To the right by the Mosque El Aksa, on the southern part of the temple mount. Looking around to the left, the dome over the Church of the Huly Sepulcher was also in view, and I immediately maned all these objects to my companion. I was in Jerusalem at last; and there was not a window in the city that I would have preferred to the one that became, as it by chance, my chamber window, An afternoon walk down David Street to the gute which was once the Benutiful Gute of the temple, thence to Stephen's Gute on the eastern side of the city, thence along the entire length of the Vm Dolorosa, and thence along Christian Street and through the Christian Bazaar to the hotel, completed the labors of the day.

Our Bible Class.

The Worth of Truth no Tongue Can Tell.

This department is designed for asking and answering tible questions, and for the solution of Scriptural difficul-ies. In order to somote Bible Truth, all questions should be stated with cander, and an wered with as much dearness as possible. Articles for this department, must se short and to the point.

Will some one explain Heb. 1:17 " And of the angels he saith. Who maketh his angels spirits, and R. T. CHOOK. his ministers a flame of fire."

Will some one please explain John 10:97 In particular the phrase, "And shall go in and out and M. M. DIETA.

Will some one please explain 1 Pet 3; 16? It reads as follows; "By which also be went and preached unto the spirits m prison." Who is the preacher? Who are the spirits? Where is the J. W. BARNBART.

RECEIVING THIS SAYING.

Will you or some of your readers please explain Matt. 19: 11, 12? It reads as follows: "But he said unto them. All men cannot receive this saying, saythey to whom it is given. For there are some ennuchs, which were so born from their mother's womb; and there are some cunnels, which were made connels of men; and there be comuchs, which have made themselves connehs for the kingdom of keaven's sake. He that is able to receive it, let him F. J. FRANTA

(4 D) I'T be said unto them. All men cannot D receive this saying," Now, the question. What saying? The disciples said if the case be so that a man could not put away his wife and marry again, except for fornication, if no other cause is sufficient to dissolve the marriage confract, that the law will give a divorce and that contract be dead, and the innocent party be made free, not only by the laws of heaven, but the powers that be that God ordains when one violates that union that God joined together. The one that violates that union and has put asunder what God joined together, and if the, innocent party applies to the powers that be, or in other words, the law, and gets a divorce she is no more his wife than if the law of Moses was executed upon the guilty parties. See Dent. 22; 22. But if the case he so it is not good to marry. But God made man and he knew what was in him, and how he was made, and for what purpose.

The beloved apostle Paul also understood the craving desires that the sexes had for each other. When the disciples thought it not good to marry Christ told them that all men cannot receive this saying, and he tells them of a class that could receive the saying and tells, how each of them received that power and tells them he that can receive if let him receive. But Paul says better marry than to burn. And again, to avoid fornicution let every man have his own wife. Flee fornication. Every sin that a man doth is without the body, but he that committeeh fornication sinneth against his own body. I Cor. SOLONON GILBERT.

THE SECOND COMING.

H5 N. S. DALE.

HEX one sees how often the second com-ing of our Lord is spoken of in the New ing of our Lord is spoken of in the New Testament Scriptures, is it not surprising that so little is said of it in the pulpit and in the prayer-meetings.

Paul tells us that "Christ, unto them that look for him, shall appear the second trule without sin unto salvation." And he also says our conversation is in heaven from whence also we lank for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile body that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body. "The same Jesus," said the angel to the apostles, " which is taken up from you into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." And we are further told the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout with the voice of the arch-angel and the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive und remain shall be caught up together with them in the choids to meet the Lord in the air, so shall we ever be with the Lord." The Scripture is full of such teachings and the pulpits are empty of it.

John, in his loving style, says to his people, Little children, alide in him that when he shall appear * * not be ashamed before lum at his coming," and "Beloved, now are we The person who used tobacco had no more to the sons of God when he shall appear we shall be like him," &c. It is the duty and privilege of Christ's disciples to be looking for that bless-PEACE does not dwell in outward things, but | ed hope and glorious appearing of the great God I his second coming.

Locomotive Powers-The Beautiful Scenery along the B. & O. R. R.-A Visit to Mt. Vernon-To the Capitol, &c .- To Annual Meeting and Huntingdon.

N company with Brother W. Brubaker and Friend A. W. Pfoutz, I left Dayton, Ohio, May 26th, at 6 P. M. for Annual Meeting, intending to stop at the National Capitol a few days, and visit the various objects of interest. It had rained considerable during the night and morning, which laid the dust engendered by, and accumulated during the dry weather, making traveling pleasant and agreeable.

As the iron horse drew us onward we thought of the various locomotive powers. All in the animal kingdom have some such power. which we call natural locomotive power. Man has such power, but since the dawn of creation. he dias made the lower order of creatures, which have greater and fleeter locomotive powers than he, subserve his purposes. Again he aniolds his sails to the winds and crosses the mighty deep. And last but not least he has the stormy gas of water carry him over land and sea, with incredible speed. But great and useful as these powers are, when we compare them with the velocity of the million of stars that bespangle the heavens, and the untold follows behind the curtain of human vision, and the great harmony and silence with which they travel their wonted orbits, they sink into iosignificance.

As we were having these silent missings gentle sleep drew her veil over our mind. We awake with the early dawn, as our locomotive was plowing through the hills in Eastern Ohio. We crossed the broad and placed Ohio at 6 A. M, and sped onward, through and over the everlasting hills of the Apalachian system.

The Baltimore & Ohio R. H. winds like a huge serpent around the mountains and hills, along water courses, through tunnels, over trussel work. The scenery is grand, beautiful. and varied. The mountain slopes are covered with the bidiage of evergreen and decidnous trees, dotted here and there with small cottages and patches of grain. The lovely though narrow valleys are cultivated by the mountain peasantry. Sometimes the track on a level with the ned of the stream, again it was many feet above and anon it seemed to leap from hill to hill. All united to call out our minds in adoration of the rules of the universe. And when we consider that it is easier to pluck up the length and breadth of these mountains and east them into the sea, than for the least of find's promises to his children to find—that heaven and earth will pass away, but the word of the Lor cendareth forever, with what confidence should we trust in the Holy Scriptures. "Lord, increase our faith."

We reached Washington City late in the evening of the 27th. The next day we visited Mt. Vernon, the home of Washington—the Merca of America. The steamer Corcoran leaves the city daily at 10 A. M. for the place from which we took passage. And an hour and a half ride down the river brought us to the home and tomb of "the father of his gointry.'

Mt. Vernon is beautifully situated on a bend and bluff of the Potomic River, on the Virgina shore, sixteen miles from the capitol. A few number walk from the landing brings us to the tomb. Through an iron railing in a brick vault we see the saracophi containing the remains of President and Lady Washington. Many of the relatives are buried here

The mansion growns the Iduft already spoken of From it we have a beautiful view in and down the river. It, with some of the buildings, have been repaired some, but they generally remain as left by the illustrious dead. The buildings are plain, substantial, and contement, and were planned with rare judgment and tuster

We were shown a chair that came over in the May-flower in 1620, a model of the famous brench preson Bastile, and the key to that bison presented to Washington by Lafayette, at er its demodishment. Also some of the banature, wearing apparel, surveying instruments death bed, ad infinitum. But the whisthe of the steamer warned us that we must 401 larewell to the pleasant and historical meant. We did so with the following reflections

1. We thought of the real, fidelity, and dis-country. His manliness and suavity of man-His commendable deportment and etiquette. How much more we who have named the name of Jesus and "put on Christ," should let our lights shine, have our speech with grace seasoned with salt, walk in the light and with wisdom towards them who are with-

2. His services and those of his compatriots freed us from the British yoke. And while we render "honor to whom bonor is due," we should not forget the honor due the Savior for the truth be brought from heaven to free and purify us from the damming power of sin.

On the 29th we visited the Capitol. It is a grand structure standing on Capitol Hill and commanding delightful scenes in all directions. From its portices can be seen nearly all the public buildings in the city and others on the hights opposite. It is seven hundred and fiftyone feet long, three hundred and twenty-four wide, covering three and one-half acres of ground, and costing thirteen millions of dollars. Its extensions are built of marble, its center of yellow freestone, painted white, crowned by an iron dome, painted white, upon which is the stature of freedom, the top of which is three hundred and seventy seven feet above tide water,

The Rogers bronze doors with paintings alto relievo, the numerous statues in marble and bronze, the allegorical figures, the pictured canopy, the many beautiful rooms including Congress halls, are objects of interest to the curious and historical visitor.

We spent several hours in Congress Halls, and witnessed their manufacture of electioneering ammunition, etc. The house was noisy and unruly. The Senate, more sedate. They were paying their respects to each other in the form of recriminations, etc. As we were observing their work and spirit, we concluded as our venerable Brother D. P. Saylor did some fifteen years since after he had visited a field of battle,- The more I see of the kingdom of this world and its glories and strifes, the less I love them, and the more I love the kingdom of peace."

We also visited the Botanical Garden. Here is to be seen a great variety of majestic palius, graceful ferns, camphor, India-rubber, incense tree, coffe tree, cinnamon, black and betel peppers-about four thousand species of botanical auterest from all climes and countries. We also visited the Smithsonian Institute, Patent Office, White House, Treasury, State, and Navy departments, Washington Monument, of which an interesting description might be given, but we forbear.

We went to place of A. M. on the 30th, and enjoyed the hospitality of our Virginia brethren, for which they have long been proverbial. As the editors will tell all about the meeting I forbear. One feature of the meeting I notice, and that is this: Many of the brethren and sisters were born here and had gone West in youth; and they returned to the land of their nativity to see the old home again, and have a good drink from the cool spring where they quenched their thirst in childhood. To them it was a choice blessing and they thanked

The meeting, as all our meetings here, closed, and after several hours riding we reached Huntingilon, Pal, where we poised and were kindly received by the brethren.

SHORT history of an organization of tifty-two members of the German Baptist Church in Clayton County, Iowa, organized February 17th, 1879, by Elders Enoch Elw and Elias K. Buechley. The order of the church was set before them, and with a muanimous voice promised to be subject to the generallorders of the church in dress and be governed by the general Brotherhood. Upon these promises they were organized and an election followed for one speaker and two deacons. The choice for speaker was Brother S. Hansel and George Seward These officers were duly in-But there was a wolt in the midst of the flock; one Benjamin Burchley, who was formerly an elder in the Waterloo Church, but namely: formeation and a case among the worst. After a short interval, he was received. leack into the church as a private member. Alter which he moved to Clayton County, and the members got them to call conneil and got together twenty-four members out of fifty-two, and nineteen of the twentyfour re-instated him to his former position, wherupon Brother Charles Stone, one of the deacons, after doing all he could with the assistance of some of the other members to prevent the action, wrote to the elder, Joshua Shultz, of Clinton County, Iowa. He ordered a council on the 28th of April. The church convened, forty-five members out of fifty-two, this man Buechley being present.

After opening hy singing and prayer, proceeded to investigate matters, and soon learned that there was a large majority strongly set to retain Buechley as their elder, and after every lawful means were used to get them to see their error, they were then told what the consequence would be, and they saw there was no other remedy, the minister, S. Hansel rose to his feet and cried out "All that will go with us, rise up," wherupon thirty-one of those present rose up declaring themselves to have Buechley as their leader. They were dismissed, and in a very short time the house was cleared of them. They going away jubilant over their proceedings. Thus the Wagner Valley Church of Clayton County, lowa, was seduced, in its infancy, by a wicked and designing man. Those Buechleyites (for I do not know what else to call them) have started, and with a prostitute for their leader, to get a name for themselves. The faithful few that God reserved that did not bow the knee to the mouster is now beaded by the faithfal deacon, Brother Charles Stone, he being elected to the ministry, and an other faithful brother, Philip Hansel, who was elected to the office of deacon; S. Hansel first minister elected and George Seward, deacon, being among the apostates; hence, any one wishing to write to the Brethren in the Wagmon Valley Church, Clayton County, can and should address Brother Charles Stone, Edgewood, Clayton County, or Brother Philip Hansel, Etkport, Clayton County, Iowa.

We take this method of informing the Brotherhood of the apostusy and the character of their leader, that the Brethren will be apprised of these things, that these apostates cannot impose on the church or the members thereof. Oh, what will wicked men not do to destroy the chorch of Christ! It may be truthfully said that this apostasy is the effect of im proper teaching in the beginning, or in other words, the truth compromised for the purpose of getting numbers.

The above is the request of the church, and sanctioned by the elder in charge, Joshua Shultz and Elder Elias K. Buechley, who were called to assist, and other ministers who authorized me to write. M. H. FOWLER.

From the Lone Star State,

Door Beethren --

THE organization of the church in Grayson County, Texas, is one of the things of the past. On the 26th of April the brethren and sisters met in council, at our house, and after singing the 254th hymn, exhortations and prayer, and reading the 20th chapter of Acts of the Apostles, and speaking from the same, and exhorting to the duties of the church, as it is now starting in this far away land, that the order of the church might be kept as it is generally understood by the Brethren, so that we might come under the blessing of the prayer of Jesus, when he prayed that we might be one, as He and the Father are one; and also that our faith may be predicated upon Jesus from the words of the apostles, and be united with our Annual Meeting. We then gave the privilege to all to speak their minds, to which all freely expressed their faith and feeling, and then there were handed in eighteen letters of membership, some that were given three years ago, from the different districts in the different States, eight brethren and ten sisters. All agreed to hold a Love-feast, but would not set the time until after the organization in Cook County, which was done on the last day of a us, and he with us at our meeting and especially the ministering brethren.

Also on Sunday the first day of June we attended to the preaching of the funeral of Sister Souder to a very large congregation, who came to hear and to sympathize with the hereft family. Brother Henry Troxel was also present, but was notable to take part in the service. He had preached on Friday night, but had taken a very bad cold on the way coming so that he could speak no more, and we left him quite sick. Hope the Lord will bless him so that he may be able to attend to his appointments, as be has no one to help him. The rest are all well, and in good spirits, rejoicing that the time was coming, that if the Lord were willing, we may commune together.

The Brethren in Clay County are still unorganized, but think of handing their letters in, and communing with us.

In conclusion of the organization of hoth places, the 253rd hymn was sung, with the

"I am coming to thee, Lord." We desire to be remembered by all the brethren, in their prayers, when it goes well with them. JACON BERKEY.

EFT home Saturday morning in company 1) with Brother William Stockmyer and wife, J. Julian and wife, for communion meeting in Cedar Creek Church, Anderson County, Kansas, at the residence of Brother Peter Watkins, in Brother Jesse Studebaker's District. We arrived in the evening; found a goodly number of brethren and sisters on the ground. Had preaching in the evening, led by Brother D. Harader.

Sunday foremon had preaching. After services we repaired to the water where three precious souls were baptized into the fold of Christ, I'reaching again in the afternoon, and Monday forenoon again, in the tent, led by Brother Isaac Harshey. After which we again repaired to the water to witness haptism.

In the evening the communion services were conducted in the usual order. The tent was filled with an attentive audience and the best of order prevailed.

Tuesday morning, had farewell address. After which one more was baptized. Then the parting hand, with some regrets to leave the place where Jesus shows his sunling face. The meetings were well attended, with the hest of interest and order, which made it a season of rejoicing to all those that love the Lord. Ministering brothren present, to the best of our recollection, I. Bearshy, J. Hilky, Brother Flack, D. Harader, W. Stockmyer, Brother Wise, and our home ministers.

We will close by saying to all our beloved brethren and sisters, east, west, north, and south, we still feel to rejoice in the God of our salvation, notwithstanding the stern oppositions we have to meet. M. T. BAER.

Notes of Travel.

Dear Brethren:-

CATURDAY, the 24th of May, came the day for our District Meeting, and according to arrangements met with the Brethren of the Eagle Creek Congregation. Eighteen congregations out of twenty-four were represented. Business passed off pleasantly. Our home mission system was revised, and we think muterially improved.

Brother Eby, of Illinois, was with us; and, by some urging, assisted us occasionally with his experience and judgment. Brother Eshelman was also with us.

We took leave of the brothren that evening, and early Sunday morning, were called for at the city hotel in Piqua by our Brother Dr. Rosenberger, of Covington. We met for morning services at the Sugar Grove Churcha commodious house owned jointly and occupied alternately by the Covington and Newton Brethren.

In the afternoon, met in Covington for Sunday-school. We tried to make our presence a source of encouragement to the school. The Newton Brethren's Sunday-school occupies the Grove Church. Both schools are large and the interest bids fair.

Sabbath evening we were made happy to be permitted to renew our association with the dear members of Covington. Were also made glad to hear of the pleasant ingathering of souls since our visit February last; also at the present encouraging prospects.

Monday evening met with the saints in Newton. Tuesday afternoon, met at the Grove Church for the Newton Feast. Brother Robert Miller entertained the congregation from I Cor. 11: 1-17. Subject, the covering. His reasoning was clear, fine, practical and sound, As the subject is undergoing a system of unalysis, bordering close on abuse by some brethren known as "modern progressives," we arged upon Brother Robert to commit his thoughts opon the subject to writing. He consented to do so. We hope to see it in trust form. It is here in the office now. -- Eds. |

The Bretbren at Newton have, for eighteen months past, been receiving much encouragement. Annual Meeting has been annoyed; committees have been perplexed; and the dear members in and around Newton bave been grieved and made to weep over their troubles, The trouble finally resulted in a new organization, with Elder Cadwalater as their leader. They made a demand of the Brethren for what they claimed to be their interest in the Brethren's House; for pence we met their demand. They built a house, and did much to concentrate, and thus rally the alienated portions of the church in different parts; but their encouragement was small. During the year several of their members came back to the Brethren. Their elder, Cadwaluter, died during the Winter, leaving a request for Brother Wine to assist in his funeral service. We hope that the present disappearing of the dark cloud that has been overshadowing the interest of the Newton Church, with their prescommon tendency of exalting them, will produce the happy effect of humbling them.

Gingham Congregation. The Gingham branch has been recently organized, and is flourishing, terest to all present.

From Laporte County, Indiana,

Dear Brothma:-

N pursuance to previous arrangements, duct a series of meetings in our church at Ross' coming of Christ. Mills: this being the day of our regular appointthe necessary means for holding our Love-feast, otation, we deport for our homes. the representation was very good and the spirit union and perfection among Christians in knitto the water, but a few rods distant, where two to the holy instruction given by the dear old thur-band and wife) were immersed in the name. Apostle Paul, "And above, all, things, put, on of the Father, and of the con, and of the Holy charity, which is the bond of perfection." Ghost.

Thus commenced the week's work of unremitting lahor on the part of Brother David Hostetter and a few brethren and sisters, whose united prayers were heard in heaven, and awakened on earth by Him whose ears are never closed to the cries of his people, as the sequel will show. We met every evening for prayer and exhortation, and when Saturday came, the day fixed for our communion, we had five candidates for baptism. All submitting to the ordinance with that becoming fortitude and gladness of heart that should characterize every sceker for a house "not made with hands, eternal in the heavens," making in all seven additions by haptism—the result of our week's special effort. Brethren and sisters, let us give God the glory, in thanksgiving and praise, for He has been very good in crowning our efforts with unexpected success. May God bless those new converts, and enable them to arise in verity to walk in newness of life, is my prayer. Two were River Brethren, of almost life-long membership. Two of the others had made no profession. Two were Methodists and one a Campbellite. This last came from Berien County, Michigan, for the purpose of uniting with our church. He had been a local elder in the Disciple Church, but became dissatisfied, because he could not observe the ordinance of feet-washing, resulting in his entire surrender. Thank God for that, as he is a very intelligent and well informed brother, and with the help of the Lard, will become a useful member of

Our Communion passed off to the entire satisfaction of members and friends. Ministerial aid from abroad was James Miller, from Portnge Prairie, and David Hostetter, from Rock Run, Elkhart County, Indiana, with many other deacons and lay members, from South Bend, Portage Prairie, and Berien Congregations. All contributing to make the season an enjoyable one, and long to be remembered by many who were present,

Next morning, at 9 o'clock, the members mel to carry out a former agreement, that of selecting from themselves one to take part in the ministry. The lot fell upon Benjamin Redding, whose name, together with one in the second degree, was unnounced as the result of the vote, the first to be received into the ministry, the other to be ordained to the ministry. All of which was done in the most solemn and impressive manner. May God command his blessings to rest upon all the work, that the church may prosper, souls saved, and banself gloratied.

Dear Brethren:— IMIE little congregation here is not in as quesperous condition as we desire; however we do not intend to give up in despair, but shall strive on in our weak and imperfect manuer, to do all the good we can. We are but few in number, and are all nothing but new born balles in Christ, i. c., that take any interest in it our intention, to forsake the assembling of | last November there were two members; now ourselves together; but we meet every two there are ten. weeks in our social meetings to comfort and encourage one another by reading and talking out of the Holy Scriptures. Dear Brethren:-

OUR communion meeting, 4th inst, passed off very pleasantly. Unusual large congregations, and good order. Many visited us from other congregations, which made us feel happy. Especially the presence of old Brethren Hiel Hamilton, Isaac Ikenberry, Samuel and Daniel Bock, Billheimer-to see the old veterans of the cross stand up for Jesus, with their locks white as snow, stand up and defend the truth, inspired as with new zeal, and we here again made the solemn vows to do better in the future than we have done in the past. God, help us to carry out our desires.

Many thanks to the dear brethren that labored so earnestly for us. God, bless the old veteraus of the cross. There were no additions, but the best of feelings. When Brother Hamilton was breaking the bread and passing the cup, entire solemnity seemed to seize the congregation. The Lord bless all to his honor GEORGE W. CRIPE. and glory.

Dear Brethren:-

) ROTHER Lemmel Hillery vame to us on) the 31st of May, and continued meeting one week; preached eight sermons in all, and his labors were crowned with success; four precions souls came out from the world, and were buried with Christ in baptism, and rose to walk in newness of life.

Our church is in a flourishing condition, and love and union prevail. We invite all the brethren, especially ministering brethren, to stop with us, who may pass by this way. Our meeting-house is less than one-half a mile from the depot, and brothren living within a few steps of the depot.

Brother Hillery is now holding forth the glid tidings of salvation among the brethren at Walnut Creek Church. We hope that he may be blossed, and his efforts be the means of larnging many to Christ, and he receive for his reward, a crown of life everlasting.

Your unworthy brother,

Dear Brethren:-

TMIE Love-feast of the Com River Church, June 3rd and 4th, was very interesting and profitable. More members present than ever heretafore. Ministers were present from Panther Creek and Dallas Center. Two deacons were chosen. The lot fell on Brethren S. C. Devilbise and C. L. Ferree, We hope and pray that they may be faithful, and prove to be beloers in the church.

On the 5th, the writer, accompanied by Brethren M. Deardorff, A. Brower and C. L. Ferre; started to Adair County, to hold a few meetings; attendance and attention good, and the cause. We have not, as yet, nor neither is much interest. When we first went there PEAUSE I do what James commands (Jas. I 5:12, 14) and believe what he says, viz: be prayered both shall save the sick, and the ed will raise him up, and if he has committed Mithou shall be forgiven him! (v. 15), Mr. R. Footbees me as a Masphemer. His own church merly believed and practiced the same. See beliem's Ecc. His., pp. 201, 729. My Master in Similar charges, $\mathbf{M}_{\mathbf{T}}/\mathrm{R}_{+}$ (Matt. 9; 3.) John 36, 37), hence I faint not. Anointing is not Fendent upon the gift of miracles. world's style is to become peculiar, 2. It is better to imitate the habits of the prudent and pious, than to be enslaved by the changing, restless votaries of pride. 3. Social, uniform plainness is the most successful method of withstanding the world. 4. Uniformity is in harmony with God's arrangements in nature. 5. It is in harmony with the appearance of the saints in light. Rev. 7: 9, 13, 6. It is in harmony with every principle of rectitude, prudence and success in life. In all departments of life, these teach as to bestow our attention on what is tried, good, and substantial, and never to forsake them for the uncertainties of change and chance. 7. Mutual advantages grow out of it to church members. The recognition of each other, though strangers in the flesh, among the crowds of the world; the mutual kindness and interchange of fruternal confidence and affection can be fully appreciated only by those who realize them. 8. Facts show that those churches that socially oppose uniform distinction in dress, do not maintain a distinction from the world in this respect at all. II. If those who oppose uniformity in dress, but still preach plainness, should succeed in induring their adherents to observe strictly their teachings, the result would be a uniform opposition to the fashions of the world, which would effectually destroy their uwn avowed premises at present, and result in the very thing they appose in us.

It is not true, however, that the brethren make any form, cut, or color of dress a condition of membership. The church's work in this is advisory and persuasive.

Our sisters wear "bounds" to protect for heat, cold, rain, sunshine, etc., hence, in the house, they remove them as useless incumbrances. Their modest, neat, white caps do "reil" their heads as the apostle commands. If Mr. R has any purer, more modest, genteel, christian-like head dress to offer as a substitute, we will listen to him.

Ridwide is neither argument nor sense. Suppose Quakers and Catholics have some christian principles and customs? do they, therefore, cease to be characteristics of Christ's church? I would they were altogether one with us in

But my triend grows quite uneasy under my proofs from Mr. Ray. If our Brethren wore "sheep-skins and goaf-skins," &c., he could not condemn the practice without condemning others whom he calls "churches of Christ." The same is true respecting our general peruliarities. My friend's "Negative line" unchurches his whole "Baptist Succession;" hence I consider D. B. Ray a valuable witness in this trial, and cannot dismiss him yet.

My fourth reason why the Brethren possess this characteristic, is, that they will not fellowship such clerical titles as 'Rev.' &c. This is applied in the scripture to none but God. Psa. 111; 9. Such titles leget respect of person-(Jas. 2; 1), encourage emulations (Gal. 5; 20, 21), elevate a mark for the ambitious, and tend to pride, and hence to destruction. Prov. 16: 5, Jas. 4; 6, 1 Pet. 5; 5. The Waldenses upposed such vanity as strongly as the Brethren do. See Rob. Eccl. Res., p. 314. My friend admits they were churches of Christ, hence I prove by him that this is characteristic of Corist's church.

7th Characteristic, The Charele is, Christ's Body. 1 Cor. 12: 27, Eple 4: 15, 5: 23, Col. 1

My first reason why the Brethren possess this characteristic, is, that they acknowledge no head hat Clarst

Mr R says "According to their own testimony, the original Tunker church was composed of those toptized by an unregenerate child | says, "Many denominations derive their mane of Satan," This is untrue. We must have hands of one who was fighting against God style of dress, and to refuse to follow the But it an administrator had been a bad man, Founder is too high above every other name to i that would not invalidate proper baptism received by a proper subject. The gospel 'given by inspiration' may be communicated even through men of unholy motives and character (Phil. 1: 17-18), yet it is "the power of God" able to make believers "wise unto salvation," and is adapted to the perfection of the man of from J. N. Brown in a newspaper article, Mr. God. Rom. 1: 6, 2 Tim. 3: 16. They who do God's will "know of the doctrine whether it be of God," John 7: 17. To hear Christ's sayings and do them is to be built upon the rock (Matt. 7: 24-26), and not even an apostle may gainsay or forbid his work. Mark 9: 38-40, Luke 9: 49, 50. When Mr. R. defines what he calls "Scriptural Church Succession," so that we know exactly what he means and gives us some argument in support of his position, it will be time enough to ask us to "respond," Will be do it? In asking him to mention one denomiuntion that can trace an unbroken organic connection from the present time to the apostles through a people just like themselves, I was not asking him to discuss Baptist Succession,-for they have no such succession, as every intelligent church historian in the world knows .hence. I press the question again as being "pertinent." Will be answer? We can show as complete a succession of that kind as any example he may adduce, and are willing to abide the comparison. Is that not a fair proposition? Our Brethren have never written their history. There is no historical account of them which the church endorses as correct. Bro. B. F Moomaw, of Va., who has lived and labored long in the church, says: "We are misrepresented and standered by the historical accounts punlished of our people. . . . The account of Buck. the History of Va, the religious Denominations of the World, and others . . . are unwarranted by truth." (Letter dated May 4, 1874.) The understandings and traditions of our old Brethren are more reliable on this subject, than, any thing else we have. With these to guide, I think I could make out a better case of succession than Mr. Ray can. I am informed that many of our older Brethren understood that Bro. Mack, who was chosen the first minister of the Swartzenan organization in 4708, was a Wablensian. Bro. A. H. Cassel, of Penn , now advanced in years, whose private antiquarian hbrary contains over thirty-five thousand manuseripts and volumes of rare worth, and who is perhaps better acquainted with the early mind of our Brethren than any one move living, understands that Bro. Mack was a Waldensian. Hesays he knows he fled to Swartzenau, Germany, prior to this organization as a refugee from religious persecution. Bro. Jesse Calvert, of Ind. informs me that "Smith and English," the large book importers of Philadelphia, informed him that an old German book on the persecution of the Waldenses, containing an account of this, had one passed through their hands, mention ing Bro. Mack as a Waldenson, Bro. Casse informs me by letter that old Bro. Kurtz (a Gernan Brother, with whom he was personally will acquainted), who gave our history a good deal of attention and intended preparing a historical work had he lived, who was a fair specimen id the mind of our brotherhood in his day on questions of denominational importance and whicefounded our first paper in America, ("The Gospel Visitor,") claimed that there were testimonies of the existence of an apostolic church from the beginning connecting with our Brethren en America, through the amient Waldenses and Adogenses. He says, "Bro. Kurtz beheves Bro. Mack was a Huldensian, and certamly not without a good reason. I heard him preach several times on the subject. He was the best posted man on Waldenson history that Terrand" (Letter to the writer.) Bro. Wortz from some great and emment man who is conavail themselves of it for their denomination. Among themselves they have no other name but the one granted by their Lord and Savior Jesus Christ-Matt. 23: 8-Brethren': Gospel Visitor, vol. 1, p. 4. Because our young Bro. J. H. Moore has quoted the Baptist account Ray picks up his own Bro. Brown's language, a part of which we know to be untrue, and exlubits it as "Tunker History," But the Brethren are not such slaves to tradition as to be under the necessity of tracing such councetion. "We prove our church by our doctrine, and not our doctrine by the church," It is enough to know that Christ has always had witnesses somewhere on earth who have been and in him, and that all churches organized in the faith and practice of the gospel have "their origin under the ministry of Christ and his apose tles," whether in 1st or 19th century.

INGERSOLL SILENCED

CHORTLY after Robert G. Ingersoll was de-I feated in his race for the governorship of Illinois, he was one day hoisterously and blusphemously proclaiming his infidelity on board of a railroad train between Chicago and Peoris. After being for sometime offensively voluble, he turned to a gentleman near him and defiantly demanded, "Tell me of one good and great public result that Christianity has ever accomplished?" The gentleman, not wishing to open an argument with the beaster, hesitated to answer. The train had stopped and all was slowe in the car Just then an old lady of eighty years, who sat just behind Mr. Ingersall, touched his arm with her trembling hand and said, "Sir, I do not know who you are, but I think I can tell you of one glorious thing that Christianity has done,"

"What is it Madam?" said Ingersoft.

"It has kept lighert G. Ingersoll from being governor of the great State of Illinois," If lightning had that moment flashed through the car the effect would not have been greater. Ingersoll turned literally pale with rage, and remained silent. The grand old woman hes ander the prairie daisies now, but her courageous act "smells sweet, and blosoms in the dust."

A RUSSIAN BAPTISM.

THE youngest child of the Russian Coarewitch was baptized recently with much gorgeous ceremony and great discomfact to hunself. The Czar bore hun to the fout where, his little highness was taken out of all his clothes and plunged in the water, head first, three times. The priest closed his eyes and nose with his fingers, but the angust new horn, as he is styled in large capitals in the programme for the day, screamet like any ordinary baby and evidently did not like it. He was then given to the godmother, wrapped up in blankets, and he dozed quietly while another prayer was said. He was only left in peace for a few anoments. The priest anomited his ears, eyes, month, hands and feet with holy oil that none of these members should do any harm in life. When the little fellow had recovered from his interruption and just begun to quiet down, he was again disturbed and all his hair out off, -Selected,

CALLING EVIL GOOD, AND GOOD EVIL.

BY JOHN L. SNAVELY.

"Were unto them that callevit good, and good evil; that put durkness for light, and hight for darkness; that put bitter for sweet, and swee for bitter," Isa, 5: 20.

(1)O the individual whose virtues and amiableness does not consist princi pally in those things that are highly es teemed among men, this subject is inter esting. To the individual who has not or has undertaken to serve Christ, not from a principle of true love to him, not because his virtues consist, and, me connected with a true regard for a/l the sayings of Jesus and his Word, to him it is important. Were there justice done to this sufficet,-fully delineated and drawn out, and the candle of the Lord taken, no dould many dark speds, and biemishes, and hiding places of the professors of the age would be brought to view. The word wor in our text is used as expressing great sorrow, and an Pinspired denunciation, and foreshadow ing of God's wrath" upon these characters, "that call good evil, and evil good, or that say concerning good, it is evil," or in other words, make truth the producer of error, light the cause of darkness, we can "call evil good, and good evil," both directly and indirectly: for example, take the case that was brought to the Savier "possessed with a devil, ldind and dumb, and he healed then: but when the Pharisees heard it, they said, this fellow doth not cast out devils. but by Reelzelanb the prince of devils: they willfully and maliciously called good evil, by ascribing the works of the Savior to the Devil, and thus east comtempt upon religion, and the uninistrathan of the spirit."

and that by men that like to be called Christians. We take the position that any individual or church that does not trust in the power of Christin all things. and we'll not contend in their teaching. and the most of the literal observance of age, the recognition of Contist not all the sour destroying monster sin, more less since God walked the earth in his all God's commands, but will take their way, and risk the danger of meeting him in disobedience when he comes, taking vengeance on them that obey not his gospel, are calling "good evil, and putting darkness for light." The church or individual that has become so corrupt and so exalted, and so pharisaical as to love the praise of men more than the praise of God, love to be highly esteemed by men, and do what works they doto be seen of men is going to a fearful extremity in guilt, "is provoking the final withdrawment of God's grace." Such churches and individuals are not ashamed to "call good evil, and evil good," are not afraid to speak cvil of "dignities, not afraid to pronounce a portion of the blessed sayings, as "non essential," as things indifferent, of no use, are not afraid to "call good evil," by discountenancing those, and the practice of those who are willing to yield in obedience to the commands of Christ, and thus bring contempt upon Christianity, and the works of Gaul.

The righteous are represented as in quiring of the Savior, "When saw we thee naked, and clothed thee; when saw we thee athirst, and give thee drink; when saw we thee sick and in prison, and visited thee?" The righteous judge is found answering, "As much as ye have done it unto these the least of my brethren, ye have done it unto me." So also ye who appearso decent and friendly, with great appearance of love for the souls of men, but have taught some things contrury to Scripture, and some things you the praise of men more than you did me, which he has called evil, is evil. A FEW WORDS FOR OUR EDIFI. CATION.

BY WILLIAM BINKLE.

everity, verily I say unto you, If a man keep my sayings, he shall never see death." John 8:

EVER to see death, is to enjoy eter A nal life. That happiness to be ger from eternal death, when we have sipped off this robe of flesh and lain dawn to our long rest. Hence our aim and our care should be, how to avoid death in the life to come. To die, after out rarthly life is passed, can in no wise harm us, for that death is only a door to the saints, whereby they may enter eter ual life; and of this the Lord speaks in om text.

O, if we would only get a true idea of the happiness that awaits the faithful, had we only a foretaste thereof in our souls, we would soon despise the vanities of this world, and seek to be worthy of eternal happiness. Gold, silver, riches, honor, and other things, what will it avail? Everything must pass away. nothing can help us in the hour of death. Brethren and sisters, let us look in faith apon that which is real; let us seek it.

Happy is the soul entering eternal life, that has been united with God through Christ while here below; for he will remain with him also in eternity.

We may use the things of this life, as far as our duties demand, but should always look upon our chief concern, and Jesus; for it is through him, that we may inherit eternal treasures. If we have been planted in Christ, he will raise us up with him unto everlasting life.

Just here one might ask: How can | I get into Christ! Jesus says, "if we keep his sayings, we shall never see death." Now, it would hardly be necessary to mention that nothing is meant here, that we should keep outwardly, but rather a read the Scriptures, for the more we required of us. The Holy Bible is to is like a letter from a dear friend,—we delight in reading it. To the child of [God, the Bible is a letter from their best friend. His disciples rend the Word, to profit thereby; to them it is not an empy sound, but reality.

It is evident, then, that those who read God's Word, will show by their walk and conversation that they are his true followers, "Whosoever leveth me, keep eth my commandments." To keep his commandments, is to love him, to eday Im in every thing. If we love Christ, We will gladly obey him. If his love is glowing in us, we shall prove it by a ho-4 life, walk, and conversation.

LET IT PASS.

DE not swift to take oftense: Let it pass! Anger is a fee to sense; Let it pass! Brood not darkly o'er a wrong Which will disappear ere long; Rather sing this cheery song-Let it pass!

het it pass! Strife corrodes the purest mind; Let it pass! As the unregarded wind, Let it pass! Any vulgar souls that live May condemn without reprieve; Tis the noble who forgive. Let it mas! Let it pass!

Echo not an angry word: thet it pass! Think how often you have erred; Let it pass! Since our joys must pass away, Like the dewdrops on the spray, Wherefore should our sorrows stay? Let them pass? thet them pass!

It for good you've taken ill, Let it pass! Oh! be kind and gentle still; Let it pass! Time at last makes all things straight; Let us not resent, but wait, And our triumph shall be great; Let it pass! het it pass!

WORDS FITLY SPOKEN.

—All the Year Round,

BOV W. J. H. BAUMAN.

"Words fithy spoken are like apples of gold in pactures of silver " Prov. 25; 11.

ONCE while laboring somewhat under mental despondency, I received a letter from a dear brother containing words of encouragement. Gloom vanished and I felt revived, I immediately thought of the words of Solomon, "May kind friends grow up all around you. be not discouraged, lean on the strong arm," were the brother's words. These that is, how to acquire or obtain eternal to me were words fitly spoken and were lattempt to walk in this way." But now there shall be no objections to holding life. Let us follow in the footsteps of charming like "apples of gold in pictures of silver." There are dark times in the experience of all; yet none so dark lort what a kind word -a word fitly spoken will cause at least a degree of light to shine around us. Oh, how many are driven to utter despair by unkind words! O how heavy falls the blow of treacherons friendship! O how discouraging when the fact stares us in the face, that friends who lived in our sunshine vanheart that is pure, and obeys the Lord [ished when winter came! O how awin all things. We should not forget to fully discouraging when we are compelled to see those who profess the holy read, the better we will know what is principles of Christianity which are designed to save and raise up the fallen, to cheer the despondent, to aid the needy, to hide the multitude of sins &c., turn upon us to rend us, and to rain us! Yet such things are apt to be the lot of many a one, (what we have felt and seen, with confidence we tell), and nothing will keep hip courage better under such trying ordeals than a practical application of the sentiment in our text. "Words fiely spoken &c." Having an experimental knowledge of the effect that words of encouragement will produce we shall en deavor to apply practically the same, and would say to all who are despendbe not disconraged, but lean on the strong arm of God, lean on it by faith, and an humble resignation to his will in all things. God will help you and that right early. Stand still and behold the salvation of God. Don't desert the standard of King Jesus when your trials are heavy. Cling the closer to him. In him you have a friend who sticketh closer than a brother. Kind friends will grow up all around you, and you'll find warm, sympathizing friends among the passers by. Their words fitly spoken will be to you like apples of gold in pictures of silver, and though your enemies may be all around you and thirsting for your blood — destruction, the friends you have are true—tried and will stand by you in darkness as well as in sunshine.

"O, stand the storm it won't be long, We'll anchor by and by,"

Yes, anchor on the other side of the stormy ocean of mortality. Anchor in the city of pence from whence the accuser of our ligethren has been cast out, where no tears will be shed, no sorrows pierce our breast. No death sever the ties of holy friendship, no enemies among us where friendship beams, from every eye, and love immortal glows,

May God grant that in the above facts we may all practically profit and find comfort though surrounded by the sorrows of death. Amen.

DON'T GIVE UP.

MEAN, don't become discouraged cease making efforts, and thus lose what you have wrought. Very likely you have been burdened, if you are walk ing in Jesus' footsteps. Resisting sin and performing duty has cost you vigorous elfort, severe mental struggles. The burden has seemed to grow heavier, the cares to multiply, while with sick heart and weary brain you could not feel that the work was moving on, that you were accomplishing aught for the Master. Perhaps, care-worn and sorrow-stricken, you have looked to the wrong source for comfort. Thinking only of your own sorrow, you slept instead of agonizing with the Lord. Of course you denied him; and then in your latter regret, with the ing performance in it, such as would not enemy triumphing over your downfall, you almost felt to say, "It is useless to that he has followed you, and comes with the tender inquiry, "Lovest thou me more than these!" can you refuse to engage the enemy once more in his name! Ah! you have learned a lesson, and from henceforth you will not try to bear your burden alone, but will share it with him. New you are ready to say, while you feel his sweet smile of pardon for your lack of faith, Give me some work, and make me alde to do it.

"TER, blossed work for Josus (Oh, rest at Jesus') tieen. feet!

There tool seems pleasure, my wants are tre sure,

And pain for line is sweet. Lord, if I may, I'll toil another day."

There is a pleasure in contemplating good; there is greater pleasure in receiving good; but the greatest pleasure of all is in doing good, which comprehends the rest.

The mail hit, Says Spurgeon: "We ought to have room for enthusiasts, even if they violate every rule of grammar. Λ grand, Iduadering, hammering, thundering, whole hearted. Beauerges is worth a regiment of prim, reverend genent and heart-broken because of having [tlemen, meek as milk and water, and to pass through the above named trials, soft as boiled parsuips."

UNCLE JOHN.

N Southern Illinois is a town of about 1400 inhabitants, and in that town, as in other towns, live the rich and the poor. The rich have their stylish church. es, and the poor don't feel themselves welcome in them. They have their Sabbath Schools, but the poor children don't go there, because they feel that they will be despised because they can not dress as do the rich.

Near the same town lives an old veteran of the cross who has passed the allotted time ordinarily to men's lives, but he is still strong, vigorous, both in body and mind. The people, generally, and, especially, the poor children of that country, call him Uncle John.

A few years ago he concluded to build a meeting-house in town, and although he commenced the world poor and las spent, perhaps, as much time and money in the service of the Lord as any man now-in the Brotherhood, he says the Lord gave him all he has, and to the Lord he will lend again by providing for the poor. He procured the ground and built a house 40 by 45 feet, with a brick lasement, costing him over two thousand dollars besides the ground. While he was building this house, poor children would be about him and ask him many questions after this sort; "Unele John, will you have free meeting in this house? Your people are all plain, the poor people of town can meet with them, can't they, Uncle John?"-"Yes, they can all come." "Uncle John, will you have Sabbath-school, in your new house?"—"Yes, I hope we will."—"Then we poor children can come to Saldathschool, too, can't we, Uncle John?" "Yes, I want you all to come and be good children," &c.

When the house was linished he made the following proposition to the church over which he presides as Elder—not as a lord, but as an example to the flock:

Proposition: Here is the house, 4 with deed it to the church, in fee simple, upon the condition that it can never be sold from the brethren while the world stands; and second, that there is no unbecombe in harmony with the Brethren's view of christian doctrine; and, third, that Sabbath school in the house, and be so conducted that all the poor children will feel at home there. The offer was accepted, and he donated it all, a free gift to the church. This is one of Uncle John's acts of benevolence. We might mention more. The town is Cerro Gordo; the man is John Metzgar; and to such men honor is due, more than to the hero of a hundred lattles.

The story is told of a woman who freely used her tongue to the scandal of others, and confessed to the priest what she had done. He gave her a ripe thistle top, and told her to go out in various directions and scatter the seeds one by one. Wondering at the penance, she obeyed, and then returned and told her confessor. To her amazement, he bade her go back and gather the scattered seeds; and when she objected that it would be impossible, he replied that it would be still more difficult to gather up and destroy all the evil reports which she had circulated about others. Any thoughtless, careless child can scatter a handful of thistle seed before the wind in a moment; but the strongest and wisest man cannot gather them again.

OUR BOW.

LARLY in life we formed an attachment to church literature. The contents of our church periodicals were read with thrilling interest. Many times when we beheld a pen meture by a spirited writer of the problem of life have we found

"The lighest word Would harrow up our soul; freeze our young

Make our two eyes, like stars, start from their

And each particular hair to stand on end, Like quills apon a fretful porcupiue."

As years rolled on the necessary changes from hoyhood to manhood came. The burden of life was placed upon our back, and increased rapidly in weight. We not only doubted our ability to be happy in this world, but of "shuffling off this mortal coil" without having attained to that Divine nature which all do who have their robes washed white in the blood of the Lamb. This was a matter of no small moment to us, and many sleepless nights did we spend in meditation upon it.

Feeling the necessity of a better education in order to drink deeper from the fountain of truth, we left our home in Iowa and went to a school in Southern Ohio. We had necocquaintances either in the school or in the State. The last words of our mother, when leaving home, and as she hade me good-bye, were, "Keep good company". These words rung in our ears and involuntarily formed most of our thoughts by day and our dreams by night.

The first good company we missed after entering school was the Christien Family Companion. This paper had been a family companion to us at home. We sent for it at once. If came promptly, and oh! how eagerly did we scan its pages. It seemed to carry as back to the ubl home circle. Its form, its print, its ductrine, and the names of the writers, all com-Lincil to add to its charms. We have read this paper ever since, though its name has been changed several times.

Next came to us the BRETHER AT WORK. We shid not become much interested in it, until Brother Bashor became one of its editors. We felt a deep sense of gratifude which we owed to him for his untiring izeal and imwonted devotedness to the cause of Christ; consequently as soon as he became a member of the firm we became wedded to the paper. (We dol not know either of the other chiors finingetal. Our ocempation was school-teaching. This our health would not permit us to tollow, and therefore accepted a position in the Breeners vi $W \circ i \kappa k$ uffice as "clerk." Since we have been in the office we have become still more attached to the work. We find that thousands of souls have begin loosed from the shackles of sin and death. by the truffa disseminated, through the papers. They have been the means of importing the truth as it is in Jesus, and of opening to view that "marvelous light."

This much we have be encourage as to go torward in the work. But there is another side; unborn nations may yet live and sutter for what we do . "Their works do rollor them," is no more true of the accurate than the inaccurare. With those who have all hel books behand then which have found their way to almest every family in the civilized world, what an awful reckoning there must be on the day of pulgment! BURDENS GROW NO LESS.

WE know not what the future will bring forth, for God holds that forth, for God holds that in his own hand, but we can say, as the Apostle James, "If the bord will, we shall live, and do this or that." We can only resolve to do, and then, by the grace of God, "perform the doing of it," 2 Cor. 8: 11.

Conscious that I have assumed no less responsibilities by the retirement of Brother Moore, I cheerfully press on under the leadership of Him who has upheld me in days that are past and gone. Sweet has been his name. and tovingly has he borne me along the rugged road of lite as he doth all bis elect. Back vander are the mistakes, the way-wanderings and the crooked marks-bad enough, indeed. but the precious promise of Jesus, "Him that cometh to me, I will m no wise cast out"___ John 6: 27-urges me onward.

The BRETHREN AT WORK will continue to be an earnest exponent of "the true light, which lighteth every man that cometh rato the world:" and not shan to declare the whole counsel of God. It maintains that "whatever was written aforetime, was written , for our learning," and "is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteonsness," that all of us "may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." 2 Tim. 3: 16, 17, In view of this we are not unwilling to he reproved, corrected, and instructed in the Spirit of Christ. We have no use for error. We have no idea of trying to become wiser and better by graveling in darkness, hence rather invite correction and reproof wherever necessary. Tenth injures no man, therefore let the Truth by the basis of all our doings. What Gold has written by holy men of old, will be accepted as final on all points. We appeal to the Report of God, stand by it, accept it, teach it, and by the grave of God shall die by it, he raised by it, crowned by it.

HOW MAY WE INDUCE POOR CHILDREN TO ATTEND OUR BIBLE SCHOOL?

CHILDREN have tastes, desires, likes and () dislikes as well as men and women. They have tender teerings, are ready to imitate, put on and take off just like their fathers and mothers. Are they kindly treated? Then they kindly treat others and are pleasant companions. Do you love them? Then they love too. Do you abuse, scold, fret and worry? Ah! be careful, they may learn that business too, and then when you are old, perhaps you will be scolded too. You may get your seading back with usury. Are the children hearing father and mother pray? Are they taken to the assembly of the saints every Lord's day to hear singing, prayer, and preaching? Are they given Bibles and Hymn Books so that they can read and sing? Do you take them by the hand and lead them to the Bible School to study the Bible? Are you dressing your children plantly in obsdience to the command of God? If you say $\gamma_{H^{(s)}}$ then you are doing your part to induce poor children to attend School.

Our subject nuplies that some children are not attending Bible School. There must be a cause for their absence. We are after the cause, and want it removed. If a serpent gets in my way and impedes my onward course, I do all I can to kill it. I want to get it out of the way, and the only alternative is to kill it. So if a serpent hunders poor children from going to Bible School, we must hasten to $kill\ it$, and then the little traveler can go on. Now hear some of the things that are keeping poor little boys and girls from Bible School. One little boy says: " It is so sold in ninter, and my clothes are so thin that I cannot go_i^{α}

What is the remedy? I do not ask what is the duty of the skeptic, the unbeliever, but what is the duty of the Christian in this instance? Make the poor child comfortable even if you must BEG the raiment. Arise, stretch to th your hands, and rescue the perishing child! It will not simply do to sing,

"Besone the perisbing. Care for the dying," but we must actually reseme and cure. To say and not do is sinner-like, but to say and do is among chadaen, their Schools will be crowned ared. All distances here are estimated in hones, the great multitude of pilgrans of the Greek with success. But if we should become lax in Loud in bour on the average, is three miles.

this respect—if we should permit our children to ribbon, lace, and ruffle, so that they cannot step or bend without pain, and lead others to similar evils, or keep the poor away from school, then good-bye to success. Simplicity gives power; and unless we maintain gospel simplicity in dress, manners, habits, dealings, speech, &c., our schools cannot impart any spiritual strength to any one.

Vain dressing keeps the poor from Bible Schools, from church, from fellowship and society. I am willing to spend and be spent for our dear youth, but if parents should insist on adorning their children in costly array and fancy patterns to gratify the king of fashion, then I shall raise my voice and pen against organizakeep books, and then at last lose more than tions that run in this channel. No school that permits its pupils to dress in a manner to keep the poor away is worthy the name "Bible School," nor can it accomplish the good that its leaders may wish. Every rich man can dress his children plainly, but poor men cannot dress their children in the ever changing fashions of this age of the world. And nothing tends to separate so much as dress. The fluely dressed, do not feel right to associate with the plainly dressed, nor do the plainly dressed enjoy the society of the fashionably adorned. Hence the most successful school is that which insists on all its pupils dressing plainly. Why will parents pursue a course that is not attended with blessings? Why dress your children in a manner that keeps away from school, your dear neighbor's children? God loves the poor, Jesus died for them too, arose for them, was crowned for them, pleads for them. Will we keep all the evils out with "the sword of the spirit? For your sakes, your children's sakes, the sake of the poor, let us all dress plainly and clothe our children in like manner.

But now a little girl speaks and says: "Your school is all right, but one of the teachers spake very radely to me the other day, and as I am poor, perhaps that is the reason."

Too bad, my dear little girl! How a teacher could speak rudely to you I cannot tell. Teachers ought to know better than to do that, and I suppose most teachers do. But do not let that little rudeness keep you away from school. As professors of Christianity we must be gentle to all men, kind, long-suffering. Never treat any one rudely. Be cheerful, be patient, and do all you can to bring the poor into your school. There is many a gem hidden under rags. Hespise no one on account of his dress. Esteem no one because he is fixed up nicely by the taifor. A man will be judged by his actions. But in too many instances a man's standing in soenery is in accordance with his raiment. "Judge righteous judgment, and not by appearance." Clothes do not make character, but they are to some extent an index of character. Actions are not always imbestive of a good heart. The rudely just because he feels like it. Our Josus recommends kindness, gentleness, mediness, patience, charity. All successful teachers are in passession of these divine graces, hence are

When about half way, we ascended a steep, naked hill, and dismounted by the side of a high rock which east a shade large enough to protect us from the sun while we ate our lunch. This is the reputed place where, as our dragoman expressed it, the "good Samaritan fell among from the true site of that event. Of this, more thieves." It is a very suitable place for the hereafter. It is certainly, however, a good place sudden attack and escape of robbers, but we saw several others that would have suited as well. It more certainly fulfilled another passage of Scripture, for the spot where we rested was literally what Isaiah calls "the shadow of a great rock in a weary land."

As we neared the Jordan Valley our path lny along the precipitous side of Wady Kelt, the brook Cherith of Scripture, where Elijah was concealed and fed by ravens. Brother Earland Brother Taylor were considerably in advance when they reached this spot, and the latter, hearing the rush of fresh water in the gorge below, and thinking it but a short distance down, started down to get a drink. When we came up he was out of sight and hearing, the steep brown rocks hiding hun from view, and the roar of the stream dashing over its rough bed drowning our voices. We rode on, leaving Brother Earl to wait for him. When he overtook us we asked him how the water of Elijah's brook tested; but he said, that after clambering down several hundred feet, he came to a perpendicular cliff with the water still far below him, and then climbed back again without a drink. After reaching the Jordan plain we crossed this brook, on our way to Jericho, and it was my purpose to explore it for a mile or two up its narrow and deep tissure, but my dragoman assured me that I could not make my way on horseback, and that it would be exceedingly toilsome on foot; so I contented myself with what I had already seen of it, realizing its perfect fitness as the hiding-place of the prophet.

Our tents were pitched beside the fountain which Elisha healed (2 Kings 2: 19-22), and which is therefore called by Christians Elisha's Founten, while the Arabs call it The Sultan Fountain, using the word Sultan to indicate its pre-eminence among the fountains of the vicinity. It is a splendid spring, sending forth water enough to run a mill, and giving verdure to eight or ten square miles of the plain which would otherwise be barren. It marks the site of the am ient Jericho, not a vesture of which remains except a mound consisting of plaster, building stones, sun-dried bricks, and bruken pottery. It is fifty or sixty feet high, and a quarter of a mile long, and lies just above the fountain and to the west. About a mile further west rise the mountains into which the spies of Joshua fied when Rahab helped them to escape. the of these mountains, called Karantel by the Arabs, and Quarantania by Christians, was fixed upon by the considers as the mountain of Christ's temptation; but they selected it arbistyrst rogue will seem religious when it is to trarily, and any one of a dozen mountains in his advantage, but no Caristian should ever act | the vicinity, most of them much higher than Karantel, is as likely to be the real one. The modern Jericho, so called, is a little nest of miserable Arab huts on Wady Kelt, about two miles from the ancient Jericho, and about the same distance from the mountains. One building recently put up, and called a hotel, but unworthy of the name, and a one storied Greek monastery, 80 feet, long and 40 wide, give a slight air of respectability to the place. We saw a single palm near the monastery, to remind us that Jericho was once known as "the city of palm frees."

On the next day after reaching Elisha's fountain, we took a ride to the Dead Sea, distant ten miles. We started early to avoid the heat, and got there at 7 o'clock. Of course we plunged in for a swim; and such a swim we mever had before. the "holy week," come down here on Monday after Easter to bathe. It is the reputed site of the Savior's baptism, fixed upon without reason by the Crusaders; but it is the furthest of all the fords, or rather ferries, of the Jordan, away for haptizing; for although, at this season the water is 8 or 10 feet deep in the channel, there is a gradual descent on each side with a gravelly bottom, and the only drawback to perfect comfort is the swiftness of the current. I have myself, however, baptized in the Missouri River, where the current was swifter. We waded ulmut and swam in the water till we thoroughly tested its depth, its current, and the character of its bottom.

On Wednesday the 23rd, we moved up the Jordan Valley to the Damieh (Dam'-i-eh) ferry, so called from Tell Damieh, the ruin of an ancient city culled Damich on the plain east of the river. This name is supposed to be the Arabic corruption of Adam, the name of the eity to which the back water of the Jordan was heaped up when the river parted before Israel. (Josh, 3: 16). Here again we tested the water by wading and swimming, and found on the east side a fine place for immersing, with a clean gravelly bottom; and on the west one equally good, except that it was a little muddy at the edge. The width of the stream here, from water's edge to water's edge, was 130 feet, and its greatest depth was 8 feet. We measured it as we crossed in the boat, measuring the width along the rope by which the hoat is pulled over. We wished, while wading and swimming in the river, that we had Mr. Ditzler, and a dozen other Methodist preachers with us, so as to make them testify that the Jordan is neither too swift, nor too rold, nor too deep, nor too shallow, to serve as a fine place for immersing.

Some two or three hundred yards above this ferry, hidden in a thicket of tamarisk and bulrushes, are the ruins of an uncient stone bridge by which the river was crossed in the better days of this country. Our dragonian knew nothing of it, but when I inquired through him of the Sherk who was now our protector, he immediately pronounced the words Jisr Dumieh, Danich bridge, and pointed toward it. By the and of an aximan to chop a way for us through the brush, and the guidance of the Sheik, we soon found it, and rode under three of the archbe by which it approached the stream on the eastern side. These arches have a span of 20 feet, and they show that the roadway of the bridge was 12 feet wide. The rains of other arches and of the abatments of those at the water's edge, are visible, and at comparatively litthe expense the structure might be restored.

The Damieh terry is situated immediate west of the point at which the hover valley of the river Jaldock cuts into that of the Jordan; but the stream of the former bends to the northward just here, and enters the Jordan above the old bridge. We passed up the Jabbok, now called Wady Zerka, about 8 miles, to where it passes from the Gilead Mountains into the Jordan plant. Here, near its northern bank, is a Tell, as the Arabs call it, or the ruin of an ancient city in the shape of a mound. It is called Hammann (Ham-marm) had nather, and takes its name from a spring of hot water a little further up the stream. Here again I had to resort to the Sheak for information as to the locality, and be called an Arab from harvesting his little wheat putch, to find the spring for us. When we came to the spot the spring was dry, and the Arah said that the only way to find the water was to dig for it. I began to feel disappointed, when it occurred to me, that as the spot pointed out was about 20 feet above the level of the Jahbok, the spring might have found an underground channel into the river; so I chambered down the rocky and almost perpendicular bank, and there I found three little streams of hot water trickling along from maler the ledge. Their temperatur was (6) . I am indebted to Dr. Merrill, of the American Palestine Exploration Society, for my information about this spring, and I think by is its discoverer.

IN company with Brethren Basher and Harp er, left home May 23rd for Keyser, W. Va-We glided pleasantly along, sometimes under ground, sometimes on the surface, sometimes in the light then in darkness as we went plunging through tunnel after tunnel, experiencing almost Egyptian darkness; but we were borne along, as we found ourselves on the morning of the 24th about 2 A. M. at Keyser. Brother A. J. Hixon joined us just before we landed at Keyser. Here we were met by Brother Leatherman and conveyed to Pine Church, about thirty miles away. We builed about 2 P. M. Met many dear facilds, brothren and sisters whose acquaintances I had formed a little over two years ugo.

Services here commenced by a brother announcing hymn 682. After singing the hymn and prayer, the 59th and 60th verses of the 119th Psalm were selected, an aspaken from by a brother. Later in the evening we enjoyed the privilege of listening to Brethren Bashor and Hixon talk on the subject of self-examination. After services the tables were prepared and the brethren and sisters gathered around them to enjoy the Love-feast. Brother Bashor. not being able to remain with us during the Love-feast, was conveyed to Dr. Leatherman's, and there took a fine rest. The Love-feast passed off finely. All seemed to enjoy it very much

The next morning we had a very pleasant meeting: Brethren Bashor and Hixon did the speaking. After services the Brethren thought best to assign to each one of mea place of meeting, to which we all consented. I was left at Pine Church, Brother Hivon to Beaver Run, Brother Bashor to Morelield, Brother Harper remaining with me; we protracted the meeting in the daytime and evening until Friday evening following, at which time we haptized fourteen. We then dismissed to go to A. M. After we had dismissed we were requested to return to them after A. M., which I consented to do.

Saturday morning we again started to A. M. We appointed Brother Hixon to report our trip across the mountains, hence I omit that looking for a report from Jum. We are on the ground of A. M. A large crowd is bere, Meeting passed off well. Brother R. H. Miller was Moderator, and a very good one loo; everything connected with the meeting under the management of the Brethren in Virginia was just grand. The brethren and sisters in Virginia have made themselves many warm friends all over the Brotherhood by their kindness during the meeting. May the good Lord Idess them, is my prayer, Meeting over, started back to Pine Church. Brother Harper and I gid, our packets picked at Winchester; guess we got umong the wrong class of Brethren. Landed in Keysor Saturday morning about 3 A. M. Took the back about 8 en route for Pine Church. Left the linck and stopped at Brother Z. Arnold's, about A.P. M., for dinner. Spent some time with them; while there a paper was handed to me, containing a notice of a meeting to be held at Pine Church, on Tuesday, June 10th, by the presiding elder of the M. E. Church South. (We here note that the Pine Church is Union House,) His subject was haptism. We del not get alarmed about that, but went on to our appointment for Saturday evening. Landed there in due time; met a large crowd much excited over the contemplated meetings, thinking that now the Dunkards and the M. E. South would have n big time. Well, we did have a log time. Saturday evening meeting passed off very pleasantly. Sumlay morning at 10 A. M., after service. I baptized three; evening service passed off well, Monday morning service at 10 A. M., very pleasantly. After which I haptized five more, services also in the evening. Now we came to Tuesday morning. Crowds from all directions commenced to assemble quite early. Eleven A. M. come the M. E. preachers, four in number, "Well where are the Dunkard preachers?" (), they are in the house waiting this long time! Well, in came the four Methodists, stepped onto the stand, and opened by singing and the object of the meeting and text, which was Matt. 25:10. Commented upon the same about fire hour- that day, with an intermission of three quarters of an nour. The main theme was that sprinkling and pouring should be regarded as Unristian baptism. He also gave the

the next morning at 10 A. M., promising to notice some things that the elder had said, Here we are ready for our reply; a very large crowd, but not quite so large as yesterday. But where are the Methodist preachers? The Lord only knows, for they are not here. We suppose that they have field for their lives. But, look there at the beautiful bouquet, skillfully arranged by a Methodist lady, and placed upon the stand for Brother D. N. Workman, as a token of respect. Ten A. M., time for meeting. Brother Wise, from Pennsylvania, arose and announced hymn No. 20, by request of myself, After prayer 1 made the reply, using about three hours, with an intermission of ten minutes.

After services I baptized nine more that arose to their feet while we were singing our closing hymn, leaving one applicant to be haptized the next day at another place by his request among his friends, which I attended to the next morning. Thus our meetings closed at Pine Church, Wednesday, June H. In all, thirty-two baptized and six of them from the Methodists, with many more ready to come over to the Brethren-Church; hope that they may soon come. The people in general in the country around Pine Church are very kind and very willing to receive the truth. In fact I have formed a very strong attachment to them. All of us enjoyed our visit very much in West. Virginia as well as in Virginia.

Brother Harper, I find, is a very good traveling companion, avoiding all unnecessary talking, and continually trying to work up an ininterest in our Savior's cause. Brother N. Leatherman is the only ministering brother in the Pine Church, and afaithful one he is, with a faithful family standing by his subs, and with D. B. Armiddas their elder standing right to them in all that is right, how can they help but prospec? Brother Arnold is the right manin the right place.

This will inform the brethren and sisters and friends that Saturday, the 14th of June, about 4 P. M., found me with my own little family at home. Found all well and everything well cared for while I was absent. May the Lord blescall that may read these few lines, is my prayer.

By request of a dear old sister that could not be with us at the meeting, a few of us went to her house the evening of the seventh, and had prayer. The elder then arose and announced ja liftle communion with her; four brethica and two sisters communed with her. We thought this was the most edifying little meeting we ever enjoyed. Though the sister was very weak and suffered much, she enjoyed the meeting much, and was built up, and spoke many good things to us, and said she knew what she supper and 'est-washing and the salutation a had suffered and what she was suffering now, passing notice. Dear Brethren:-

LR yearly visit and church meeting came off in May; all in love and union; considerable husiness before the church meeting; but all disposed of satisfactorily. Had a large and very pleasant have feast on the 27th of May, Near four hundred communed. We have a very large meeting house, but not near large enough to hold all the people that generally attend. We have good order, notwithstanding the crowd of people, both in and outside the house. Brethren R. H. Miller and Isaac Rosenberger were the principal speakers. The preaching was very entertaining.

This church has been in a healthy condition for three or foor years, I think it has doubled itself in number in that time. In the last month or two we had seventeen additions by baptism, and seven reclaimed, and others, we trust, are near the kingdom. We attribute at least part of the success to the love and union existing between or among the officers of the surch, and partly to our excellent elder. (Samdel Mobiler, of the Cavington Church), and partly to our home preachers, who do not only preach on Sunday, but every day of the week by their upright walk, and chaste conversation. which is much more effective than flowery sernons and inferior conduct through the week. But above all, we attribute this success to the the sing of God attending those weak efforts on our part, and we hope that will still continue to 56 se not only this, but all other branches of

In conclusion will say that our Saldeathschool is well attended, both here and at Covington. The average attendance, so far, has been over one hundred at each place. Success to Saldath-schools and missionary work everywhere. You may put me down for one dollar for city missionary work. Hope it will be productive et much good, great destruction of life and property. Part of the N. W. part of Nehama County, Kansas, in which I live, was hadly hurt by the storm. No lives were lost here that I know of, Myself, my wife, and three children were in the house when the storm began. It soon blew the house over against some trees, and we were exposed to the terrors of the storm and rain, Tais was by no means pleasant. But we thought, "Thy will be done." There was no harm done us, for which we try to feel thankful. The next Monday some of the brethren came and helpel me to build a house. The evening of the storm our neighbor came to see if we were hurt. He found us all well, but homeless. He sent his team to convey us to his home. Hope he will be rewarded for his many kind acts. In the county west of this, Marshall County, Kansas, the storm was much greater than here. There are seventeen reported dead and fifty-five wounded. May God have mercy on all sufferers.

IT was suggested in the original "proposition" to preach the gosas trough, by our church, in the other of the United States, that as our soon as $900 were subscribed the donors would proceed to select two brothno to begin the work.

As the subject is one of great importance, it has elicited much thought and deliberation on the part of those who have the cause of missions at beart, and it was a subject of special consideration in frequent interviews at the late A. M.

The result of these deliberations has been that the proposition which requires the donors to select the workers, is impracticable on account of their unacquaintance with the minisless of the church generally, and of the qualifications necessary to execute such a work.

We also took the responsibility to appoint a committee of three experipaced brothren, one in the East; Brother James A. Sell, of Pennsylcanta, one in the Centre: Brother S. T. Basserman, of Olno, and one in the West: Brother Daniel Vaniman.

It is designed that these brothren thall take charge of selecting proper ministers and of attending to their wants and the wants of their families, and I hope that the donors will acamesce in the arrangement.

From the attitude of the Gaspel Preacher, according to the tenor of recent articles, we would conclude that it was hostile to the cause, but in an interview with the editors at the A. M. they assured me that they were in sympathy with it and wished it suc-

That it meets with a generous approval from the church generally, we have ample proof, in the fact that no complaint or objection has manifested itself at our District or A. M. We trust now that the brothren and sisters who fail to aid in the execution of the last great commandment, wall respond liberally to the requirements of this service.

If it is beginn, which by God's grace it will be, we should give it a liberal sustentation for one year at least. The eves of the world are upon us, and it would be mortifying to have such a cause to fail for want of a few mites to sustain it.

There are so many prayers offered up for the conversion of miserable sumers, that judging therefrom, we would suppose there was an immense surplus of mussionary zeal in the hearts el Christians. Now let us give cinphosis to our prayers by assisting in the cause of missions. We have before us a plan that hears the impress of the apastolic model, a plan without the salaried feature of man's introduction, and we should at least give it abor find. Our professions of concern for the conversion of sinners will be measured by the sacrifices, we are willing to make to secure their conversion and the verdick will be just.

SCHOLASTIC YEAR. This will comprise forty-four weeks, from four to nine weeks more than is common to the school year. It will be divided into four terms of cleven weeks

MALE AND FEMALE.

We regard the co-coheration of the sexes as the only true method of education. Their reciprocal influence will be beneficial in the Chapel, Dining Hall, Lecture and Recitation Rooms. Their apartments of study, social hours, and places of recreation will be separate.

LOCATION.

The Institution is located in Mr. Morris, a quiet, pleasant, and moral town, of tigle County, Illinois, about one humbred miles west of Chicago, on the Chicago & lowa R. R. It is free from saloons, gambling houses, etc., surrounded by a beautiful and fertile country, with a generous, industrious, intelligent, and thrifty

The school site is elevated, and from its observatory the town and surrounding country may be overlooked for many males.

The grounds, beautiful with numerous shade trees and evergreens, consist of a 64 acre park, affording abundant apportunity for the relaxation and physical development of pupils to which special attention will be given.

HEARTHFULNESS.

This immediate section is free from agne and those mularious diseases so common to the Mississippi Valley.

We are also hopeful of the prospects of a Hygienic Institute or Health Cure here at an early day, under the immediate supervision of Dr. Ehy now of Lanark, Illinois.

Students, when unwell, will receive the personal attention of the Principal with good nursing and medical attention when needed. In case of sickness, parents or guardians will receive prompt and regular notice by mail or telegram, GOVERNMENT.

While teachers will be expected to exercise a general supervision over the minds, manners, and general ab portment of their respective classes, the government will be in the hands of the Principal to be administered as the lost interests of the school and pupals may demand. Firmness, persuasiveness, kindness, confidence, and suggestly, will be its chief a lements. Should these tail be incite pupils to industry and daily, they will be proportly returned to their parents, or guardians without disgraph it possible.

LORMATION OF CHARACTERS.

It will be the constant aim to purify the imagination, develop the reasoning faculties, and incalcate principles of sound marality, truthfulness, honesty, obedience to law, respect for labor, age, and office, amiableness of disposition and deportment, and to cultivate haldts of elembness, neatness, order, industry, economy, and panetuality.

suppor Australia.

Daily records of scholarship and deportment will be kept from which quarterly reports will be made to parents or grandians of each pupil, showing the pupil's standing, diffigence, and deportment. These reports will be true and coudid, The standard of scholarship will be high and a fadure to receive the highest grade will be no evidence that pupils are not progressing, Special pains are being taken to collect a good College Library for the use of the faculty and students. Some excellent donations have been recently made to this department and others are summetly solicited from the friends of science, morality, and time religion. All contributions are promptly acknowledged and filed with the name of the donor on the label.

REQUISATIONS.

- 1. Pupils will room two or four together, and will not be allowed to visit each other's departments during study loans.
- 2. Pupils, in the Primary School, will study under the immediate supervision of the instructor.
- 3. Students, in the Academic and Collegiate Departments, will occupy their own private rooms during study hours and requir to their respective resolution rooms at regular intervals, marked by the ringing of the hell.
- 4. Pupils should furnish the matron with a list of their clothes when they enter school,
 - 5. All articles of clothing should be marked with the owner's full name,
 - 6. Pupils are folidden to purchase articles on credit.
- 7. It would be better if pupils, instead of keeping their pocket money about their person, would deposit it in the trensury and take a receipt. They can draw it when needed by applying to the Principal.
- 8. Pupils spending vacation at the Institution will be subject to the control of the Principal.

PEADS DRIESTNE.

To promote health, economy, and avoid all distinctions except those of merit both teachers and jongils, male and female, will be required to dress joining. The school uniform will be regulated by the Principal, 19nin homets will be used instead of dress bats. Dresses will be plain, without tucks, rattles, etc. Gay attire and jewelry will be prohibited. If desirable, however, school costume can be purchased and made here on reasonable terms after the students' arrival.

VISITORS.

Pupils will not be permitted to leave their recontion rooms to see visitors, except from a distance or on important lusiness. Friends are therefore requested to call upon them as for as possible out of school hours, but not on Sunday. Students will only receive such visitors as are personally known to some one of the officers, or who present proper letters of introduction.

Parents, guardians, &c., will be admitted to our recitation rooms and welcome to our hospitulities. Come and see,

VACATIONS.

As we consider the Christian hedidays and their attendant dissipations a serious interruption of school work, and as other short vacations seldam confer may real physical lanefit apon students, but usually divert the mind and result in loss of time and means, and often, of health, we will therefore, have no vacation during the scholastic year, except Christiane Day when it comes in school time. which will be a day of worship here.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

The exercises of each day will open with worship in the chapel, including the reading of the Holy Scriptures, singing and jonyer. Public worship will also be held in the chapel on the foremon of each Lord's day, and a Bible school in the afternoon of the same day. Non-resident students will be required to attend these unless special nostructions from parents or guardians request them to attend worship elsewhere.

TOLD BOOK

As the Bible contains the earliest history, the sublimest poetry, the richest eloquence, the soundest morality, the truest laws, the purest and the only saving religion, it will be a prominent text-book in our work.

OPENING TERM.

This will begin the 20th of August, 1879. Students should be here the very day that school begins. Every day they remain away will be a loss to themselves and their classes in some degree.

ACCESS.

Students from the East will come to Chicago or Aurora thence to Mt. Morris. Those coming from the West can either run to one of the above-named places or come to Forreston on the Illinois Central Radroad, and thence to Mt. Morris.

ARBIVAL,

School conveyance will attend the trane the 19th and 20th of August, for the accommodation of female students. Student's buggage will also be brought from the depot. Should students, or arriving, find no conveyance, they will leave their baggage in the care of the agent and walk to the Institute, only a short distance away. All should report at once at the Principal's office ("No. 1" on second floor of main building), where they will receive the necessary information, and be duly cared for.

Memoriam.

MELL asleep in Jesus, without any disease, and in less time, than thirty-two minutes warning, our beloved brother, Peter Ellenberger, aged 80 years, and 364 days. He was a native of Fayette County, Pennsylvania; and being warned of sin, of righteousness, and of a judgment to come, in an early day of his history he sought and found the "home of the soul" (the church). He lived to honor and serve his divine Master with the fallest confidence in the charch.

In the year 1842 he emigrated to the State of Ohio, where he found the people of his choice, with whom he willingly united, and was always found at his post of duty, both in arranging and conducting meetings. Being naturally blessed with a sweet musical voice, and having in early life, acquired a knowledge of the fundamental principles of vocal music, he always acted in the capacity of clerk at all meetings, which he attended (there being few which he did not attend) over a radius of fifty miles.

He was the father of two sous, Jarde and Joseph, (both members of the church), eighteen grandchildren, and three great grand-children.

On the morning of the 3rd of June, 1879, he was well and appeared to enjoy life, with its after lant blessings, with more than ordinary cheerfulness of spirit, and was looking forward to the next day, with sweet auticipation, it being his birthday. He would have completed his $1st year. Also, of meeting, on the morrow, all his neighbors and Brethren, at the raising of the Brethren's Church, at May Hill. The thought of the consummation of the above caused an anasual broyancy of spirits.

He ate his usual dinner, and walked around during the afternoon, supporting himself on his two canes, which have aided him for many years. Some thirty-two minutes before his departure from earth, he came into the house, passing his son Joseph at the door. The former went into the house, and had down on the bed, and the latter went into his shop. Immediately ufter entering the shop, he was notified by his little daughter, that "Gandpa" was sick. On receipt of this information he quickly repaired to the bedside of his father and found him complaining of misery in his body. The old brother said to his son, "Joseph, I will not be here long. The Lord's will be done." I am willing to go." The family summoned the nearest neighhors, but before their arrival his sport had gone to God who gave it. Without a moun, sigh or struggle, filling the caption of this notice, "Fell Asleep." We had the pleasure of conversing with the dear old brother, a few days before his death, relative to the vital issues taking place in the church. It grieved, him that, difference should exist to such an alarming degree where there is no Bible authority. Who will be next? W. S. LYON.

From Cedar Lake Congregation, Indiana,

UR communion passed enjoyably on the 3rd and 4th of June. Our ministers were assisted by five hishops and eight laboring brethren. The church saw proper to call more inhorers, and unanimously agreed to advance Brother James Barton to the office of bishop, Samuel Williams to the first degree of the ministry, and Joseph Hoover and Levi Rowland to the deaconship. The installation was sideminized by Brother David Baer, of Noble County, and Brother Peter Long, of English Prairie, Lagrange County, in the presence of about 150 Brethren, and a large congregation of anxious hearers.

Our meeting-house is situated one mile south and one-half mile east of Cornna, a station on the Areline R. II., and six miles north-west of Auburn, the county-sent of Dekalb County. Its size is 40x60, with a basement. Our membership consists of one hishop, two speakers, six visiting brethren, and seventy-four lay members.

Prop. 1st—Hrethren (or Tunker) Churches possess the Bible Characteristics which entitle them to be regarded as Churches of Jesus

D. B. Ray, Denies. ELD, D. B. RAY S SINTEENTH REPLY.

E did not denounce Mr. Stein as a "Idas-"phearer" for doing what James comwands, in amounting the sick with oil; we said:

"To amount with oil for "the forgiveness of sins." & held by Mr. Stein, is blasphomy and assumption."

In his 14th affirmative, Mr. Stein, speaking of the Tunker practice of anointing the sick with oil, says: "The forgiveness of sins is promred on its proquer observance." This miserable post custom of anoming for the pardon of are is the "Idasphemous assumption." For this we the Tunker charches cannot be churches ¬Christ — Our friend's charge that his [Ray's] wa church formerly "believed and practiced the same," is utterly unitarie. Yes, Jesus was darged with Idasphemy for claiming to forgive ans; and had be not had power to torgive sins, the charge would have been true. But now when a sinful man usurps the seat of Christ, by clamming to forgive sins by "extreme unction." be commuts blusploing. The apostles, clothed With unraculous prover, "cast out many devils, and amounted with oil many that were sick, and beided them." (Mark 65-43). If the Tunkers "^{Bust} Perform all thongs practiced or command-24 by the anostles, they must cast out devils and face the desel, also

Mr. Stem is barred to surrender los both, ar coment, by mindting that persons intersquirof to enter Christ's church by sidemin outh of [50] at all" cannot be applied universally.

In his long apology for the Tunker "conformity" in dress, our friend refers to Rev. 7:9, 13 where John, in vision saw the "great multitude" "clothed in white robes, and palms in their hands"! Why do not the Tunkers adopt the "white robes and palms" for church "uniform?" We do not ridicule the Tunker "white cap": but we do regard the superstition of adopting such a religious uniform for a "spiritual covering" "inorder to spiritual strength and power" as one species of abominable idolatry. Such churches as commit such abominations are not churches of Christ. The church that establishes a religions fashion of cut, color, or style of dress is not a church of Christ.

Another reason for making the Tunker church the bride of Christ, is that the brothren "will not fellowship such elerical titles as Tov., Ac. This seems to be another case of "thind-guides, which strain at a gnat, and swallow a camet." (Matt. 23: 24). The Tunkers can blindly swallow the Popish heresics of haptismal salvation, church salvation, "extreme unction," with a swarm of other traditions of men; but they must "tithe of mint and aruse and ramouin" by rejecting titles. We do not approve of unscriptural ministerial titles, but the Tunker custom in rejecting certain titles proves no more for them than for Quakers and others.

Mr. Stein lays down 7th characteristic, that the Tunker church is Christ's body"! He then bravely says that the Brethren "acknowledge no head but Christ"! In our last negative we affirmed that: "According to their own testimony, the original Tunker church was composed of those baptized by an unregenerate child of Satan," Mr Stein says: "This is watere." Yes, Int it is true. For the Tunkers regard every unhaptized man as an unregenerate child of Satan. This has been abundantly proved in our negative line. That the original Tumber church was composed of those baptized by an unbaptized administrator, is seen in all correct accounts of the origin of the Tunkers. Tunker church ever existed prior to 1708, when I as a child of Salam. eight persons organized themselves, into a socalled church. In the History of Denominations in the United States, compiled by Jao. Winebrenner, he gives "the history of each denomination from the pen of some one of its most distinguished ministers or profesors; thus affording each sect the opportunity of giving its own history." In this work, the history of the Brethren, or Tunkers, is given by Pholip-Boyle, of Uniontown, Md. "This distinguished | house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there Tunker preacher, in the above named work, concerning the two companies of Tunkers which emigrated to America in 1719 and 4729, adopts the language of Morgan Edwards, thus:

"Those two companies had been or unless of any in 1708, is not the body of Christ. one and the same church, which congruated in Schwartzenau, in the year 1708, in Germany. Andrews, Bliony, Lineas Fetter, and Joanna | Coc changing Nethigum. Being neighbors, they agreed together to read the Bible, and edity one another [written their history." They have no history in the way they had been bassight up, for as to write poor to 1708. Can they afford to forge a congregational church soon gained on them, threthren think that Bro. Mack "was a Wal-Schwartzenau to Serustervin, in Friesland, and from thence migrated toward America in 1719; and in 1729 those of Crefelt and Holland followed their brothren. Thus we see, all 'the Tunker churches' in America sprang from the church of Schwartzennu in Germany; that that church began in 1708, with only eight souls, and that in a place where no Baptists had been in the memory of man, nor any now are; in sixty-two years 'that little one is become a thousand, that small one a great nation.'" pp. 91, 92.

Thus the following facts are brought out by the Tunkers themselves:

First: The first Tunker church originated in Germany in 1708.

administrator; therefore, they cast lots for an administrator.

Therd: They were so conscious of error and -bame that they "carefully concealed" the name of their unlawful administrator,

Fourth The Tunkers "then formed themelves into a church, choosing Alexander Mack as their minister."

Fifth: "Thus we see, all 'the Tunker churches' in America sprang from the church of Schwartzenou in Germany; that that church began in 1708, with only eight members."

With these facts, from the Tunkers themclives, the man that dams to affirm that the Tunker churches had an earlier origin than 1708, must be possessed with the spirit of falsehood. This same account is confirmed by Mr. Moore m his history of the origin of the Tunkers. All the histories of denomations, that mention the Plinkers, give the same account of the origin of 13. Tunkers, in 1.708. But in his desperation Mr Stein demes these facts, and falsely insingates that we said that the Tunkers "received baptism knowingly at the hands of one who was fighting against Gud"! We made no such statement. We based our objection on the admitted fact that the original Tunkers were baptized by an unbaptized alien, whom they regard

We mean by "scriptural church succession," church succession as taught in the holy scriptsures othe Word of God. HUMILITY NOT CONTEMPTIBLE

I UMILITY dal not make John the Baptist H contemptible; but when he refused the name of a prophet, Christ said he was more than a prophet. Humility dot not make Moses contemptible, but he was the mildest man on earth. Humility did not make David contemptible when he hambled himself betare God in penitence and prayer. As Christ ceased not to be king because he was like a servant, nor to be a lion because he was a lamb, nor to be a God because he was made a man, nor he a judge because he was judged; so man doth not lose his honor by humility, but he shall be honored for his humility, as the Son was honored when the was humbled. Some three years after this he was advanced to the second degree of the ministry. In this capacity he still continues to serve the church of his choice and his God. Eighteen years have passed around since he entered his public ministry; and with them their labors, changes, joys, misfortunes and sorrows. To the little family of two in 1861 the Lord has added nine, eight now on earth and one in heaven. In taking a review of our past career, like others, we presume, we see where we might have done better. "To err is human, but to forgive is divine." Our labors have been confined to four States, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Ohio. As an humble instrument in the Lord's hands, we have seen our work prosper, and have had the privilege of leading sever al hundred precious souls down into the who may read this, I will say, rememwe may meet in heaven; for I look back than to any thing else in my past life.

We have now noticed the bright side of the picture; we will next notice the dark side. At the time of our marriage and call to the ministry we were withour any means; had nothing excepting the clothes on our backs. But in this dis. tressed condition the Lord remembered us, and brought brethren and friends to our assistance who relieved our wants for the time being, and helped us to build again, for which we shall ever feel grateful.

Not being able to labor since as before this misfortune, we have traveled and preached more, and to the honor of the dear brethren and sisters for whom we have labored, we do say, they have con. tributed liberally to our support; and what was above my traveling expenses and the scanty supply in part for my family, I have applied to the payments for my little home.

But with all the economy we could use, denying ourselves of the comforts of life, we are still in debt five hundred doltars for our home. It is all due and at interest, and will now soon be collect. ed by administrators; and I am fearful my home will be sold; and in that case would lose nearly or quite all again.

THE LORD'S HOUSE.

BY WM. BOROUGH,

My house shall be called the house of prayet. Matt. 21: 13.

THESE words were spoken by the Savior when he rode into Jerusalem and went into the temple and overthrew the tables of the money changers. "and he tanght, saying unto them, is it not written, My house shall be called of all nations, the house of prayer? but ye have made it a den of thieves." Mark 11:

Dear readers, how many of us realize when going to our respective places of worship, that we are nearing the house of prayer? How many desire to engage in prayer after arriving at the house of prayer? How many of us do earnestly engage in prayer when we come to the Lord's house in assembly to worship? These are questions that each of us should take to ourselves, and say, "do It" for the Lord says, "my house is a house of prayer."

Would not, however, wish you to understand that this duty should exclude all others from the Lord's house, or that any one duty should exclude another; but there are some duties that require more time in the programme of worship than others, chief among these are prayer, reading of the Scripture, and preaching or teaching. In prayer we talk to God. In reading of the Scriptures we have God talking to us. In preaching or teaching we talk to one another.

We will first consider the subject of prayer as observed in the popular churches of the day, where hundreds and sometimes thousands are found in one assembly, who seemingly meet more to display pomp and fashion than to worship God. Notice then when the solemn duty is exercised by their minister how many hundreds in the congregation do not bew the knee in prayer; how many do not even bow their head in reverence, but gaze over the congregation to discover something new in the styles, (as they call it). Notice the covering of the so-called sisters, how few are similar, how many are dissimilar in many parts of the construction and material, all striving to be the most attractive. Notice the expression of languar, the restlessness, while some will even give vent to their feelings by, "Oh! I wish the minister would not make such long pray ers," this duty over all seem to be glad of it. Was this the kind of prayer that caused the shackles to drop from Peter and opened the way out of the city, and escaped the wrath of his enemies! Verily no. There was no display of pomp there, all moon bended knees in deep hamility earnestly poured out their heart's desire. Similarity attired men with their heads uncovered; women with similar coverings on their heads; all keeping themselves unspotted from the world, as they had been taught and their prayers were answered. In harmony with the Lord's promise, "Wheresoever two or three meet and agree in asking as touching any one thing it shall be granted unto them." The Lord also promises to be with us on every oceasion of prayer, when offered in the right spirit; and that to own and bless. Then, in prayer, God draws nigh, and where God is the Devil don't want to be, but flees when he sees the weakest saint up on his knees. He cannot withstand the presence of God. How forcibly this shows the propriety of the Savior's command; "Watch and pray, lest ye enter into temptation." The praying live bearer God than Satan desires to go, hence out of reach of temptation.

In examining our subject as to its per sonal applications, we find that each of us should be a fit temple for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. Our bodies belong to Christ by redemption; they are his temples, as well as the great temple in Jerusalem in which he found disorder. Then let each of us keep his house in order; let it be a house of prayer; let the Savior abide therein.

2nd. Reading God's Word.

In reading God's Word, we have God talking to us; in this exercise we learn his will concerning us. Then how carefully we should read and meditate, not only in God's house, but whenever and wherever an opportunity is presented let us learn his laws and commandments concerning us. "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteonsness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." 2 Tim. 3: 16, 17.

3rd. Preaching or teaching.

In preaching or teaching we talk to each other. This duty was commanded by the Savior himself, when he said, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." Matt. 28: 19, 20. Here the Lord promises to be with the teacher so long as he teaches what he requires, even unto the end of the world.

The Lord also tells us what to teach, that is, we are to teach all things what-soever he has commanded. We should not teach war, nor the political issues of of the day; we should not teach superfluity of adornment, nor intemperance, rioting, anything else in which sin is tound; but teach the gospel and that only. Paul says, "study to show thyself approved of God, a workman that need eth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." 2 Tim. 2: 15.

When we endeavor to estimate the worth of an immortal soul, we are utterly lost in the attempt. Crowns and seeptres have had their adjudged valuation. and kingdoms have been bought and sold for sums of money. But who can affix the adequate price of a human soul: The principles of ordinary arithmetic all fail here, and we are constrained to say that he alone who paid the ransom for sinners, and made the souls of men his "purchased possession," can comprehend and solve the arduous question. They are indeed lought with a price: but are "not redeemed with corruptible things as silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ, as a lamb without blem ish and without spet." We shall only ascertain the value of a soul, when we shall be fully able to estimate the worth of a Savior.

The pastor of the Congregational Church at Mansfield, Ohio, has a telephone in his pulpit with the wires leading to the houses of several aged and invalid members of his parish. The instrument is placed on the table in front of where he stands and is not conspicuous to the congregation. While he speaks he pays it no attention, but every word he says is easily heard by his distant auditors. His first utterances before the telephone were the Scripture sentences: "The Word is night unto thee," and "His Word runneth swiftly."

Home and Family.

Husbands, love your wives. Wives, submit your-selves onto your own husbands. Children, obey your parents. Fathers, provoke not your children of wrath, but bring them up in the norture and admonition of the Lord, servants, be obedient to them that are your masters.—PAUL.

OBEDIENCE TO PARENTS.

It is a growing belief that children of the present age are lacking in deference and respect as well as in obedience to parents, or those exercising an thority over them. At least we often hear remarks which tend strongly to impress on the mind the existence of such a belief.

Whether this be the general fact or an opinion founded on fancy, it is conclusive that appearances have been taken as evidence of such facts.

It is true that the methods of governing children at home and pupils at school have changed materially in the lapse of years. There is not so much harshness in the mode as when the rod and fermle were instruments of correction. It is quite possible too, that with this remove from barbarism a milder form of address may have been assumed, and imperceptibly some laxity of discipling have arisen. But rudeness is not the legitimate result of courtesy; hence we must seek some other cause for so deplorable a fault.

Where children are held in check through fear of corporal punishment, the restraint lessens as they grow in years. If they have no more powerful motive to govern them than mere impulse, they are likely to give way to their passions. On the other hand, if they have had no restraint, but have been suffered to speak and act during childhood just as their feelings have prompted, it ought not to be expected they will practice any disguise. All children rebel under restraint, though all may manifest the rebellious feelings. The fault of disrespect in childrenmay, in most cases, be traced directly to the home discipline, for which children clearly are not censurable.

But there is a point beyond childhood, when such a fault becomes a crime. Our statute books affix no penalty, neither do they recognize any authority in the matter; but the Divine Lawgiver has not overlooked the passible evil, nor left unrecorded the consequences of such guilt. Moreover, the first commandment with promise bears directly on this question, and is as forceful at the present time as when it was first uttered. No child who has arrived at years of accountability can violate this commandment with impunity.

We cannot pretend to say just how merited punishment will be meted out, but we appeal to the judgment of those who are, or have been guilty, for proof of our assertion. Have you not felt a consequent loss of self respect, and a bitterness of spirit that has left you ill at ease with yourself because of your transgressions? Neither can this be the only unpleasant result from so helnous an offense. A parent may be long suffering and not withdraw his care and kindness, even though a child may have provoked. his righteous indignation, but an observing community is not slow to perceive these offences and to pronounce judgment on the offenders. It is a great mis fortune for a child to flave been allowed to form a disrespectful habit. Such an one cannot rightly judge of its effect upon character, for his sensibilities have been idunted. But we cannot think that may boyor girl can suppose that it shows either good manners or a kind heart to disregard the reasonable commands or man heart.

wishes of their parents. A pert, cross, or abrupt manner towards those whom you owe filial love and reverence, imparts neither dignity nor grace.

Children are under lasting obligations to parents. They may be sometimes painfully conscious that parents have defective characters and habits, but this does not give license for neglect on the part of children. Prompt and respectful obedience is but a small return for years of unremitting toil and tenderness. Ingratitude is always base, but doubly so when shown in disobedience to parental authority.

If the boys and girls, the young men and maidens, who are guilty of this hateful practice, could see themselves as others see them, they would shrink with althorrence from a repetition of such offences,—Scil.

"I WILL BE GOOD,"

"I will be good, dear mother,"
I heard a sweet child say;
"I will be good—now watch me;
I will be good to-day!"
She lifted up her bright young eyes,
With a soft and pleasing smile;
Then a mother's kiss was on her lip,
So pure and free from guile,

And when night came, that little one,
In succeing down to pray,
Said in a soft and whispering fone,
"Have I been good to-day?"
Oh, many, many bitter tenrs
"Twould save us, did we say,
Like that dear child, with carnest heart,
"I will be good to-day!"

Jesus can help us to be good;
To him we'll humbly pray;
His grace alone can make us good,
And keep us good all day.
Help us to hate all evil thoughts,
All sinful words and ways;
And in thy service take delight
Through all our earthly days.

KEEP YOUR TROUBLES SACRED.

WORTHY wife of forty years' standing, and whose life was not all made up of sunshine and peace, gives the following sensible and impressive advice to a married pair of her acquaintance. The advice is so good, and so well suited to all married people; as well as those who intend entering that state, that we here publish it for the benefit of such persons: Preserve sacred the privacies of your own house, your married state, and your heart. Let no father or mother, sister or brother or any third person come in between you two, or to share the joys and sorrows that belong to you two alone. With God's help, build your own quiet world, not allowing your dearest earthly friend to be the confident of aught that concerns your domestic peace. Let moments of alienation, if they occur be healed at once. Never let the morrow's sun still find you at variance. Review and renew your yow; it will do you good, and thereby your souls will grow together, cemented in that love which is stronger than death. and you will become truly one.—Sel.

MOTHER.

THE velvet moss may grow upon the sterile rock—the mistletoe flourish on the withered branch—the ivy cling to the mouldering ruin—the pine and cedar remain fresh and fadeless amid the mutations of the dying year—flowers bloom and fade on the lonely grave in yonder church-yard—but, beaven be praised, the memory of the kind, patient, gentle, forgiving mother leaves something green, something beautiful and grateful to the soul, while in the cold hours of fate, it still winds its tendrils round the crumbling alters and broken arches of the desolate temple of the human heart.

THE WORK OF AGENTS

IT being impossible for us to visit all the churches to solicit people to subscribe, and being more convenient in many instances for members and others to place their subscriptions in the hands of one person to forward, we employ agents to attend to this work. And hard as the work of an agent is, many as the difficulties may be, numerous as his losses frequently are. people will envy the work of an agent. It makes no difference how much he may be disappointed, how often he must advance the money for his patrons, how many times he loses fifty cents, one or five dollars, still he will be looked upon with suspicion—will be regarded as a very highly favored man. Favored! He caras all he gets even when every one of his subscribers pays the cash. But suppose he sends in twenty names, and three out of the twenty fails to pay, what then? Well, he pays pretty dearly for his paper, for one thing, and feels that in trying to do some one good, he has been not a little imposed upon, "O well," remarks one 'the publishers can lese that." How many de you suppose it will take of the non-paying kind to prevent any paper going out at all? to prepare a place for the saints. How he is preparing that place he never revealed unto us hence we can have no faith in the menner of that preparation. Our faith goes only as far as the evidence or testimony goes, viv: that he is preparing a place. Here it stops, because the evidence stops. Where the Lord begins to speak there our faith begins, and where he ceases there our faith ceases. Our faith can not rest on what he did not say, on what he did not teach and record, but on what he said and recorded. Neither can our faith rest on less than he taught. The New Testament, therefore, is the length and breadth, the heighth and depth-the full measure of our faith in the Lord Jesus. If the testimony be true and valid, if it be backed by the proper authority, our faith will be strong. "If," says the apostle John, " we receive the testimony of men, the testimony of God is greater, -more truthful and stronger, hence in every report worthy of credit and confidence.

Our love for Christ is as our respect for his teaching. If we respect all, the whole testimony, our love will be complete for him. On the other hand if we respect some portions more thmi others, if we respect certain parts as not necessary to our subjugation to his authurity, then our lave for him is imperfect. So soon as we lose some of our love for Christ, we bestow that lost love upon something else. For instance if we should select Calvin as a partisan leader, bestow much of our affections upon him, we would lose some of our love for Christ, for unless we make him our sole Leader and lustructor we cannot fully and completely bestow our affections upon him. The covetons man can not love Christ supremely; much of his affections are upon the gains and wealth of this world, hence Christ is neglected.

The object of law is obedience, to hold in subjection, while that of testimony is to produce faith. Without law there can be no obedience, neither can there be any faith without testimony. Peter's testimony was to as many facts as he stated. Paul's testimony is so many facts verified. We believe Paul just so far as he wrote; we believe Peter's testimony just as for as he records it. The fact of Jesus' birth is no less true than that of his death. The testimony is equally couldble, and the faith just as strong. The enteruty of these facts which we are to believe, are dependent upon the testimany. The festimony being true, the faith most be right. About this there can be no diodds, no weakness, no leaning over.

The only infallable creed, the Bible, the whole of it, all of its parts combined, must be the busis of the faith that sanfallibly correct. This to our spiritual and moral natures what the our is to the planetary system. Without the Bilde, there is no sunshine for the soul. Without "the God shall bestow the actual crown. MIIS verse does not leach the remission of sins before baptism. Cornelius receiving the Holy Ghost was no proof to him or any body else present that his sins were pardoned. It was needful that a miracle take place to convince the lews that God is no respector of person.

Cornelius was told to send men to Joppa and to call for Summ, whose surname was Peter. Who shall tell thee words, whereby thou and thy house shall be saved." Acts 11: 14 Peter came and preached, telling Cornclins what he should do in order to be saved, and among these words was baldism.

We have three important conversions recorded in the 8th, 9th and 10th chapters of Arts; set the conversion of the ennuch, and of Paul, and of Carnelius. In some particulars they are precisely alike; in others, there are some points of difference. The points in which they differ are not essential to genuine conversion, but are merely accidental circumstances peculiar to the individual case with which they are connected. To ascertain what is merely accidental, among the cases on record, we must be guided by the following rule: "Whatever is common to all cases is necessary to a scriptual conversion; but whatever we find in one case which certainly did not occur in all others, is a popularity of the individual cases in which it occurs." The points in which all recorded cases again an points in which all after cases must agent, but on points in which they differ subsequent cases may differ with equal property.

Hence we will take up three cases which are fresh in our nemory and examine their difpromiss.

WE have on hand a number of articles on the dress question. This subject has been pretty thoroughly discussed in Annual Meeting, District Meetings, our periodicals, and in private circles. Would it not be well to turn our special efforts in other directions? Why not rather practice the truth we have learned, and turn our attention to sounding out the word of the Lord more generally in the regions round about the churches and in the States where our faith and practice are anknown? However we do not intend to turn our faces against the doctrine of non-conformity to the world in all unlawful things. There is the sin of covetousness, the sin of malice, the six of anger which need warring against; will some of our writers give them a cut with the Sword of the Spirit? Nor should you forget the fornicator, who uproots the divine plant of purity; let him have his portions of reproof, for God spared him not in itemizing the hideons sins. And last, but by no means least in degraling and pulling down society, is the false-witness. He may be found in the courts of the land, in business, among families and churches and society in general. He needs checking, and our jurges are open tothose who are fearless in telling him of his sin. Only make it look just as it is, hideous, degraling, deforming, and then perhaps he will abandon it seeing that it is such interable company. It may hurt, but Jesus says, "I come not to send peace, but a sword." Then let the Sword do its work; hold it not back. In the amputation of a limb, there is no small loss of blood, and great care must be taken lest the patient die; so it is in cutting off some darling sins, the patient becomes a little weak, then "ye that are strong' must pour in the oil and strengthen the thekering flame. Then let us strike at evil with the word, and the enre will be sure and effectual.

Our route during the morning had skirted the southern edge of this plain, and I had ridden several miles out of the way to examine the mounds of three ancient cities. I crossed irrigating channels in every direction, nearly all of them dry, but a few containing running streams, drawn from the Jabbok where it leaves the mountains. If all of these channels were in good repair, and enterprising farmers were scattered over this plain. there is scarcely an acre of it that would not yield a most abundant harvest. As it is, there are several square miles of promising wheat and almost the entire plain is covered with verdure. Its former wealth and importance is attested by the ruins of not less than six towns of considerable size, which lie within a few miles of each other, the mass of crumbled building material in some of them being forty or fifty feet above the level of the plain.

We were on our way to Jerash, the ancient Gergesa; and from our lunching place on the edge of the plain of Succoth, we were led by our Sheik across mountain spurs fit only for goats and Bedouin footmen to climb, into Wady Rajib, where our tents were pitched on a bench high up the mountain side, near a village which gives name to the Waily. Every ravine among the mountains, whether it contains a stream or not, is called by the Arabs a Wady; and the stream, where it runs through a plain, has the same name. Of Wady Rajib I had obtained no previous information at all, except that l had seen it in Dr. Merril's report. I was not. therefore, at all prepared to see, as I did, the most picturesque, aml romantic monutain glen that I have ever beheld. Wooded mountain tops, with a naked crag there, and there, rose n thousand feet above our camp in every direct tion except to the west. In that direction the sloping sides of the deep Wady, covered with small bushes and patches of growing grain, despended two thousand feet to the Jordan plain; while through the opening could be seen a narrow strip of that plans, with alternate sections of green and yellow grain; and beyond this the mountains west of Aordan, piled one above nuother in the distance, and made to stand out with great distinction by the soft light of the setting sun. I climbed to a rocky eminence above our tents, to enjoy the scene. It was enlivered by the merry voices of many children in the adjacent village; by the rish of water as the stream near by dashed over the rocks; by part towards in doing this department interest- the barlong of dogs and the neighing of horses First. Ruins, Fountains, and Mountains Beyond the Jordan.

[From the Classifier Standard" by special Arrangement [MROM Wady Rajib, where my last letter closed, we traveled in one day to derash, the ancient Gergesa. For several hours we ascerebed the Wady in which we had camped, jossing through some dense firests, abounding in Loak trees of several varieties, a few pines, wild diver, and other less familiar trees; and crossjog many small fields of wheat and or freshly At moon, that day, Thursday the 24th, we ploughed ground. We saw some fresh clearagain took lunch under "the shadow of a great ongs of the wooded slopes, and other evidences rock in a weary land," and we remembered its pot increasing attention to agriculture. Flow-Cord shade with a sigh on several occasions after- ers of many varieties bluomed on every side ward, when we ate this meal in the boiling sun. They were not more numerous nor varied than From our rock we overlacked the region of I have seen on the prairies in the West, but

Kentucky accquaintances, the yellow honeysuckle, the red poppy, the hollyhock, andthe dog fennel. The poppy we have seen everywhere, from Joppa to the Jordan and beyond; and in many places it grows so thick as to corer the ground with red. The honeysuckle was a surprise to us, and especially when we saw it in the wild woods clambering over the tops of the scrubby oaks. While speaking of forest trees I may as well say here, that only on a few mountain ridges, and in the vicinity of streams, are any to be seen in this country; and the most of those you do see are of a scrubby growth; yet I measured a wild olive tree in Wady Rujib that was 16 fect 7 inches in circumference; I lunched to-day under an Eoglish walnut, the spread of whose branches were nearly 40 feet, and I measured an oak on Jehel Owsha the diameter of whose foliage was 66 feet in two directions at right angles to each other. I never saw, in a country, a handsomer shade tree, or one which cast a denser shade. These specimens serve to show what the primitive forests of this country were, when idolatrous Israel offered sacrifice and burnt incense "under oaks and poplars and elms, because the shadow thereof was good "(Hosea 4: 13). By the by, the large oak which I have just mentioned is close by the tomb of llosea, whose words I have just quoted. Inside of an old Mohammedan praying place, the Arabs showed us a long stone trough thirty-one feet long, and three feet deep by three wide, which they call the prophets coffin, I It is overhung with a pall of old and dirty woolen cloth with alternate stripes of blue and red. Our Arabs kissed it reverently as they approached it. The mountain on which it stands is called Jehel Owsha, Mount-Hosea, and it is the highest mountain of Israel east of Jordan, being 3,370 feet above the scalevel.

I had read something of the ruins at Jerash, and felt a deep interest in seeing them, but 1 was by no means prepared to see them so grand, so extensive, and so well preserved. Standing where we could take them all at a single view, we were forced to say, here stood a city of greater magnificence than Jerusalem in the day of its greatest glory. The whole of the wall is distinctly transable, and it inclosed a space not less than a mile across in every direction. Near the middle of the northern wall a splendid spring bursts forth from under a purpendicular ledge of rock, and rans through the city to the southern wall, halden by a perfect jungle of aleanders twenty feet high and just ready to bloom.

The city rises on the slopes leading from this stream, the larger part being on the westminus with richly carved entablatures, resting still standing, the pedestals or usurly all are in place, and you make your way with difficulty among the fallen blocks of the others. About half way this street is intersected, at a domble archway, like one of the triumphal arches of the Romans, by another street with similar rows of columns, which decembs the western slope and crosses the stream on a stone bridge. The first named street terminates, before reaching the southern gate, in a grand forum in the shape of an ellipse, and surrounded by similar columns, 55 of which are still standing. Forther up the western slope are the runs of sereral magnificent heather temples, and at two amphitheaters, with their stone seats preserved almost entire, the larger of the two having seats for 5,000 spectators. The western side of the city, at the time of its destruction, seems to have been chiefly heathen, and the gastern, cheefly if not entriely Christsan; for all the heathen temples are on the western side, and on the eastern we counted the ruins of five churches inside the walls, and one outside. Almost the entire space within the walls is covered with heaps of building stones and prostrate columns, and all around the walls outside are implied and broken sarcophagi, and rock-hown sepulchers, the burisl places of Jews, heathen and Christians. It would fill this letter to even briefly describe all that we saw there; let me close the description by saying, that in these rains we have a monumental witness, whose testimony can not be called in question, to the original wealth and

PREACHER, SPIRITS, PRISON.

Will some one please explain 1 Pet, 3; 197 - It reads us follows; "By which also be went and presched unto the spirits in prison," Who is the preacher? Who are the spirits? Where is the J. W. Bahnnaher.

MRIST is the preacher. The unterlibration World are the spirits, i.e., those who died in the days of Noah. "For, for this cause was the gospel preached also to them that are dead, that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, but live according to God in the spirit." I Pet. 4: 6. Chrest ded/for every man that was ever in the world. Re was "a lamb shin from the foundation of the world," and "tasted death for every man;" hence the dead and the living heard him.

Some sny the prison is (hades) hell, or grave as some would have it. Some say when "Christ was three days and inglits in the heart of the earth," then was when he preached to the spirits in prison." The Bible does not tell where the prison is, and where the Bible is silent we had better be,

DAVID REPROACHED BY ONE NOT HIS ENEMY,

Will the BRITTHIAN AT WORK please explain Psulm 55: 12 "For it was not an enemy that reprombed me; then I could have beausit; weither was it he that hared me, that did magnify blueself ngainst me; then I would have hid myself from him." Who is referred to? Ish yet Pennon.

IN the verse following we read: "But it was $oldsymbol{1}$ thou, a man mine equal, my gaule, and mine acquaintance." From the language in verse thirteen we must conclude that King David was personally acquainted with this mmi: and regarded him his equal. David says he was also his counsellor, and that they had walked unto the house of God in company. In 2 Sam. 17: 23, we read: "And the counsel of Aluthophel which he counselled in those days, was as if a non-had inquired of the oracle of God. So was all the counsel of Aluthophel. both with Davil and Absalom " In 2 Sam. 15 12, we read: "And Absalom sent for Ainthophel, the followite, David's counsellor." At this time Absolom, King David's son, had a consparacy against his father; and by fair speeches and courtesies, had won the hearts of the men of Israel after himself; and also turned Abithophel, David's counsellor, a conspirator, When King David heard this he said: "O Lord, I pray thee, form the counsel of Alothophet into foolishness." After that Ahithophel counselled Absalum to slav his father, with an army of men. Then said Absalom, "Call now Hushai, the Archite, and let us hear likewise what he saith," &c. And Hushai said: "The counsel which Ahirhophel Inth counselled at this time is not good." And Absulom and all the men of Israel said the counsel of Hushia is better than that of Abithophel. When Abith ophel saw that his counsel was not followed, he went home to his native city, which was Giloh, in the hill country of Judea. There he put his house in order and then hanged himself.

We have given this brief history in order to show who David referred to as his equal, his counsel, and one who brought repreach upon him, but was not his enemy. Because David still had compassion on Absalom, and Abithophel was the compsellor of both Absalom and David, is probably the reason why David did not call him an enemy.

HOPE.

BY A. W. VANDRAN.

WHAT a world of meaning in this small word of only four tettors. Paul calls it word of only four tetters. Paul calls it "the anchor of the soul." Why are anchors used with ships on the broad ocean? They are for the purpose of holding the ship where it is wanted, to save it from being driven upon the rocks, and wrecked. So each person is out on a great ocean, the "ocean of life," and no one can hire some one else to steer his boat for him, but he must "paddle his own canoe" if he expeets to make much progress. He has a true chart by which to steer, if he will only be guided by it, and if he is not governed by it he will likely miss his landing point. And last, but not least, be has without which he would surely be driven upon the high and dangerous rocks of despair. No one can be found who has not the implement. It is at the head of all enterprises. It is this that upholds the warrior in his mad career in the hope that he may win fame and glory, which, after all are but hubbles that soon pass away. It is this that urges forward the insearch of wealth in the hope that I e may fill l. . parse and enjoy life, but how great the deception: great riches have no pleasure for their posessor. [It is this that inspires the student to greater exertion in the hope that he may some day stand in the ranks of the wise and learned. And his hope is not all in vain, for knowledge is never a miss, and is a power for good or evil, but does one very little good unless used properly. It is hope that helps the Christian to bear the hardships of life. It helps him to lear, without flinching, the frowns of a wicked world. He hopes some time to obtain glory, riches, and eternal life; all the glories of eternity; all the riches which heaven can bestow; and eternal life which can only be obtained by steady perseverance. And the Christian's hope is not in vain. With Jesus as his leader, his word as his guide, hope as his unchor, heaven his landing place, he is secure in any storm of affliction or distress. He may sometimes be driven upon the rocks of despair, but his anchor should be strong enough to hold him away. Let none despair and think his lot harder than that of any one else. Let every one push forward with his atmost power for "the mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus;" because it is a good and great work and a great deal is at stake. It is life or death, happoness eternal or everlasting misery and despair. In one condition hope is not needed in the other if is uscless. Consider ye for yourselves and choose between the two conditions.

THE SHIP IS STILL SAFE.

BY F. P. + (FHR,

NCE more have we safely passed Charibdas and Scylla without shipwreck or suffering the loss of anchor or compass, though for a while past the wind seemed to blow a gale and dark forebodings tilled the breast of many a tender-hemted sailor as well as passenger in the gospel ship of our great Captain and Filot Jesus Christ. If appeared for a while as if the ship's crew had mutmed and were determined to wreck the vessel, but ah! when it come to the question, who is to contrive the ship? a sober second thought prevailed. Thank you, my dear brethren, both old and young for being outspoken though a grieves sometimes; but it was needful, so as not to forget it very soon Many a sharp cut was given, but the acknowledgement made, I trust, will soon, have, healed every wound,

I trust we that may have been rather slow, and they that were some too fast, have been brought closer together. Now let us endeavor to keep in company for one year, and when we come together again at A. M. try and do the most important work first and not have it for the last as has been the case, last, two, Annual Meetings. I entertain the brightest hope that those few fault-finders that left the runks, and even those that may not have been dealt with altogether justly will all make up their minds and say, "I will come back and do my part of the service acording to the gospel." All the hands are needed to carry the glad tidings to the waste places,

June 2. Monday morning met on the grounds for breakfast. Preaching on the ground by Brother Ridenour and Sturgis. Having heard of Brethren D. N. Workman, C. G. Lint, S. Z. Sharp, Jesse Calvert, J. H. Moore, P. J. Brown, we were glad to nicet them, and are happy to say we met many more whose names we could not give, as the list would be too long.

June 3. Raining—somewhat unpleasant. can truly say I was happy to see so kind and loving spirit exist among the Brethren. the queries were ably discussed and we hope the desires may meet the approbation of all.

Tuesday evening. Meeting at Brother M. Zigler's. Brother H. R. Holsinger spoke from the words "With all they learn to be idlers and husy-bodies."

Attended conneil, and listened to an able sermon by Brother S. H. Bashor at the church. In the evening attended preaching at Broadway. Brother H. R. Holsinger preached very interestingly.

Attended council. Some of the stuue sta brothren and sisters are taking their leave for home. Conneil closed at 5 P. M. Here comes the parting. How sad to say fare well, perhaps to meet no more! Should it please God in his all wise providence that we should no more meet at Annual Meeting, may we all be so hapby as to meet at home in our Father's House eternal in the heavens. We took a last look at place of A. M. In company with Sisters Anno Bechtel, Wealthy A. Clark, Namue Wolf, Laura Miller, and Lizzie and Jolia Long. we took a walk to Brother S. Khae's. Remained there all night.

Finlay, at 19 o'clock, we set out for Broadway; took the train at Harper's Ferry, arriving there at 5 P. M. Here the lost good-bye to Harper's Ferry is a place of more than ordinary interest. I enjoyed the signt of the Cantiful rivers and lotty mountains there to Weaverton. Here we had to wait on the train till after Schook. Weaverloss is beented on the lanks of the Potomac, and the scenery is grand. Took the train to Hagerstown. At Breathedsville we had to part with Sisters Longs, Wolf, and Maler. M. traveling companion now is Sister Emma Stoner. Arrived at Hagerstown, at 10:30. Remained all inglit at Sister Miller's

Saturday morning, took the * o'clock fram. for home. At the depot we met a said aghtthat of a man from New York who was bally burned and injured, texting to make his except from the fire of the Washington House. They were trying to remove him to loss home. The was an eigenful july.

Arrived at Mechanic sharp at $1500, and with ! all this, has been one of the grandest trips I barreness taken. Thanking the methers and asters of Aurginia for their landings, diopeng God will likes and prosper you all, I shall over renomber you with pleasure, and most find

Dan Bothmus L. Centre' R. R. for K dames so, as company up of mosting. Not so large a congregation with Brotler Cornelius, Vorlages. Arrived at Almestry not so stoing. From here we went to Ivalance scabout 2 o'clock in the morning. Muoni County to a Communion. Hall a very Took Institute & Grand B gods R. B. or morns good meeting. From here we went to a Com-Tool the train on the Detroit & Maiwaukee R. Halla Love-Seast undeed. The house very near-B for Lowell, at which place we took privite by tell of members; and a very large crowd outconveyance to old Brother George Long's, by sole. From here we went to Solomon's Conwhom we were received and knodly entertained - gregation, Huntington County to our quarrenly

By a mistake had to lay over there one day. Had a very pleasant visit with the old hrother and family. Attended meeting on the evening of May S. Next day assembled for District Meeting, which was held in the Brethren's new meeting-house, in the Thornapple Congregation, Iona County, Michigan, on the 9th of May. Meeting opened by singing and prayer. After which a portion of scripture was read. Old Brother Isaac Miller chosen Moderator, young Brother Isnac Miller, Writing Clerk, old Brother Long Reading Clerk. Congregations called seven out of ten represented. Papers were then called for; there was but one presented, and that was in the form of a request, asking District Meeting to petition Annual Meeting for a committee to settle some diffiiculties existing in a complicated form in several congregations, which was discussed some length of time, leaving the request ungranted. After this the missionary question was discussed, but no definite steps taken in that direction, farther than that we were to talk the matter up and do what we could until there should be a united effort made. Dismissed by singing and prayer. Met again in the evering for public worship. Went home with Brother. Repner, who took us to the train at Lowell, which we boarded about 5 o'clock, for home, at which place we arrived on the evening of the 10th. Found all well, for which we try to be thankful. We were kindly entertained by loving brethren and sisters, for which they have our thanks. We found warm hearts and willing hands, in evidence of which I here state what they told me, that five brethren bailt their meeting-house last year, which is 40x50, and a commodious house it is, too. It being the time of the year of corn-planting. I found my plow standing in the field where I left it about one week before, but I found warm hearts and willing hands at home on my return, for some of my brethren who had been busy at home in my absence, went to work and helped me, and we soon had the corn in the ground. Now I make this statement, that other brethren may go and do likewise, for by so doing they will gladden many hearts, more than they could by giving money. Finally brethren, let [us try and help bear one another's burden's as much as we may be enabled. W. Clark.

From Minnesota,

TE have no established church here, and I pray God that the time will soon come when ministers will preach the glorious gospel here. I am pleased to know that we can investigate divine matters in a courteous manner. I take no pleasure in controversy or disputation, but I am foud of investigation. Truth is never injured by sincere investigation, but rather brightened and established by it. I do not wish to disown any one on account of opinions, unless the opinions are set up against God's law. Opinions regarded as opinions, are harmless, but when they control either faith or practice are injurious and ruinous. To maintain that the pious un-inimersed can be saved by the gospel, or that men may be saved without being baptized into the one body, may ruin Ministers should fear to tell any one such things as lead to disobedience. Opinionism is the cause of all the division in Christianity. If all were to take the word of God as given, there would sum be an end of strife. All, in an humble spirit, would do the commandments of God. God says we shall sing with the spirit and the understanding, but opinion steps in and says, "Sing with the organ." This is the thing not commanded, and therefore divides us. And then what is more pitiable than the giggling, uproar, or laughter? Solomon says, "As the crackling of thorns under a pot so is the laughter of fools." I do not say that it is wrong to be mirthful, for laughing is natural, but I do maintain that it is wrong to laugh at vulgarity and foolishness. Jesus says, "every idle word that men speak, they shall give an account thereof in the day of judgment." Surely when we must render an account for the time spent limitshly, in order to gratify our arnality we should take heed. When opinions lead professors of religion to circuses, theatres, horse-nices, then the opinions do harm. "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. "All things whatsoever ye do in word or dead, do all in the name of our Lord Jesus," Can going to shows, theatres, is be done in the name of the Lord desus? We may engage in the legitimate pursuits of life, to the honor and glory of God, but no man can do so by going to places of vain amusement. MICRY C. NORWICK.

FROM SUGAR RIDGE CHURCH, ORIO.-Two were recently added to the church by baptism. One was a bright youth of Sister Pringle, the other my daughter of twelve years. Our communion was held on the 13th of June. Had a J. A. Trackleig pleasant time.

FROM BEAVER DAM CHURCH, IND.-We are are still making progress in the cause of our heavenly Master. Seven precious souls added to the church, making fifty-two since the last of March. Mny the Lord help them near him. D. Весителлегиев.

From North Missouri Mission.-Held two meetings near Carrollton. One received by letter, two applicants for restoration, and two baptized. Was accompanied by Brethren S. B. Shirkey, David Moore and A. Brock. Quite an inquiry here after the doctrine as it is the first meeting for the Brethren.

D. B. Gibson.

FROM CLINTON Co., PA.—Our communion meeting was held June 7-10. Seven sermons prenched, and sin-tired souls turned to serve the Lord. Sinners trembled and saints rejoiced. About eighty persons communed; pleasant time A. Shroyer. indeed.

FROM HIDSON CHURCH, ILL.—Our Sundayschool is in a flourishing condition, and well attended. Had a good communion meeting June 5th. O how I would have enjoyed myself at the Annual Meeting! I have an extensive acquaintance where it was held, and often visit, in my dreams, those large mountains, and deep valleys. T. D. LYON.

From Jesse Calvert.-1 left home June 25th, to go to Pigeon River Church Bekull: County, Indiana, where Elder M. Shotts presides; arrived at the place at sunset; enjoyed a pleasant rest during the shades of the night. On the 26th met at their new brick church, for the purpose of hobbing dedicatory services, Took up a donation for the purpose of paying what was yet due on their house. The domation amounted to $262. I then delivered my dedicution sermon. At the close of it I invited sinners to come and dedigate themselves to God. Five came, and I had the privilege of dedicating them to God by Imptism. In the evening met for communion; had a pleasant feast. June 27th. Had services again; a good meeting; four more were talded to the church by baptism. Meeting at night; two more promised they would come. June 28th, Had a pleasand incetring this morning. Subject, "Prayer-meetings and Sunday-schools." Then had to leave to attend the tuneral. Thanks to the brethnen, sisters, and friends for their kind-Brother G. W. Rumeh, of Penhody, Kunsas, writes: We were lately much glad to see a manseventy-five years old, and his companion, turn to the Lord for salvation.

Enant persons were received into the church by Juptism at the Wilty Meeting-house, Franklin County, Pennsylvania, June 15th. The Lord be praised for the merease, and bless the dear ones who have their from their evil ways and put on Christ.

I was permitted to bapture two persons when I came home a few weeks ago. We made an attempt to elect a monister-but finled. A preacher is very much needed here in the Almena (Michigan) Church. Will the Brethren please remember no. T. P. Lumb.

The communion of the Elk Cresk Church, Nebraska, was held June 15th. Good order, good after dame; word preached with power, Held an election for munister and descon. Two ministers were chosen, there being a tie-vote, Jacob Cadt and Lonax Miller, ministers, and Jonathan Souders deacon. The Lord help them to perform their duties tailifully.

Pering Miller.

The Rectired of Wallona County, Minn. enjoyed their Lovesleast June 7th and 8th. Brethren William Heper and William Drury labored turbindy and effectively while with us. The church was strong themed and sinners were the dear brothies and sisters every-where,

Jacob Willia.

The Love-feast in the Solomon's Creek Church is past, so far as the work is concerned, but the effects we feel still remain. Large attendance and good order. Quite a number of ministers present. Brother Calvert remained with us over Sunday, and labored hard in telling the good old story of the crosc. The Lord W. C. PERRY. bless his good work.

From Elk Lick, Pa.

TTAVE just returned from Bear Creek Congregation, Garret County, Maryland, On Saturday evening they held their Lovefeast. Meeting next day at 9 o'clock. The congregation held a selection for a minister; the lot falling on Brother Hochstetler, he not being present was not installed. At 10:30 met for public worship; in the evening also, at three different places in the vicinity. The meeting was well attended, especially by the ministerbrethren, there being twelve from other congregations, besides all of their own. Among them were S. H. Bashor and Landon West, from Ohio, Brother Glenn and others, from W. Valuand our old father in Israel, Jacob M. Thomas, from Brandonville, W. Vs., who is now eighty-five years old, and is widely known for his labors in the church. The meeting was one of good interest.

Brother Bashor has been holding a series of meetings at this place, with some additions,

During the night and Sunday morning they had fine rains, which were very much needed. I was surprised on reaching home that it had rained so little. For want of rain curcrops will be short. S. C. Kein.

Special Notice.

TROM the report of the proceedings of District Meeting of Northern Missouri, given by C. C. Root, my name appears as one of the evangelists of said district, with Brother George Shumberger as substitute. Now I will say Brother Shumberger was accepted as my substitute, provided I deemed it not best or proper for me to enter the field, etc. Now 1 have done some work in the district, at such times as I could conveniently do so, but not at the expense of the district, and will do stall a libble more; after which I will, if it be the will of the Lord, continue my work as a general evangelist, as I have enough of that kind of he bor to perform to occupy the most of my time. I expect to visit Central Illinois early in the Fall, and will only give private notice to such congregations where I contemplate to labor.

THE COMMITTEE TO THE BEAR CREEK CHURCH, OHIO.

BY R. R. WILLER.

Sit was requested that it should meet as A soon as convenient, to settle the troubles the 18th of June. Two of the committee were ot present; Brother David Bowman, and Jacob lifedid not get there. Brother Rife writes us that edd not get home from A. M. in time. We lase not learned why Brother Bowman was not present; but three of us, Brethren J. P. Eberde Damel Prower, and self, met and were acepted. The fromble was not general in the burch, but between a few members; some of hem at other arms of the church. The Bear beck Church became a little involved in it, by thing up the matter after it had been left to whitrators. It is a little dangerous for a church take up a matter, after it has once been left. committee, or to arbitrators; because to sange their decision, on account of new evi-Puce, is making two decisions: better let the omnuttee, or arbitration, consider the new levdence, then it changes its own decision; but for thurch to change the decision of committees, familiators, without their consent, and the obsent of the parties, is running risk of get-32 into trouble. But we have never been lore impressed with feelings of sympathy for d brothren than we were for the elders of this surch; though they were not specially in the malde. But they have the control, or overditambare sould and feeble that they can hardfend to the business at all; and when they do the any mistakes, younger brethich see it on the elders. We are inclined to think have the hasmess of the church committed follows to do, but they should put the funder a very peaceable at the first peaceable at th on the younger, and assist them with their coun-

We have known elders who became so feeble in body and mind, that they gave up all their financial business to their children; yet they seem to hold ou to the oversight of a church, as though they were still as able as ever to manage its affairs. We think it better for them to have younger ones put forward; so while they are yet where they may train them to the work with their advice. It is the counsels of the old with the young in church matters that gives us assurance that the work will be well done when we are gone. And this assurance we can only have when we give the work into their hands, and see them take its responsibilities and labor; while the older brethren assist them, with their advice.

We are a little more inclined to urge the matter of training and building up the younger brethren in the work of the church, than some of our old brethren seem to be. In a few years every thing must be commutted into their hands, all our hopes of victory for the church, is God and the younger members. Our duty to the younger members rises above all other duties to our church. In it is more of our power for good than any other one thing. If we are negligent in any one thing; if we full behind our privilege and duly, in any one matter, it is in the work for the spiritual interest, and, welfare of the young.

The idea among us of a distinction between the old brethren and the young brethren should be banished only so far as between a father and his same their interpsts now identical Will young, the father takes care of the sons; when old the sons take care of the father; in middle age they counsel much together. So it ought to be in the church, when young, all the care of the church should turn to their spiritual welfare in the proper framing of them; when old, all the care of the church should turn again to respect and kindness to them, as dutiful sons to a father; in middle age their counsels should be heard in every matter. But the care for the younger grows in unportance above every other; because on it depends their worth in council ets, we made arrangements to meet them on when they arrive at middle age; and their lonclib as examples when they become old. The beautiful bright example of old age is one of the greatest blessings the Christian enjoys. The evening shades of life casting its rays of Christian love and kindness, like the setting sun, beams its beautifut light behind it. So the aged Christian goes down and leaves a shining light, that lingers in the heart while memory lasts. But the blessings of old age to the church depends much upon a middle life well spent in the work of the Master. And all this bounded on the preparation when young; it that is wanting there follows a litetime of lack somewhere. How many older brethren could we find feeday. who, if they could again have the privilege of nal things, as they once had when young would atom. prize it higher than any earthly gain? We could hardly find one, but what would be a lit-1 tle like Solomon, want wisdom, and we must mainly look to our voorager days to get it; for the memory then is strong as the experience of the old will prove, nor they can vividly remem-much so as could be expected. This probably have more latitude for his selection. was caused in part by the praceable and quiet spirit shown by the committee. And we would here say a little more: nearly always the spirit and manner of speaking and acting shown by a committee, or its foreman, controls the manner or conduct in the rest of the congregation. This is true even up to the moderator at A. M. If he is hasty, barsh, and arbitrary, the same spirit seems to be catching, and others work in the same way, especially if they differ with him, luit if he be mild and calm in his manner, kind and pleasant in his speaking, others are likely to be so too. This principle runs through all church business; and we hope all our elders will try the mild and calm style in such matters.

We are off the subject again. Thus we can see one of the ways of making an article too long; last in a narrative it does not matter much, provided we fill up the meandering with something good. Though, when we take up a subject to write upon it is best to stick to it; and that is not a bad plan in preaching. But every one cannot well do that, and we do not blame them, for it is not always best. And then there is some difference in the natural gifts, some get too far away from the subject, and some stay too close to it, going over the same thing too often. But wha is perfect? If we could find him, we would say then, but not till then, we had found one that had a right to grumble at others, who are doing the best they can, in writing and preaching. We hope all will continue to work the best they can,—improve some if possible. You need not call it progression if you don't

Well we did not get back to the subject that time; we will try it again, by telling you that when the committee made its report on the secand day, it was received by all except one; and we hope he will reconsider the matter, and take the advice given him by the committee. The report was also strongly sanctioned by some other brethren present from the adjoining churches. When the committee's work was done we hastened home because we had been there but little for sometime; but we felt a litthe out of the common order because we had no preaching while on this trip, such is not com mon with us, and, we feel like our work was not fully done when there is no preaching, but we hope to visit them for that purpose during the coming Fall.

THOUGHTS ON ANNUAL MEETING.

BY ENOUGE EBY.

MOR several years my mind has been much impressed with the necessity of some change in the manner of conducting Justiness at our Annual Conference; and at our late. Anand Meeting that impression was much strengthimproving their round- and knowledge in spirit- [ened; hence I offer a few thoughts for consider-

> First Let Standing Committee meet on Friday morning at nine o'glock, before the A M , each delegate bringing the papers of his district with him; and let the committee do its work bet are the general assembly meets.

The advantage of this course would be no her many errounstances of challoool, while closs of sleep which is so much needed in transthose of late years are dancer game. This choice along such important business. The congresome of our zeal for the Interest, and improves gation would not be wearied waiting on the ment of the vooring; but a little more on the Standing Committee. There would be no rechange in the manner of heading A.M., Some cossity of Standing Committee harrying lossiwanted white to sect- to school the old ho thren hess through, as they would have lample time to the first table red ones to adout the young I to do its work well. Second. In forming our decisions to queries we labor for a unanimous vote which is very desirable, but when that cannot be obtained, should we defer or tablé a matter because one or two mays stands against perhaps three or four yeas? We think not. Gospel justice and reason would all dictate to let the large majority rule; and that can easily be obtained by the moderator first taking the yeas, and afterwards the mays, not promiscous as heretofore.

Third. Frequent change of delegation, both to district and Annual Meetings, has been recognized; and I much approve of it for several reasons we might name, but will forhear, only so the good of the cause be kept in view, and the proper gifts be used in their proper place. To make many changes simply for the sake of change, is not gospel, or else the Savior would sometimes have taken Bartholomew, Matthew, and Thomas, instead of Peter, James, and John; and why did he always take the fatter? Because they seemed to be pillars of the church. We have many very good brethren, able ministers of the New Testament who are notwithstanding not pillars of the church; but we have pillars who will hold up the church in all her distructive features and propharities, who have but little ability to preach or do much else. They give good solid counsel, such brethren are needed on the Standing Committee. There are different gifts and all of the same spirit, and can be used to edification if they are in their proper place. Helegates at District Meeting in their choice should always keep that thought perore tuerr minus.

Annual Meeting is not the place to dispose of individual cases, and should receive no comidaints against a member, nor try editors, &c. Such roundes should be settled at home or through committees as other difficulties are.

MOTIVE

TT is pretty generally understood that in the eyes of God the motive or object of a deed is considered, rather than the apparent res dt. If therefore a good work is done with a view to gain wealth, bosor, or even between, but without the love of doing good, there is no good in it on the part of the door; for there is not la him the love which constitutes heaven and the Lord's kingdom. And on the other hand a person, in his zeal and love for righteonsness, in iy act with improper harshness towards, the evol, and yet not be guilty in the sight of God to the extent of the wrong done; because his motive wies not to do wrong,

The truly concentions and loving Christian often finds it difficult to know what it may be best to do with evil-doers. Without considering his own interest, he wants to do that which is best for those evil per onspior their spirited good. Since they are disposed to do wrong the may be convinced that their eternal good is quires restraint; and since they will not apply this theniselves, he in coleven feel that it must be applied by other-lient in what was and how far may be difficult for how to decide. He ig his love for the restoration of the fallen most be his best guide; for this is find's lave tower is man, and so ording to the degree in which t presesses lum will be a sure guide

Here comes the apportance of every person knowing his own true motive; the true character of his love. A constant, close and imparthat selt examination, with the most prayer d observe to do no wrong in the sight of Gal, has

THE LONELY GRAVE.

BY JACOB SENGER.

E was once young and bloomed in youth, As many in the present day. Yet saw recorded in the truth, That heaven and earth must pass away, He sought a place-a resting place-A place beyond this vale of tears, Where he might see his Father's face, Where he might soothe his present fears,

He called aloud with tears of love, To know who'd join his company, To seek a resting place above, Which lasts through all eternity. Few here and there would join his hand, While passing through this wilderness, While Satan rought him hand to band, To drive him back in sad distress.

Though troubles here and trials there Assailed him as they passed along: Yet he would cry without despair, "Oh, sinner, come and join our throng." He often crossed the mountains high, And often journeyed prairies through, To warn the flock of danger nigh, And tell them what they ought to do.

He nobly fought to win the prize, That he might gain the mercy seat; But lo, he fell no more to rise, Or stuod upon his mortal feet. While others died upon their bed, With sighing friends who'd weep around, He in the distant grove lay dead, On rought last leaves, and stone, and ground,

A sudden blow took life and sense, While passing through that lonely grove, Yet none could tell from whom nor whence; But he who lives in heaven above. My loss is great I feel with poin, To know on earth we'll meet no more, Yet hope my loss his great gain. When he shall widk that looppy shore.

CHAPLAIN McCABE'S DREAM OF INGERSOLLVILLE.

The following we publish by request. - Ens 1 TIME a gream which was not all a dream. I thought I was on a long journey through a beautiful country, when suddenly I came to a great city with widls fifteen feet high. At the gate stead a sentinel, whose shining ar mea reflected back the rays of the set ting sam. As I was about to salute him, and pass into the city, he stopped me and said:

"Do you believe in the Lord Jesus Christ?"

1 answered, "Yes, with all my heart." "Then," said he, "you cannot enter here. No man or woman who acknowledges that name can pass in here. "Stand aside," said he, "they are coming."

I looked down the road and saw a vast multitude approaching. It was led by a military officer "Who is that?" I asked the sentinel "That," replied he, "Is the great Col onel Robert I , the founder of the city of Ingersollville."

"Who is he?" I ventured to inquire.

"He is the great and mighty warrior, who fought in many bloody battles, for the Union during the great war."

I felt ashamed of my ignorance of his tory, and stood silently watching the procession. That heard of a Colonel 1 ,who resigned in presence of the lene my, but of course this could not be the

The procession came near enough for me to recognize some of the faces. I not ed two infidel editors of national cele brity, followed by great wagous containing steam presses. There were also five menders of Congress.

of New York.

"Do you believe in the Lord Jesus Christ?" said the sentinel.

"Not much!" said the doctor.

Everyhody laughed, and he was allowed to pass in.

There were artists there, with glorious pictures; singers with ravishing voices; tragedians and comedians, whose names have a world-wide fame.

Then came another division of the infidel host—saloon-keepers by thousands, proprietors of gambling hells, brothels and theaters.

Still another division swept by-burglars, thieves, thugs, incendiaries, highwaymen, murderers-all-marching in. My vision grew keener. I beheld, and lo! Satan himself brought up the rear.

High affoat above the mass was a banner on which was inscribed, "What has Christianity done?" and another, on which was inscribed, "Down with the churches! Away with Christianity-it interferes with our happiness!" And then came a murmur of voices that grew londer and louder until a shout went up like the roar of Niagara; "Away with him! crucify him, crucify him!" I felt no desire now to enter Ingersollville.

As the last of the procession entered, a few men and women with broad-brimmed hats and plain bonnets made their appearance, and wanted to go in as missionaries, but they were rudely curned away. One zealous young Methodist ex horter, with a Bible under his arm, asked permission to enter, but the sentinel swore at him awfully. Then I thought I saw Brother Moody applying for admission, but he was refused. I could not help smiling to hear Moody say, as he mount railly awaye

"Well! they let me live and work in Chicagot it is very strange they won't let me into Ingersollville."

The sentinel went inside the gate and shipt it with a bang; and I thought, as soon as it was closed, a mighty angel came down with a great iron bar, and larged the gate on the outside, and wrote upon it in letters of fire: "Poomed to live together six months." Then he went away, and all was silent, except the noise of revelry and shouting that came from within the city walls.

I went away, and as I journeyed through the land I could not believe my eyes. Peace and plenty smiled every where. The jails were all empty and the penitentiaries were without occurpants. The police in great cities were idle. Andges satin court rooms with nothing to do. Business was brisk. Many great buildings, formerly crowded with eriminals, were turned into manufacture ing establishments. Justabout this time the President of the United States called for a Day of Thanksgiving. Lattended. services in a Presbyterian church. The preacher dwelt upon the changed condition of affairs. As he went on, and depicted the great prosperity that had come to the country, and gave reasons for deyout thanksgiving, I saw one old deaconelap his hankerchief over his mouth to keep from shouting right out. An ancient spinster who never did like the "noisy" Methodists, couldn't hold in. She expressed the thought of every heart shouting with all her might "Glory to God for Ingersollville?" The country was almost delirious with joy. Great processions of children swept along the highways, singing,

"We'll not give up the Bible, God's blessed word of fruth."

Vast assemblies of reformed inchriates. with their wives and children, gathered it was a well known "liberal" preacher them. I thought I was in one meeting where Bishop Simpson made an address, and as he closed it a mighty shout went up till the earth rang again. O, it was wonderful! And then we all stood up and sang with tears of joy.

"All hail the power of Jesus name! Let angels prostrate fall; Bring forth the royal diadem, And crown him Lord of all.

The sixth months had well nigh gone. I made my way back again to the gate of Ingersollville. A dreadful silence reigned over the city, broken only by the sharp crack of a revolver now and then. I saw a busy man trying to get in the gate, and I said to him, "My friend, where are you from?"

"I lived in Chicago," said he, "and they've taxed us to death there; and I've heard of this city, and I want to go in and buy some real estate in this new and growing place."

He failed atterly to remove the bar, but by some means he got a ladder about twelve feet long, and with its aid he climed up upon the wall. With an eye to business, he shouted to the first person he saw:

"Hallo, there,-what's the price of real estate in Ingersollville?"

"Nothing!" shouted a voice; "you can have all you want if you'll just take it and pay the taxes."

"What made your taxes so high?" asked the Chicago man. I noted the an swer carefully; I shall never forget it.

"We've had to build forty new jails and fourteen new penitentiaries—a lunatic asylum, and an orphan asylum in every ward; we've had to disband the public schools, and it takes all of the revenue of the city to keep up the police forces."

→M hom/somy ald friend, I——— asked the Chicago man.

"O, he is going about to day with a subscription paper to build a church. They have gotten upon petition to send out for a lot of preachers, to come and held revival services. If we can only get them over the wall we hope there's a future for Ingersollville, yet,'

The six months ended. Instead of opening the door, however, a tunnel was dug under the wall big enough for one person to crawl through at a time. First came the bankrupt editors, followed by Col, 1 — himself; and then the whole population crawled through. Then I thought, somehow, that great crowds of Christians surrounded the city. There was Moody, and Hammond, and Earle, hundreds of other preachers and exhorters, and they struck up singing all together:

"Come ve sumers, poor and needy." A needler crowd never was seen on earth

I conversed with some of the inhabitants of the abandoned city, and asked a few of them this question:

"Do you believe in hell?"

I cannot record the answers; they were so terribly orthodox.

One old man said, "I've been there on probation for six months, and I don't want to join

I knew by that he was an old linekslider. The sequel of it all was a great revival that gathered in a mighty har vest from the ruined city of Ingersoll ville. Harrishnry Independent.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE A. M.

for hear, Americans a

THIL great Pentecostal gathering of some burch is now an event of the and not mallest the lesser matters. past. Its work has taken its place on in the open air. No building would hold the pages of history, and whether for different elements of the church as they good or evil it must abide forever. If for evil, like the Media-Persian laws, it is irrevocable, but like them we can take measures to counteract it.

It behooves us now to take a retro. spective view of the work of our late A. M. for the purpose of amending what is wrong and confirming what is right.

In the first place we will say we are more firmly established in favor of the policy of holding Annual Meetings than we ever were.

1. Because it brings the servants of the church together frequently, and en. ables them to become acquainted with each other and to converse together, and thus to cement that union that should exist among brethren.

2. It is indispensible to preserve that unity in practice and modes of life, &c.: and it greatly assists in preserving that unity of faith and doctrine so essential to the success of the church.

When persons are separated by long distances they almost inevitably grow apart, and these annual gatherings serve to counteract such baneful influences.

Again, it is painful to say, persons. destitute of the grace of God, saw discord among us, and these meetings are a powerful agency in climinating all adverse elements and dissipating the dark clouds of error that otherwise would fix their destructive pangs in the heart of our faith.

3. The balance wheel in the machin. ery of church government that preserves that harmony of action between all of its departments which is necessary to the perpetuation of peace and union. Were it not for its aid in such matters, ofttimes serious conflicts would arise between the officials and laity of our congregations, to the great injury of religion.

Its system of transacting business is probably defective, and we should assist in making it more efficient.

We now submit the following observations on our late $\Lambda,\ M_*$:

1. A gratifying improvement in the character of the meeting. Our church legislation has heretofore not been altogether such as to commend us to the favorable consideration of those without. A church that consumes its energies and its time in trifles about incidental questions; such for example, as are subject to those mutations which are the inevitable con comitants of our diversity of tastes, and changing of times and seasons cannot succeed in maintaining its hold on the affections of intelligent Christians. I mean by intelligent Christians, thuse who do and helicre a thing because it is taught in the Bilde, and not locause somelady ds did and ledicout it.

We are now emerging from the wilderness and all the world will challenge our claims, pretensions, and doctrines. and nothing but pure, unadulterated Bible doctrine will be able to bear therigid criticisms to which they will be subjected.

Customs that have no other merit but their age will pass for left hand eighers in the warfare which we are waging against the errors of modern Christendem; and we should not besitate to pullish the attitude our church maintains relative to such matters. I do not mean to reflect against the peculiarties of our fraternity, but I mean to advocate the paramount importance of things more essential to the life and progress of our cause, than the mint, anise, and commin of customs.

Let us remember the weighther warnes

2. The spirit manifested between the were represented at the meeting was very gratifying.

Discordant elements, in close conflict, have agituted our church for several months past as it has never been agitated before, and many brethren justly feared a disruption. By the grace of God, however, the representatives of these diverse views were able to meet in harmo. pious council and in a christian spirit to adjust all differences on a basis which was acceptable to all.

It appears to me now that we are more firmly united on the basis principles of our church than we were before, as well as on the policy that should control us on all minor subjects.

3. The obnoxious distinctions of "old brethren" and "young brethren" were nowconspicuously absent. That is also a favorable sign and augurs well for the future.

Gray hairs are only honorable when they are the emblems of wisdom and experience. They are the inevitable result of the flight of time, and not of wisdom, and hence are not meritorious in themselves.

Men whose lives have been devoted to the accumulation of true wisdom, and learned valuable lessons concerning the problem of life and the future of the soul are entitled to, and will always receive that hominge due their merits.

St. Paul, who illustrated the most sublime virtues of the Bible, left as a rich legacy of mutual love and confidence between the old and young in his choice of this son Timothy" to a most important official station. Let our dear old fathers copy his illustrious example.

The brightest spiritual luminaries of the past were the youth of the church. David's youth was the golden period of his life. Solomon's youth was embellished with the loftiest and holiest of beaven's virtues. His old age was marred with the most degrading apostasy. Josiah, the beardless champion of Israel's departed glory, put to shame the men who bowed their hoary heads beneath the hillows of popular superstition and heresy. The youthful and fervent Timothy was chosen as the bosom friend of Paul the aged, in preference to his cotemporaries in age. Let there be no strife between the brethren, but each esteem others better than themselves.

4. The absence of the question of missions formed a negative feature of the meeting.

The question of concerted action on the part of the church in making our cause known to the world has not received that support from the A. M. that would be desirable, and we think we should take a more unequivocal position on that subject. Concert of action is essenttal to success in every cause, and while our districts are enlisted in the work of "Yangelism, yet there are large fields which lie outside of the jurisdiction 40 the districts which should be worked up through the young of the general Broth-Mileod,

The subject of spreading the gospel would be dear to every lover of desus, and we ought to go forth now and Tos see the land that is opening up to the շհութե.

The last great commandment is in a west measure ignored or neglected by the church. The ministry is probably doing a fair share of work, but their efwits are much crippled through the "ant of the co-operation of the laity."

This could be corrected if our A. M. Mould approve of the organization of ³ general missionary service, based on laffany man thirst, let him come unto plear bone.

the order of apostolic missions. May be when the great investigation is made it will not be said of us that "we have done what we could,"

5. It was pleasant to observe that the unanimity on the subject of dress was illustrated iu such au emphatic manner. It is known to those who are acquainted with us that we have adopted an order of dress to distinguish us from the world, and to enable us to identify each other, and we were pleased to see that our leading brethren respected that order and were in conformity thereto. Especially was that the case with our young breth ren who are supposed sometimes to be unsound on that question. There were very few brethren who could not be recognized as such by their dress. This is just as it ought to be. While we might not succeed in producing "the chapter and verse" requiring uniformity in dress. yet it is the order of the church, and cannot be changed without producing convulsions. There are some who think the uniformity policy is not Scriptural or proper, but if they cannot give us a policy in lieu thereof that will protect us from the corroding and pernicions influ ences of the "current fashions" they who, from their long experience, have should elet us have peace." We regard the position of the church on the dress subject as the great break-water which keeps the church free from fatal results of worldly customs. Some brethren doubtless unduly reverence "the order," but that is no reason why we should set it at naught. Let us educate the church to a true comprehension of its necessity as a policy, and thus place it in its prop er position as a factor in the work of assisting Christians in the cause of true progression.

> On the whole, the meeting was a happy one. The kindliest feelings seemed to prevail, and the best evidence of fraternal affection refreshed the hearts of the assembled multitudes.

THE TIP OF THE FINGER.

BY C. H. RALSBAUGH.

A few months ago I received a sweetly-christian letter from New Albany, Floyd Co., Ind., but could not satisfactorily decipher the name of the writer. The chirography indicates advanced age, and feminine gender. Consequently I adressed her as "A Mother in Israel," and sent the letter to the above office, which was returned to me in due course. I now transmit to Eds-BRETHREN AT WORK in the noper that it may reach the right person.]

To a Mother in Israel —

MOR your drop from Jacob's well, I will return you a drop from the Crystal River. The body has its wants as well as the soul, and the water at the foot of Gerizim has a Divine origin no less than the River that "proceeds out of the Throne of God and the Lamb." God fills all space, and is the essence of all life, whether it be a moss or molbisk, or man, or angel, or devil. There is no "spontaneous generation" as Hechel, the german atheist maintains. All life em anates from the Uncreated.

man petitioned for when "tormented in this flame." The boon was impossible. One drop would have been a promise of the whole Ocean of Divine fullness. Not God's mercy only, but the integrity of the entire Trinity, in all its attributes. was concerned in that covered drop. $N_{\rm c}$ rivulet from the fathemless Fountains Head has ever trickled its way into the Sahara of outer darkness. Eternal, unquenchable thirst is the docum of all who in this life spurn Rev. 22: 17.

me and drink." Not only does vital contact with the Godman open a fountain within us "springing up unto everlast ing life," but "rivers of water" flow from our persons for the irrigation of a sinblasted world. "The well is deep and thou hast nothing to draw with," is the language of unbelief. If we have neither bucket nor pitcher nor golden ewer the tip of our finger will bring us a drop fresh from the Love fount of Jehovah Jesus. Faith always lingers at "the well of salvation," always draws, always drinks, always thirsty, always satisfied. A great paradox is faith; always empty, always full, always in "the valley of Achor," always on the summit of Pisgali. It touches the hem of Emmanuel's robe, and feels the thrill of Divinity in every fibre of body and soul. The issue of corruption is stanuched, and the glow of eternal youth pulsates through our immortality. It dips the tip of its finger into the crystal spring of John 14: 19, last clause, and knows by blessed experieuce what it is to be a christian. God more than lives; He lives as God; and "as He is so are we in this world." The very life of God incarnate, is the life of the elect. The devil also lives, and yet lives not. The more intensely and largely the sinuer lives as a sinuer, the more utterly and wofully is he dead. Eternal death is the perversion of eternal life, not the extinction of being. "Because I I live, ye shall live also," is both the realization and pledge of endless bliss. God not only is, but is thus; even so the Christian. This makes the saint the photograph of God, and earth the vestibule of Heaven The Incarnation and Pentecost are the Divine guarantee of what we may be; our radical acceptance and cooperation determine the issue. We are she clay, consisting rattern, the riory Ghost the Potter. O that we would more gloriously reflect the finish and the polish of the Divine Artist.

IGNORANCE OF FUTURITY.

 $\mathcal{T} \cap V$ know as much as is good for you. For it is with the mind as it is with the senses. A greater degree of hearing would terrify us. If we saw things microscopially we should be afraid to move. Thus our knowledge is suited to our situation and circumstances. Were we informed beforehand of the good things provided for as by Providence, from that moment we should cease to enjoy the blessings we possess, become different to present duties, and be filled with restless impatience. Or suppose the things foreknown were gloomy and adverse, what dismay and despondency would be the consequence of the discovery! And how many times should we suffer in imagination what we now only endure but once in reality! Who would wish to draw back a veil which saves them from so many disquietudes!—Sel.

THE EYES OF GOD ON LITTLE FOLKS.

"Never do a wicked action, Speak no sinful word; When you think there is no danger You'll be seen or heard. God's eye ever is upon you, He is always near. Knowing every word and action-

THE eyes of God are everywhere, in every house, field, room, company, alone or in a crowd-always upon you; and they are eyes that read hearts as well as actions.

Ceases that eye to fear!"

Recollect you have to do with an allseeing God, who never slumbereth nor sleepeth, who understandeth your thoughts afar off, and with whom the night shines as the day. You may lock the door, draw the blind, shut the shutters, put out the candle—it makes no difference. God sees you. You may go away, like the prodigal, into a far country, and think that there is nobody to watch your conduct; but the eye and ear of God are there before you. You may deceive your parents or employers, tell them falsehoods, be one thing before their faces, and another behind their backs, but you cannot deceive God. He knows you through and through. He heard what you said to-day. He knows what you are thinking of at this minute. He has set your most secret sins in the light of his countenance, and they will one day come out before the world to your shame, except you take heed, repent, put away your sins. God never sieeps, never slumbers. "His eyes behold, his his eyelids try the children of men." God looks from heaven, his high and holy habitation, and beholds the evil and the good, even afar off. Read the one hundred and thirty-nintle Psalm. Every thought is known to him. Beware how you sin in thought, word, or deed. -Sel.

SCOLDING.

TTH some, scolding is chronic. Life is one long fret. The flesh is feverish, the nerves unstrung, the spirit perturbed and in a state of unrest. The physical condition and the material surroundings may have a strong tendency to disturb our equanimity and to exasperate our feelings; but we are and to bear in mind that the scolding never did anybody any good, and withal grows to be very uncomfortable to the party who indulges in it. Inappropriate to anybody, scolding appears most hateful in parents and ministers. Set to be dispensers of kindness and love to those with whom they are more especially associated, it is horrible to see gall distilled instead of charity that blesses both parties. Scolding turns a household into a pandemonium, and a church into an injuisition. Bear in mind that kindness and gentle speech are a great deal-easier to practice than their opposites. Why practice the worse thing when harder: $\langle A \rangle$ rest yourself in the indulgence of this bad habit right here. Begin now, and put yourself under bonds to be goodnatured. -Zion's Herold.

BROTHER MOORE is busily engaged on the Children at Work. He does not believe in doing things by halves, hence is hard at work for the youth. We hope that all who have children will subscribe for his paper and thus both please and profit their oflipring. The parent who supplies his children with good sound reading matter, finds them less inclined to seek the trashy literature that is held out to them at nearly every crossing and public place in the land. Watch the reading matter of your children as you would watch their health, morals, and society.

THE Home and Family department affords an excellent opportunity for the aged sisters to instruct as commanded by Paul to Titus 2: 4, 5, and for younger sisters to exhart one another to faithfulness and Christian virtues. There are so many things wherein we can help each other, that no one should be at a loss to find good employment. The experience of the aged blended with the zeal and fervency of the young er will very largely unite the hearts of God's " peculiar people." There is work for all, and all should work. Then send something for the family, something for the home; for we seek a home beyond the grave, full of bliss and enjoyment. May our earthly homes partake largely of the Spirit of the beautiful home above, then broils, quarrels, and grievances will not come in to mar the peace of the family.

So many memorials of the dead have reached our office of late that we must say, stop. cannot publish all unless we enlarge our juper considerably. A CHURCH ORGAN.

T the United Mennonite Conference recently held in Ontario. Canada, it was decided that the "printing establishment be the property of the church." The Gospel Banner now published monthly at Goshen, Ind., is to be issued semi-monthly "after the expiration of the present volume." D. Brenneman was chosen editor at a salary of $50,00 per month. A committee of six, three from Canada, and three from the United States was chosen to assist in the work. All this looks business-like, and shows that the United Mennonites are not slow in seeing the utility of a church organ, controlled by the church through its Conference.

It a paper is to speak the sentiment of a church as expressed by it through its General Conference, then it should be owned and controlled by the church. If a paper is designed to speak the sentiment of its owners and contributors on Gospel subjects, then it should be controlled by individuals. If a paper is designed to criticise the acts of individuals and societies, then it should be owned and controlled by critics. The manner of presenting truth varies in papers as it does in preachers.

In "rightly dividing the word of truth," samehody must exercise his judgment. In the ministry, each individual is left to exercise his judgment as to the manner of rightly dividing the word. One is not allowed to force his manner on another, nor is any one permitted to condemn his brother for dividing according to his best judgment. So it is with respect to religious papers in the church. Each paper, if under the control of individuals, is left to proclaim the truth according to the judgment of its managers. But a church organ, a paper owned and controlled by the church through its Conference, should advocate the work and policy of the church as expressed by its. General Conference.

There is a difference between preaching the word before a mixed assembly, and laboring in church meeting in the adjustment of difficulties between members. In the one case the minister is left to exercise his best judgment as to the manner of dividing the word, while in the other he is simply the served of the church of aiding her to execute her judgments. Now as little as you would expect your minister to publiely proclaim the decisions and judgments of your church in his juible preaching, just that little should you expect a paper under the control of individuals to proclaim the judgments of the church to the world at large. Aust as little as you would insist on your preacher teaching what Conference decides as matter, of policy in executing the law of the church, just so little should yournsist on your individual enterprises publicly teaching those decisions .-But it the church had an organ, a journal through which it could give expression to its judicial acts, then no one would look to the papers under the control of individuals for such

The Law was given by the Lord through the Holy Spirit. No man, no assemblage of men, can ever change that Law. Through the Law, power of judgment is given to the church. Power to execute the Law has been placed in the church. Judgment and execution are the only powers given to the church. What the judicia ry of our country is to the law made by the legislative body, our General Conference is to the Law made by the Lord Jesus Christ. The judiciary of a country never makes laws, but interprets them. The church of desus Christ cannot make laws, but enforce those that are made. If we will remember this, it may aid us much in the solution of the paper, problem In cases of difficulty the church acts, the part of a judge, and interprets the Law affecting that case. The violations being numerous, and each case being surrounded with recollar circumstances, though similar in many respects, the decisions upon each will be different. This accounts for the immense number of decisions,

Whether the Brethren need a paper under the exclusive control of Conference, in order to give expression to its judicial acts, and prince. ples of charca government we make not bold local matters correlves, and shall deny any one tassy. The saidly however, we venture to assects no one man will assume to advocate and that purpose. He should no more be expected To sivocite and interpret the pulicial decisions all the privileges we ask for conselves.

preaching. You do not insist on your ministers publicly proclaiming the judicial acts of General Conference, neither should you insist on the editors, who have not been chosen by Conference, to advocate the executive and indicial acts of the General Council. As little as you desire the work of local councils to be thought publicly by your ministers, so little should you desire your periodical preachers to publicly proclaim the judicial work of the General Conference. It is one thing for a paper to proclaim the Gospel according to the ability which God gives, and quite another thing to interpret the judicial acts of the shurch. For our part we do not feel to do this work, not having been set apart for that. We are willing to go as far in this as the church asks us to go in the public ministry. There it does not ask us to discuss and advocate its judicial acts, but to " preach the word," and this far we feel we are at liberty to go in proclaiming through the paper. We do not choose this course for "policy sake," but because we will not assume to occupy a position whereunto we have never been called. Our paper has not been designated as the organ of the church. It has not been declared the medium for the discussion of topics relating to the judiciary of the church. It has not been chosen as the exponent of all its judivial and executive acts. It is as any other oreacher. It preaches on judicial work in general terms, as do all other preachers. Its mission is not to point out what ought to be done with refractory members. Other preachers are not required to do so puldiely, neither should papers that are not owned by, and under the immediate control of, Conference. Just as far as you require your ministers to publicly advocate and maintain the method of church goverument and its judgment on individual cases. just that far we feel like going with the BRETH-REN AT WORK. We have no desire to run ahead of our calling; no desire to assume what does not belong to us. Papers owned by individuals are often severely criticised for not taking up the work of General Conference and advocating it. Do you want them to do what they are not empowered to do? Do you ask your preachers to publicly preach the decisions of the church? You do not; then why do you ask the paper preachers to do what you do not ask the living ministry to do? Wherein can a paper, unless backed by authority of General Conference, successfully advocate the judiciary acts of the church. It cannot be done; for no brother will assume to interpret and publishjudicial acts. These views are respectfully submitted with the hope that the church may see that no brother will assume what does not properly belong to him. We cannot take upon ourselves a task so great as this, without feeling that we have run where we have not been called. Most of us are possessed with a spirit to obtain positions whereunto we have not been chosen, and to take open ourselves responsibilities that should rest on others, hence wisdom would dictate that the General Conference, if it wishes its work to be publicly taught, designate the means by which it may be done. The hord bless as all with wisdom to do our work M. M. E.

WHAT WE WRITE, AND WHAT OTHERS WRITE.

III E do hold ourselves responsible for what no write, but not for what others write. We do not claim superiority over our brethren and when they have an idea to express we allow them the same liberiles which we take -Our only trouble is to get our renders to attribute merit and demerat to the place which it belongs. Now just in the proportion that we are responsible for what we write, just in that proportion is everyone else responsible for what to writes. And just as much as you would write to us and approve or censure as for what " had written, just so you should do with any one of a whoe writes for the paper.

We do not intend to indulge in personal or else our columns for that jurpose. But any brother or sister is entitled to use our columns just as we now them. It is then clear that we would they should do to us i. c., we grant them

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

- PON whatever we look, contemplate, or reflect enters the question of cause and ef-Whether we seek for lore in the spiritnal, moral, or physical realms our investigations must settle upon cause or effect. So plain is it that no effect exists without a cause that it is one of the first things we learn. On this all people of every age, profession, and nation agree. No difference how much they may vary in sentiment, religion, and politics,-nn this they are all onited. Much more and better work could be done if this principle were properly regarded. By neglect of it much we do is in vain .-When we should lament the cause it is often the effect. To illustrate: imagine ourselves on the bank of a small stream of water. Oppoate us the stream is very muddy. We are thirstty, but the water is too filthy to drink. Shall we blame the water? the filth? No. neither one; the water did not take the filth, neither sid the filth force itself into the water. Just above us were some hogs wallowing in the stream: they were the ranse, the muddy water was the flet. If we desire to get water pure as it runs before us, how shall we proceed? This is the otal question. Shall we take the minddy waprand run it through a filter? Never; no one mould do so. We would drive out the swine __remove the cause, and the element would mirify itself. Thus should we proceed in evarthing we do. If our church is out of order and thized, corrupted, there is a couse torit, and a long as the cause remains so long will the Meet remain; for cause and effect are so united that they can never be separated; the existence of the one necessitates the existence of the othet. An effect must be caused or it would not hean effect; so a cause must produce an effect or it would not be a cause. Hence we see cause and effect are inseparably connected.

In an article on dress a few weeks ago (No): Mand 23) we made some allusion to this subject. We shall now refer to a few effects which are the legitimate results of certain causes .-These things have caused commotion in many parts of our fraterinty. We refer to our church penodicals, their number and character, Sunby Schools, missionary plans, protracted meetwes, support of ministers, and conformity of dess. These things are among us not by chance, but as the product of a cause—the realt of a principle as fixed as Deity himself and tecomplain about them is only to express dissusfaction with God's eternal principles. As well might we try to beat the wind or crush the universe as to heat down or crush the things which we have mentioned. They are invulnerthe founded upon laws potent enough both to mate and bury worlds at a wink. Whether the effects to which we have referred are good a had this fact remains. They are the outnowth of things in the church. Then in proortion as the church has been joing and holy a that exact proportion will the effects-outmouths of the church be pure and holy and we versu. But now, supposing these effects ne had, shall we attach Idame to them? No; as well might we blame a child for being horn!these things have come of necessity; they are 68 self-existent. Well then if they are wrong what shall we blume? We should blame that which produces them. There is a time when Mosition and oppression is an advantage to the opposed and oppressed. In a thousand was there is an accray, and an equilibrium all he maintained. For proof of this we refer b revivals both religions and secular, to deprav-Tand virtue, to excess and temperance, to hoperity and adversity. If christian profesone would always do right there would be no ablels; but ecclesiastical societies of every tame have more arr less rottenness in them then they start and they generally go from of to worse—like one rotten apple imparts its ^{leanse to another and it to another until the} thole lot are destroyed—until the whole church buried beneath the steach waters of corrup-Among those whom Christ chose to eswhich his church was one wicked, corrupt fart; and it was not long until the blackest all pictured on the jurges of history were minited by the anthority of a professed My of Christians. Wherever church authorbinds him and easts him in that prison which knows no other equal than bell itself.

When the ruling element of a church becomes corrupt there is no hope of relief except in the break of the authority. To "break' any thing requires just so much power and if talreak be the only source of relief, then the sooner the necessary strain is made the sooner relief will come. There is no more certain way to defeat a purpose than to over do it. To my mind the church has lost more in every way from overdoing than from every other cause. No difference what cause he advocated there are always some who push it beyond its limits, invalidating its authority and thereby destroying its power. In this I find the cause of the things in the church which should not

Dear Brethren, let us not worry about what is, let us go to work, search for the cause or source of our troubles or wrongs and remove it, if it be in our power to do so; and if it be beyond our power to remove, let us be content and do the best we can with what is, S. J. H.

SECRECY.

MECRECY and policy are full brothers. We O only keep secrets ostensibly for the purpose of advantage. A great deal is said about "family secrets" -that all have some secrets. We presume it will have to be admitted that all do have secrets, but that is no more proof that we ought to have them than the fact that all have sins is a proof that we ought all to be sinners.

There can be no other purpose of a secret than to obtain an advantage which could not be obtained were the matter not concealed. A good thing cannot suffer from publicity. But error to be hated only needs to be seen. "A city that is set on a hill cannot be lind. Neither do men light a candle and put it under a bushel, but on a candle-stick. * * * Let your light so shine before men that they may SEE your gnod works 💌 * * Matt. 5: 14, 15, 16. Jesus makes this matter very plain; he tells just why men want things kept secret, concealed, in darkness * * * * Men love darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil For every one that douth crit hately the light, meither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. But HE THAT DOETH TRUTH COMETH TO THE LIGHT, THAT HIS DEEDS MAY BE MADE MANIFEST, that they are wrought in God." It does not make any difference what our own coceptions, impressions, and opinions are on this subject, here is the word of God who cannot lie, and to offer as policy, "expediency "lour own feelde ideas against that by which we shall be judged "in the last day," is a species of ignorance so dephorable for which, in our limited vocabulary, we cannot find strong condemnatory terms

RESPONDE "Allint to Ministers," by Jacob Kurtz. If you will permit us to change the title, and improve the phrasedogy a little, it can be published.

Score of the churches in the world have substituted water in which raisins were soaked, for wine at the Communion, but it remained for the Pleasant-street church, of Newburyport to outdo all this. It recently celebrated, (or tried to) the death of Christ without material bread or wine, as a purely spiritual rite. They simply thought they were eating the bread and drinking the wine, and thus tried to show the Lord's death till be come. We have now had, baptism with a little water, baptism without any water, the Communion without bread and Trop, above and asserts itself superior to wine, and perhaps these discarders of the ordi-"much sense then it ceases to be a henefit to mances will be satisfied only to think that they Shzation and all that elevates or ennoldes that they will thus be forever with him. Ruins, Fountains, and Mountains Beyond the Jordan.

[From the "Bliristlan Standard" by special Arrangement.]

PROM Jerash went southward to Es-Salt, the Ramoth-gilend of the Bible where Abab was slain in battle, where his son Jehoram was wounded, and where Jehn was anointed. This is the only city now populated on the east of the Jordan. It contains 12,000 inhabitants, and there is evidence of a more vigorous effort at agriculture in its vicinity than elsewhere in Gilead. It is the only region in which the vine is still cultivated extensively, and its raisius, of which our dragoman bought some for our table, are very good, except that they are deficient in sweetness. This city is the seat of the subordinate Turkish governor, who rules this region, and he has at command a garrison of two or three hundred Turkish soldiers; but, notwithstanding this fact, and the large population of the place, there is no provision of any kind for forwarding mail matter. The nearest post office is at Jerusalem, forty miles distant, over a very had road. My inability to mail a letter | here, caused the first break of this correspondence, so far us the weekly mailing of my letters is concerned. How it has been in regard to their reception I have no information. not having heard from America since March 19th, though it is now the 6th day of May.

From Es-Salt we crossed the land of Gilend again, going in a south-easterly direction to Variann, the ancient Nabbath Ammon, common ly called Rabbah in the Old Testament. It was the capital of the Ammonites, and was the scene of Job's military operations at the time of David's great sin. See 2 Sam. 10, 11, 12. Its ruins are scare-ly less massive and extensive than those of Jerash, and we spent five or six hours riling and walking among them. Its amphitheater, with stone seats for 6 000 spectators, is a magnificent rain, and the various phases of the city's history are suggested by the fact that the riuns of a heathen temple, a Christian church and a Mohammedan mosque, all massive and grand, stand on the same street and not very far apart. I was particularly anxions to see whether the present remains would throw any light on Joab's message to David, in which he used this language: "I have fought against Rabbah, and have taken the city of waters. Now therefore gather the rest of the people together and encamp against the city and take it" (2. Sam' 12: 27, 28). It was explained at once, as soon as we rode into the rules.— The city is divided into two—a lower city lying along the western bank of the river Jabbok, with only the amphitheater and a few other rums on the eastern bank, and an upper city on a hill almost perpendicular and not less than three hundred feet high, above the lower city. This upper city covered the entire surface of the hill, which is precipitous on every side, and it was almost miassailable; but it had no supply of water except in disterns, of which a great number still remain, and consequently its fall was only a question of time when the lower city, "the city of waters," had been tak-

As I have said, Rabbah was situated on the western bank of the river Jabbok, which here thows to the north, but bends around between Jerash and Es-Salt, and finally flows westward into the Jordan. Its head is about a mile and a half south of Rabbah, where it rises out of the ground in full size, almost as large as at any place in its course at this season of the year. It is a pereninal stream, and one of no little importance. At Rabboli it contains uniltitudes of fish from six to eight inches long, whind; it becomes his enemy, the enemy to will meet the hord in the air, and only think; and many swimming poids from three to four feet deep. We took a fine swim, as we do wherever we find water deep enough, and tried to catch some fish by extemporizing a seine out of the large pieces of matting used on the pack mules. We expected to catch a hushel or so in half an hour, and we went so far as to take one of the servants along to bring the first mess to the tents to be cooked for supper, intending the others for breakfast and lunch the next day; but after toiling in the hot sun for an hour, we gave up in despair without a single fish. Our seine was not open enough to drag freely through the water. The mention of swimming reminds me that the Arabs and other natives of this country seldom go into the water, and seem rather afraid of it. One day we took a fine shower-bath in a beautiful cascade near our camp, and as our dragoman was not very well, we persuaded him to take one for his health. He finally consented; but so serious was the undertaking that he went with trepidation, and when he returned to the camp he remarked with great solemnity, "I said my prayers before I got under the water."

From Rubbah we came to Ain Hasbon, another splendid spring which bursts out from under a mountain side a full grown mill stream. The ruins of three mills are seen within a mile below the spring. Here we camped in the midst of eight or ten camps of Bedoin Arabs, moving northward for better grazing, and camping like ourselves near this spring for the sake of water. We had seen many encampments of these people during the previous two days, and we were surprised at the amount of stock in their possession. In one day's ride we saw herds of camels amounting to four or five hundred heads, and flocks of sheep and goats numbering four or live thousand Some two or three miles south of the spring called Ain Hasbon, are the ruins of the ancient city of Heshlion, called by the Arabs Tell Hashon. They are situated on two high hills, one of them is the highest hill in the vicinity, and crowned with the ruins of a very ancient castle. Old King Sihon, standing on its lofty battlement, could see the approaching millions of Israelites for twenty miles or more, as they marched up to seek a passage through his territory; and doubtless the pillar of cloud which led thenr was in view for double that distance. He could look around also, over the entire area of his own fair dominion, and the sun does not shine open a country naturally finer than much of it is. The Arabs eall it the Belks, and it is a saying among them, "There is no finer country than the Belka," — Then every hilltop was once crowned with a eity, as it now is with a ruin; and it is not surprising that in the pride of his power he should deny Israel a passage to the Jordan, and should march his armies out to meet them in battle.-Between his capital and the head of the Dead Sea, just six mules in an mr line almost due west. the passage into the Jordan Valley, had to be found, and on that line about four miles distant lies in full view Mount Nebo, with the springs of Moses under its northern side, and the hill of Pisgah constituting its most westward spur. Space will not allow me to say in this letter what I feel to say of this mountain, one of the most hely of all the hely mountains in this holy land; so I will make it the chief subject of another letter. Let me say this that I have now seen, near by or at a distance. nearly every square mile of the ancient kingdom of Sihon, the territory of Gad and of Reghen, and that although it is crowded more thickly with the rains of important towns and magnificent cities than almost any district in the world is to-day with living towns and cities, there is not, in all this region, outside of Es-Salt, a house that a decent white man would live in. The rains attest the greatest of the country when God's blessing was upon it; and they speak with mournful eloquence of the besom of destruction which swept over it when God's protection was withdrawn. Compare the miserable black goat's-hair tents of the Bedouin, with the magnificent palaces beside whose rums these tents are now pitched; and the ignorant, ragged, filthy, hulf-savage Bedonin thomselves, with the men who built these cities; and you have at once the contrast between the land that God has blessed and the land, he has cursed. Yet as far as the hind itself is concerned, here it still lies with its rich soil, and its abundant tountains of purest water, waiting only the hand of industry and enteprise, to blossom again like the rose, and to flow once more with mulk and honey

SPIRITS IN PRISON.

Will some one please explain 4 Pet, 2; 193-10 rends as Tolliows; "By which also he went and prenched unto the sporits in prison." Whicis the preacher? Who are the spirits? Where is the J. W. BARNHART. prison?

W E understand by the preceding verse, that the spirit of Christ was the prepetur as the spirit of Christ was the prencher, as he was the just one who suffered for the unjust. He also was the one who was put to deadh in the flesh, but quickened by the spirit. By this spirit he went and preached.

By reading verse 20th in connection with the 19th we learn the spirits were those of the disobelient antediluvians.

Just where this prison is, is not known. Some claim in the heart of the earth. Joseplins in his discourse to the Greeks, concerning Hudes, seems to give some light on this prison. (Works of Flavius Josephuse) Also refer to the word "hell" in Smith's Bible Dictionary.

man enter in, he shall be seved, and shall | good will of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. go in and out and find pasture. We understand Christ to be the door of the church, and those that enter the church according to his gospel shall be saved, and go in and out and find pasture. Some claim that the going in means going into the church inditant, that is, the church here below in which we find pasture, and then when we go out of the church unditant and into the church trumphond, we then will find pasture.

We rather hold the idea that when we enter the church as Christ his taught that we will find pasture -spiritual food, blossings, and Christian enjoyment whenever we go up and down in this word, wherever our different, callings or avocations may require as to go; that is, we will not be left comfortless; the comforter will feed four souls from on high.

REAL STONES WOULD CRY OUT.

THERE is no doubt that in the Scriptures. people's hard hearts are sometimes compared to stones, but it is seldom that stones are and he makes room for many, compared to people's hearts. We should never spiritualize any thing literal, when the thing interal makes a good application. John said to studying much, are three pillars of learning the self-e-termed Jews, who prided themselves in their noble angestry, that God was able of the assomer, tetories along the banks of Jurdania public for being eminent.

to raise up children unto Ahraham—real stones. To show our nothingness compared with God. and God's sovereignty and power things are referred to in the Scriptures, that seem to us impossible; but we should remember that, with God, all things are possible. This is done to make the greater impression on our minds.

At the erucifixion of Christ the earth did quake and the rocks rent-literal rocks. When Christ said, "If these should hold their peace the stones would immediately cry out." He means literal stanes, to confound those selfrighteous pharisees who wanted Christ to rebake his disciples for the praise they offered him for the mighty works he had done. Christ refers to one of the last, and most impossible things in nature, capable of offering vocal praise. But it is no harder for God to make the stones cry out, than to make the dumb ass speak, or the hand to write upon the wall at Belshazzar's feast, God is the creator of stones, as much as of human beings, and if he caused the rocks to rend in attestation of Christ's resurrection, is it an unreasonable reference in Christ to refer to literal stones as being made cupable of offering praise, when such praise is unjustly withheld by those who should be the first to offer it? The reference is a very proper one, and a severe rehuke to the self-esteemed J. S. Mohler

THE BRETHREN AT WORK,

BY MARY M. IdBSON.

TMHS may seem to some an odd-subject to write upon, but if we will study for awhile we may find much contained in this subject. I think for one our paper has a good and approprinte name. All Brethren, as well as our editors, aught to be very zealous in the cause of Christ, enough so to be brethren that are

We can work for the cause of Christ in many various ways. Much good can be accomplished by visiting the poor in their poverty and see for ourselves what is needed or most needful for them, and then we should not shut up our bowels of mercy from them, but administer to their wants, and it assuredly would be acceptable to them and our God. We are commanded to visit the sick, the widows and orphans in their affliction, and by so doing we are at work for Christ. Brethren, do you really believe there is enough of this done? I, for one, hardly believe there is, for people professing Christianity as we feel ourselves to be, all should be interested enough to be lively stones, always ready to do some kind act, especially for the sin-sick soul. If we will work in the right we may be the means of bringing one soul to repentance, we will receive manifold blessing from God the giver of all good.

The Brethren at Work is a very welcome Will some one please explain John in 9? In visitor to me. How careful and watchful and prayerful we all ought to be. Those that are not surrounded with those, that are not members hardly know how the members are watched. We should be very careful in our dealings with them; be sure that we deal rightly and honestly with idd men. The Scriptures say, "Owe no man anything," Brethren, we can work wonderfully in this way. Ho not neglect it through carelessness, but deal as we should, and use all the influence we possibly can. We should be prompt in being at work in this wiy for the sake of our own soul and others also. Let us all seek to be at all the work we possibly can, so as to be worthy prothren and sisters.

Echoes from Huntingdon, nuntingdon Church-Going to School-Was dering Thoughts-Meetings-Church Meeting-Communion Meetings.

TE came to Huntingdon from the Annual Meeting, intending to attend the Normal School. We have formed a limited acquaintance with the Brethren here. They were organized into a separate church last Fall, Brethren James Quinter, H. B. Brumhangh, and W. J. Swigart are the ministers. The church has secured quite a footing, and is increasing in members, and we hope in "grace and in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ, We started to school on the 9th of June. Found the school in a flourishing condition. An able and polite corps of Professors lead the inquiring mind step after step up the rounds of science. The students all seem to pursue their studies with pleasure, and have a commendable zest for their recipitions.

We thought back when we first started to school some twenty oll years ago, and what a contrast! The old log-house, with its dingy and cluensy formitare, ventilated by the aperfores in the wall, and its only apparatus of illustration, a circular instrument, whose elucidation was of a painful and unideasant choracter. Verily the world moves and we move

We thought also how little we accomplished during this score of years, and how much might have been done if we had performed, with our might, that which our hand found to do.

Then there are the great changes that have taken place within this little cycle. Our beloved land has been drenched with fraternal blood, and in every work of it we see some of its effects. Slavery, the curse of the nation, has been removed, but its foundations stand as firm B ever-ambition, "the root of all evil," selfishness. Nation has risen against nation, governments have been subverted, thrones have been crumbled to the dust. The broad scroll of science has been unrolled until we are startled and astoninded at the truths, stamped upon it by the hand of the Everlasting.

Again we recollect the gradual uninterrupted dange going on with the human race day after day, year after year. In the decade we notice ageneration has gone, and in their stend we have another. $-\mathbf{W}$ be cannot point to the grave of some loved one, who in this short period has game the way of all flesh's We thought, particularly, of one, who, in the glow and thish of worth, gave her heart and hand to one she loval, but who faded as an Autumn leaf, followed by the lovely fragile flower, given as by the Hand Divine. Such is life.

The Brethren hold meeting twice every Lord's Day in the Normal Chapel. We give a synapsis of two of Brother James Quinter's

1. The proper cause of rejoicing. (1) Not our success in attaining wealth, health, tame or say other worldly project. (2) Not even our success as ministers of the gospel in being sacosstal in calling many to Clinst. Success in these various pursuits may be followed by a degree of rejoicing. (3) But we should rejoice that our names are written in the Book of Life. Because on such the second death has no power, and consequently we will not have to take up our abode with the filth and off-scouring of ages in the pit.

16. A highway is a way leading from one brought to Christ. point to another, between which there is considerable travel. It is open and unobstructed. Other ways are by paths. We all have our mental highway, v high we frequently travel. Thus the merchant has his mind on speculation, the warrior, on strategy, etc. This is their highway. But the highway of the saint is "to depart from evil." His inquiry is how be may avoid its contaminating and degenerating inthences. He abhors it and flees from it. He Φparts from it—he obtains a better—control of his passions, argetites, etc., "And if he keeps his way he possesses his soul."

The Brethren held a church meeting on the evening of the 11th of June. The principal object of the meeting was to reason together on the subject of non-conformity. The ministers kindly admonished all the members not to con-Uninter spoke on the subject from a historical the Scriptures. Humility, simplicity, and plainness are required in the Scriptures. And these requirements are not met, when we attire ourselves in fashionable apparel. His remarks were seconded by his co-laborers. The thought that suggested the meeting was a prudent one, the labors of the Bretbrea were commendable, and we hope the results may correspond.

We attended a communion meeting at James Creek on the 13th inst. To this branch the Huntingdon Brethren formerly belonged. The meeting-house is twelve miles from Huntingdov. The meeting opened at 4 o'clock P. M. Three Brumbaugh brothers, Brethren J. Quinter, Lane, Spanogle, and Holsinger were the ministers present. Brother Spanogle officiated. It was an orderly meeting.

On the evening of the 28th inst., the Huntingdon Church held its first communion. Brother Quinter officiated. He was assisted in the ministry by three Brumbaugh brethren. About one hundred communed. It was held in the Normal Chapel. The order was excellent—the best we ever witnessed. The chapel was filled by the citizens of Huntingdon. The different ordinances were aldy, though briefly discussed by Brother Uninter. The meeting closed at an early hour—half-past nine. It will long be remembered by the Brethren. So closes our first three weeks sojourn with the Huntingdon Brethren.

Appeal to the Brotherhood.

Dear Brethren:-

MANY of you live very close to, if not among Danes and Norwegians. I suppose they number millions throughout the United States, and yet only a few are among you as members of the church. This is not because they want to be, because they know you not. I remember well yet that I was hunting the Brethren for years all in vain. Many others may be looking anxiously for years and never find you. True you have been cut off from working among them because you could not speak to them. But now you can. We send every month a small paper several hundred copies to M. M. Eshelman, Lanark, Carroll County, Illinois. These are for you to use. Please, brethren and sisters, send for some and use them. If you can not sell them, give them away. We must pay about the same amount whether we get 500 copies from the printer or 1,000 copies; hence we take 1,000, presuming that you will help us to spread them throughout your great land. The Sunday-school children can help us, too. In fact, any one who can hand a paper over to some one is just the hand we need; and by and by we assore you it will do good. Some may come to you and swell your number so much that you can say, "Who have begotten me those?" Especially do we desire to have the address, of every Norwegian or Danish brother or sister that we may become acquainted with each other and work together among our people

Please forget not our request, but help us do good to all men, and let us soon hear through your periodicals that you have commenced to work. How many there are in the churches who like to do something for the salvation of souls, but are alle. Please use this little chance and commence, and you may soon ser yourself involved in a great and good work. Visit our country people and take the paper along; speak to those who can talk your language. Sing and pray with them if they desire it. In that way be like the first apostolic church, where both men and women went out and spoke about their Savior. It is said of them, 2. "The highway of the saints." Prov. 16: the Lord blessed their efforts and many were

> You may rest assured that our small paper shall not cause strife. We will only work for unity, peace, and good will among Brethren. We feel too much the necessity of duly conversation in what is essential to salvation. We never yet got time to speak about non-essentials. And when any one does, we think it is because he wants something better to do. Keep the horses at work, and they will not bite one another, even when they eat out of one manger. Dear Rothren:-

 $\hat{O}^{\rm UR}$ church is in a healthy state. We are laboring to advance the Master's course. form to the fashions of the world, but to indept | We have five ministers, and, at present, seven the plain attire of the Brotherhood. courage to fight the good fight, be as shining lights that others may be constrained by their holy walk and conversation to love God. O that we, who profess to be the followers of the lowly lamb, would more and more try to possess that which we profess! Methinks the glorious ingathering of souls might be increased, that it might be our happy lot to hear that welcome saying, "Well done."

We organized a Bible School in April, and are trying to conduct it true to its name. This we do by not admitting any reading matter into the school, save the Bible. Our object is to try to get our young people and children familiar with the Bible, and we feel that our efforts, so far, have not been in vain. We believe, yen we know, that God will add his blessings when his people are willing to look after the little lambs, to instruct them in the way of holiness. I was a stranger to Bible Schools as conducted by the Brethren until of late years, but after a little experience I am now of the opinion that it would be difficult to give sufficient good reason for opposing Christian people to assemble every first day with their own and their neighbors' children, singing songs and psalms, making melody in their hearts, their bowing together with the tender lambs in prayer imploring God for mercy and his blessings upon them. Go on Brethren, organize Bible Schools: don't wait for conventions or long-consulted plans; the Bible is all we want, with Christian teachers and the right object in view, success will surely be the result.

Dear Brethren:—

TUR Love-feast, which was appointed June 28th and 29th is now among the things of the past, and we feel that we enjoyed refreshing season from the Lord. The meeting was largely attended, and the order was excellent. There were a number of speakers present from the adjoining churches, which gave us good interest.

On the 20th as the Brethren were opening services the audience was disturbed by a messenger coming in, and requesting the writer to come in haste to the house of Brother Christian Mishler. We went immediately, taking with us Brother Thomas G. Snyder, of Linn County. When we arrived at his house we found the cold death sweat lying upon the face of Brother Mishler, and we soon learned that death was already working upon his vitals. The doctor soon came, and did for him what he rould; but all that could be done, could not stay the hand of death. Fifteen minutes after 12 o'clock, Brother Mishler died, his discuse heing crance in the stomach and bowels. The funeral, which took place on the 30th, was largely attended, and the occasion was improved by the writer and Brother Snyder, from Rev. 14; 13 In the death of Brother Mishler the family has lost a kind, and, loving, father, the church one of her faithful deacons, and the community a highly respected citizen.

W E organized a Bible Class one year ago. Brother John B. Fluke was chosen to superintend it. Our class was a grand success, indeed. We have our pupils formed into classes, and some one to instruct in the reading. We have some very small boys and girls to read, Think it good for children to meet in the sanctnary of the Lord, and instill in their tender minds the Bible truths. The average attendance is about seventy-five. As Brother Fluke has now been claimed by another church district, as his labor was much needed there, we were again obliged to organize. Brother John Ritchey was chosen for Superintendent, and the school is moving along. Brethren, let us all lend a helping hand to a good work; this binds as together by the ties of love, as Christ-Lynga Ckapper. ians should be.

From Walla Walla, Washington Ter.

Dear Brethren -

1 81 have no place of worship in my reach, A that I can worship with some Christian people, I thought to write you that you might still see that the harvest is great and the lahorers few in this part of the country. We have been able to procure preaching one-fourth of the time from the Methodists, for the past few anonths; but we are still praying the time soon to come that we may be able to have religious services every Sanday in our midst.

I received a kind letter the other day from this world.

Elder David Brower, of Salem, Marion County, Oregon, stating that he was still traveling and preaching most of the time, also that he and his wife and Sister Kiester, of Cerro Gordo, Illinois, and others, expect to go up to Linn County, to attend a meeting on June 7th and 8th, distance thirty miles. The Brethreo expect to hold their Communion in Marion County, commencing oo the 4th of July, and continue over Lord's Day,

Before closing I will state that the health of this country is improving, and that the prospects for a large grain and fruit crop in this valley are better than we have ever had since the first settling of the country.

From your friend,

O. W. HARTNESS.

From Lynch's Station, Va.

Deor Brethren:-

MIE BRETHREN AT WORK comes to us regularly. We meet it on Saturday morning at Lynch's. It is a welcome visitor to us. We love to look over its pages and read the good news it brings to us. We are much encouraged by it. It tells us of so many coming to Christ. We love to read the letters it contains, and to know that there is so much love and union among the Brethren. May the Lord keep us in love and union, and help us to let our light shine, that others also may glorify his name. We ought to love one another, for Jesus loves us, and died to save us. If we are faithful he will take us home to his kingdom, when he is done with us here in this world of trouble.

The Brethren were with us the second Sunday at our school-house. Had a large congregution, and we hope some good was done. We saw the tears in the eyes of some in the house. Yes, Jesus was with us and he was knocking at the door of some hearts. O may they soon let him in! We hope to have some good news soon to write. A good many have told us they would come to the church soon, and we believe they will come, for Jesus is knocking at the door of their hearts. Brethren, pray for us, and pray the Lord to send us help.

Thomas C. Wood, June 20th.

The Debate,

OWING to the one-sidedness of the de-bate, it has become somewhat alsome to me. The weights seem to all hang on one side. Brother Stein goes straight forward to the work, as one that was impelled by a sense of duty, and the doors seem to swing open before him, thus inviting him on. While on the other hand, Ray twists, squirms, and dodges as a man in the local of a battle, fearing if he dodges this way a ball might hit him, and if that way, a shell might strike him. He seems to have fallen on the plan of many of our lawyers when they have got hold of the wrong end of a case, the last and only remedy is simply to carry at through with ridicule. He is certainly a man of great perseverance; for most men would have given up the chase long ago under such adverse circumstances. Nevertheless we have the strong consolation of knowing that he carries with him another internal evidence of the truthfulness of our religion; for a religion is proved to be streng only by the entire failures of the opposing powers and elements against it to destroy it. Like our Bilde and the whole intidel crew, their entire failures upon it have proved it to be built upon the eternal word of God.

PETER DEARBORFS.

From Denmark.

Dear Brethren:-OUR meetings were well attended in North Denmark. We had four here. Brother Torensen preached, and one dear soul requested to be haptized. Will get some subscribers for our paper, and many desire meetings in their houses. The priest in Scagen bas gathered many people around him, and he and they have wept, saying our doctrine is wrong, and that to be baptized again is sinning against the Holy Ghost. Our sisters up there rejoice in their sufferings for Christ's sake. The Lord will make all our trials and temptations work for our good if we love him. Our treatise on infant baptism has created considerable feelings all along the lines. They say such exposure has never before been made in all the land. Some predict my imprisonment, but I trust in God. True some are engerly watching for an occasion to apprehend me, but the child of God fears nothing from C. Hors.

Gaspel Success.

AND they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to rightenisness, as the stars forever and ever.-Dan. 12: 3.

Warsaw, Ind., July 5. - Three more were baptized last Sunday where I dedicated the church, making twelve in all. Shall go to JESSE CALVERY. Michigan next week.

Grundy Church, Iewa .-- A young man, formerly a member of the Methodist Church, was baptized June 29th. Went eight miles to lowa River to baptize. He was a member of our H. P. Strickler. Sunday-school.

Union Bridge, Md.-We buptized two last Wednesday, and three a short time before that. Last year forty five were haptized in this congregation, and one reclaimed. May the good E. W. STONER. work go on.

Monmonth, Kansas .-- Our church is still moving forward. In the last month we haptized three precious souls, and others are counting the cost. Hope they may soon be able to erect the building. D. D. Shiyyay.

Monticello Church, Ind,-The church is still, as far as we know, getting along smoothly, and an inverest by the people to hear the truth. Now and then a few are willing to join with us. Two were baptized on the fourth Sunday of June. Others, we think, are near the kingdom. J. H. Snowerngen.

From Progressive Christian .- The Brethren of the Newton Church, Manni County, Ohio, held their communion meeting May 26th and 27th. Three were added to the church by haptism. During the month preceeding, seven were reclaimed and seventeen were baptized. This church has had its cloudy day and now rejoices in the dawn of brighter times. They bave an interesting and well attended Sunday-

Locke, Ind. - This morning went to the brick meeting-house, Union Center. Large audience present. Were addressed by J. Hurtsough, D. Neff, and J. Anglemyer; after services one applicant for baptism, an old grandmother Landis, perhaps seventy-nine years old. Much rejoicing among the saints. At half past three met at the same place for Sundayschool. About 175 in attendance; a good interest manifested by all present. J. R. M.

Longmont, Col.-In church matters we are moving along in the even tenor of our way, striving to serve the land, and work for the glorious cause of our Master. Several additions to the fall recently by letter and two a shorttime ago by baptism. More we trust any so near the kingdom as soon to enter in. At our quarterly church council yesterday, with cheerfalness, all willingly agreed to send our quoto for the Danish Mission. Can it be possible that any one who loves the salvation of souls can say night against this handable mission? Notwithstanding the anniual dry season we have a good crop, about ready J. S. Flores for the hurvest.

Deen River, lows. - To-day we held our regular quarterly council meeting. Had a lit the business to transact, which was done to the satisfaction of all. Love and harmony prevailed. One was reclaimed. He had been standing out of the fold for several years. We all rejoice to see him return, and carnestly pray that he may hold out faithful unto the end. Since the last report to you from here, one more precious soul has been added to the church by baptism. We, with the angels, rejoice to see sinners turn to God. Glad to say that we have an interesting Sunday-school. We think it is doing a good work. Officers and teachers are abve to the work, and attend regularly. May God blew our school.

S. P. Millia er. July 5th

Pigeon Creek Church, Mich. - We met at Brother Pikes on the 4th of July, about 11 A. M., and after our usual greetings, sat down to the table. Hymn 715 was sung, thanks were given, and then we partook of the food. After dinner we met to sing, pray and exhort. Hymnnumber 749 was first sung, followed by prayer. The third chapter of Hebrews was read, and then the brethren and sisters exhorted one another. I think all took part; some had a hymn to offer, some an exhortation, some a prayer, some a Scripture. All were refreshed and strengthened. Sang hymn 115, then parted. Thus we spent at least part of the day in our Master's business. How it cheers our hearts to meet with those we love, and in telling of our prospects for heaven and eternity!

A Nice Lot.

N No. 23 of the BRETHREN AT WORK is the following:

"Many of our readers have seen or heard of the article about the Brethren that was published in the New York Independent some weeks ago. It appeared as an editorial, and showed so much familiarity with the concerns of the Brotherhood that the editor was written to and asked for the authorship of the article, and replied by saying that 'the article referred to was written by Mr Miller.' Thus it is seen by whom our people are sometimes misrepresent-And then the following extract from the Meyersdale paper shows what construction was put on the article.

The Brethren at Work credits Prof. Howard Miller with the authorship of the article 'on 'Harsheyism' that appeared in the New York Independent some time ago, and which was reproduced in the Commercial.

I will simply say that I am in no way the author of the Independent editorials, nor am 1 in any way connected with the authorship of the article in question. Did I "misrepresent" "our people," or does some honest brother in Lanurk? Altogether it is a high-toned pro-Howard Miller

Elk Lick, Pa.

The above was in type before I retired from the office, but its appearance has been delayed till the present. In the item we published not a word was said about Howard Miller or any particular Miller, the Meyersdale Communical not withstanding; it was simply "Mr. Miller." We obtained our information from a brother while on the way to Annual Meeting, and published it just as he gave it to us. But lately we have received a letter from the editor of the Independent, stating that the article on "Harsheyism" was not written by any "Mr. Miller." but by one of the editors of that paper.

We are of the impression that there is a misunderstanding at the bottom of this matter. It is likely that the editor of the Independent dalwrite to some one that the article on Harsheyism was written by "a Mr. Miller." referring to the article written by Brother R. H. Miller and published in the Primitive Christian, which artode was afterwards condensed by the editor of the Independent, and by him published in that paper. If this be true, which seems reasonable, then it is the wrong "Miller" that is feel-J. H. Monky.s⇒ ing hurt.

LL who see this notice are hereby requested to send us names of any who might possably be induced to read our paper, and we shall cheerfully send them a specimen copy free. We should even try burder to get outsiders to subscribe for the paper than members; for members, who can aml are true to the church, always attend its services. Outsiders do not, but they would read the paper and thus become acquainted with, and interested in the faith and practice of the Brethren. The paper may therefore be the means of converting the smner from the error of his way, and the Bible says, (Jas. 5; 20) "Let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall lible a multitude et sins."

THE MARTYR'S MIRROR ON BAPTISM.

BY C. F. DETWEILER.

IN the "Martgrev Spiegel der Tanfige sanden" I or Martyr's Mirror of the baptize minded is andlection of historical statements of the persecutions and religious faith and practices of the non-resistant Christians from the earliest recands of the Christian church up to 1660.

The persecutions, trials and the triumphant faith and patience of the saints form a considerable part of the book.

Une of the encouraging features of church listory is the great number of faithful witnesss to the truth, that God has kept reserved to bursell, even through the dark ages and the unmerciful rule of papal arrogance. Surely those dark days of persecution with fire and sword have summed ap countless multitudes of those whom John saw in his vision. (Nev. 7: 9). We need not wonder so much at the extreme measwes of a blinded priesthood against these joins Prople, when we take into consideration that the preaching of these people, accompanied with their pions lives in contrast with the corruphors of the apostate church, made such inroads upon it at times that fire and sword were the only alternative wherewith to stem the tide, and save the body to which an extravagant Merarchy looked for their wealth and living.

Here was "the patience and the faith of the "aints." The enemies of the cross became Unist's instruments to "thoroughly purge his boor," and separate to himself a people out of great tribulation having their robes made white in his blood.

and detailed style, is hardly much known outside of the Mennonite Church, it may be of interest to most of the readers of the Brethren AT WORK, that its historical reference to the ordinance so far as they testify to the mode as taught and practiced by these ancient witnesses, show that they were all immersionists, while the Mennonites of which its author was a member, nearly all practice pouring. The object of the work was not to show the views and proctices of these ancient people as to mode, but to show their adherence to the anti-pedo-baptist doctrine, and therefore its evidences as to the mode taught and practiced among them are ouly incidental, and yet they are quite abundant throughout that part of the work which treats on baptism. To give special notice of them all in this article would make it too long and tedious, but in order to present candid and impartial testimony as to the teachings and practices of those mous and persecuted witnesses in the mode of baptism I will notice a few passages.

Passing by the author's first references to the Holy Scriptures in support of believer's baptism, we will first notice his quotation of Acts 10: 47, which in King James' translation is rendered, "Can any man forbid water," &c , and in Luther's German about the same. His quotation was probably taken from World's Translation, and the German rendering has it, "May any one hinder that these shall not be baptized in the water" &c. This is the same as Froshau's German Translation which is said to have been formerly used by the German Mennonites to the exclusion of Luther's. I give the passages to show the various renderings of a passage that is sometimes used by anti-immersionists in support of the assumed idea that l'eter's disciples were expected to bring a little water in a cup or pitcher for the purpose of baptizing the house of Cornelius.

We will next notice what he represents as the "testimony which the holy apostles in their epistles have given in regard to baptesm,". He says in reference to baptism, "It represents the burial of the sins and the resurrection in a new life," and refers to Rom. 6: 3, 4. In a further comment on the same, he says, "Baptism is a turial of the old man, and a sign of the resurrection in a new life," "putting on Christ," &c. He says further, "To the foregoing" "belongs also Titus 3: 5, where baptism is called a bath of regeneration, and Eph. 5: 26 a water-bath in the word." This is the exact rendering of the German passages corresponding to the English 'washing of regeneration," &c.

These passages which are claimed by antiimmersionists to have no reference to water haptism are very frequently applied to the ordinance in passages quoted from these ancient

There is reference made in one case to a minister having water brought to baptize a man as early as 251, though the testimonies very generally to the practice of baptizing in running water and in baptisteries which was practiced very early by some, found little or no place among those who faithfully adhered to the ordimances as delivered to them by the apostles.

One of the passages quoted from Chrysostom in comparing Christian baptism to the passage. of the Ismelites through the Red Sca, reads as follows: "Here they all enter into the water, so also there " " " there they were delivered out of Egypt, here we are delivered from idolatry; there Pharach was drowned; there the Egyptians were destroyed; here the ald mara of sin is huried."

There are many more passages which I would like to bring in, but lest I become too tedions I will only notice one or more and close. The author of the collection, Thicken J. Von Brach in one of his comments speaks thus: "The manper of Emptizing which by the ancients was But I must either get on the subject or change | termed immersion or dipping under, was long | such like.

the heading. As the book, owing to its diffuse | preserved, yen, even up to our present time," (1659) especially by the people of the Eastern and Southern countries, who understood the little Greek word "baptizo" to mean a total immersion only, but it is found according to the idiom of the Greek language that by this word, is not only to be understood as a total immersion, but also a washing or sprinkling withwater,"

Here is a plain testimony. Immersion was long preserved as every one knows that ever studied the subject with an unbiased mind: practiced and preserved from the earliest records of the rite by the very persons who read the origmal Greek in their own mother's tongue, and the discovery that sprinkling will do just as well, was never made by the venerable apostles, nor by their immediate successors in the affairs of the church, but was left to be made first by a Roman Catholic conneil, and now to be defended by those who claim to be the true successors of the ancient persecuted witnesses, who scaled their faith and obedience to their bord with their own blood.

Would to God that modern Mennonites could accept the baptism that was taught by Christ and the apostles, and strictly adhered to by all true churches of which we have any record for more than fifteen centuries. It is a pity that a class of people who are generally strict in adhering to gospel principles should so discard one principle that was so many centuries a characteristic of the faithful witnesses of whom they claim to be the true successors.

C.—Oh, well, it is not profession that makes a christian anyhow.

S.-Well, how much better do you think you are for being baptized, washing feet, kissing your brethren, &c., than I am?

C-I don't think I am any better than you

S.-Well, then, what do you do those things

C.—Because they are the commandments of Jesus and his apostles.

S .- But I don't see any use in doing anything like that if it don't make a person better.

C .- I did not say that doing these things, with all others that Christ and his inspired apostles have commanded us, don't make us better: I only said I don't think that I am any better than you are. And the facts in the case are in no way affected by what I or you or any one else thinks about it. But what God thinks about it is the important point.

S.-But don't you christians, as a general thing, think you are better than other people? C.-No, sir; I never saw, or heard of a chris-tion that thought so. We read of a certain Pharisee that thought so; and it may be that a good many weak minded professors think so; but Jesus did not pronounce the Pharisee a very good christian, and all those who pride themselves on leing better than their neighbors may come off no better in the day of judgment.

S .- Well, just the other day I heard a man say of a certain woman, "She is no christian because she wears a hat," and of a certain man, "He is no christian because he don't wear his hair as he ought to do.

C.-Was that man a christian?

S .- Why, he is a member of your church, C .- That don't proce that he is a christian.

C.-No, sir, I do not; a man may do all those things and many more and still be the worst kind of a hypocrite.

S .- Well, what does make a christian? pray tell me,

C .- Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ; implicit confidence in his Word; unwavering reliance upon his promises; and obeying from the heart that form of doctrine which he has delivered unto us; these are some of the leading characteristics of a christian,

HOW SHALL WE BE SAVED FROM THE CURSE OF STRONG DRINK

S this disease, or vice, or sin, or crime of intemperance increasing or diminishing? Has any impression been made upon it during the half century in which there have been such earnest and untiring efforts to limit its encroachments on the health, prosperity, happiness and life of a people? What are the agencies of repression at work, how effective are they, and what is each doing? These are questions of momentous interest.

As to the disease of intemperance, which is a social and moral as well as a physical disease, it cannot be concealed that it has invaded the common body of the people to an alarming degree, until the "whole head is sick and the whole heart is faint." The church does not work enough in the cause of temperance. It scarcely reaches out its hand to the perishing inebriate. It even draws back from him her spotless garments and leaves him to perish in the mire from which her hands might have saved him. It has been too busy with creeds and triffing differences in doctrine and things external to give itself as it should to charity.

It has been said, the church is the heart, and lungs of society, and if society is terribly diseased, spiritually as well as morally, is not the church at fault and responsible? It follows very plainly that, if God be the author and friend of society, then the recognition of him must enforce all social duty, and enlightened piety give its whole strength to the public or

Before the church can lical the world it must be healed itself. It must rise in the perceptions of higher and diviner truths, and come down into the world with a more living power. I sometimes think it difficult to tell which has the larger inflaence over the other, the church or the world. The ministers as a whole do not preach temperance enough from the pulpit. They, perhaps, do not think it worth, while to suggest to superintendents and teachers of Sabbath-schools the necessity of instructing the young against the influence of so great an evil, What a great work might be effected, right among the children, it only the right seed is sown at the proper time. I hope the day is not far distant when every church will feel the responsibility that rests upon it, and get to work in the right way to drive intemperance from the land. It is not made a specialty enough in prayer. We see ministers, brethren and sisters come very humbly to the altar of prayer, and hear them pray for the church and its members, for missionaries at home and abroad, for the conversion of sinners, for the head of the government, etc., but not a petition is sent up to Almighty God to stay the hand of so powerful a destroyer, or for the restoration of the inebriate to friends, society and the church.-Church Aden tte.

DESIRE OF THE SOUL.

BY C. J. READ.

ORD, may my soul in thee find rest, And may thy hand of mercy guide, And may my soul be ever blessed, In walking near my Savior's side, And as my weary feet may trod, Scorned of men, and mocked by pride; O may I serve the living God! One who for me was crucified.

Oh, could I live a thousand years, To tell of thy redeeming love, I could but hint to mortals here About that heavenly land above; But soon our souls shall rise above, When here on earth our days are o'er. Then we shall know our Savior's love, And him obey and sin no more.

And, as I roam this earth sofair, 'Mid scenes of joy and pleasures wild, Be this to heaven my daily prayer, Dear Father, don't forget thy child; But teach him all thy holy ways, While he is bowing at thy throne, That he may rise in future days, Where his Redeemer reigns above.

Oh, did my Savior die for me. And must I dwell on earth so long? Oh Savior let me die for thee, And let me sing that glorious song: But if at the my Master's will, I'll live and toil for many days, Until my soul shall rise to heaven, To sing my great Redeemer's praise.

LINE UPON LINE-THE DRESS QUESTION REVIEWED.

m [N]}$ considering the question before us, it is not whether the Scriptures make non-conformity to the principles and maxims of the world in the matter of dress a Christian duty; but whether the present recognized order of dress, in the Brethren church "is from heaven or from men," and if from heaven, should there not be uniformity of style? These are questions now agitating the church, and were fairly put by Brother Alex, W. Reese, of Warrenslong, Mo. The question, "is it from heaven" is too vague, and needs opening out. If by the question, "from heaven" is meant whether the recognized order of the dress of members of the church, is so stated in the Scriptures, we answer, no; but this does not fully present the issue. These are things ordained of God, that are not unide matters of revelation through the Scriptures. For example: It is a law of God that substances lighter than some mon air fall to the ground, and lighter than water will float on its surface.

It is a law of God that poison kills. It is also a law of God that sound rises as it moves away from its source. So, many examples may be produced showing the law of God as its cause, that are not so stated in the Scriptures, and of which it may be said they are from heaven. While therefore it cannot be said that any specthed form of clothing is the result of the operation of God's law; yet the order of dress approved by the Brethren church is in harmony with God's law.

As to its uniformity, the question may arise whether this uniformity is to be considered in an absolute sense, or only in a practical sense. The first admits of no difference in quality, texture, coher, cost, ference in quality, texture, color, but demands sameness of form, limited in cost by the precept not to wear neestly ar-4765 lies ag the Scriptures that humility as a mility, as a principle in the matter of blest, principle is a constituent of Christian dress, and enjoined by the precept of character.

2. Fact. The development of a principle either good or had, proceeds by appropriate acts-expressions-or forms.

3. Fact. The form of expression of a principle is the only practical method of inculcating and perpetuating it.

4. Fact. That whatever is an apits cultivation in matters of dress, must become a general rule to all the church for the purpose named. The first being admitted needs no discussing. The second, as it relates to dress, seeks its expression in the use of modest apparel; not such as will attract and please the carnal eye, either by its glaring color, or costliness. A want of this modest, or plainness of attire is evidence of nonpossession of the principle of humility so distinct and emphatic that he that runs may read.

Third. While modesty of apparel is an appropriate expression of the principle of humility, it also is in connection with the precept of humility, the only means of its perpetuation, on the ground that precept alone is not sufficient to impart instruction. Such is the constitution of the mind that example, in addition to precept, must be furnished to exhibit the principle of the precept, its nature and force; hence Christ gave us the example of his precepts, he gave the model of Christian life, thus teaching us how to make the principle of every principle a rule of life for ourseives.

Fourth. While there may be several forms of apparel that would approprintely express the idea of humility, we need but one form, not many forms. To insist on more than one, is to insist on the privilege of personal choice; to insist on the privilege of choice, is to consult, personal taste of expoliency. To insist on personal choice as to the form of expression of humility is subversive of the principle sought to be expressed, destrocing all rule, authority, and power in the premise. To insist on the privilege of choice, gives me a choice, you a choice, all a choice. To consent to locate the form of dress on the privilege of personal ed as no form of example can be sustain. ed, as properly expressing the principle, is of itself nothing except in the sense of immility in dress. I may insist that that the oak deposits its life and form Now if two three, or more, may exercise theirs; thus locating thus in the school [petuation. of wrangling which in turn involves the do this would be to condemn ourself; (of its transmission, therefore my choice with everything folnon conformity to the world is a general characteristic of the church of Christ, involving a uniform mode of expression to promote its conception, and perpetaation; hence that form which becomes the duty of one to adopt, for the same reason becomes the duty of all. Such a course is pointedly urged by the Ecriptures in itself, by resisting the rule of its manipropriate expression of humility, and of all matters of general interest. See Phil. festation, and of its maintainance. If 3: 16. "Let us walk by the same rule." 1 Cor. 1: 10. "That ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisnons among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind, and and be perpetuated without rule? and in the same judgment." Gal. 6: 16. "As many as walk according to this rule. peace be on them." But we need not multiply Scriptures in support of the proposition. These do not locate any matter of general interest, subject to personal choice.

May then the church determine on any specific form of dress for all to adopt? We answer only so far as dress involves Question. Do forms of a principle. dress involve a principle? and are these forms, modes of expression of said principes? Answer, yes. Example: As a rule, the spirit of pride coupled with dress can be maintained; and as plain. ability, seeks expression through fashionalde attire, following up all the changes, and latest styles. Not only may the church determine the form of character, therefore the present recogdress, but it is her bounden duty to do so; not for the enforcement of an arbitrary edict, but she, being the conservator of the principle of humility, must determine the form of its expression, making the principle practical in form, and this practical form, maintain and perpetuate the principle and practice of humility. Such an expression the church recognized in her present generally known "order of dress." The fact then remains that modesty of apparel, and practical uniformity, belong to the church to direct for reasons before stated, i.e., that the principle of lumility in so far as it needs expression through non-conformity, to the prevailing styles of fashdenoted to let; and for its perpetuation | depend in an absolute sense upon a rec ognized form of dress, in the same sense choice. It is which these deductions rest, it follows easy to foresee the state of things this that those who resist the specific form of would lead to. How then can there be dress which the church may adopt as an maintained the principle of lumility as expression of lumility, and hence hold it is located in the practice of mone on that the form of dress belong to personformity to the world in the matter of all choice, resist the means by which its dress; not, as is seen by incorporating in expression becomes a living, transmitthe constitution of the church the privicting reality of the entire church. The make-no-difference style-of-dress Christian might with propriety hold his views and practice accordingly, his dress being even plain, if his actions termin. ated with himself; but this is not the fact as all actions have their influence over others, hence such a course strikes a death blow at the principle of humility however, it is a fact that it needs no such rule for the purpose named, then it may safely be left to personal choice. Who will say that it can be made manifest, who shall give the rule?

There is no such thing as a private demoralizer, but there is such a thing as a public demoralizer. On the subject of plainness of dress, a public demoralizer is one who throws himself as a stumb. ling block in the way of practical meth. ads of amintaining plainness of dress, A practisel method must be a general uniform method. Therefore to insist on practical uniformity of dress, the purpose is not simply for the sake of uniformity, but for the purpose of preserv. ing the method by which plainness of ness of dress is one of the appropriate expressions of humility, and as humility is an important constituent of Christian nized order of dress of the "Brethren church," is sustained by every principle of the word of God, and is from heaven; and to the extent that plainness, and uniformity of dress has censed to exist among us, to that extent are we shorn of our strength to mold human forms into forms divine and beavenly in their pow. er. In these digressions the individual bears his part of the responsibility, and stands answeralde to God for the result of his weakening the power of transfor-

But the inquiry may be raised, Are there then no other plain forms of dress which will be as appropriate in express. ion of lumility as our present form? We answer, yes. Then why not permit such forms! Answer. To permit two, three, or more forms, (all being equally plain) comes with it the privilege of personal choice, (we mean by personal choice, a choice made without respect to another.) this personal choice, why not twenty fifty, or a thousand? Taking then any one of those other plain forms of dress, and let the church adopt it, then it will do, but it will do only at the exclusion of all other equally plain forms, admitting along with the form adopted, others equally plain, is laying the corner-stone to rear upon it the empire of anarchy. The church is not the throne of anarchy, but the throne of system, and order, as God is a God of order. In maintaining the conclusions herein set forth, we are answering simply to the behests of a principle. A principle tolerates no latitude that would negate its own premise. A modified application may be necessary for its practical open ation. How far then must its demands be met in the matter of dress! As far as is necessary to offix the characteristic of plainness to the believer, -to all delievers, as the appropriate expression of humility, and thus affix the character istic of lumility to the entire body, out will be known as an humble church. which as before stated can only be seen and perpetuated to characteristics, practical uniformity.

But it may be urged that the ground aside the privilege of choice, and deboice. But, is obedience to the order of plainness, and uniformity not a matter of Propose? Certainly so. If I choose, for reasons satisfactory to me, as others chose before me, is my choice then become the pere dictum of some one else? Should but by patience with such, admonishing however, not choose in the matter of uniformity as the church chooses, what then? Answer, the church cannot and will not compel me to adopt her choice. What then? I am at liberty either to choose to remain with the church, or to choose separation from her. Example: After due penitence, and faith in Christ, I may choose to be baptized, and thus obtains fellowship in the church, or I may choose not to be haptized. I taking all the consequences of my choice. What is it? simply a matter of choice? Is God narcasonable in demanding me to choose as he chooses? or forfeit my salvation? The reasons why God made choice, that I should choose as he says should be, and are sufficient reasons to the free exercise of my choice in harmony with God's choice. Is the choice I make then not my own voluntary act, for reasons entirely satisfactory to me? Certainly it is. So then in the matter of dress. The reasons which led the church to choose a certain style of dress, and plead for uniformity, should be my reasons, when fully considered, to determine my choice in harmony with that of the church. To choose otherwise is to assump superiority over all others.

Now, I will notice the difference between choosing as others choose just because they so choose, and choosing as others have chosen for the same reasons that led to their choice.

Question. To the principle of humility and the law of its perpetuation so flexible that two or more forms of plainness of dress may be permitted in the same age and by the same people, and not infringe on itself, and destroy itself? Who will answer! By what law is this pos sible! Light is wanted, and not simply assertions.

The ground taken in support, not of absolute, but of practical uniformity we trust is based on laws ordained by God, which are the laws of the mind, to conceive, possess, and perpetuate the principles of humility in matters of dress. We pass to another fact, and that is, it sy of the redeemed, or the anguish of slavish dependence on the lesson papers, is a law of the mind, that to whatever the doomed. principle, or habit it will lean, these will gradually incorporate themselves into sus is the hope that the light of an imour being and form in us, "will force." mortal life, glorified by the presence of a Bible. gauding submission to a matter not of inquiry, and I am done. How then can this unity of dress be made a reality among us? Shall our Annual Meeting limit the time of membership to persons, in which this must obtain or else be expelled from the church! Answer, no; them again and again, teaching them kindly and socially, praying for them until it becomes manifest that they possess a bad spirit, and are determined to withstand all instructions and entreaties, when it becomes the duty of the church to protect herself from the influence of such examples; and if in the exercise of her protection such a one be expelled, better that by far, than to have the body infected with their spirit of insubordination. Practical uniformity in modest apparel is Scriptural, accords with our highest reason, is a matter of the purest choice; reveals the line of its perpetuation to the ages to come with its manifold blessings, and the smiles of an ap proving God. It adds an approving conscience from something done, and done deeply in the Law of him who gave us our being.

IMMORTALITY.

BY JENNIE WILSON.

TROM the sacred pages of God's written word, we learn that immortal ity is one of the attributes of the soul. A world of meaning is contained in the word, immertality—more than the had man mind can fully comprehend. It is diffiult to realize that the intelligent part of our being is endowed with life that will last through all the cycles of duration. There is something awe-inspiring in the thought that while dwelling amid this world's changing scenes of gladnesss and gloom, we are only passing through the first stage of a never-ending existence, and that the spirit of each one who has entered the arena of life, is destined to survive the vicissitudes of earth and time, and participate in the grand events of eternal ages. When considered in connection with the happiness or woe of the future state, the subject of immortality is involved with an absorbing interest. While the long years of etermity glide away in their ceaseless flight, the undying soul must experience the eesta-

HOW THEY WENT TO CHURCH,

BY MRS. E. T. CORRET.

"IF you would take us both to church We'd sit so very still, We wouldn't speak a single word, Mamma, please say you will."

So coaxing cried my little girls, But then they were so small-One was but four, the other six-It wouldn't do at all.

So I was forced to shake my head-"The day is warm, you know, You couldn't keep awake, my dears, Some other day you'll go."

"But you can sing your pretty hymns, And nursie by-and-by. Witt read a story. Kiss me now, My darlings, and don't cry.'

In coolest corner of the pew I listened to the texts When something rustled in the aiste-I started, bull perplexed.

For many faces wore a simle, And burning, lot I spied Those magnity, tiny bittle sprites Advancing side by side!

And oh! each one carried in her hand Her parasol of libre Held straight and high above her head, And both were open too!

No wonder that my neighbors smiled! White I, with crimson face, Caught and slott up the parasols Then belied them to a place.

I tried to frown upon the pair— Each gazed with wondering eyes, Each nugged her precious parasol, And looked demure and wise.

THE BIBLE IN THE SUNDAY. SCHOOL.

NE noticeable thing in many of our Sunday schools is the absence of the very book-the Bible-that it is prepared to study and to teach. Why is this? The answer is: I. That many wheattend do not own a Bible. 2. But little, if any use is made of the Bible when it is brought to the school-it is not always read or referred to. 3. The catechism and question book. What is the remedy?

1. See to it that every scholar towns operate with the superintendent and teacher. One of the first duties that the pearly portals of the Celestial City and appropriate inscription on the fly-leaf. whose joyful authems scho around the rent fails to supply the pupil with a Bian aversion to them, but by persisting throne, the suffering and sadness, the ble, it should be furnished by the school conflicts and crosses of earth will seem or clourch. Society, however, is less just, and imere of them, to find and read it. It fense, should always be on hand to settle disputed questions of text or interpretation.

3. Discourage the use of papers and lesson leaflets in the class—none of them need ever be brought into the school. May and should be carried out of the school, but should not be brought back into the class. I would have every scholar supplied with papers the best that can be procured, but I would have teacher and scholar so familiar with the lesson and its teachings, that they would be altogether unnecessary in the class. But you say that many of our teachers could not teach without the papers or catechism. True, but unfortunate that it is true. And while I admit that the papers and catechism are, in many cases, a necessity, I most devoutly wish it could be otherwise, and long for the time to come when it will be so. One thing is certainly true, that with a faithful diligent teacher, and faithful, diligent scholars, the lesson paper is not a necessity. At all events, teachers may depend much more upon the Bible.

Let it be distinctly understood that I strongly favor the International series, and realize that the papers and leaflets are most valuable, if not indispensable to the highest efficiency, but their value and importance depend more upon home study than upon their presence in the Т. С. Вочків: class.

THE TWO SEXES.

T HAVE no manner of sympathy with the cackle and clatter we sometimes hear about the relative excellence of the two sexes-about the superiority of one and the inferiority of the other. To me the idea that a woman wants only a "clear stage and no favor"-wants training and education, and suitable circumstances, in order so to develop as to be able to cope with him in the struggle of life,—to me such a thought is utterly repulsive. The great charm of a woman is that she is diverse from man; not a man in the lower stage of development. She is the completement of the man; her nature, her disposition, her powers supply what is lacking in him. The two together make a complete orb; apart, they are only segments of the circle. But in order to stand in this relation to each other, it is obvious that they must not be alike, but diverse. Most unprofitable and unmannerly to me is that discussion about superiority. I would as soon think of contending with you which was the more beautiful flower, the rose or the lily; which was the most essential to the life of the human frame, the brain or the heart; which was more valuable to the world, the glare of the day or the darkness and silence of night; which did more for the movement and security of the planetary system, the centripetal or the one was contrived for the express jurpose of being an adjunct and an auxiliary to the other. -Rev. II. Gordon

It is said of a woman who was very sick, could not rest at night, that she, after trying every available means to give her rest, sent for the minister. Thank God! some Disciples are getting near er the light. But what about those who "do not" practice the kiss of charity? The "luw" says, "Greet one another with a holy kiss," Doing this will fill the requirements of the law on salutations. See John 8: 12.

THE FOUL-MOUTH SLANDERER AND THE ABOMINABLE TITTLE-TATTLER.

DYRON says that slander is, "That abomina. B bie tittle-tattle, the cud eschewed by human cattle." The slanderer pollutes the air with his pestiferous breath; he poisons society with his forked tongue, and spares neither high nor low, king nor peasant, matron nor maid, living nor dead. Like a tornado he leaves wrecks every-where, and, as the loathsome worm, besprinkles his path with malice and talsehood, The choicest flowers, the most delicate plants, the most useful minds from the green-house of character are blighted by the find mouth slan-

It shows to what depths human nature has fallen when we reflect how small a matter will set the ball of scandal in motion. A man is angered because his own selfish wishes are not gratified, or his peculiar whim petted and extelled, and then he straightway seeks to pour his venom upon him who had the manifiless to say no when no was the right thing to say. He tells other fittle-fattlers how he has been alonged-(he was not abused) and then the whole erew go to work on the corners of the streets, on empty dry-good boxes, in stores, in the lanes, and among the hedges, and say, "Have you heard about -- it is awful." "Heard what?" queries the other fittle-tattlers. "O"-and then they proceed to chew the "pleasant thing" until the very teeth of their slanderous mouth becomes dull. Occusionally they meet a sensible man, to whom they put the usual questions, "Have you heard" - mark that word "heard," for they never ask, Do you know if such and such is correct; they would feel bad to find some one who knows the facts, for slanderers and back-biters do not love facts. It is trash, and filth, and stench that they deal in, hence truth and fact to them are non-essentials. They know how to hint, how to give a significant look, how to tone their voice so as to impress the hearer with the anfulness of their neighbor's fault. A flea grows into an elephant, a mole-hill into a mountain in a moment under their supervision. Eury, jealousy, and hatred will start the blood-hound of suspicion in the When we become acquainted with the disad- twinkling of an eye. The slanderer need only vantages of any trade, or profession, or local tell the bound the name of his intended victim and the cur will lay him out forth with

Among some species of animals, when one of their number is hurt, the others straightway fall upon him and tear him to pieces. "Traces of this animal crueity are seen among men and anything and the disadvantages of any place, women to-day." Let a man blunder a little we will most likely learn how to meet them, and behold the army of vultures how they turn and tear to pieces! Yes, then they will certain to lose by the change. No man of of tenderness as taught by Jesus, there is health, common sense, and industrious habits | gloating and rejoicing in the downfall. Shame!

We are using terms that all may know the Slandering and tattling are denamuced by the Lord in severe terms. Hear

"Surely the serpent will bite without erchantment; and a bubbler is no better. The words at a wise man's month our gracious; but the lips of a tool will swailow up himself."-Prov. "And even is they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convarient; being filled with all annighteon-ness, maliciousness; full of envy. tourder, delette, deceit, malignaty; whisperers, Lactionies, habers of God, despitetul, proud, his sters, incentions of and things, disabedient to parents, without understanding coverant-breakers, without natural affection, implacible, unmarket "-Rom, 1:25 31.

ic-tattlers to endure. Christ among them?would take a thousand crucified Christs to gen their eyes. I know nothing so hideous backbiters and columnistors. More communsies and families are rained by slanderers than aything el-e. They murder character and eputation, and often blight the fairest and rest souls in the neighborhood. The rosefor of innecence, the foliage of worth and slent are poisoned with the scum of falsehood and inaliguity. The most useful shrubs, the inest trees, the most brilliant flowers in the garden of private and public reputation besprinkled with the venom of falsifies and slanderers. Early and late, in the meltug sun, out in the storms and wind and hail they ply their vocation. Not a minute for lesus, but fen thousand for slander. They erio, chuckle, and rejoice over a supposed thing, then slink into silence when the exact truth comes out. Quick to blaze abroad the story of one party who thinks he is injured, but very snails in believing when the other party, gives hs side. Slanderers and backbiters do not want the truth. If it comes along in the hands of some good, homest person, they lay it forthwith under the box, and shake their heads, "O well, I ymss it is so." "I guess my story is nuc.' "I believe Mr. Jones tells the truth." of think Mr. Williams is to blame." Thus they and think against the very facts. And why? Because they told the untruth in the arst place and now they want to keep up their ade lost they be found wanting. If they can to no better they will hunt up the little army of semidalizers, it unsult, resolve, and then go out saying, "O I have hand something new, and when I see Williams, I will give it to him." lithey can they will get the langhing company together, call in Mr. Williams, and then taunt him with untruth, innuendoes, joers and such thethings until his righteons soul, like Lut's, becomes vexed with their filthy conversation. Slanderers always want things as they tell them; and if they ever find out dillerently they are sad, and go about with crest-fallen countenances. They regret that the story is not me, for they were sure the object of their hate mas entrapped. They put on monthing when white reputations are proven white, and get out their keltle-drums when they here that metody's reputation is blasted. We need the effectual prayers of all the true and faithful who have washed their robes and made them exceeding white in the blood of the Lamb. We need the counsels of the wise. We need the sympathies of all who can pity and pray. Often are we tempted to flee from the cares and responsibilities of our work, but love for the perishing and the dying, love for him who died for us, and lifted us up and cleansed us, holds us to the labor. Unly by grace from him who is full of fayor, are we made to stand. TE thank those agents and delinquent subscribers who have so promptly responded to our call for settlement, This shows they want to obey all the commandmets, the one to "owe no man anything" as well as the others. We need what is due us now. We shall be very thankful, therefore, if agents and delinquents respond without longer delay.

We thank our brethren and sisters for the kind and Christian spirit they breathe into their letters. We all have difficulties, perplexities, discouragements, and reverses to meet both in society and business, and oh! what a consolation words of fraternal interest and sympathy are.

We thank our contributors for their untiring and zealous efforts to keep us supplied with good articles. You have no doubt meditated much, read much; wrote and rewrote, arranged and rearranged your articles. This is right and God will give the reward. What a satisfaction to know that others love what we love, enjoy what we enjoy, and labor for what we labor .-Write on, brethren and sisters, and, though your articles never appear in print, your head and heart will be improved by the writing of them.

We thank God that we are given such brethren and sisters. May be cause us ever to remember these blessings and kindnesses, and be faithful in discharging our duties, and honorable with the resposibilities entrusted to us .-Won't it be joyful when we meet on that glittering strand, when angels swell the glad triumphant throng, to know that we did all we could in that world below to help each gain the brilliant shore?

IMIE Church Advocate in speaking of sects and their want of foundation in the Bible

"No y, by the Bible no one can justify the existence of the sects. They are specifically condemned. Paul most pointedly holds them up to inspired reprobation. And what Paul condemned was of a peace with, though not as bad as, our modern sects. That is the rock on which we stand. We argue with no man regarding sects. We cite him the words of Paul, And with what Paul and Christ condemned we will have no communion. The men belonging to these seets may be good men, prous men, Christian men. That we are not disposed to question. But their goodness and picty can not make right what tind calls wrong.

The Christian Standard in teaching on Christian fellowship says:

"The kiugdom of God is not blue ribbons, or red ribbons, but righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. For he that in these things serveth Christ is acceptable to God and approved of men. Let us therefore | in regard to blue ribbous and red ribbons | follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may build another up. For ribbons, destroy not the work of God. See Rom. 14: 17-20. Temperance is a Christian virtue, and all Christians should of course, seek to practice it, and labor to promote it. The blue ribbon, we take it, is not synonymous or identical with temperance. It represents a particular phase of temprance work, and the red ribbon anoth-

Since the kingdom of God is not in "blue ribbons, or red ribbons " why have any ribbons? Or if ribbons muy represent one principle of the Gospel, how does it happen that the Ribbonites see so much "want of wisdom" when we maintain that aninformity and plainness of dress may represent Christian principles generally?

The A. C. Review handles fact, and opinion in the following earnest and sensible manner.

"Some have entirely lost sight of scriptural fact and precedent, while some are pitting their opinions against the opinious of others and trying to reason the thing out. And the further they go the deeper they get in. Some are wise above what is written. Well, now, brethren, we suggest that, in your? perplexity, you go to the "law and to the testimony." there be any opinious on questions of fact and testimouy? We answer emphatically, no.— Show us, if you please, where any one of the apostles ever interprised an opinion on any question involved in the doctrine of Christ,— The apostles preached wholly by the authority of Christ. They preached facts to be believed, commands to be obeyed, and promises to be enjoyed. The word "opinion" as used in the religious literature of the present day was unknown in apostolic teaching. The word has been coined for modern use, and is an outgrowth of pure and undefiled sectarianism.

Did any of the apostles ever say, "I think" (for that is the primary meaning of the word opinion) " Jesus Christ is the Son of God;" "Ithink he arise from the dead;" "I think he asrended into heaven;" "I think he sent down the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecust?"-When Paul, in the boarth chapter of Ephesians enunciated the seven assential elements of the Gospel system—the one body, the one Lord, the one faith, the one haplism, and the one God and Futher of all-did be equivocally say, "It is my opinion that some of these elements are less important than others; and, in my opinion, it is a sign of intolerance, and the mark of a narrow sectarian mind, to insist that beganse a man has not been immersed, he will go to perdition; yes, further, it is my apinion that the spirit of Christianity is so catholic and so expansive as to recognize good Christrans in the 'other denominations' and among the 'pious unimmersed?' No, the apostle was not guilty of such miserable twaldle. He wrote under inspiration and by the authority of Jesus Christ. When a man says that he would run the chance of a "pions nummin reed person" rather than the chance of an an nersed hypocrite, he is either distonest or does not know what he is talking about. That is not the question. And when it is as ried that a man may have the harm tor of a Constrain without his sustaining the relation of a Christian at the same time, it is clear to our mind that he who subasserts is either a "timmer" or does not understand the first show mis of the reasoning process. We hold that no man been keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace" and express an "opinion" in the premises.

WHOM SALUTE - ITS MEANING

Some one please explain Matt. 5, 47, "And if ye salute your firstlion only, whill do ye more than others? do not even the publicans so?"

TIME word salute is from "aspasesthe," and I mmong the various definitions, we find the following as directly applied to the verse under consideration "to lace" "treat with affection," meaning an expression of our regard for others, either by words or actions.

The doctrine laught by Christ, in the above Innguage is the great principle of charity, which must govern us in all we say and do in every department in tile. "Though I speak with the tangues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal. And though 1 have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and though I have all faith so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity I am nothing. And though I hestiny all my goods to feed, the poor, and I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing." If Cor 43, 1, 2, 3, From the apostle's language it is clear that we can do a great many things, that externally seem very bur, but unless they are prompted by charity, they will do us no good; for there is a Idessing in giving, as well as in receiving, if we give from proper motives.

But we are so much inclined to love only those who love us, and as a consequence we become selfish. This was the trouble with the self-esteemed Pharisces. They were righteous above all others, and desposed by those whom they regarded as interior, to themselves

When our charity is with exercised those who entertain a similarity of views, we become clausts, and in this sense are no better than publicans and sinners, for they have those who love them. Our love or charity must remin out ^d heyond those lines of distinction and formulaties that men have made, and emission the poor, and half, and ldind, and down-fradden of every nation. This is essentially Christian

Christ faught us to love our enouges, to do good to their that bate us, and pray for them. that despatefully us, and persuade us. Matt. 5

Christ not only taught the great principle of charity towards all mankind but he exemplified it in his life, by fasting denth, for every man, and praying for the forgiveness of his enemies while he was statlering the most intense pain. The apostles taught the same doctrine; "It those enemy hunger, hellim: if he thirst give him dank," "Resist non exit, ! but overcome evil with good," and a vemplified the doctrine in then lives, by suffering limprisonments, stripes, and death, for the cause of Christ, and salvation of samers,

But one will say. If we love sinners, will We not compromise our holmess"? Not at a !. Christ ate with producins and sinners, but did that make there a problem and a sumers. Same wood of the strong of an this was, doubtless, to show he'regard for those in the lower walks of his and to rate them up to a largher place of more by to their tain or them. We can do others no good, no neather how degraded they may be, unless we let ourselves.

down in our sympathies to their moral status, and there begin to lift them up. We may entertain the idea, if we are members of the church, and keep the commandments of Jesus, that this is about all that is required of us. The gospel implies first our salvation, then a strong desire for the salvation of others. The person who only cares for his own salvation is no Christian. We may drift off into selfishness almost insensibly, and extend our sympathies, and sociabilities to those only within a limited circle. We may conclude that neighbor A. is a member of another church, there is no use to try to teach him the ways of the Lord more perfectly. We may conclude that neighhor B, is pretty hard-he swears some, and neighbor C. gets drunk occasionally, and neighbor D. and his family are very fashionable. It will not do to mingle in their society for fear of losing our religious sanctity. But we can do this without in the least impairing our religions standing. We do not mean that we should engage in the vices and evil habits of the wicked, but to mingle with them, and be real sociable, and watch opportunities to speak a word for Jesus and the salvation of their sonls. In this way we can reach the hearts of some we cannot reach any other way, and still retain our Christian integrity. For this purpose we are to SALUTE others, who may not belong to the church of Christ, to bring them m, that God's house may be full. It is said that Spurgeon has out, constantly a large corps of workers, who visit the lower classes of sovicty in London, and talk to them about Jesus, and distribute tracts among them, and leave with an invitation for them to come and hear Spurgeon preach. This accounts largely for The immense congregations of Spargeon's church and his success as a minister.

The truth is, we are all contracted in our conceptions of religion. We think if we and a few of our neighbors are saved, that God will take care of the balance. We need more workers-more workers in private as well as in publie. A word littly spoken to a sinner may result in his sidvation. This, private members can do as well as ministers. Christ, upon one occusion said "that the publicans and hurlofs enter the kingdom of God before you," Matt. 21: 31, meaning the bigoted Pharisees, Tho held themselves in high esteem, and despised J. S. Mohler.

"Who socker shall be ashamed of me and of my words," says Jesus, 951 him shaft the Son of high be ashamed, when he shall come in his own glory, and in las Pather's, and of the holy angels? Lulo IMIS solemn and impressive atterance seems focle practically forgotten by many who stand connected with the pulpit or the press to minister in holy things. It must be confessed that there is a great tendency at the present in all the ranks of the ministry to seek the approval of man. There is a shrmking from speaking out the truth in its fullness and power. Its sharp corners are rounded. Its strong doctrines are slithful; its warning voices are tened down. To approve ourselves, unto God, the mind must be filled with God's truth, the soul with Christ's love, and the whole manwith the unction of the Holy Ghost. These are true sayings, and deserve consideration. Perhaps persons hold truths, but who knows at Why, intimate friends be whom they may write in glowing terms. But they do not speak out plainly to the masses who meed the helical their festimony to assist them in forming their judgments. Of what use are such retarmers to the world? Why should this reserve axid? Is there no yielding to the temptation for the sake of salary, etc., or guard. These tellows joined us when we were popularity to the asleaned of Christ's "words?" To follow after the things which make for peace, is trobeed a duty-so far as we can do it. and not displease God by a compromise of the over the steepest mountain paths. A ride truth; but it is "better to be saved in a storm which was to have occupied four and a half thao best in a c din "

To hold list the truth on the second advent is well, but we should be capeful not to hold it. so fast as never to let it coit. "Buy the truth and sell it not," is the advice of the wise man. "Buy" if in beaven's market, without money, and without price. "If we suffer with Christ, we shall also reign with him; it we deny lam, he also will deny us." Think of it. -- Bibb Benner.

HAMMER -Our dear old Brother, Jacob Hammer, departed this life July 7th. He was 82 years old last May. He leaves his companion, now over seventy-five years old, behind him, still to face the solemn realities of life

He came to the church about two years ago. and was haptized by Brother George W. Cripe. and he like the Ethiopian officer, arose and went on his way rejoicing. We have reason to believe that his life is hid with Christ in God, and when Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall be "also appear with him in glory." He seemed to endure his afflictions patiently. He spent much of his time in singing and praying, and would often ask God to help him and all others to be patient in their afflictions.

Nebo, Callirrhoe, and the Plains of Moab.

(From the 'Christian Statebard, by special Arrangement.)

Thus been suggosed, from the statement. that God showed Moses "all the land of Andah to the utmost sea," that he actually saw the Mediteraneau. But this is impossible from any mountain west of the Dead Sea, for the highest of them is lower than the mountains west of the Jordan. The expression, "to the utmost sea," must then refer to the westward limit of the land, which Moses saw, and not to the range of his vision.

When we had completed our observations on the top of Pisgali, we directed the Sheik to lead us to our tents, which had been jutched at the Springs of Moses on the northern side of Mt. Nebe, and 1100 feet below its crest. We anticipated a sleep and rocky descent, but to coir surprise and gratification he led us by a path smooth and easy almost the entire way, We wondered it this is not the very path by which Moses ascended this incountain for the last time, and these springs which still bear his name, the last from which he ever drank.

From our camp at the Springs of Moses we made an excursion, next day, to the hot springs of Callirrhoe, near which are the rums of the eastle of Machaerus. This eastle was a favorite winter residence of Herod the Great, and also of Herod Antiques; and it is there, according to Josephus, that the latter confined John the Bandist after his arrest, and finally beheaded him. The fine bathing in the hot springs gave the place its chief attraction. Our dragomen and the Sheak both tried to dissuade us from going thither, declaring that there was danger of our being attacked and robbed by the wild Bedonn of the Beni Sakrh tribe. But we unide light of the danger, and insisted on going whereupon the Sheak sent one of the two mea who were with him to summon, three Jootmen could with gons to attend as as an additional about half way, and took the lead of the party They led up one declivity and down another, in the most desolate region we had ever seen, and hours stratched into seven, and the thermometer went aparito the nineties. We finally reached the Springs. They are in a deep, narrow gorge, which opens into the Dead Sea about eighteen miles from its head A stream of cool water flows along the bottom of the fissure until the streams from the hot springs pour into it, and below this the entire stream is hot. The hot springs burst out from the northern side of the ravine, and under an immense ledge of red sandstone lying on top of a ledge of bniestone. The two principal springs are about half a mile apart, and they each send forth a volume of water sufficient to run a mill.

The streams dash and roar down the mountain side about 100 feet ere they enter the creek below. I inserted my thermometer in one of them, just before its junction with the creek, and found its temperature 124°. That of the other, where it leaves the cliff, is 142°, We took a bath in the creek just below its reception of the first hot stream, and found the water as hot as we could hear. But the rocks on which we stood were hotter, and they made us dance when we stood upon them with our naked feet. On returning to camp we found we had been absent fifteen and one half hours, from 5 A. M. to 8: 30 P. M., and that we had been in the saddle fourteen hours, on some of the roughest and strepest paths that a horse ever passed over. Many times we had to dismount, and even on foot some places were deficult and dangerous. A bright moon enabled us to descend the rocky side of Mt. Nebe, to the tents. or I think we would have been compelled to camp among the Bedouin. We were completely worn out, but a good night's rest revived us. and the next day we were again ready for active service. We took a fine shower bath at the Surings of Moses. They make several beautiful cascades, and I would like to describe them. but must pass them by.

From the Storings of Moses we descended into "the plants of Moab over against Jericho." sometimes called in the Bible "the plains of Shittim." It is a plain extending eight or nine miles from the mountains to the Jordan, and ten or twelve miles from the Dead Sea, north to a westward projection of the mountains, where they reach out to within three or four unles of the Jordan. It is traversed by five streams of water, which, if properly applied, would irrigate the whide of it, and make it a garden. Indeed, it once was a garden, and it supported five cities, the rains of which now constitute live immense mounds stretched along the base of the hills. Near one of these is another hot spring with a temperature of 102 . We camped here on Saturday, May 3rd. and remained till M aiday, the 5th. On Sunday morning Brother Earl had a chill; but he treated himself with Homograflic remedies, and was able to travel Monday morning. We were now on our return to Jerusalem. We crossed the Jordan at the Jericho Ferry; but instead of using the boat, we forded the river at the head of a shoal just below. The water came well up to our saddle skirts, and one of my knees got wet, but all of our eighteen animals crossed in safety. While the pack-train was crossing, our party took a fine swim in the river, and once more tested it as a place for baptizing. It is rare that a better place for the purpose can be found in a running stream in any country. Pebbly shore; gradual descent into the water; pelibly bottom, and the current near the opposite bank.

From the Jordan we returned to Jeinsalem, by way of Bethel, and plent fiel the site of Ai-The ride was full of interest, but I must pass it by. We returned to Jerusalem on the 17th day after leaving it, got left is from home that were more than six weeks old, and mailed those that we had written during our absence.

The Christian's labor-The Sanctuary-Harvest Time - In the Temple-At Pleasant Ridge.

NWARD and upward is the flight of the Christian, nor would be wish his labors to cease while in the body. Stopping by the way would encourage inaction and sluthfulness endangering him with the threatened woe applied to those who are at ease in Zion. Hence for the love of the cause which he has esponsed, the welfare of souls, the love for his Maker, the joys unspeakable that will ultimately crown his labors and the happiness with its "transeendent brightness" that will entwine her gentle wreath around his brow, adding luster to the gems in his crown, is the grand central thought animating him with greater zeal and energy to pursue the journey. Then who guald fold his arms and quit the race when such are the blessings to be enjoyed? With those heavenly enjoyments in prospect, we left for our different fields of labor this beautiful Lord's Day Brethren E. Bosserman and Jarob Witmore at the Brech Grave School-house, Brother W. C. Teeter at Pleasant Ridge, and the writer, near Findley, Ohio, in a pleasant school-house situated on Chamberlan Hill, from which elevation could see the fall spiring steeples of the city churches, where many wor shippers are assembled. We had a good andigare, and the best of altention, and from observations and private conversations with some of the anditors, I think they are falling on the stone, and are broken, (Matt. 21: 44) and will soon be ready to apply to the great Physician to have their wounds healed, and confide in him who only can comfort the broken-hearted. Oh what sorrow in the heart occasioned by sin! What groans, sighs, and tears distressing the human family! Jesus can dispel our fears, comfort our hearts, and wash away our sins by yielding obedience to his gentle commands. Satan must be bruised. May God help us to gut into practice that identic religion that will lumse the Serpent's head, that sin, with all its usholy influences, may be cast away from our hearts and be larried that a resurrection may be impressible. After the Sunday-school session we tried to talk to the congregation about the words of this life, cast our mite into the treasury of the Lord to enjoy its benefits in the world to come. Oh what pleasure to unfold the riches of the kingdom to an attentive congregation! How it animates and inspires the speaker when all lend a helping hand! What pleasures in mutual labor! What harmony in union of effort! Oh that all difficulties, all unkind feelings throughout Christendom could be bruised as was Moses, that none could erect a monument of remembrance. Then could we march in one solid column, and each effort would be effectual. May we all labor for more love and union in the future, retain present accomplishments and strive for more. A tower of strength we will then be in the cause of Christ and be the means of winning many souls to the cross.

This beautiful Lord's Day we again met the humble worshippers at Pleasant Ridge. Had a good hearing and earnest attention to the word preached. Text, Acts 3: 19. Theme, Conversion or turning to God. Oh for yet more of the religion of Jesus Christ established in the heart, that we may have more power to procure the truths of Jesus to a dying world. Oh the longings of the soul for the bread from heaven, ever drinking but desiring more. Thank Holl for the abundant fullness of Jesus Christ, satisfying present wants, and ever assuring sumplies, encouraging the soul onward and upward to joys on high, where it can soar over the everlasting hills, and bask in the eternal sunshine of the Golden City.

The service was closed by Brother W. C. Teeter, atter which we took the parting hand and left for our humble abode, and now 1 am plying the pen to take down a few more juttings, which may soon be scattered abroad before a cold criteising world, which fact almost makes me shrink back and lay down my pen, and silently retreat from the public gaze. But upon the other side there is juy and encouragement, and as grace is given in the future, the pen will be applied. May the siving grace of desus be applied to all our bearts.

good report within and without the church, not a tattler, babbler nor busy-body in other men's matters. Such a man would certainly be injurious to the cause of Christ. Characters with these faults can be singled out without much of the spirit of Christ. If a man of the world can single such out why should not the Christian church recognize them? And if the church has young men fully established, I would say by all means give them the preference, as they will have ample time as well as young and active minds to improve themselves in the work. To this the church is coming rapidly.

Upon the whole the choice made here will in the future tell for itself; but so far as our judgment goes the proper persous are at the proper place. And Brother Lichty with myself may expect in the near future to have much of the labor divided among five instead of two as heretofore.

CCORDING to promise, I will, after a long delay, say we met with the brethren and sisters. December 11th, 1878, in company with Brother Jacob Buck, in council, in Sedgwick County, Kansas, eight miles north-east of Wichita, at the house of Brother William Funk. After the usual devotional exercises, the object of the meeting was made known by the writer, by Elder Buck's request; and after a few introductory remarks, the voice of the members present was taken for organization, which was manumous. The voice also was a unity to have Brother William Funk restored to his former standing as minister in the second degree, with the understanding that this body of brethren and sisters will keep house together in gespel order. The organization was effected, and named the Wichita Church. It will be highly appreciated by the members of this church, to have frequent visits from other districts. Ministers traveling in Kansas by way of Wichita, make a note of this; you will find a brother's home with Brother and Sister

We went next with Brother Back to Reno County, to the Nineskaw Church, where there was an organization requested, but this could not be effected at this time; all we could do here was to preach the gospel to them during one cold stormy week.

Slacob Fishel, Brother Secrist, and J. W. Beer are the ministers here; but J. Fishel lives in R co County, hence not to meeting we think because of snow and storm. Here Brother Buck formed homeward, and I, in company with Jacob W. Beer, went to Kingman County. Had one meeting the evening before Christmas. Then went to Harper Center, Harper County. Not hearing of any members here, I furned my horse to come to Summer County. Reached man that preached in our new country." Here as where the Crites live.

In company with my old sister of 73 years, and her husband, came to Friend Luke. High's house. By request had two meetings in his house. His wife is Brother Arnold's Jaughter. In all these places they wanted more meetings, but the weather and houses were too cold for me at that time. I saw no fruit of my labors. except a number of persons got to reading the Bibbs, and said they would learn to live a better life; and that is what we are to labor for-to reform the lives and characters of men and women. Christ said, and they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father,

May all of the above finally come to desus, is John Forney.

The Danish Poor,

Dear Parthern. -DY requist of the clarreli we seed thanks to all the donors who so will ngly came forthe work, and the scholars seem to be much in-layoid such that will, if things, go not to soit (and of course he must supply what is lacking,

After November next the county will render no assistance unless the needy go to the county house, and the treatment there is certainly not desirable. What shall we do? Shall Brother Hope continue to help her? Then, too, we have an old Brother who must be almost entirely kept. We do not yet know what we can get from the county for him, as they refuse to do anything since he left his former home in Thyland. They told him if he would come down here he could live by his own labor. Bro. Hope will do what he can to procure for him what is due him for labor. Then there are six families who need help occasionlly. We have allowed $1.50 to each person per month since receiving help from America. Brother Hansen has received the needed aid from amount sent from America, until now. Most of the money was donated for him; but this did not work well, for he is young and strong, and the older and infirm persons seem to be set aside, and this looks like respect of persons; hence so soon as we are not bound by the donors wishes it may be distributed equally as far as it will reach. The amount on hand will soon be exhausted, hence the wants of the poor cannot be near supplied, for those of us who do not need assistance are so greatly taxed that we only have the necessaries of life, and that, too, in a way so scant that you can not conceive. If you can do anything for us well and good; we leave the matter with you, confident that you will do what is right. However, if you do anything, do it snou.

The following should have appeared sooner, hut was mislaid.—En. [

PHE brethren and sisters of the Buffalo Church are well, and on the 7th inst., at quarterly council, after the usual exercises, the question came up, "What is the best course for us to pursue that we may be successful in building up the church in this part, and enlarging the borders?" Remarks were made by several of the Brethren, that were very aproprints, and hope all will heed them. Our elder said that he thought we could be more successful if he had some assistance in the ministry, he being alone, and often called away, and bad to neglect his appointments at home. The matter was considered, and urged that we write and see it we can't get a minister to move in amongst us this Eal, if not the clairch, granted that a choice be held here and one chosen.

Now we know that there are plenty of mixisters in some places and some tespare. I now appeal to them, and urgently request, them, to come and help us; for "the harvest is great and the laborers few." Now any minister seeing this and who have an idea of blaving their present field of labor, let them write to David Bodinger or the undersigned for information.— When you reed this don't think that somehody of chas written and you need not, but write to us yourself. We can accommodate several. Write to us and we will tell you about the country. Any of the Brethren that wish to change location are hearfuly invited to come and settle among us. Now we close by asking God to Idess his people everywhere, and finally save them all with your Brother in Clurst.

ATABASH County was visited by a severe storm on the 7th inst. Wheat and corn were considerably damaged, and the rain-fall was great. Our meeting-house was ruined. The west end was blown in, falling to the lower floor breaking some banches. Nearly the whole of the south sale of the roof was blown off, and half of the north side scattered in every direction. That which is left is worthless. A school house about one hundred test from the church was also unroofed and otherwise badly damaged. Both were brack buildings. Other buildings and some orchards were more or less mjured

We teel the loss of cur house, as we had regular meetings there and we believe with profit. We also had, in our estimation, a very profitable Bible School, where fifty or six'v pupils were being tright the word of the Lord more perfectly. What we will do not dithe house is remired is not yet decided that hope all will work together for good. We also trust that when our house is repaired it will be better than ever, and that we fee, may be better.

Elk Lick, Pa.—We had a glorieus celebration on the 4th of July, by a special meeting being called. After services we repaired (not to the grove) to the waterside, where prayer was wont to be unde; four were buptized and rose to walk in newness of life. We were made to regret that our bishop could not be with us upon this occasion, as duty called him to the Meyerschile Congregation, where they held a council. Four were added to them through baptasm; they also held an election for ministers, and it resulted in the choice of Edward K. Huchstetler, Urias Broucher, and Samuel P. Maust. They, too, were made to rejoice in the God of our salvation. I hope you may have much to report of the good results from all congregations, resulting from the celebrations on the 4th. May God continue his good work among us. Since my list report he has blessed us with rain. S. C. Keim. July 9, 1879.

Dear Bretheren, ---

TMHS lovely Sunday at H A, M, we met in ous, at our new meeting-house (now under contract) to attend to the last tribute of modern respect to the silent dead. A short time since we sent you for publication (which came in return number) the memorials of our dear aged Brother Peter Ellenberger, and as above intimuted, this day was set for the funeral discourse. Meeting opened by Brother W. Q. Calvert, (our young minister), who selected Rev. 14: 13 | Greene, two miles northeast of Knoxville, Ray for the basis of his remarks. He held the County, on the 26rd and 24th of October large attentive audience in breathless silence for one hour and twenty minutes. The subject was old, yet he drew out new und importantideas, making it interesting to the unconverted, and profitable to the child of grace.-He was followed by Brother Landon West, in a very stirring applicable discourse of thirty minutes, solemnly impressing the idea that today we met to attend to the obsequies of a brother whose work will follow him, and yet live in the hearts of all who knew him during the present generation.

The place where these stirring truths were made known was in God's first temple. The whoop of war or the yell of the savage may the been heard in that grove, but never be minutes of last year.

fore, since the morning of creation, were the praises of our God offered there. The first services on our church lot, was the reviewing of life, and recounting the virtues of a faithful brother, who valiantly stood at his post tiftytwo years. He was always noted for his principles of peace and contentment. Brother J. H. Garman concluded the meeting by appropriate remarks and singing. Taking the meeting all through, it was the best we have ever attended, and there is no doubt in our minds, but it will result in the conversion of many souls before the approaching Winter.

STEIN AND RAY DEBATE.

Prop. 1st-Brethren (or Tunker) Churches possess the Bilde Characteristics which entitle them to be regarded as Churches of Jesus

J. W. Stein, Athrns.

D. B. RAY, Denies.

IN our 14th reply we charged that the Tunker enston of ancanting the sick with oil "for the forgiveness of sins," was blasphenious, Mr. Stem, in his next, said: "My friend's church used to do the same thing." This we emphaticalh denied. But in his last, Mr. S. quotes from Mosheim, that the General Baptists inse the ceremony of extreme unction! This charge is atalse rumor circulated by Mosheim, who was abitter enemy to the Raphists. Mocheim intimated that the Particular Buglists of England admitted persons to membership on infant haphism and "aspersion" This charge is notoriously take, and so is the story about the "extienie unction." We do not deny that some. among the General Bapticls, amounted the sick with oil, but not for the jurdon of sins, or to prepare them for death. And even it they had performed the Catholic unction, the conduct or these could not be charged upon the denomina bon with which we are identified. A tea cases of anomiting the sick with oil occurred annoug the Daptists of Virginia, but it was not performed for the pardon of sins, neither was it the practice of the denomination. We still believe that the Tunker oil for forgiveness of sites is Masphemy

Yes, Mr Stein has admitted that those who are already "regenerated," "are required to cuter Christ's Church by solemn onth of allegaance," administered by nunisters of the Ga-pel Therefore, the command to "swear not at all' must be limited.

Cor friend demes that the Tunkers regard "every umbaphized man as an uncegenerate cluid of Satan." We have shown that the Tunkers do hold that baptism is itself regeneration. This point Mr. S. has surrendered. The original Tunker Church was started in 1708 by unbap- a "leaky" "cumunel," yet they are "the telegram" mined by his opinion of us.

tized persons, who, according to their own doctrine, were unregenerate children of the devil. because they were unbaptized. The attempt to deny this only shows the fearful spirit of deception which possesses the Tunker leaders Mr. Stein contends that our proofs that the Tunkers had their origin in 1708, "is the same Baptist document rehashed?" Baptist or not, it is the historical statement of the origin of the Tunker church, which has the endorsement of all the Tunker historians and writers up to the present time. But, now, to escape the lustorical fact that the Tunkers had a human origin. in modern times, Mr. Stein infimates, that, the Tunker history is all wrong; and that "the understandings and traditions of our old Brethren are more reliable on this subject than any thing else we have. With these to guide, I think I could make out a better case of succession than Mr. Ray can," 16th aff. Thus Mr. S. is driven from the written historical statements of the historians, including the Tunkers themselves. to the unwritten "understandings and traditions" of ignorant men! In his 15th all', Mr. S'em says: "We do not doubt that Christ has always had churches somewhere on earth, which, have held and practiced substantially what the Brethren teach and practice now." Mr'Stein cannot name even one local church during the fifters centuries, prior to the eighteenth, that possessed the characteristics of the Tanker churches. Will be attempt to tell where such a church existed during this period? and by what name was it known? If he fails to answer it will amount to the confession that there is no evidence of a Tunker church on earth during the lifteen centuries prior to the eighteenth.

Mr. Winchester's memory concerning what Morgan Edwards should have said in favor of the Tunkers, is evidently wrong, unless Edwards was a hypocrate, in which case his evidence would be worthless. Also, the statement that Dr. Judson considered the Brethien as the "descendants or proper successors of the ancient Wahlenses and Allagenses," is a perversion. Mr. S. regards the little church at Swartzenan, consisting of eight souls, as the little lump desfined to re people the earth? If he rejects all. the firstory on this subject, how does he know that there ever was such an organization?

Again, he says: "The fact that no one can tell who the first administrator was, is significant here." So we think; for it there had been nothing wrong about it, it would not have been con- if their word is sufficient. Instead of the Tunkered up in secreey. molded in the battery of truth!" We are of opinion that the whole Tunker water-works, fountam, channel, cable, telegram, battery, and all, is a "leaky" concern. Mr. Stein affirms that our "Scripture references fail to show au unbroken, organic connection from the apostles to the present time, through a people of like faith and practice." He finally asks, "For the scripture that requires it." If he does not believe the truth of the passages already cited, he would not be persuaded though one should rise from the dead. Dan. 2: 44: "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed, and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." Of this same kingdom the angel Cubriel said: "And he shall reign over the house of Jacob torever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end," Luke 1: 33. Also, "Of the increase of His government and peace, there shall be no end, upon the throng of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from hence forth even forever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this," Isa 9; 7. And of the church representing this kingdom the Savior said: "And I say also noto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Matt. 16: 18. In the face of these, with a host of other scripture proofs, the man who denies the unbroken, organic connection from the apostles to the present time (of the kingdom of Christe. is an infidel. Though we are under no obligation to trace the succession from uninspired his tory, yet this perpetuity is established from the Word of God; insomuch that we know that any estricts which has come into existence since the apostolic age cannot be the original church of Christ. This much our proposition affirms for Baptists, but we cannot be drawn from the discussion of the Tunker church question at present. Baptist ghost is not in this proposition. It is the sacred ghost of the dead Tunker church succession that we are now porsung.

Again, Mr. Stem bases another claim for the Tunkers on the supposition that "their rules of liscipline" are contained in the New Testament. This he timiks is true, because Mr. Kurtz, a Tunker, says so! It is likely be could prove all his points by Mr. Kartz, or some other Tunker.

In his reasons "Why I left the Baptist Church," to B. Mr. Stem says: "Have they a topolitic in form of clarreli government? So have thorough discipline, every part is subject to the whole." This contains the seeds of popery. The Consideration affirmed that, "In matters of Peted the Bible as the ordy rule of faith and

THE PROFANE PRAYER.

T was a time of great danger on board a ship. when on its voyage to the East Indies All hands were on deck, the captain was giving them his orders. On finding some of the men not so active as he desired, the captain curred and swore in a fearful manner, wishing them "all in hell." When the danger was past, a pious seaman respectfully said to the captain, "Sir, if God had answered your prayer just now, where would we at this moment have been?" These words touched the conscience of the captain, and from that time he became a changed man, and ever after lived a useful and Christian life.

Reader, are you guilty at any time of profanc swearing? Do you take the holy name of God in vain? Consider; if God were to answer your wishes and appeals, where would your soul be? Do you know what it is to be 'cursed," or "damned," or to be "in hell," as you sometimes wickedly desire for yourself or for others? Can you really wish yourself to be cast oil, or that others should be cast off from God, from happiness, and from heaven? And to be cast into that place "where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched?" Do you plead, as me excuse, that it is a habit, and that you do it without a thought, or that you do it only when in a passion? But will these vain excuses serve you at the judgment seat of Christ? Do they really satisfy you now? Oh, repent of your evil ways: look to Jesus Christ with faith and trust, that you may be forgiven of this sin and all other sins; and seek for the grace of the Holy Spirit, that your heart may be converted, and that you may no more be guilty of the senseless, degrading and wicked practice of swearing. "Let the wicked for ake his way, and the inrightenus man his thoughts; and let him return to the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him, and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon," Isa, 55, 7,

ACCORDING TO YOUR ABILITY.

 INVERY man according to his ability," is the christian rule of giving and working. It is not very faithfully obeyed. There are many persons who have great ability, yet do but little work; who have ample lessure yet give but little time; who have large possessions yet make small contributions. This is an evil that we have all seen under the sou.

And there is another like unto it. There are a great many people who have some ability but who do nothing, who have not much lessure but who give no time to the hord's work; who have a little money but who put none at all into his treasury. Those who have a little and give nothing violate the Christian baw just as truly as do those who have much and give httle. There are a great many persons, soonig and old, meall churches, whose means and opportunities are limited: from whom not much carbt to be expected; but they are able to do something and they do nothing. They are transgressors of the Christian law. They a got to repent, and do works much for repentance. -511.

THE LORD'S PRAYER.

UR Father in the beavens, The Present everywhere, We love to praise thy hallowed name, In all our thought and prayer.

Then let thy kingdom come, Thy wdl on earth be done. As by the hosts who fill the heavens, By all beneath the sun,

Give us this day the bread, Our bodies to sustain-While on thy word our spirits fed, Eternal life may gain.

Forgive as we forgive, Our hearts from malice free-And help us love our fellow-men. As we are loved by thee.

Lead us in loving ways, Above temptation's power-Cleanse us from all the stains of -in, And keep us every hour,

The kingdom is thine own; It fills the universe-The power and glory in thy hand, Can suffer no reverse.

So let it be in me; So let it be in all; Our Father's Universal King. Our hord is Lord of all.

MOSES AND CHRIST.

RY M. J., BOODS

"For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A Prophet shall the Lord your God raise up anto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass, that every soul, which will not hear that Prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people." Acts. 3.

NOTICE, first, the similarity; second. their different missions; third, the great object in view.

1. Similarity; Moses was a true prophet of the Lord. This was fully demonstrated by the miracles which the performed, (brevity forbids me to enu merate them). All Bible readers know the striking resemblance between Moses and Christ, in the miracles they perform ed; both show the divine sanction under which they acted; hence a Prophet like unto me.

2. Their different missions. Moses the original author of the words in our heading, is said to be faithful in all his house. Numbers 12: 7. His mission was to deliver the children of Israel from bondage, to conduct (or lead them) through the wilderness, into the land of Canaan, concerning which, God did swear to Abraham, and said, "to thy seed will I give this land." Gen. 25; 7.

I will now notice the promise made to Abraham a little further. "And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed my voice. Gen. 22; 18, see also 12; 3; 48; 18; 26; 4. It will be seen that the prom ise made to Abraham was of a twofold nature. 1. The land of Canaan was a a temporal promise; a goodly land, and a long life were the blessings promised. "that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee,' The law which was delivered through Moses was always directed to that particular nation, the Jews, it was given to exclude them from the rest of the world, a Idessing if they obeyed the commands, and a curse if they disobeyed there. Deut. 11: 27, 28. When they obeyed. they would drive their enemies before them, and when they disobeyed, their enemies would drive them. This evi dently shows the blessings, were present or temporal, and the jumishments were inflicted at once, as is evident from the following: and while the children of Istael were in the wilderness, they found the congregation brought him without the camp, and stoned him with stones, and he died, as the Lord commanded Moses. (36 verse). The foregoing shows the law which Moses gave was a claw to govern the Jews in the land of Canaan; a prophet like unto me. As already stated, Moses was a true prophet. Hence the words of our text. Moses was careful to point the Jews to the coming of Christ. We now leave Moses and the law for awhile, and turn to Christ and the gospel.

"Him shall ye hear in all things, what soever he shall say unto you," Now after that John was put into prison. Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying. The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye, and believe the gospel. Mark 1: 14, 15. The reader. will here notice the difference between their missions. The kingdom of God is at hand." This was nowhere said of the former or Mosaical dispensation. Hence Moses points them (the Jews) to the prophet like unto him. As already state ed. The miracles which they performed in their different stations, show their striking resemblance; him shall ye (the Jews) hear in all things, whatsoever he shall say into you. This shows that when he (Christ) comes the Jews should hear him, not only the Jews, but all nations. As he is that seed promised to Abraham, wherein all nations of the earth should be blessed. "He that fear eth God, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him." Acts 10:35, "For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us." Eph. 2: "Having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man, so making peace. (15th verse). The above agrees with what we learn from the transfiguration upon the mount. Matt. 17. When Christ was transfigured before Peter, James, and John, there appeared unto them Moses, and Elias, talking with him. Then Peter said, Lord, it is good for us to be here: if thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias. Matt. 17: 4. The reader will perceive, that Peter, was willing to put the three upon an equality. "But while he yet spake, behold a bright cloud overshad. owed them; and, behold, a voice out of the cloud, which said, This is my belowed Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him." The above shows a perfect union between Moses and Christ, "hear ye him" agree with the words of Moses at the head of this article. "Him shall ye hear in all things," &c. Let this suflice to prove their different missions.

As my article is already too lengthy. I hasten to my third and last proposition.

THE GREAT OBJECT IN VIEW, VIZ. the righteousness of God revealed to man, "That every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become guilty before God; therefore by the deeds of the law, there shall no flesh be justified in his sight; for by the law is the knowledge of sin." Rom. 3: 20. The law was added because of transgressions, till the seed should come to whom the promise was made. Gal. 3: 19. Is the law then against the promise of God? God forbid. For if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness should have been by the law. (21st verse). But the beripture hath concluded all under sin, that come. You are engaged in a work so dices and consanguineous influences, with Sabbath day, Numbers 15: 32, and all might be given to them that believe. (22nd verse). The law then teaches the knowledge of sin and its evil cousequences. This was the object of the law. Paul teaches the Galatians that the law was our school-master to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justifield by faith. But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a school master. Gal. 3: 24, 25. Now we know, that what things soever the law saith, it saith to them who are under the law: that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become guilty before God. Rom. 3: 19. As already stated, the law was given to the Jews only, hence not hinding on any other nation, it accomplished that for which it was sent, viz: to teach man the justice of > Christ taught many things in para bles, and on one occasion it is said, "with out a parable spake he not unto them. So the old dispensation is the great parable of all other parables. "Now all these things happened unto them for ensamples; and they are written for our admonition upon whom the ends of the world are come." 1 Cor. 10: 11.

Now, dear reader, we learn that God is going to judge the world in righteous ness, by that one whom he hath ordained, Jesus that great Prophet," whom we shall hear in all things, whatsoever he said unto us." Can you say with a clear conscience, I resolve with all my heart to do the things whatsoever he hath commanded! Then I can bid you God speed if not I ask you to stop and think. Jesus has died to redeem you and I from all iniquity. He is calling all the weary and the heavy laden to come unto him, and learn of him for he is meek and lowly in heart, and we shall find rest unto your souls. He says, "I judge no man. but the words which I have spoken, they shall judge you in the last day." "Also, "All power is given unto me, in heaven and on earth; Go ye therefore and teach all nations, &c., teaching them to observe all things, whatsoever I have commanded you; and, lo, I am with you al way, even unto the end of the world." Amen.

Here we learn by what law we are to be judged, and Paul tells the Corinthians if we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged. May God help us all to do so, is the prayer of your unworthy servant,

THE TRUMPET OF EMMANUEL

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH,

To Brother Daniel M. Miller, of Illi.

VOUR delightful missive of the $26 {
m th}$ of June found me pining, moaning and squirming under neuralgic castigation. Excepting the conscience, there is not another rod of Divine discipline so aglow with retributive fire as a shattered nervous system. No form of matter is in such close proximity to the soul as luain and nerves, and nothing approaches nearer the agony of damnation than neuralgia. God in nature is as dead a fact to the vast majority of the Brother. hood, as the personality of God in the church as to the physical basis of salva. Ineat and drink and rest. John 4: 31-angels feel honored in seconding your labors, and invisibly concerting their high ministry to issue your emergencies in the victory of truth. That fifty soul have been won from the dominion sin and the impending horrors of hell by your administration of the economy of the cross, should not only take you to your knees, but lay your very face in the dust at Emmanuel's feet, with your heart aflame with adoration, and your lips resonant with thanksgiving. I take it for granted that you preach the Gospel, and insist on neither more nor dess than what the Incarnation impera. tively demands. A Cross without a Dis vine-human victim, is a wretched mockery of our misery, and a Divine enflesh. ing without au atonement would be a farce so wanton that it would be blas. pheny to think of it. Unitarianism is guilty of the first, and Quakerism of the latter. We have as great need of expi. ation Godward, as of a Divine manifes tation manward. A revelation of Deity necessarily involves a revelation of sin; and if this is of such a nature as to preclude the return of the Son to the Father without the wrench of death, it is clearly demonstrated that "without the shedding of blood there is no remis. sion." Thus in the very nature of things the denial of the Atonement is the rejection of the entire scheme of redemp. tion. The pseudo-saintly Quakers are in the same plight. Their repudiation of the symbolic or objective necessity of religion is a derogation of the Incarnation. It is idle nonsense to talk and preach about the mainifestation of God in pulpable form, and then challenge his right to institute external ordinances equally binding on all souls through all time. Quakers can no more prove, eith. er Scripturally or philosophically, that the objective was designed to dwindle into the spiritual at any stage of the militant economy, than they can demonstrate that the human side of Christ's constitution faded into the Divine before His sacrificial ministry was ended. To claim, as do the repudiators of baptism, and feet-washing, and eucharist, that the ir's is the Baptism and administration of the Holy Ghost, is nothing short of reckless, God insulting audacity. But we need not go ontside the church to find just such miserably self-stultifying logic as the exponent of what is falsely termed progress. It is pitiful to see how theorists and speculative theologians contradict themselves at all points as soon as the desire to establish a pet view preponderates the sovereignty of truth. The Revelation of God is beautifully consistent. It never clashes with itself. It knows how to deal with abuses without ignoring the thing abused. To work for God we must work with God. This requires a rigid scrutiny of motives, and a profound, constant participation of that quality of being that can joyfully leave a throne for a manger, and the companionship of choicest intelligence for those that are vile and sordid and boorish and inhuman and devilish. A genuine Apostolic Succession will thin the number of ministers behind many a table throughout the Brotherhood, and send them into territory occupied by the humanity of Jesus is to the infidel. SHALL WE HAVE OFFICERS AT OUR COMMUNION MEETINGS?

BY AMOS K. FLORIA.

WE believe this question involves one of the great principles that characterizes our -church, and so distinguishes it from other modern churches, and from the world. And not only so, but it is one of the great principles that distinguished Christ's kingdom from all former kingdoms. We might here bring Scriptures to prove non-resistance, but do not think it necessary, as we trust and believe, we are as near united on that as any other subject of Christian duty The question seems to be, are we or are we not responsible for the doings of such officers where they are acting in our behalf?—Surely we are.—We solicit their aid; they come at our requests—and per form the work we assign them. Al though we do not say just how they shall proceed in the matter, yet we know beforehand their manner of doing business. We know if it becomes (in their judgement) necessary, they will take human life. And if it be so that we must, in this case, bear the responsibility of shedding the blood of our fellowman, how much should we be willing to suffer in order to avert it? Why does such assistance become necessary! Have we opposers that seek to extinguish our religion? No. Do they seek our lives or property? No. What then? Why there is always a crowd of noisy boys who will not keep order, and thus do not respect us in our religious faith. -Now let us compare our situation with that of Christ, and see what reason we have for thus withdrawing ourselves from the all-protecting hand of God, who has promised to be with us always, "even unto the end of the world." Was Christ opposed! Verily he was. Had he prov er to resist? He had power to call to his assistance more than twelve legions of angels, but what does he do! His lips move, he breathes forth a prayer, and says, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do." Luke 23: 34.

But we are reminded that officers will have no trouble in keeping order; that their mere presence will suffice. may do for awhile; but we should remember we are sowing seed that may not ripen in our time, which succeeding generations may reap to their sorrow. Therefore let us "labor, working with our own hands, being reviled we bless, and being persecuted we suffer it." Car. 4: 12. "Be not avercome of evil. lant overcome evil with good. Rom. 12; 21. Therefore, brethren, let us gird. on more securely the sword of the spirit. which is the Christian's only weapon of fally beset drunkards. Let us notice their warfare, entrust ourselves to the kind care and protection of our heavenly Father; and if we fall marryrs to the cause of Christ at our communion meetings, we could not choose a better place; want and misery prevail, where Identy above who do not enter by the narrow

A HYMN.

BY JAS. Y. HECKLER.

(OME Holy Spirit, come with grace, And make in us thy dwelling place, For then will light of Heaven divine, In all our course and conduct shine.

Inspire us with a heavenly zeal, That we thy love divine may feel, And warm our hearts with holy fire, That we thy precepts may admire.

Enable us to watch and pray, That we thy counsels may obey: And help us, Lord, through trials hard, That we may gain the great reward.

How happy will thy children be When thy dear face they all can see, Rejoicing in their Savier's love, In peace and harmony above!

OUR GIRLS AND TEMPERANCE

THE relation of our girls to the temperance question has been forcing itself so strongly on my thoughts of late, that I have concluded to talk about it,

It seems to me if only our girls appre ciated the power they possess over young men of their acquaintance, they would use it to better advantage.

Just suppose now, that the girls were as particular about the morals of their beaux, as the young men are about the morals of their "girls," Wouldn't the consequince be that drunkerness, swearing, and other vices would be as uncomnoon in one sex as the other? I firmly believe it would.

The remark was once made to me, "Why! a man couldn't marry a -woman of unsound morals; it would ruin his happiness for life." "Sure enough," I replied, "but wouldn't a woman's life happiness be ruined just as surely if she married a man of unsound morals? "Oh, well!" he said, laughing, "there is not so much expected of a man." There is more truth in the last remark than I like to admit.

I know girls and women whose lives and hearts are pure and who study to have them so, and yet they associate with and marry men whose reputations are ldackened by many social vices, even , drunkenness, sometimes. Now my nee ption is, that a girl would, if she were wise, make the most possible of herself. and expect as much as she gives, of her associates -particularly of the man she marries. If girls would do this, if they would require as much of young mea as the young men require of them, they would do more to stop intemperate than all the reform clubs in the country, and the clubs do a great deal.

It may be said that a girl cannot tel whether a man's morals are good or not. I think they can, very largely. But suppose they cannot, their brothers can, or their father, and they are safe confidants I have seen so much misery from neglect of girls about the morals of the young I men with whom they associate, that I wish I had words to put the case more strongly. Leannet imagine a worse condition for a lady of good character than to be the wife of a man who drinks, and is addicted to the other vices which user rate. They receive abuse whore they have a right to expect protection; or is dren are horn to a life of toil and shame:

and strife ("for what fellowship has light with darkness?") where the whitewinged angel of peace and love ought ever to rest; and everything growing worse and worse with no reasonable hope of a change for the better.

Do the girls say, "A good many of us would be obliged to go alone and remain single if we would not accept the .com. pany of any but good principled men." Well, and wouldn't you rather? Difference in wealth and education are nothing compared with the difference in principles. I know that many are wheedled iuto matrimony by promises of reformation; but it is safer to let the reforming be done first, for where one succeeds, ninety-nine fail. I verily believe in reclaiming a man who has formed habits of drinking, using tobacco, etc., before marriage,

I would like to know the opinion of some one else on this subject, especially of some of the young people,— $C,\;\;W.$ Van P, In Oread.

ENCOURAGE THE BOYS.

FALF-GROWN boys are too often 11 treated as nuisances, and are thus encouraged to become such. No provision is made for their entertainment; they are not trained to employ their overflowing activity in useful ways; they are treated as if they possessed a peculiar kind of depravity, and as incapable of adding to the happiness of others. It is too much to expect that a boy will prefer reading a dry book to a frolic with his fellows, will enjoy being lectured nightly on his particular sinfulness, while his sister, or some sick, over studious youth, is held up as a model of perfection.

If one half the praise which you bestow on three and five year olds, and on "young ladies just coming out," were distributed among young men, we should see a marked decline in loaferism and rowdy conduct. To notice a boy's good intention is to make performance easy. To treat him as a social outcast is to make him, sooner or later, a professional disturber of the peace. If home be made pleasant, and pains taken to guide youthful spirits into legitmate channels, there will be less fondness for that independent, roving, selfish, existence, which marks every boy as an Ishmaelite.—Sel..

Thruk is a very tenching little story told of a poor woman with two children, who had not a led for them to lie upon, and scarcely any clothes to cover them. In the depth of winter they were nearly frozen, and the mother took the door of a cellar off the hinges and set it up before the corner where they crouched down to sleep, that some of the draught and cold might be kept from them. One of the clubbren whispered to her, when she complained of box badly off they were, "Mother, what do those dear little children do who have no cellar door to put up in front of them?" Even there, you see, the at the heart bund cause for thankfulm ss.

Winning the peace is that Christ gives. all the trouble and disgust of the world cannot disturb it. All outward distress to such a mind is but as the rattling of hail upon thetile of him who sits within the house at a sumptious banquet.-

None can enter by the heavenly gate and comfort ought to abound; discord | rate below. Luke 13: 24.

The Brefhren of Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

M. M. ESHELMAN, EDITORS AND S. J. HARRISON, (Phoprietors,

1. The Editors will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that they endorse every sentiment of the writer.

2. Costinuerous in order to secure prompt insection of their articles, will please not include in personalities and uncourteous language, but pre-sent their views " with graze seasoned with salt."

3. The Bretioner at Work will be sent to any address in the United States or Canada for $1.50 per annum. For the leading characteristics of the paper, as well as terms to agents see eighth page. Address all communications.

BRETHREN AT WORK, Lunurk, Carroll Co., 111.

LANARK, HJ.,

- AUGUST 4, 1879

THE address of G. W. Priser is changed from Neodesha, Kansas, to Fredonia, same state.

BEOTHER W. C. Teeter's address from August 7th to 15th, will be at Goshen, Indiana, and thereafter ut Mt. Morris, Illinois, until further notice.

WE received, the 28th ult., a registered letter post marked, White Rock, Kansas, July 21st, 1879, which has no mame nor address given,-We do not know whom to give eredit.

Parties writing to either of the editors on business not connected with the office should mark their letters, "Private," Otherwise the letters will be opened by some one else.

BROTHER S. Z. Shurp says: "Our Sunday School is rapidly increasing in circulation."— We wish every goot paper would go on increasing until every family on earth had one.

What think ye of him who professes temperance principles, advocates and orges them, and then attaches his name to a legal bond in order to fortify a man who runs a distillery. There, now, we have let out the secret!

In your passion for sudden accumulation be careful that you do not practice secret framls, for God sees to the bottom of all your unrightconsucss. He will farn your "bushel" apside down some time and expose your wickedness.

Parties wishing to correspond with Brethren C. Hope, or C. C. Eskildsen, should address them thus: Hjorring, Wensyssel, Denmark.-Letters breathing a christian spirit, and replete with the love of the Master will be appreciated by them.

M. M. Estirians will spend a few weeks in Indiana, and those desiring to write him will please observe the length of time he will remain at each place. North Munchester until August 13th, Goslien until August 18th, South Bend until August 24th.

WE have now published another edition of FARILY RULES AND REGULATIONS, by J. W. Stein, Mt. Morris, Illinois, and have filled all orders for the same. It is printed on very time bristol board. Sent post-paid to any address in the United States or Canada for 20 cents.

BROTHER S. H. BAKER of Ma, Wisconsin, writes his section of country has been visited by terrible storms resulting in the loss of human lives, cattle, hogs, grain and property in general. Notwithstanding the riging of the elements, their crops are good, and prosperity ្នារៃ smiling upon them.

Hyst not yet, dear minister. We do not want to hear that you have just up, the sword of the spirit; but, so long as you have strongth, wield it as God may give ability. And when sin is slain, and the "new mun" rises, send along the joyful news that we may rejoice with the angels in heaven.

BROTHER W. T. Nimnger, of Meriden, Kansas, says that their ministers can not fill all the appositments, and that belie in preaching the gospel would be very desirable. He also says that a good harness maker and a miller are needed in his town, and suggests that if there are any brethren who can labor in these yountions they should correspond with him.

Same a preacher not long a_o: "Praise the Local for July calcation," What kind of salvation is that? What doe "July salvation" save from? The Record speaks of "great salvation" and "eternal salvation." but nothing concerning July salvation. The mind that speaks thus of a grave subject must indeed be under a strong delusion.

There are some of our exchanges which we regard as specially valuable. Among them we name the Messenger of Peace, published at New Vienna, Ohio. In these times of strife and rumors of wars, it fills an honorable place in Journalism. We recommend it to our readers as worthy of their patronage,

We want the name of every family in the Brotherhood that does not now take the Breth-REN AT WORK. Will some brother in each congregation volunteer to send us the names of such in their respective churches? To all the namesent us we will send a sample copy free. Please let us have ten thousand names within the next two weeks, and thus help us to do a good

THE world has been learning for six thousand years, but men have not yet learned that their neighbors know as much as they do .-Unpleasant associates are those who continually endeavor to impress one with their superior knowledge, and feel that they are made out of letter clay than common humanity. "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he full."—Gospel Princher.

Exequently persons living at remote distances from each other write arricles that read so near abke that persons not acquainted with the parties, would likely conclude that one had copied from the other. But it is possible for those who have obtained. "like precious faith" to speak the same thing in almost the same words. An old brother who has stringgled hard against S.tan, on the Western pracries says: "I withhold my answer on Lake 19: 37-40 since I see that Brother J. S. M -- -, in No. 29 has answered it, and if mine should go in, some might think that I had copied from his, for mine and his are almost recouting."

Per on the breastplate of righteousness, if you have resolved to follow the track of truth. The breastplate is not for your back, but to wear in front where you may receive the sharp cuts or non han, without injury. Do right; though friend for ake you. If fore pull down your tort, throw up another, thug your banner of right to the breeze, and you shall conquer. Help to make the times in which you live, rather than wait for them to make you. When enemies snarl and snap use no crooked means tu appease them. It is a mostake to conclude that corruption wins more than honesty.

There are two ways of treating papers.-Those who wish to do good take from a paper just what they conceive to be elevating and worthy, and present it in such a way as to make the impression the author intended it should. The other way is to take out of a paper anything that can be shown in such a light as to be degrading. The item in the Carroll County Gazette, of the 1st inst. from the B. At W. savors of the latter. We presume the editor meant no more than fun by it, but the people who read papers have no way of knowing what is meant except by what is said. The B, vr W, thd not say "ladies," Will the Guzette correct?

THE Brethren in the Camp Creek church Wisconsin were warned by one "not of us" that so soon as Brethren Meyer and Miller would leave there, the "sheep" would be tried. Accordingly on Sunday, June 29th, after Brother Turner had concluded his discourse on baptism, a man of bold pretensions arose and endeavored to refute the arguments. He had no soomer finished his attack than Brother J. E. D. Short, by permission of the Brethren. arose and in a kind but firm manner put the alien to flight. We are glad that the beleet of God" in Wisconsin are determined to fight, the good tight of faith with brighle holdness.

BROTHER D. B. GIRSON continues to "fight the good fight of faith." Though not enjoying good health, he cannot remain silent, but is ever ready to buckle on the armor and go forth to the conflict. During the just two years he has had the pleasure of beliging to gather several hundred precious souls into the fold of Christ, many of them from other denominations - We have enjoyed his bard arguments, and persuasive appeals in the just, and hope we may be spared to hear more. He expects to spend several weeks in Southern Illinois the coming Autumn. We now remember that he has a standing promise to do some work in Lanack. We look for its fufillment soon. May our Brethren every-where kindly temember those who deny themselves of home comforts and associations to preach the Gospel. Pray much for your ministers, and do not target the practical part thereof. - Luke 10: 34, 35,

DRESS.

TOTWITHSTANDING all that has been said on "dress," it still seems to be misunderstood. We did hope that we could write on other subjects, which we regard of more importance, but now feel that justice demands we say something more on this question. Our object is not to misrepresent those who differ with us, but to meet their objections in a fair, pleasant, and logical way, and establish, as much as possible, a oneness of sentiment, that we may all labor together in love for the good of man

Since we have been a member of the church. the ladies have ever arged the question, "Isn't a hat as good as a sun-honnet?" The ladies would proceed to tell us how much less expensive hats were, how much less trouble, how much more comfortable; that sun-bonnets were hard to make, that they cost more (and according to their figures it was sol, that they were not durable, were soon and easy soiled, that they were difficult to keep in order, that the fashion changed so often, that in the winter they were so cold, as the wind would draw through them, and in the summer they were so hot as they kept out every bit of air &c.

That the bonnet should be so dreadful vald in the winter, and then so dreaful hot in the summer seemed a little contradictory, but this the ladies soon made plain—to their minds. In the wanter they could wrap a nubia over their head | taught by common sense, and therefore, taught and ears when they had a hat on, and in the summer they could carry a parasol!

and tight dress question. A few years ago hoops were the fushion, and a dress not over hoops was awful unhealthful in the summer time, and awful unhandy to walk in in the winter time. But the women are much more healthy now. Not one in ten thousand is in such feeble health. that she needs to wear hoops. No indeed; their health is so much better that they can afford to have their dresses so tight that they they will look more alike than two roses do?

But the ladies insisted they were honest and of course I had to grant that they were, feeling that I was either too ignorant to express an axiom in good plain English, or that what I believed was simply a wild chimera of my brain We kept our eyes open that we might see the ladies verify what they alleged was infallible truth. We expected to see them wear their hats at least six sevenths of the time. But imagine our surprise when we saw great big sunbonnets on these very ladies who knew so well the inconvenience, uncomfortableness, and expensiveness of sun-honnets. We were made to feel that either we had lost our mind or they had theirs, for at least six-sevenths of the time they were those inconvenient, uncomfortable, and expensive sun-bonnets!

In all candor, after hearing all the ladies had to say in favor of the hat and against the sunbonnet, and seeing which they were the most, we were compelled to answer their question, "Isn't a hat as good as a sun-bonnet?" in the negative, and, way down deep in our hearts, we teel that all the ladies think just as we do, and we fondly hope their honest sentiments will some day not be misrepresented even on Sun-

But we have a few words to say on dress in

Why is it those who think so little of dress, who know so well that dress neither makes men better nor worse, fight any form of dress? they think they are helping roish forward the Muster's cause by wasting their time and talent with a question which when it is settled is nothing? Do they think they will cause their brethren to feel better by opposing them? Is that the way to secure co-operation in work? But do not those who persistently oppose the order of the church, show a great amount of concern about dress? Does it not take more thought to obtain crothes just in the fashion than just in the order of the church? Is not the dress selected by the church, as simple, convenient and comfortable as any worn? If people care nothing for their dress, don't feel any better or ny worse from what they wear, why do they persistently digress from the order and annot their brethren and sisters who fear the evils of such a course? Do they take pleasure in seeing their larethren in distress and griet? It so, is it the spirit of Christ that does it -

What advantage is it to a lady or gentleman church ceases to have a uniformity of dress, we morally, physically, or intellectually, to wear anything which is not essential to health, comfort, convenience, or cleanliness? Does a plume a flower, a bead, a buckle, a how, or a jewel on a hat make it any more healthful, comfortable convenient, or cleanly? Does a ruffle, a tuck, a fringe, beads, lace, or any thing of the kind make a dress any more durable, less easily soil. ed, cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter? Ought not the utter uselessness, expen. siveness, and inconvenience of these things forever to banish them from the minds of those who have avowed a determination to live a sincere and sober life? Would it not be much more consistent. Christ-like, to appropriate the labor and means expended on these vanities. which deceive the hearts of the simple, to preaching the gospel, the pure gospel, where is is not known? "But," says my friend, "look at nature; how varied in form, color &c. No. two things of any kind are just alike," Then, let us look at nature. The Bible, Nature, and Common Sense always speak the same way on the same question. When it is proved beyond doubt that any thing that is taught by any one of these is true, it is infallibly certain, that, if the other two say anything about it at all, they say the same thing. Then if it he proved that in nature we are not taught economy, it is proved that it is not taught either by the Bible or common sense. We think we have clearly shown that economy, simplicity, and order are both by the Bible and Nature; but we wish to make our view on this question so plain that The matter seemed to us a little like the hoop | no candid and patient reader can object to it. It is said no two roses are precisely alike.-

This we readily admit: but does not one rose resemble another rose more than anything else in nature? Are not roses so uniformly alike that if you know one once you will always know them? Now, when the church asks nniformity does she ask more than that? Does the church anywhere ask members to dress so must take two steps to go as far as one natural When brethren look as much alike, resemble each other as closely as flowers, fruits, grams and animals of the same kind, does the church ever bring complaint against them for digression from the order? Does the church anywhere demand such strict uniformity as we see in Nature? If she does not, and we go to Nature for instruction, instead of accusing the church for too much rigidity in enforcing uniformity would we not be compelled to censure her for too much leniency? Then, has not nature placed plumes in the wings and tails of fowls, leaves and flowers on trees, shrubs, and plants, instead of hats and bonnets? Are not these things a use where Nature has placed them? Has Nature ever created anything without a use? Is it not contrary to nature to find plumes, and leaves and flowers on woman's head? If Nature were not disturbed, but allowed to follow her course, do you think plumes and flowers would ever grow on hats or bonnets? Shall we continue to be known as a simple, unpretending, nonresistant, charitable people, or shall we become the gandy, fashionable, ostentations characters that compose the popular churches of to-day, whose members were once as plain as we are? Ah, reader, don't your soul revolt from such a thought? This matter rests almost entirely in the hands of the young members. Whichever way they go, that is the way the church must go. Then won't you lay aside every dead weight, every species of vanity, and superfluity, and stand upon the true merit of your manhood or womanhood? Do not try to attract honest friends with gougaws, flounces, ruffles, jewels, &c., by adorning your persons with them, for honest friends can neither be won nor retained by such things. If you are the true metal you will never be despised by men and women of sense for your plainness. Fops and dandies may slight you, and silly flirts of girls may laugh at you. But lops and flirts always debefore they get old, consequently they will not taunt you long. A young man whose highest ambition is to drive a fast team, and a young lady whose highest ambition is to get a bean with the prettiest mustache, are objects which deserve our pity more than fear.

Let us stand by the old standard, the true and the tried. We know we are safe there, but the other has been made a failure every time it has been tried, and let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. Whenever our expect it to follow close in the steps of all other denominations, we have no hope of anything else. If the dress selected by the church be such apparel as the gospel prescribes for Christians, let us forever stick to it and show some stability of mind and purpose. Do not those who contend for phinness contend for just what the order of the church is? Then if the church has just what they are contending for, why not endorse it rather than ridicule and oppose it? If the order of the church in dress were not strictly plain, economical, and neststrictly such a dress as the Scriptures, Common sense, and Nature teach we should wear,-our pen would be as ready to condemn that order as it now is to uphold and defend it.

But we have dear friends whom we would love to have in the church, and they would come if we were not so strict in dress-they would come if they could wear a hat-a plain hat, they say. Is it possible that any one would estimate a but equal to eternal tife? Is the person who does so a fit subject for the church? Would joining the church with the atfections so knift to a bat that she could not give it up, do her any good? How much spiritual life do you think there would be in a church where the near bers think more of their hats then they do at eternal life?

FROM BETTER TO BEST

BROTHER sends us the following: "Ranway, N. J. Juny 4rm 1879. Dear Friends: -

I shall be pleased to bear from you or any of you who may approve the primitive basis set forth in the tracts, herewith sent, and may desire apostolic baptism, and apostolic ordination instead of that which origjusted with the unbaptized baptized of Alexander Mack as is confessed in his life and writings.

Yours Truly, JAMES CHRYSTAL"

To this the Brother replies:

of presame he, (James Chrystal) aims to burst the 'Dunkard' church. I would like to change from better to best, but have no desire to change from bad to worse. Your Brother

Elder Chrystal in one of his tracts says; "We cannot be saved nuless we confess that faith." For the Holy Ghost by Paul says, "If thou shalt confess with thy month the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart, that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." Rom. 10: 9 Here the Elder teaches that contession and belief are conditions of salvation. So far, right. Hear him further: "Jesus, in Mark 16: 16, makes haptism one of the conditions of salvation." We still agree. But again: "It you have infants or children, have them, as is the custom in the East, baptized in warm was ter at home. There is no promise in the New Testament to any child unbaptized." Here we cannot agree. Why? Because baptizing infants is not taught in the New Testament, We cannot take part in a ceremony not taught in the New Testament. Not one word is said about haptizing infants in warm or cold water; not a word about haptizing them at all. Nor is there a single promise in the New Testament for baptizing infants who cannot believe, who cannot confess. We can agree so long as we cling to what is in the New Testament, We disagree only when we leave that Book and go to custom. He who goes after the thing not commanded, is the one who causes the disagreement. The man who adheres to the Word of Truth is not causing division among believers. The Word separates believers and unbelievers, but it is the thing autside the Word which separates between those who believe that Christ come in the flesh, hence we can go no further than God goes. When you ask us to leave the Word of God and go to enstom, we must say, NO. There is no promise of salvation, no crown reserved for those who accept things, conditions found only antide the New Testament. Infants can not contess; neither can they believe, hence why haptize them? we rest this here for a future article.

"Apostolic haptism and apostolic ordination." Was Alexander Mack the first to practice trule unmersion? If so, then it originated with him. But we call Elder U. to the stand.

What was the ordinary mode during the first her centuries?

Ans. "Trine immersion was the ordinary mode for the birst five hundred years after

Now since Alexander Mack lived in the eighteenth century, and trine immersion was the ordinary mode for the first five centuries after Christ, it follows that Alexander Mack did not originate trine immersion, but practiced what he found in the New Testament. Now until it can be shown that he did wrong in obeying "from the heart that form of doctrine once delivered to the saints," we must continue to believe that he did right in receiving and teaching trine immersion as the scriptural hap-

"THE POWER OF THE PRESS."

UCH has been said about the power of the M press. That books, tracts and papers have done, and are doing, a mighty work in a silent way cannot be successfully denied. Simply to look at, they are like all other luxuries. As a means of moral and religious culture their value cannot be over-estimated. The humblest as well as the most exalted have access to the best thoughts in the world. Bible with all its poetry, prophecy, law and history is within the reach of all. Do we apprecuste this privilege? Do we enjoy the liberty of reading the Bilde?

Politicians understand the tremendous power of the press, hence utilize it. Men of science know its value, and use it. Publishers of obscene and trashy literature appreciate the value of the press to increase their gains, hence use it "with all their might." Millions of men and women seek the light and the chaffy, first, because they love it; and second, it is made so cheap that it is within their reach. Here is where Chritians are lacking. They do not enter into the privilege of using the press for good as they should. True the report of one Society shows that, 'more than eleven millions of religious books, over one hundred millions of tracts, and some thirty millions of spiritual periodicals, have been scattered broadcast among the people.' Other societies have sent forth still more, and the final result will only be known in the day when that other book shall

But the question is, "What is our Brotherhood doing in this direction? A little has been done, and eternity will untold the Idessed results. Will you not shout for joy, dear brothor and sister, when you meet them there whom you aided with the little book or tract which you placed in their hands while sojourning on the earth? Yes you will sing and shout for joy .-Thousands who will not go to hear a preacher will take up a book, tract or paper and read,-Gradually they are led to read the Bible, and at last the seed talks into good and honest hearts, springs up and yields an abundance of fruit.— The eye can be had when the ear is closed."

Not until, however, we cast aside all selfishness, our love for our own case and comfort our closeness and indifference concerning the salvation of our fellew-men will be able to throw the bombs over the walls whose gates are closed to a living ministry. Not until we have been taught to obey 1 Cor. 16: 2 as readily as we do I Cor. 16: 20, can it be said that the press is a great power for good among us. To lay by on the first day of the week for the Lord, and then have it gathered into the treasury for the spreading of truth is attended with so many blessings that we wonder why it is not more frequently done. But we are in "perilous times;" men are lovers of the pleasure of the purse, more than lovers of God; so the poor souls are left out on the barren mountains of sin and folly TO PERISH, while we enjoy all the comforts and luxuries of peace and religion-publishing tracts and pamphlets unless our people will come forward and begin and sustain Matt. 25: 34-40.

In distributing tracts, all can do their part. Very few can preach, but every one can, to some extent, and not a few to a large extent, purchase reading matter and distribute it. We have put tracts and painphlets almost at cost, (counting the use of money they are put at costs, and thus done our part in this matter .-Were a large tunt raised for the purpose of publishing tracts and pamphlets, they could be printed at still lower rates, for larger the quannty the cheaper. Testaments are now printed and sold at two cents each. Why 'Because of the immense number that are now being printed. Hy could not print 1,000 copies, for less than 40 cents each, but we might print 1,000,000 for almost one tenth that sum.

the work. It can be done, if he who is able will. As a people we have the wealth; prosperity smiles upon us, the field is open to us, and men can be found who are willing to work, but cannot alone; hence if there is any account to be brought up on the day of judgment for neglect of duty, we shall claim innocency. We have spoken out so that those who have possessions of the Lord's goods may hear. If they assume the risks, then they assume them. If the blood of those who never come to a knowledge of the truth, but who might have been taught if proper efforts had been made—1 say if the blood of such will be placed upon some others, then let it be placed, for we have done our part. We pray God to mise up a brother who will give liberally for the publication of sound literature, and help rescue the press from a dark and corrupt world. We pray for such a brother to arise and provoke others to good works. The Gospel Truct Association is willibg to work if you will do yours. God bless all noble and selfdenying hearts.

THE TRUST ON THE OTHER SIDE.

ITE always had much confidence in the force of an example, but we now have the pleasure of having it verified. We gave notice of a deposit of $--- by a Brother in la.. who wanted to save the expense of scuding money each time be ordered something from the office. Others are now following his example. This, we think, will work nicely; it will save our patrons uneasiness and much facilitate their business with the office. It is simply our subscribers and putrous trusting us instead of us them. Then it is much easier for our subscribers to trust us than it is for as to trust them. For us to trust 2,000 persons $5.00each takes $10,000; but for 2,000 persons to trust us with the same amount, would require of them only $5.00 each. $5.00 from each patron would be the same accommodation to us that $10,000,00 from us is to them.

We have to wait three months, six months, a year, two years, and even longer, on each of about 2,000 different persons, for $1.00, $2.00, $3.00, $5,00, $10,00, $15,00, $20,00, $30,00, $40,00, $50,00, and even more. The average time that we have had to wait is about six months, and the amounts run about as follows:

](1	persons	850000	each	$ 500,00
15		JO 00	44	660 00
25	1.7	30,00	v.t	750 OO
50	0	20,00		1,000,00
100	4.1	$\mathcal{G}_{G}(0)$	6.1	1,500.00
2001	11	10.00		2,000,00
300	4.	5.00	4.6	1. 500 00
4(1)		2,00		1,200.00
400	6.1	2 (0)	4.4	800 00
500	* 6	1,100	4.5	500.00
9 DI				$10,350,00

$10,350,00 divided by 2,000 equals $5.7-40, or nearly $5.20. The interest on 10,350.00 at 8 per cent (the legal rate in this state) for six months is $414,00. This much we must lose each year, while, if each of the 2,000 persons would deposit with us only $5.20, we would not only save $414.00, which we lose, but we would gain clear $414.00. We would then be able to send the paper free to 414 different persons and save $414.00 per year more than we now do.

Send the Brethren, send in your deposits. money when you have it, and then when you want to order anything from the office, all you need to do is to send us a postal card and it will he attended to at once. Remember we will furmsh you with any religious book published at retail price. How much will you deposit with us within the next thirty days?

Is many places Harvest Meetings are now being held, at which praises and thanksgiving are sent up to God for the bountiful supply of grain and fruits which the people generally enjoy. It is said that not for many years has this country been so universally blessed with good crops. Then let every heart give thanks to God, and so live that abundant blessings may be given this nation for many years to come Would it not be good to remember at those meetings the poor who need food and raiment, the poor who need some good church paper, the poor who need the Gospel prenched to them? "The earth is the Lord's and the fulness there-We cannot compete with other societies in of." He has filled our land with plenty; let us give him of his own by doing good with it.-

DANISH MISSION MONEY.

S BROTHER Eshelman will not be at home much of the time now, we hope the contributors to the Danish Mission Fund will remember that this office is not authorized to receive said funds, neither is it prepared to keep an account of money received for that purpose. To avoid all possibility of mistakes, send all money direct to C. P. Rowland, Treasurer, Lanark, Carroll County, Illinois.

SPECIAL DISTRICT MEETING.

DURSUANT to arrangements, the missioncommittee and the officers of the last regular District Meeting met at the house of Bro. Joshua Slifer, July 26th, to appoint time and place for a special meeting to arrange for Annual Meeting in 1880. After a thorough discussion relative to several places, the committee ballotted and on the third ballot Pine Creek church received two thirds of all the votes cast, hence was declared the choice of the committee. Upon further consideration it was agreed that the meeting he held August 26th, commencing at 8: 30 A. M. Brother John J. Emmert was appointed to notify the churches of the time and place of meeting. The committee suggest that those who desire to offer ground, upon which to hold the Annual Meeting, do so through their delegates. By so doing the committee on location will be enabled to go to work immediately after the meeting. We hope the meeting may be characterized by the wisdom which comes from above, and that all may enjoy the blessed association peculiar to the people of God.

The Ashland College Circular is before us, and a glance at it may be of general interest.— S. Z. Sharp is professor of Mental and Moral Science: Leonard Huber, professor of Latin, German and French; J. E. Stubbs, professor of Greek; David Buily, professor of Mathematics; Jacob Keim, professor of Natural Sciences.— The Principals of the Normal and Commercial Departments, Instructor in music, Drawing and Painting are to be selected before the opening of the school, the Fall session of which begins September 17th, 1879. A boarding hall 110x40, four stories high is being erected for the students and teachers, and no efforts are being spared to make it a pleasant frome for all who attend school. There will be a Preparatory Department, a Normal Department, a Philosophical Course and a Classical Course.-Each student is expected, as far as possible, to govern himself, and "Always Do Right" -an excellent rule indeed, "Members of the church of the Brethren are expected to observe the general order of the church with regard to dress; those not members to dress plantly, with neatness and economy." Manual employment will be furnished those who are unable otherwise to pay their expenses. In short they propose to give a liberal course of instruction 'with the least expenses to the students." Any one wishing to know more of abjects of its founders, should address, S. Z. Sharp, Ashland, Ohio, for Circular.

AFTER the adjournment of the committee on selecting time and place of special District Meeting, the majority of them went to Mt. Morris and spent the night there. The work of repairing the Seminary buildings is rapidly going forward, and by hard and constant labor, Brother Stein expects to be ready to open shool the 20th inst. Prospects for a good beginning are excollent. Some applicants have asked permission to deviate from the principles enunciated in the circular relative to plainness of dress, but Brother Stein has thus far been able to show them that his position is correct, and that no deviation can be permitted. He maintains that our brethren and sisters need a place to attend school where they will be protected in their taith and practice. To yield one iota is to burden those of like precious faith without siding those who seek liberties to put on nunecessary apparel. It is gratifying to know that the projectors and owners of this school are determined to maintain Bible principles on the vexed dress question; for, in this age of unholy adorument, men of steel are needed everywhere; and we shall be happy to see hundreds of young brethien and sisters come from our institutions of learning, alundantly equipped with heavenly arguments in tayor of plain dressing, plann living, plann sprech; defending the gospel which produces a plant people wherever it finds lodgment.

"The Worth of Truth no Tongue Can Tell."

This department is designed for asking and answering questions, drawn from the Bilde. In order to promote the Truth, all questions should be brief, and clothed in simple language. We shall assign questions to our contributors to answer. but this does not exclude any others writing upon cbe same topic.

Will some one explain Heb. 1:17 " And of the angels he saith. Who maketh his angels spirits, and his ministers a flame of fire." R. T. CROOK.

Will some one idease tell us, through the Burru-REN AT WORK who wrote the latter part of the last chapter of Denteronomy, from lifth verse A. E. M. to end of chapter?

Will some one please explain Matt. 8: 227 "But Jesus said unto him, Follow me; and let the dead H. STEWART. bury their dead."

Will some one be kind enough to explain Held C.J. HEAD.

Will some one please explain Daniel 7: 13, 14. "I saw the night visions, and behold, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages should serve him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed.

SPIRITS IN PRISON.

Will some one please explain 1 Pet. 3; 10? It reads as follows; "By which also he went and prenched unto the spirits in prison." Who is the preacher? Who are the spirits? Where is the J. W. Barnhart.

MRST. Who is the preacher? The spirit of Christ by the month of the prophets. 1 Pet. 1: 11.

Second. Who are the spirits? Those who are in sin are said to be in prison. Isa. 61: I. The prophet in speaking of the office of Christ. declares that it is to proclaim liberty to the captives and the opening of the prison to them that are found.

The antediluvian world lind a knowledge of Christ and of a judgment to come for Enoch the seventh from Adam prophesied, "Behold the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints to judge the world," and Noah, when preaching unto them did so by the spirit of Christ, and as they were gross sinners they were spiritually in prison.

Third. Where is the prison? It is declared that the kingdom of God is within us. If so, so also can this prison be within as, and the individual who lives in sin, and is the slave of the lusts and passions that war within is figuratively a prisoner.

The dead are said to have the gospel preached unto them. I Pet. 4: 6. Not those who are dead bodily, but dead in trespasses and sais, for the apostle says, "Wherefore awake, through that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light"; and further, it is declared that the time is coming, and now is when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, "and they that hear shall live," This re-Hers to the present time, and means those who are in sm or bound in passon.

ANOINTING WITH OIL.

BY S. L. BOSSERBIAN.

I) LESSINGS tollow obedience to natural law as well as to the heavenly. Those laws are irrevocably fixed by the hand of Divinity. and to violate or neglect to obey his law insures suffering or the loss of a blessing. To they secures the smales of a kind Providence and draws a blessing from above. If we hear the command of God and do it not, we deceive ourselves. "But who so looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgettal hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deed." James 2: 25. The peculiar feature of this blessing is that itshall be given unto us "without measure," coming from God "who giveth liberally and upbraideth not." Man giveth by measure and frequently very sparingly. But he who sendeth his rain upon the just as well as the unjust, blessing both saint and sinner, will, by obedience to his commands, doubly bless his devoted children.

We enjoy a blessing or favor most when we teel its greatest need. So long as the sinner does not feel the need of a pure heart and a clear conscience void of offence towards God, he would not highly appreciate it. But when be- requested, while struggling on the bed of pain, coming convicted of sin and realizing his un- to have the oil by faith applied, which in eura are employed in this work.

done condition, and utter inability to save himself, then will be accept a Savior, then will he appreciate his freedom and the blessings that are consequent.

The confiding Christian will avail himself of all the privileges of the gospel that he may obtain a full salvation. The means of grace provided the great plan of salvation are many and efficient, and are peculiarly adapted to the wants of the body as well as of the soul, this we behold the great wisdom of God. He commands that his children should glorify himin the body and in the spirit, which are his. This implies that there is a law regulating the physical body as well as the spiritual. And in order that we may grow up in abedience to the same and enjoy the blessings they must be understood. Hence the great necessity of studying the laws of God.

Inasmuch as man is weak and limited in knowledge, he transgresses and subjects himself to suffering. Hence were it not for the great love and mercy of God, man would be without hope and beyond redemption. The injunction to the sinner is "repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out," "Arise and be baptized, and wash away thy sins," "He that believeth and is bupfized shall be saved." Commands which he can obey, and if so the needed blessings will follow. To his children, Christ says, "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you." In these we find the peculiar adaptation of the gospel of Christ .-Another peculiarity of the gospel of Christ followed with the greatest blessings is contained in Jumes 5: 14, 15, "Is any sick among you? let them pray over him, amointing him with oil in the name of the Lord; and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him," setting forth the idea that in Christ there is a remedial agency. no less a physician of the body than of the soul. It is true the performance of this duty has almost become extinct, and insanuch as it is followed by such a rich blessing and connected with such great promises, it is to be lamented that it is so much neglected. How glad I am that the Christian can look to a power that is higher than that of earth. And notwithstanding this holy peformance is discarded by many, yet there are many humble Christians to-day that are availing themselves of the soul-inspiring and body recoperator, so healthful and invigorating to both. Our beloved Bro. James no doubt enjoyed its healing influences, and realizing its twofold benefits, commends it to the afflicted every-where.

When our Lord sent out, the holy and deyout men, the seventy disciples, it was a leading part of their communion to perform this holy work, which the beloved Mark was careful to record, "And they cust out many devids, and anointed with oil many that were sick, and healed them." Mark 4: 13. The Language of on earth is loosened. His clasp on heaven is James is addressed to the whole church. "Is any sick? let him, etc.," implies perpetration, and has been in practice since the days of the apostles, (See Moshenn's Eccl. Hist,, pp. 5td., 729.) By obeying this command we do not claim the power of working miracles, but sumply obeying Christ and the ld samgs toflow, and have exhibited remarkable instances of Di- 18 God's." Then are we accepted in the helicivine apprediction. Our reason for obeying this bed. Amen. command is upon the authority of Jesus Cerist. and should have our attention as well as other inspired teachings. "I) they have kept my sayings they will keep yours also " ... John 45: 20. This is the chain of anthority. And if this command is attended to in the proper manner, by faith, the result is, raising up the sick

Prayer occuries a pronument feature in this work to secure the blessing, though natural remedies are not torbidden, yet jorger well seasoned by faith secures the blessings, yielding. abedience to the divine will of God. Elijoh, a man of God, prayed, and the beavens, gave not their rain. "Whatspever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight.— I John 3: 22. Setting both the fact that answers to prayer are only secured by yielding obedience to his will. "The eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open to their prayers. A Pet. 3, 12. Thus can we confidingly approach God in prayer and faith, and the blessings will follow. The body is raised up, and if sins have been committed they shall be forgiven. If a 5:15, Off have we should be the bedselved the affected, witnessed and cugaged to the holy word, and beheld its one forting influences. Recently our dear companion was stricken down with disease, and accordance to the divine plan, (Jas. 5: 14, 15) was attended to, and by its recuperative and soul-inspiring influences, she to-day is able to attend to her domestic duties, rejoicing in God and confirmed in her mind, that Jesus is the great I'hysician of both soul and body.

What a grand thought! Jesus Christ a physician! Anciently he spake the word and the diseased were healed, and is his word less potent to-day? Oh afflicted, call thou on Christ: he will be thy comfort and make thy bed in all thy sickness and raise thee up if thou wilt but trust in him. Sickness is the result of sin .-Whether we violate law either physical or moral it is sin. Whether that violation be through ignorance or useful transgression we suffer. How merciful is God to provide a remedy for this as well as of other ills. And if this holy anninting receives the proper observance, the forgivness of sins is promised. Could humanity live in holy obedience to the laws of Christianity they would have less ills. Many of the diseases now prevalent might be avoidable if Christians would live closer to Christ.-"Christ as physician for the body is not a whit less available, nor from any common sense view less serviceable, than as a priest he is to the soul of man." Then oh child of God, trust thou in Jesus, acquaint thyself with physical and moral law, obey its divme behests, and if from causes unavoidable thou shouldst fail, and the body become faint and sick, there is yet a remedy for thy ills. Make a complete surrender of thyself into the hands of the Lord, in particular so for as it respects thy recovery from thy bed of affliction. "Call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him. let him call for the elders of the church, and anninting him with oil in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have comunitted sors they shall be forgiven him. Jus. 5: 14, 15. On is this not a magnificent key to unlock the fetters and give us freedom fully, from the thralldom and power of sin?for both soul and body. Jesus is then Oh the liberty there is in the religion of Jesus Christ? I can conceive of nothing so delightful, so j yous, so inspiring, so ecstatic, so healthgiving, so thoroughly and consciously saving, as being filled with the fullness of God; being so under the guidance of the Holy Spirit as to have no passion nor appetite, no propensity, nor instinct, no thought nor feeling, no conscience nor judgment, no wish nor will, diverse from God's; but on the other hand, constantly to ery out in any and every way in which conscholsness can take voice, "Not my will, but thine, O'God, be done." This freedom can be had by complying with all of Christ's commands. And where can there be a greater promise following obedience than this of the holy anomiting? We answer, none. He that avails himself of this precious boon is free.— "God has so touched him as to give him a forctaste of heaven. He has opened the man's own nature and let him have view of its possibilities, and all the sight, all things of time and sense lessen in his estimation. His grasp tightened. Law more and more lets him alone. Divine love embraces him, and lodes his life away with Christ's life in the lesson of God, liberty-the quintessence of God's naturetides him by the hand, and tenders him the freedom from all sin. It says to him, all things are yours, for you are Christ and Christ

FROM PALESTINE

Bethlehem and Solomon's Pools.

[From the "Christian Standard" by special Arrangement]

Nour return to Jerusalem from our excursion beyond the Jordan, we remained there, continuing our study of that city and its environs two days, and then, on Saturday. May 9, we started on a tour intended to include all of Palestine south of the parallel of Jerusalem.

Leaving our camp before the Joppa gate, we rode up close to that gate, then turning to the right we descended the eastern side of the valley of Hinnom a short distance and crossed it just below the stone wall on which it is crossed by the aqueduct from Solomon's Pools. We vere on the road to Bethlehein. As I crossed 1 rode up to the aqueduct wall and looked into a hole which I had found in the top of the aqueduct a few days before, and saw that the water was still flowing. It flows through an earthen pipe about eight inches in diameter. which is covered over with unbewed stones and in cement. The stones protect the pipe from violence. At intervals all the way to Bethlehem we saw the aqueduct winding round the billside, and a woman gave me a drink of stater from it just at the edge of that from On the south side of the town it flows through a eistern, keeps it full, and affords a perpetual supply of water to the Bethlehemmter, to be used when their rain water cisterns are exhaust-

The rund to Bethlehem was once covered with a pavement of flat stones, and remnants of it are still seen. The road bed was sixteen or eighteen feet wide. Now the road is nothing but three or four bridle paths made by the constant frame of camels and donkeys and their human companions. The amount of travelover it is second to that of no road leading out of Jerusalem, except the one to Joppa.-We met many camels loaded with home, each carrying about a cart load piled into immense sacks, which were swung across his back like saddle pockets; other camels and many donkeys loaded with brush and roods for fuel; and some, loaded with charcoal. We also met some twolegged donkeys, walking along with their tur baned heads uplifted, while their wives, trudge ing behind them, howed their heads under a heavy bundle of things they were taking to market. I even saw two or three ruscals riding on httle donkeys which they could carry on their shoulders; while their wives went before on foot and carried packs on their heads. I never let one of these fellows pass without giving him a tongue-lashing which would make him warm if he only could understand English.

When within about two miles of Bethlehem we passed the tomb of Rachael, so called; but it is evidently a Mohammedan structure, and it stands some miles away from the spot where Jacob set up a pillar over the grave of Bachel; (Gen. 35: 16-20) for Rachel's tomb was in the border of Benjamin, (1 Sam. 10:2) and the line between Judah and Benjamin passed up the valley of Hinnom, close by Jerusalem (Josh. 18:16). I pay but little attention to traditionary sites like this which are contrary to the Scriptures.

He who approaches Bethlehom with the expectation of seging a handsome town will be disappointed. It is built of a dingy limestone, and the houses have neither visible roofs, nor cornices, nor shutters, nor wood-work of any kind on the outside, except the door. Many of them have no windows, other than little quare holes in the wall. It is not as unsightly as Es salt, which Frank very aptly compared to Blot of large dirt-danber's nests stack on the side of the hill; but it makes an approach in that direction.

The old church of the Nativity, at the east end of the town, is no exception to the general rule. It is unsightly outside, and going to wreck inside. It deserves to go to wreck for keeping up the false pretence of showing down marcon, the manger in which lesus was laid. But at the west end of the town there are some new and modern buildings, and along the Je tusalem road running north from this point. many new buildings are now in course of erecnon. It is claimed by the inhabitants that Bethlehem now numbers 10,000 inhabitants; and they are nearly all nominal Christians; but ! I could see no difference between their outward appearance and that of the Mohammedans, exbend-dress.

On leaving Bothlehem, instead of going directly to Solomon's pools on the road to Hebron, we struck off to the south-east, and visited what is called "The Frank Mountain," about four miles toward the Dead Sea. Its principal interest is derived from the fact that here on a conical hill 400 feet above its base on every side, and so steep that even a Syrian horse can climb only half way. Herod the Great had a palace whose ruins are still there. and that here he was buried, his body being brought hither from Jericho, where he died.

From this mountain we struck for the pools, and our track for the last two miles of the way was along the bench made for the aqueduct -On reaching the pools, we found our tents, which always precede us to the campingground, the pack mules traveling while we are resting at noon, pitched by the side of the upper pool; and there we remained in camp from Saturday afternoon till Monday morning.

Brief Notes,

NUMBER VIII.

E are now in the midst of harvest, and many of the sacred writers have used the term with significance, "Seed time and harvest shall not fait." A very solemn fact to the world is, "we reap what we sow." May this fact be more and more impressed upon our minds that the time of the Lord's harvest is fast approaching, when God will send his reapers forth to gather into his grammy the wheat -the golden sheaves. May none of us then be forced to exclaim, "The harvest is past, the Summer is ended, and we are not saved,"

Crops in Cedar County are very promising, except spring wheat, which is almost a failure, on account of chintz hugs. While we do not have all we want, we still have more than we merit, and have abundant cause to be thankful to God for his rich mercies.

Health here is good-one of the greatest idessings that man is permitted to enjoy in this world. We only attended two funerals in the two and one-half years we have lived in Iowa. Spiritually we feel sometimes as though some were getting sickly-so weakly that all power to work for Jesus is lost-no life, no energynothing but drones that are often in the way of those who are trying to work.

The Annual Meeting Minutes and Report are received and read with pleasure and profit. It is not very flattering to see that so much labor, time, and reasoning is required in some localities to regulate and properly adjust the rulings of some churches.

Our District Meeting had occasion to pass something like this: "That elders have no right to withhold from the action of the church any church business." I see also that our A. M has made similar decisions at our late Aunual Conference, which is just and right, and h pe that such decisions may be honored by being properly observed. Hope that some one well schooled in the principles of our church government will give a series of articles on church government, as it might do much good by obviating many misunderstandings.

And now dear editors of the BRETHREN AT WORK and Children at B'ark, may God's grace be sufficient for you, and that you may be enabled so to comfort and console the attlicted, be the old man's stay, the young man's shield, and a mould for the youth of our land. Oh how good it would be it the Bible were taught, and its principles practiced in every family in our Brotherhood, that every house might be used to gather our children, our neighbor's children, and the children on the highways and in the hedges together, and teach them clesus. It is encouraging to me indeed to hear of so many engaging in the good and glorious work of

"Opening the door for the children, and tenderly gathering them in,

JOHN ZIYK.

Clarence, Iona, July 20.

From Beatrice Church, Nebraska.

THE Brethren of the Beatrice Church met in their regular quarterly council Saturday. Jul 5th. In love and union generally, but it seems there always have been some in the church who may offend, and in fact there are few who are not liable to offend. The Savior knew this or he would never have given laws to settle difficulties. Peter says: "According as his divine power bath given us all things that | 1) pertain to life and godliness." Therefore we | might, through the mercy of God, be raised up know that there are rules and regulations by from my bed of sickness to live a while with my cept that the women have a different style of which the church can be governed under what- family. I am now able to be up, and am pretever circumstances it may be placed.

Beatrice having no house large enough to ac- tears. I now have a request to present to my commodate their congregation, they purpose building a house of worship, which perhaps will be about 40x60. So far they have held their meetings in school-houses, and though some of them are large, yet often many can not get into the house.

The Brethren north-east of Beatrice have built a house 24x36, intending to add to it as necessity demands,

At our council the missionary work was taken into consideration. There are churches from 30 to 90 miles from here, partly organized, without speakers. These have been calling for preaching. We chose two speakers to give these Brethren meeting once a month until our next quarterly council, at which time we purpose choosing two more to give them meetings once a month the next three months. Brethren Urias Shick and Jacob Kelso-were -chosm as missionaries for this quarter. It was decided that the church should supply the wants of the families of these ministers during their absence, so that their business at home may be carried on while they preach the word.

We think this is a move in the right direction, for we have but few ministers in the West at least, who do not earn their living by the work of their own hands; and when a minister has to leave his work and be gone perhaps a week or two preaching, it is more than he can afford to do. We do not blame the Gospel for it. The Gospel is plain enough on that point. It divides the labors very well, but too often the minister's business at home is neglected while he is called away to preach. I do not betieve in a salaried ministry, but I do believe in a supported ministry, because the gospel teaches it. I believe that there would be a great deal more preaching done, much more good accemplished, and the church larger and stronger, if the work were divided as the gospel divides it. "There is a work for all to do." Let him that is taught in the word communicate unto him that teacheth.".

May the missionary work go on unfettered. unhundered, propelled, and sustained by a united effort on the part of the entire church, then we may rest assured that God's blessing will accompany the effort and much good be done.

The Brethren have organized a Sunday-school north-east of Beatrice. We hope to see a lively interest manifested on the part of the parents; and this must be in any Sunday-school that is a success. Children alone cannot make a Sauday-school. Then, dear brethren, give all the encouragement you can, which can only be done by your presence in the school and by your co-operation with the workers of the school. J. E. Bryant,

From Elk Creek, Neb.

Dear Brethren:-

NOTICED in the Bretures at Work that some ministering brothren were going to start out this Pall on a visit to Missouri, Kanus poor sheep at Elk Creek, for we live, as it | and arose to walk in newness of life. were, right amongst the wolves that howlaround fiercely. Sometimes they have about gobbled up one of our little flock; and I expect they will get one or two more if we don't have more preaching. Sometimes we have preaching once a month, then again we don't have any for a long time. O, I wish we could have a preacher come und stop with us and preach some ten or twelve sermons, and come down on them with power, and cause them to cry out, "What shall we do to be saved." But we can't help a preacher much if one would come; for we are poor, and the chintz bugs are very bad in this neighborhood. I don't know how far they extend. They have done a great ileal of damage here already.

As soon as we begin to organize, then other denominations come in, and it appears that they are trying to put us down, but we are trying to keep up. We have prayer meetings every Sunday, and I hope the Lord will help us, and strengthen us and perfect us in love, and give us grace to conquer, and to hold out faithful to the end, is my prayer.

Thank the Lord for his kind blessing, and that it is as well with us as it is.

PELINA MILIER.

From a Sister in Need.

Dear Brethreus-

*OME time ago I asked an interest in the prayers of my brethren and sisters, that I ty comfortable, but expect to be feeble during The Brethren in the church south-east of the remainder of my sojourn in this land of sisters, if my brethren editors will allow me to do so through these columns. I want a sister in Christ to come and live with me the remainder of my days. I have to depend on hired girls to look after my house and to do the family sewing, and for days together to look after my children. I yearn for the companionship of a sister who has a common faith and hope in the coming rest that awaits the children of God; a kind, sober-minded woman or maiden who would not leave me when I am sick, and my husband absent, to visit the ball-room. I send this out, with a prayer, that it may fall into the hands of some homeless sister, widow, or maiden, who will be glad to come and live with us. You can see, my sisters, how greatly I need a good, kind, conscientious sister to live with me. Direct private letters to my address.

The Debate.

T seems Mr. Ray, in spite of all warnings that he has had, will persist in using his favorite expression, "Blasphemous heresy."-If he thinks he can carry his point with such arguments (?), I think Brother Stein can very well afford to indulge his persistency. Poor man! there is no other way left for him to cover the defeat and keep up appearances. I think his more reflective brethren do not feel very much elevated over the defense t eir champion debater is making. I wonder if his church ean admire the course he is pursuing. Let him do his worst, we can endure it.

He is playing the same roll that lost him the Newtonia debate, namely, vituperation and bravado. But Brother Stein is using the old Jerusalem blade with fearful effect! As a wise master-builder he has laid the foundation of the apostles, Jesus Christ himself, (not Baptist Succession) being the CHIEF CORNER-STONE; and on this he has erected the great superstructure, almost completed, and in which he will fight his battle on the defensive. The word of the Savior is indeed verified: "On this rock I will build my church, and the gutes of hell shall not prevail against it." Baptist succession has not certainly prevailed. Neither has that other gate, the Pope of Rome.

Echoes from the Antioch Church for the Month of June.

Dear Brethren:-

THE Antioch Church bids fair for better I prospects, which are truly encouraging. Meeting at all the regular appointments during the month. There was meeting also at Monument City in the afternoon of the 4th Sunday, and on the 5th Sunday at Dora, at which time one was reclaimed and one baptized. Our regular council meeting was on the 7th, which passed off in peace and harmony. After meeting we repaired to the water, where prayer was sas, and Nebraska. I hope they will not forget wont to be made, and where one was baptized,

Some of us attended the Communion at Wabash Church, and also at Clear Creek and Ogan's Creek, all of which were largely attended, and enjoyable meetings. At Ogun's Creek there were upwards of twenty ministers pres-J. W. Southwood, Harvest Meeting.

THERE will be a Harvest Meeting in the I Solomon's Creek Church, Ind. August 10. Meet at 10: 30 A. M. and again at 2 P. M .-Such meetings should be held throughout the Brotherhood; yes all over the God-favored land. The people should be encouraged to spend their money, not for vanity and show, but to spread truth and righteonsness.

From Jesse Calvert.

TME committee sent by Annual Meeting to settle difficulties in Michigan, met in the Woodland Church, July 18th, churches were interested in the troubles; all met at this place, and all the members present of each church secepted the committee, and all the members agreed to let them settle all their troubles. After bearing all that each one wished to say, we told them what we thought was right and best. All unanimously accepted the decision, and said they felt well. and would go on repoicing in the Lord.

The brethren and sisters were very kind to us, and seemed to be kind to each other. It is very seldom that church work passes off more pleasantly than this did. Hope we did them some good, and that the Lord will bless them all, that many may be added to the church and be saved.

Ankneytown, Ohio,-BROTHER D. N. Workman and wife visited the Ankneytown Church, Knox Co., Ohio. By request he preached two sermons on baptism-one at 10 A. M. and one at 3 P. M. Had very large, attentive congregations. At the close of the services he gave an invitation; five accepted and came out; four of them were baptized that evening; the other to be baptized soon. The meeting was a success.

Loraine, Adams Co., III .- Our little band of brethren at this place is in good spirits, and feels to rejoice over the privileges they enjoy in way of worshipping the one they love and cherish as their Redeemer. We have worship once every month; attendance good; congregations large. A few weeks ago one more was baptized in the name of the Lord, and is now released of a great hurden. He feels that he is enjoying freedom while under the servitude of П. W. Stigickleb. his Master.

Wakarusa, Ind.-Five of our children were buried in one day. On the 9th of July we followed our little daughter three months ald to the grave. After services five were buried with Christ in baptism. Four of them our own children, the youngest seventeen years old. Last Sunday two more were baptized at our meeting-house. We have a Sunday-school in our meeting-house, with over one hundred scholars. Let us all do good while we have JOHN METZGER.

Lectonia, Ohio.-On the 26th we had our quarterly council at the Bethel Meeting-house. and we have reason to believe the Lord was with us to aid us in working in his vineyard. -There was one received by baptism and one reclaimed. Although there was a dark cloud overhanging this church, we trust and pray a brighter day is dawning upon us. Dear brothien, we cornestly desire un interest in your prayers, that we may be able to withstand that evil one and all his wicked ways. Brother Samuel Garver has the oversight of this church at present. Yours in the bonds of love.

WILL you please insert this letter in your paper? A young man by the name of Joseph Bates or Betz has been expelled from the church for bad conduct. He was required to work for one of the members three months for a horse, and only worked about six weeks; then ran away with it, and stole a saddle and bridle. He has not been heard from since. Description: Sandy complexion, about five feet ten inches in height, twenty-three years of age, of Irish descent, but can speak the German language. STEIN AND RAY DEBATE.

Prop. 1st—Brethren (or Tunker) Churches possess the Bible Characteristics which entitle them to be regarded as Churches of Jesus Christ.

J. W. Stein, Affirms.

D. B. RAY. Denies.

J. W. STEIN'S ISTH AFFIRMATIVE.

W HEN James says of the anomited, "If he has committed sins they shall be forgiven him" (James 5; 15), did he utter "bluspheniu," Mr. R? Our Brethren hold that no one can be born of God in baptism who has not been previously begotten of God. He who seeks to make an impression contrary to this, simply misrepresents them.

That I have admitted that any subject of Christ's government may take an oath, is untrue. "Swear not at all," does not mean "swear sometimes.

If a government can not be republican because "its parts are subject to the whole," what kind of a government is the United States? Is that a "centralized bierarchy," Mr. H?

Notwithstanding our mutually combined of forts to withstand the growing and degrading corruptions of fashion, our Brethren do not enforce their habits of dress or any other part of their church policy upon members as conditions of membership, but they do exercise the right to refuse to fellowship those who will not obey the gospel.

The sequel of this debate will show that I am correct in claiming that we have a much better church succession than Mr. H. can make out.

The Brethren are proper successors to the apostolic churches, because they have their faith and practice as we have shown. Besides, I have proven by incontrovertible evidence, which my friend could not refute, that our peculiarities were characteristic of the very people that he regards as churches of Christ.

As to whether Dr. Mosheim slandered the only English Baptists, we do not know. We let the reader determine that for himself. Mr. Tray quotes him, however, as conclusive evulence, Shoot the incorresion, etc., of the Mennountes. and Hagelief, Barely produced Hagenst Succession, (9, 402, 400). How does he allow that is not stouder. How can be prove only thrug by such an author?

book and page, so the reader may decide that

I have based no argument upon a pretended. unbroken, organic, personal connection of a people from the apostles to this time without change. It is well known that even the Waldenses apostatized from their primitive faith and practice toward the times of the reformation. Uninterrupted, personal succession without a change is my friend's pet theory, at which we will find him often scaring ere the debate

The passages adduced by him do not support his theory. They refer to Christ's personal reign on earth, except. Matt. 16: 18. The very existence of the teaching and practice of the gospel on earth proves that "the gates of hell" hades, i. e., death) have not prevailed. Did 'the gates of hell" prevail against "the two witnesses," "the two olive trees and the two candlesticks," Rev. 11; 5-4, simply because they were overcome and killed for a time? Rev. 11 7. Did hodes "prerail" against Christ the great bead of the church because he was put to death? Did he not prevail against hades in his resurrection? What though the beast who had nower "over all kindreds, and tongues and nations" made "war with the saints, and overcume them" (Rev. 13; 7), does not the testimony of the witnesses and the resurrection of the redeemed. sufficiently demonstrate the truth of Matt. 16: 18? etc.

We do believe that any number of penitent believers who have received the pure gospel of Christ, through his last will and testament, where they find no faithful church accessible may by humble fasting and prayer to God and dependence upon him for guidance, submit themselves to his holy ordinance of baptism, by virtue of his own approving presence, and then be as truly sent of God to haptize as was John, and that no one has a right to forbid any one who does the work of God. Luke 9: 49, 50. The Savior says, "Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." Matt. 18: 20. "He that abides in the doctrine of Christ, has both the Father and the Son." 2 John 9.

RECAPITULATION.

We stated as a 1st characteristic of the church of Christ, that its foundation is Christ. Our 1st reason in support of the Brethren's claim to this was that they rely upon the vicarious sufferings and meritorious righteousness of Christ as the only price of pardon. Our 2nd reason was, their practical submission to Christ's authority arged upon the ground of Luke 6: 47, 48. To these we had no respondent. We noted as a 2nd characteristic of Christ's church, that it is a spiritual brosse. 1 Pet. 2: 5. Our reason for possessing this was that our memhership is composed of spiritual material, a. e., of penitent baptized believers. This Mr. R. simply denied, but fails to disprove. We noticed as a 3rd characteristic of Christ's church. that its builder is God: who, according to his sovereign purpose in Christ, through the work of the Holy Spirit employs the word as hes instrument. Psa, 149; 50; Jer. 23; 29; Eph. 6; 17; 1 Pet. 1: 2%; das. 1: 18, and hence that every church of Christ has been builded through the instrumentality of his word.

characteristic, was that their organizations or churches, resulted from the influence of God's word upon their hearts and lives, and 2nd, that under that same influence they are still enjoys ing and exercising the Christian graces, virtues and daties. Gal. 5: 22-24; 2 Pet. 42: 5-7. both of these reasons I had no respondent sion." I gave Judson's own language, with baptism "for the remission of sins." This we supported by twelve arguments drawn respectively from Mark 1: 4; Luke 3; 3; Luke 7: 30; John 3; 5; Titus 3; 5; Eph. 5; 25, 26; Rom. 6; 17, 18; Acts 22: 16; (illustrated by 2 Kings 5; 8-14; and John 9: 7;) 1 Peter 3; 21; Matt. 28; 19; Rom. 6; 3; Gal. 3; 37; 1 Cor. 12; 13; Acts 2: 38; Matt. 26: 28; Mark 16: 16. To most of these Mr. R. attempted no reply, while his efforts to evade the others were entire failures His objections were met while the force of my arguments remained unimpaired. When he quibbled over Acts 2: 38, I offered him the fair proposition, that if he would adduce one example apart from baptism in the New Testament. where the language "for the remission of sins" was not accepted by his church to mean "in order to the remission of sins," I would give up the whole question. But he would not vehiture to touch this proposition under any cir constances, knowing that it would undermine the very foundation of his position.

> My 2nd reason why the Brethren possessed this characteristic, was that they haptized into the name of each person of the Holy Trinity.— This we showed to be plainly commanded in the great commission (Matt. 28: 19) which we proved from its grammatical construction, supported by seven subordinate proofs or arguments to which be failed to respond. (2) We showed that the meaning of other examples, analogous in construction to the baptismal formula, confirmed our position, and proposed that if he would adduce our example like the baptismal formula, having the same construction, with the same parts of speech, connected in the same manner, and expressing like relations, that did not require three actions, I would give at up. But after a number of fruitless efforts, he atterly failed to adduce just one such example, leaving us the entire vantage ground of the whole proposition. (3) We showed that no principle could be urged against baptism into the name of cach person of the Holy Trinity. which could not be arged with equal propriety against the mention of each of their names, viz: "Father," "Son," and "Holy Spirit," and (4) that the legitimate conclusion of the theory which rejects baptism into the name of each person of the Holy Trinity, or trium laptism, demes the tri-personality of the Godhead. To these three arguments I had no respondent.

We also showed that the Greeks, and especially the ancient Greek futhers, who read the commission in their own intive language in its original tongue and to whom our Baptist friends so fondly appeal in support of immersion itself, understood that Christ commanded nothing less than trium immersion, or haptism into the name of cach person of the Godhead. After adducing six aucient Greeks in support of this, I proposed if my friend would bring forward just one ancient Greek, who says that Christ did not command trine immersion in the commission, I would give up my six witnesses for his one. This he refused to touch, although he logists of unclent church succession.

GOOD lady with whom I am intimately ac-A -quainted has been a great sufferer for over nine months past. During great part of that time (from the nature of her disease) she has not been able to lie down-and much of the time anable even to read, yet under all this affliction she is patient, cheerful, and resigned to our Father's will,

When she was but a child her good old grandmother taught her the 23rd Psalm. Often, during her long hours of suffering she has pondered over those sweet words; and they have truly been to her "green pastures beside still waters." His rod and staff have comforted her, and surely his goodness and mercy are following her all the days of her life.

Oh, the importance of storing the minds of the young with the precious texts and promises of Scripture. No matter how we may be situated, they are a well from which we may, if we will, draw constant supplies of "living water." "The entrance of thy word giveth light" "Ob, how I love thy law; it is my meditation all the day." "I will never forget thy precents; for with them thou hast quickened me." D. E.

THE TREE OF LIFE.

BY J. W. SOUTHWOOD,

MHE new Jerusalem, I'm told, Whose street is of the purest gold, Has on its crystal river's strand. A tree that grows in this land.

Twelve kinds of fruit this tree doth bear, And all of which no doubt are rare; It yields its fruit twelve times a year, Thus it is stated very clear,

There on that crystal river's shore, It yields each month its fruitful store; There in the midst that golden street, It standeth as a blessing sweet.

Its leaves are for the nation's use, It healeth them without abuse; This tree is called "The tree of life," A life that never knoweth strife.

This tree gives life to all of those. Who leave this earth in sweet repose; Who fall asleep to wake on high, Where none ne'er weep and none ne'er sigh

This tree before our parents stood, While they in Eden yet were good; If they had chos'n its fruits to eat. They might have lived a life so sweet.

But Satan had them choose the tree That did enable them to see And know the good and evil too, For what he wished that did they do.

This "tree of life" stands free to all, That will but heed the Master's coll: bet all, then, strive to enter in, And live forever free from sin.

JAMES CHRYSTAL AND INFANT BAPTISM.

TT is a little remarkable, that a man like our friend can contradict himself as he does and not be aware of it. As well known he believes that unbaptized children are outside the covenant On page 2nd, he says: "But we cannot fant haptizers all do. he saved unless we confess that faith." For the Holy Ghost by Paul says, "H" thou shalt confess with thy mouth, the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousiess, nay bather which is in heaven." in If the is clear to Chrystal, it is clear. to us that every Implied Linford, emmetbe saved at all, on the ground they can more of the consecutions to Chrystal's whether it believes at all or not, why does he baptize? That is not going up to Jerusalem and restore the old order where the question was seriously asked the candidate, "If then believe with all thine heart thou mayest." Baptism was first administered on the plain confession: "I believe that Jesus Christis the Son of God." And to claim that all unbaptized children are outside of the covenant of mercy, and must be baptized to have part in redemption, and yet at the same time say that even baptism is of no effect to salvation, so long as a person does not confess his faith. It is virtually saying that infant baptism does not suit the gospel conditions of salvation; and children haptized or unbaptized are, according to his doctrine, all sure of hell, so long as they do not confess their faith in Christ. This is the logical conclusion drawn from the above tract. Will any one wonder that we cannot accept it as pointing to what "was in the beginning and nothing else."

But that is not all; this strange doctrine is built on one word in John 3: 5, where we read: "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." The word in question in Greek is "tis" trans-Inted into English, "a man." What does Christ speak of here? Is it an infant or a man? Answer, "a man." Well, but a man is not an infant, hence nothing is said here about infants, as long as they are not grown up to manhood. We, of course, know that the little Greek word, tis can be translated in many ways; that often it is not translated at all; often used to explain things in general, and often used to allude to a certain person, which, for certain reasons, of mercy; still be debars every baptized is not named. sus and his doctrine and does not know | tism on this. This is not fair, nor gospel order; but it destroys wholly the harmony of the New Testament. Jesus shows several times what place unbaptized children hold in the Gospel dispensation.-We shall only notice a few: Matt. 18: 13. Jesus takes an unbaptized child and sits it in the midst of his disciples, who were baptized and had left all and followed him; telling them, "Verily I say unto you, except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven."

Now, if children, unbaptized were ontside of the covenant of mercy as Chrystal claims, if they, unbaptized go to hell, it was indeed strange in Jesus to take a child as an example for his disciples: for if they, according to his order, repent and become as the unbaptized child standing among them, they would then be outside the covenant of mercy. and on their road to hell, according to this doctrine. Therefore we consider it false and unscriptural. And more, Jesus tells his unbaptized disciples something about unbaptized children. "Verily I say unto you, whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall in no wise enter therein." Luke 18: 17. This shows that unbaptized children receive the kingdom or God, both without haptism and confession; consequently it is not correct that unhaptized children are lost, nor true that they cannot be saved until they can confess their faith. Again, Jesus blesses little children, (he did not baptize them) because as they were unbaptized he said of them, "of such" (unbaptized children) "is the kingdom of heaven." - Luke 18:

Tsuppose if Chrystal and his friends are right, Jesus would have called his disciples and told them: "Hurry, baptize those little ones for they are outside the coverant of mercy, and will be lost; but he did not. Was it any wonder that the apostles never taught infant Faptism? That it was never commanded in the Testament. Since Jesus had give en them so many examples of little children standing in the kingdom, to their own shame and humiliation, we are inelized to think that if our dear friend Chrystal had been among the disciples, that he like them, never would have said one word about inbuit laptism, nor | tion is, that she is about to be united in I merev.

FANATICISM.

BY MARY LOUISE HOPWOOL,

IN all countries, and in all ages the spirit of fanatieism has borne sway, The tide of popular sentiment, for or against it, has been strong then weak, according to the vascillating spirit of minds of acknowledged leaders; and these, in most instances, made their own preferment the center about which all things else must revolve. To affirm that this spirit has been the fruitful cause of more out breaking sin than any other one influence that has been brought to bear, would but repeat the decision of the age as recorded in their archives.

To enter into an extended discussion of this subject, would supercede the hounds of one article; we will but look upon it from the stand-point of some recent development in shades of sentiment that characterize our own time. With our free institutions, there lias grown up a spirit of teleration that is likely to se. riously endanger, if not eventually de. stroy the fabric of government. While we tolerate liberal views and sentiments, it is inconsistent that we permit the seeds of rank and poisonous fanaticism to permeate the superstructure which we have builded. To encourage and foster that which is ennobling, by discountenance ing that which is detrimental, is the du. ty of the good of all the lands. Fanaticism has strong and persistent adherents even in this enlightened age; and we have but to note passing events to become convinced of its power.

In a recent article published in the Leavenworth (Kan.) Times, we are informed of a father and mother who have had direct communication with their daughter, dead thirty years, having passed to the spirit world at the age of three weeks. The import of the communica-President Pierce, who died while his But what about Paul! He advised | father was at the nation's helm. sublime principles and precepts of inspi stion as we are here expressly informed that they shall not return. Strange indeed, bat same minds can manifest such deplorshle weakness! We sincerely commiserthe instability of those who permit themselves to be so completely deluded. This is an age of stern and uncompro nising reality, and, to cope with that which is shaded from our vision as conperted with the world of spirits, will but involve in deeper mystery things which we now see "through a glass dark-Is." or see not at all.

The fatal delusion that but recently devoted to death. The helpless innocent at the hands of a parent, is another terrible evidence of the length to which unbridled fanaticism will go; this will be visible by retributive justice. Such divine, gets its dues at the hand of law, but the baleful poison is permitted to spread, and the spirit of evil is being tolcrated and encouraged to an alarming extent. Were there no other evidence of internal corruption, the darkness and abscurity in which it is developed, proveits direct connection with deception and We are enjoined by our great High Priest, to do whatsoever we do "in the light;" then its transparency is revealed. The doctrine of spriritualism, like that of the Latter Day Saints, is rapidly gaining ground, working more and more upon the credulity of that rlass of people who are predisposed to fanaticism. The days of the miraculous and supernatural are past.

In the glorious light and liberty of the religion of Christ there is hope and salvation, and the way is so plain that none need grope in the darkness, nor go astray.

DOING WHAT WE CAN.

BY AARON MOW.

S a constant and appreciative reader of your valuable paper, I write you an article giving a few thoughts of one who is indebted to the Tunker Church for principles of true morality for right aspirations and for the great Ideasure experienced from childhood by the condition of mind which such train ing and discipline furnishes.

My home is in Kosciusko Co., Ind. and having chosen the profession of teaching, I came to the State Normal to prepare myself for the same. My par ents are members of the Tunker Church, hence my pleasure in reading your pa per, and consequent nearness to you, I send you this, thinking that it may at tract the attention, especially of the young of similar circumstances, and in spire in them right thoughts and encour age june motives.

As we look back over the progress of mankind as recorded in history, and study the nature, we find man's ability to appreciate the beauties of nature has always exceeded that of the lower animals, and that by has always been capalde of self improvement and upward progress in apprehending and worship me God, which shows his superiority in nature and intelligence, over all other of God's creatures; and, that in his even tion, God has designed man as the great est and noblest being on earth. We behere this to be true also from the fact that man has the power to appropriate the animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms as a means of supplying his land, is said to be 102 years of and in leither in the hope of a situation, on to physical wants. He has the animal, the plant and the mineral as the means by which he works out his destiny.

With these advantages we should ex | coat.

pect him to be a noble being; a high and aspiring genius; a God fearing and adorning man. We should expect him to possess all the virtues which could possibly be attained by humanity on earth. He should reverence God, and feel that he owes his whole soul and being to him; and that he is truly worthy of his adoration. But it appears that there are a great many who are ignorant of these facts, and many who know but will not give heed, and continue to make it their purpose in life merely to supply the wants of the flesh and look forward only to the promotion of their carnal desires without ever thinking with praise of God the giver of all things, their protector and their shield. In view of these facts, considering the relation of man to man, to God and to nature, there is a open violation of law both human and vast plane to canvass in contributing our mite to the welfare of mankind. This is a work we should never neglect, for neglecting such a work is neglecting the development of mankind and the promotion of good, thus making ourselves liable to the immutable laws of

> Hence we can plainly see that it behooves us to be up and doing, to be about the noble work, to put forth our best efforts in the way of realizing the purpose for which God has designed us. As surely as God has created us, so surely he has created us for some purpose; and as surely as we neglect to fulfill our calling whatever its nature, so surely imust we suffer the penalty attached to such violation. We are lit subjects for leter nal bliss only by the thorough accomplishment of our preparation for the next, which we are to make in this world in administering to the wants of humanity.

The question may occur to some show we shall do this work. They may say "we are not good speakers, we are not educated, or that our time and attention are absorbed in the ordinary losiness of life." As for speaking we are not required to proclaim the word of God by speech alone. Our behavior and bearing toward man, and our uprightness in all our works have more influence over man than words have, and speak londer than the voice of thurder. As for education we need not be backward because of a lack of this; for the illiteral have a work, and sometimes they do the no-|so the little ones in our household must blest work. But as we are endowed with the faculty to know, and to know the ent when they apprehend the love that good is evidently the design; and as the means of acquiring knowledge are aniple, there seems to be an impelling duty and inherent right involved upon each one to acquire that degree of mental culture necessary to meet the wants of Chrise of severety wears the heart of kindness, tianity. THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND.

THAT parent is undoubtedly the best friend to his children, who knows how to deny and restrain.

Children are apt, on the contrary, to consider those as their best friends who are most demonstrative in their affection, and indulgent to their wishes and whims. They are not able to gauge hearts, to know the heights and depths of a love which rises above outward expression and reaches far below temporary gratification.

And parents themselves not infrequently make the same mistake, and judge of affection by the momentary ideasure conveyed to the child. "She is so excessively fond of her child," is the excuse often made for the lavish and injudicious favors granted the little one or for the lack of wholesome restraint; a method which conduces only a waywardness and folly, and in the end causes ruin and sorrow.

But true parental love, like the lufinite, sees far beyond the present moment, and takes in all the bearings, relations and final results of its methods. If a certain course is not for the ultimate good of the child, it can withhold, and show by withholding, its own purity, gennineness and strength. It can stern. ly deny, stilling its own yearnings, hiding its own tears, and remain persistently silent to the cries and pleadings of the little one, when it perceives that indulgence would be hazardous.

Much is said of the early discrimination of children, that they so readily find out who are their friends. It is true they do very quickly discern sympathy and tenderness of feeling in those around them; but takes a very wise child to kneed the heart in which true love is hidden. As it requires a strong faith for the child of God to recognize the

Now, my little friends, how many boys, think you, came to inquire for the situation after this advertisement appeared? DON'T TATTLE.

(MHLDREX, don't talk about each other. Don't call one of your schoolmates ugly, another cross, behind their backs. It is the meanest kind of sin. Even if they are ngly, stingy, or cross, it does you no good to repeat it. It makes you love to tell faults, it makes you ancharitable, your soul grows smaller, your heart loses its generous blood when you tattle about your friends. Tell all the good you know about them, and carry the sins in your own heart, or else tell them to God and ask him to pardon them. That will be Christ-like. LYMAN Abhott in his "Dictionary of Religions Knowledge," says of the word Brethren. "This name employed in the early Christian Clinrch as a designation of disciples of Christ before the term Christians, was employed, has been taken up since by different orders as follows: A sect of German Baptists, more popularly known as Dunkers or Dunkards, from their method of baptian." Mr. Abbott expressly states that the term "Brethren" was used to designate the desciples of Christ before the term Christian was employed. Jesus said: "All ye are brethren," while his opponents called his people Christians. We adhere to the name "Brethren" as being of divine origin, hence seek to be known by no other.

He declined on the ground that the child had not been sprinkled. Another minister of the same church was called upon to speak to the people at the funeral of the child. He came, but also refused to preach. And still worse; they would not permit the little child to be buried in their cemetery. The father went and purchased a lot in another cemetery in which to lury his child. A minister of the "church of God" conducted the services. This looks worse than infidelity. Yes, truly; it looks as if sprinkling were essential to salvation. We do not conclude that because those ministers refused to preach the funeral sermon on the ground that the child was not sprinkled, the whole L--Church is in fault, but we do conclude that those ministers thought that a few drops of water were worth a great deal just about that time "Sufter little children to come unto ME, and forbid them not, for of meh is the kingdom of heaven." So says he who is Lord of lords, and King of kings.

---FACT AND TRUTH

13.3 I denote action. The word door so freabout in the common version is equivasent to the word that. Every fact is a fruth. yet not all troths are facts. That God is, that the exists, is a truth, but out a first. That the made all things, formed the deeps, and gave the seas their bounds, are nots and truths. Whatever operate does, and the result is known as a first. A thing must really be done before it can be a fact. That Jesus died, was buried and arose are facts, and conformity to these facts is 'truth. That the Apestles went everywhere preaching the word, is a fact, and conformity to this fact is truth. History is based on facts, hence the history of New Testament goes to so many facts. Take away the facts, and there can be no history, and without history, the past is but a blank. The history of Jesus' birth, ministry, denth, resurrection and ascension contains so many facts; take away the fact of his birth; the fact of his ministry, his death and resurrection, and what becomes of the Christian system? Where is faith without the New Testament furts. Take away the facts of the Gospel and you take away the religion of Jesus. So soon as a thing is done, the fact that it is, has been established, and this is a truth. Truth belongs to fact Truth conforms to fact, and never moves in opposition to itself. "Thy word is truth," says Jesus to his Father. Thy word is in harmony with fact and truth which ever dwell together. To say that the tree does not grow when it does, is to say what is not in conformity with fact. The tree does grow, and this is a fact. To recognize this fact is to declare the truth. Jesus died: this is a fact, and to recognize this fact is to recognize the truth. That he arose from the dead is a fact, and to believe this fact is to recognize the truth. Many things do exist, but we are slow to recognize them. A fact is not affected by our believing or disbelieving it. The thing affected is ourself. If it be a fact that the earth revolves on its axis once every twenty-four hours, our believing or disbelieving it will not affect the fact, nor the truth; but if there is any effect it will be in us. If the Bible be a book of facts, our believing or disbeheving it will not affect the Book. Our action in the matter can exert no influence upon the fact; cannot change or in the least vary the fact, nor the truth of the fact. That the Book of facts is here, that it came by Inspiration for mankind; that in it we think we have eternal life promised through Jesus Christ, are facts which we cannot change.

As moral beings we cannot lift ourselves above ourselves. It is fact that a Being higher than ourselves was required to raise our moral natures higher than ourselves. Without aid from God, no man can attain to the knowledge of God, what he requires of us, how to do it, and when. The fact that God has made us capable of receiving and imparting culture, proves that we can be raised up morally, and religiously; and the fact that we can not lift our moral matures above corruption proves that we need One who is greater, stronger than we are.

Fact makes impression. If our dearest triend should die suddenly, the fact would make us weep and mourn. When a friend places a valuable gift in our hands, a feeling of joy and gratefulness possesses us. The heart is sadden ed through unsfortune and gladdened by gifts and favors. The condition of our feeling will be according to the nature of the fact known or believed. We know a thing when we have seen it; we lather a thing when reported to us by competent and truthful witnesses.

There must be a fact, before it can be known. reported and believed. Hence we have, first the just, or thing done; second, the testimony; tinrd, the faith. NEITHER BIBLE NOR LOGIC.

N a report of a camp Meeting, at Farrandwille, Mich., by M. C. Craig, published in the Free Methodist, we read the following para-

"During one or two days of the meeting some Adventists came on the ground, Bible in hand, for argument. And while some of the pilgrims knew. but very little about logic they knew how to preval with God, and resorting to that ever ready weapon, all prayer, they vanquished their mate rialistic foe.

The Free Methodist Luly reports what seems to us to be very inconsistent. It seems the Adventists were routed without either the Bible or logic! It still further appears that weither the Bible nor logic is in favor of Fro Methodism; for had they been of course they would have been used. Upon this confession on the part of the writer, as to what Free Methodism is, we seriously doubt whether God is in favor of it, seeing his word is set at naught. If the Adventists had both the Bible and logic on their side and the Free Methodists had neither, we believe we would take our place with the Adventists. Prayer from a body of people who reject both logic and the Bibie is a kind of mockery too deplorable to be described.

A young lady (Baptist) was one time Edking with a young gentleman (Pedo-haptist) on the subject of haptism. The gentleman not being able to resist the lady's logic became enraged. and said: "I just hate you Baptists; you want proof for everything." We boost of the nineteenth century civilization. look at a friend. Before this he could meet friend or foe face to face. His bravery was undaunted. But now self reliance is gone; fear takes the place of confidence, and shame of gladness.

Our brother thought how similar this was to the conduct of men. A man with a clear conscience is never happier than when in contemplation of meeting his blessed Master face to face, and when in fellowship with the elect of God. He can brave storms of opposition, endure severest privations. He would not shrink, if duty demanded it, to stand in the very jaws of death. But, when his morals have been surrendered, oh, how changed! So cowardly is he that he shudders to meet even his best friend! With a clear conscience, an implicit trust in Goll, and an unwavering faith in the truth of the Bible, no difference what the conditions of life are, it will be joyful, contented, and elevated; but on the other hand, with a guilty conscience, the doubt of a tiod, and a disbelief of the Bible, no circumstances of life can make one's existence either enjoyable or successful.

A man without a clear conscience is as powerless as a bird with a broken wing, a train of cars without an engine, a ship without a sail; as useless as an ax without a handle, a reaper without a sickle, a watch without a spring, a wagon without a wheel; and he is no better than either of the traitors Arnold to Judas.

TO THE BRETHREN IN KANSAS AND NEBRASKA.

10D adding his blessings I shall spend Sep-📭 tember and part of October in Kansas and Nebraska, and those wishing meetings will please address me at once, stating the nearest route to your point from Topeka. I desire to visit the isolated members, and the churches that are not abundantly supplied with ministerial laborers. These shall have the preference. O how often have your carnest appeals caused the tears to start; and my vow to God that if he would spare me, I would do my part towards helping you, must now be published. I ask not your gold and silver, but your heartfelt prayers, that, "if by any means now at length I might have a prosperous journey by the will of God to come unto you. For I long to see you, that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, to the end ye may be established; that is, that I may be comforted together with you by the mutual faith both of you and me,"-Rom. 1: 10-12.

INDER the above caption Professor M. B. Riddle of Hartford, Conn., publishes some very good things in the Religious Herald. Among the many he says:

The definite and discoverable meaning of the New Testement terms has led to stability of lexicography as regards this book. With this thought I begun. But now I must make exceptions, Three classes of interpreters have endeavored to shake this stability; (a), ECALESIASTIBAL, who have insisted that the decisions of councils and similar bodies, centuries mayhap after the New Testament was written, determine the meaning; (b) Mysrican, who think some inner light, or new subjective revelation, can after the historic facts of Jexicography and grammar, and (c) RATIONAListic, who thick that what their judividual notions accept as true or false, can affect the sense of words written by men centuries before there Indiyldnul apinions existed. And it will perhaps be the best safeguard against a most lmrtful habit, the habit of putting a homiletical twist upon our texts, explaining, or at least using the well defined words of Scripture in another sense, which better suits some sermon we have planned to preach, - I believe that such a habit is more damaging to the ordinary hearer that inddel attacks or the vicious theories of interpretation already all ided to. If God's word is not rich enough in menning to us to formish as with texts that can be fairly used, then the fault is probably our own."

Bethlehem and Solomon's Pools.

[From the "Christian Standard" by special Arrangement.]

THERE are few objects in Palestine which I had felt more anxious to see than these pools and the aqueduct connected with them; and few that are so insufficiently described in the hooks which I have read. I examined them with the greatest care, and they fill me with more admiration than ever before. Previous to their construction Jerusalem had within it no ronning water, but was dependent on min water caught in cisterns. Such a dependence was too precarious for the capital of a kingdom, and Solomon was too wise a king to be contented with it; so he determined to bring in a constantly flowing stream by means of an aqueduct, but in order to this, a sufficiently copious spring must be found at an elevation, above derusalem; and as Jerusalem is from 2,400 to 2,500 feet above the sea level, and as springs generally burst out, not at the top of hills, but far down their slopes, it is clear that such a spring was not to be found at random. The nearest, and the only one, within a practicable distance, was found (we miles southwest of Bethlehem, and about eighty miles, by the nearest road, from Jerusalem. How the men of that age ascertained that this spring was high enough for the purpose. I leave the reader to judge.

Having settled that point, the aqueduct was started, not from the highest of the three hills in the city, but from the lowest—the temple mount. It crossed over to the side of Mount Zion, under what is now called David Street, then wound around the southern, and half-way along the western side of that mount, then across the shallower part of the valley of Hinment on arches, then around and around and around the hills to Bethlehem, then around Bethlehem, and around half a dozen otler hills. till it reached the narrow valley down which the spring aimed at was sending its waters eastward to the Dead Sea. These windings made the aqueduct twelve unles long, and through the whole of this distance the engineers had to give In my travels and intercourse with and it sufficient slope, as they came along, to insure among my brethren, I never met with any, to a flow of water, yet not sufficient to overshoot my knowledge, acraved against anything or ope the spring they were aiming at. They succeeded so well, that when they struck the spring branch they were at least a quarter of a mile from the spring, and about 100 feet, perpendicular below it. Not contented yet, they ran the aqueduct up the steep slope of the valley to the wide through earth and rock down to the stream which flowed into the spring, they builthis stream large for another quarter of mile up. the hill, their trench, by this time, reaching a depth of 2007est. But the task of the engineers was not yet completed, by more than half. The two chambers above mentioned were next arched over with nicely cut stone, and the earth replaced above them, leaving only a well-like opening into the larger one, which could be closed up by a flat rock laid over its mouth. Through this, until recently, travelers had to climb down, in order to visit the chambers; but now an easy entrance has been made by a narrow passage with a flight of stone steps. A wooden door closes the entrance to this passage, and the key of the door is kept by a Turkish soldier stationed in an old castle which stands a short distance be-

Next after covering up the chambers, the workmen hid slabs of stone across the treuch which they had dug, resting them on the solid rock, and replaced the earth above these. The entire stream of water was now hidden from view, and the Commentators have supposed. not without good reason, that Solomon refers to this, when he says in his song, (4: 12) "A garden enclosed is my sisters, my spouse, a spring shut up, a fountain-scaled,''

A constant supply of water was now secured, not for Jerusalem only, but also for Bethlehem, provided the spring which furnished it would never grow dry, and would always thaw copiously. But Solomon knew that in a long drouth the flow of water would be diminished, and that in a very long one it might fail altogether; so he provided against these two contingencies. Observing a small stream coming in from a side valley just opposite the point where his aqueduct reached the stream of his principal spring. he built a short branch aqueduct up that valley to the fountain head, dug out a chamber there, and arched it over, and added this stream to the one already in his main aqueduct. I followed this branch aqueduct to where it disappeared under the ground, and on going further, hoping to find it again, I discovered a hole in the ground about large enough to crawl into, and upon crawling in and down, I found myself in the chamber just mentioned. It is 21 feet long and 11! wide. The hole through which I had crawled was made by the dropping of a stone from the arched roof.

Against the other contingency mentioned above, he provided by constructing the three great pools which hear his name. They are loult along the slope of the valley between the principal fountain and the union of the two aqueducts; and the principal aqueduct flows along the side of the valley a few feet from them. The appermost is $80 feet long east and west, with an average width of 232 feet, and a depth of 25 feet. The next, about 50 yards down the slope, is 423 teet long, 205 feet, wide, and 20 feet deep. The third, 80 steps below second, is 5×2 feet long, 177 feet, wide, and 50. feet deep. All are dug down to the solid rock, walled up with excellent masonry, and plastered with cement. The cement of the upportnost is much broken, and a gaje about 20-feet, wide and 12 feet deep has been made in the widtho ats upper end; but the other two, and especially the lowest, we in an almost perfect state of gating channels, through the field- and gardens and orchards in the slopes and valleys below. This purpose of it is stated in the well known passage (Ec. 2: 6) where Solomon, in enumerating the great things which he had done, says, "I made me pools of water to water therewith the wood that bringeth forth trees." I think, too, that this is "the brook that ran through the midst of the land" which Hezekinh stopped when Jerusalem was threatened by Sennacherib. He said: "Why should the kings of Assyria come and find much water?" 2 Chron. 32: 4.

Finally, the king was not unmindful of the swimmers. "Better swim-pools than these," says Dr. Barclay, "could not be desired." So we found, by actual experiment on two of them, And for immersing, they are just the thing,-They all have stone steps reaching down to the bottom, on which you could immerse nicely when the water is at any stage, by placing your candidate on the step below you; and when the water is low, the benches made by the natural ledges of rock on the sloping bottom, would be the chosen place.

It has become common and popular to say that Pontius Pilate built these pools and this aqueduct, because Josephus represents him as undertaking to bring water from a great distance to Jerusalem; out I am fully persuaded that no king, nor Koman governor, subsequent to Solomon, was capable of the conception and execution of such a work; and until some conclusive evidence is produced to the contrary, I will still ascribe it to him. There are several other interesting details which I must omit from my description, lest I weary and confuse the reader; but if my unders feel half the interest in the subject which I feel, they will peruse this letter with pleasure.

I bring this letter to a close on the 18th of May, in the Philistine plain between Beer-sheba and Gaza, surrounded by a multitude of Bedouin Arabs graving their camels and harvesting J. W. M. GARVEY. their wheat.

Dett Brethren:-

SUPPOSE ere these lines reach you, you will be informed of the wonderful and mipaculous dealings of God in bringing to justice bad and dangerous man. One who no doubt for over a month past has been figuring and plotting a second raid on the Brotherhood .-But thanks be to a kind and over-ruling Providence the would be perpetrator of evil, in weaving a net to catch others, was caught in his own web, and when I left Mt. Morris on Monday of last week he was panting in the calaboose, standing in one corner with his eyes astened upon the floor, no doubt meditating over the past.

On the 21st of June this same Swede came to my house and introduced himself as Nels. sodaberg, said he belonged to the Baptist Church on the east side, (Rockford), and that he was baptized last Spring, but of late by reading the word of God, and by continual prayer, and seeking for truth, he had come to the conclusion, that as they left undone so many of the Savior's plain commands, that he could got be satisfied with them my longer, and that he was in search of a church more apostolic than the Baptist Church of Rickford, and that he knew something of a small church in lowa that was known there as Dunkers, and that he had writien to one of the Brethren there to ful out if there were a paper printed in the interest of the church, and that they referred him to the BRETHIEN AT WORK printed at Lanak, Illinois, and that he had written there to and out if there were any members in Rockford, and that he was referred to me as a memperof that body, therefore he had come to see me, and talk over the great truths of Christianm. I told him I was glad to meet him and sould be glad to talk with him upon this all uportant subject. I was not long in becomng very much interested in the man, although I must say that there was something about pun that I did not altogether admire at first, but his great zeal and continued earnest endeavor to get at the truth of the Christian reigum, and his great desire was to know nothng save Jesus Christ and him crucified had a maning effect upon your unworthy writer, and whatever might have been repugnant to me at int sight was fast sinking into insignificance, sthe theme, the most important of all that might interest the poor dying mortal man, was welt upon.

After this first unceting his visits to my house were frequent, scarcely without on exoption, talked upon the all absorbing truths of the Buble. Is it any wonder that I should I dory will show before I get through.

remain for the afternoon meeting, as he had previously arranged to exhort his Swede Brethren in Rockford on the same evening, but after hearing the first sermon, and being so well pleased, he could not think of returning without first attending the afternoon meeting.

At the appointed time we arrived, and Brother David took for his text, "Be ye not unequally yoked with unbelievers," and of course according to the nature of things, Secret Societies bad to be noticed during the remarks of the brother, (and the remarks were excellent). It was plainly shown by the unerring words of truth that any organization of a secret nature where the members are sworn to carry out certain restrictions not founded upon the word of God is dangerous, and should be viewed with

After hearing this sermon Sodaburg waxed earnest and warm in praise of the preaching. He said he never heard such gospel preaching before in all his lile. Every word was truth: and it had made a deep impression upon him, and on the way home he said he never was so happy in all his life, he has a soul to save, and should all his associates and brethren turn against him it would make no difference to him, he was determined, by the help of God to make sure work for the kingdom. I encouraged him all I could, and thought I never met one more in earnest than was this chief of hyp-

His next move was to advise Brother Price that he thought he would be down to see him and Brother Stein on the following Saturday .-He could hardly wait until then, as he wanted to get the truth, and as Brother Stein had belonged to the same church (the Baptist) that he belongs, he was very anxious to know his reasons for a change of church relationship. He came to me to take him to Mt. Morris, and made many good promises that I should be well paid for my trouble, therefore on Saturday, the day set apart for this trip, after partaking of an early dinner, 10:30 A. M., we left home in my conveyance, and arrived in front of the old sandstone at about 4:30 P. M.

After arriving at Mt. Morris we wended our way to the office of Brother Stein. I introduced my supposed friend, Sodeburg, and at once commenced conversation upon religious subjects. Conversation waxed warm. The trials of two, sustaining a like relationship, leaving the church the home of their adoption.

His reply to all this was: "To-day is the accepted time, and to-day is the day of salvation, if you hear his voice harden not your heart." He seemed very much changed, he was very despondent, Arrived at Silver Creek, he sitting by my side during the discourse delivered by Brother Stein. He paid close attention to the preaching. soon as the sermon was ended, he requested an interview with the Brethren. I told him he could make known his wishes. Nothing more was said until after the singing of a hymn, when he went up to the stand and called Bro. Stein out. In a few moments they returned but only to cast a greater gloom upon him, as no donbt he began to think the Brethren knew more about him than he would like to have them know.

We were invited home with a brother to dinner. When we left Rockford, he did not want to return until Tuesday, but now he was ready to go back immediately; but I told him to hold on, that I would like to visit some of my relatives while I was here, and I promised I would take him home on the following Monday. We all went to Sunday-school in the afternoon; had a very large Bible class, both Sodaherg and myself being invited to take part, which we did.-Had a good Sunday-school and largely attend-

We are all well and happy; we have close neighbors, and they are all good and kind, and we have plenty to eat,

This is the greatest country for fruit I ever saw. We are enjoying ourselves remarkably well. Our communion meeting was at Brother David Early's the 5th inst., commencing on the 4th, and continuing over Sunday. We had a feast of fat things. Ministers present were as follows: Brother David and Samuel Barklow, from Cass County, Oregon, and Brethren Daniel Leedy, A. H. Baltimore, from Linn County, Oregon. The Brethren all took an active part in preaching the word of God in its purity .-They made the doctrine of the church so plain, as practiced by the Brethren at our Love-feasts, that all who are not prejudiced could not help but see the truth as it is in Jesus. On Friday night, the 4th, four persons, young women, made it known that they wished to become united with the church, and were baptized on Saturday. On Sunday night one young man came forward, and was baptized. On Monday morning there were near sixty communicants at said meeting. The order and attention were excellent.

On Sunday morning at 9 o'clock we had our Sunday-school at the same place. Brother David Early is our Superintendent and Brother Samuel Forney, Assistant. There being twelve mutes present at this meeting from different parts. Brother D. Early proposed that Jacob D. Brower, a mute son of Brother D. Brower, should take the mutes in a class after the other classes were through, and read and explain by sign language the same chapter that the others had read, which was done in the presence of the entire congregation, and I must say that the some was very impressive. It seemed that the whole congregation was brought to tears. On Monday morning while Brother D. Brower was administering buptism, his son, J. D., was explaining to his mute friends about baptism.

In conclusion, I will say I think the church here is in a prosperous condition. Brother David Brower is laboring hard for the cause, and travels a great deal. Can not one of our laboring brethren come over here and help him in the good work. Souls are starving here for the bread of life. Since we arrived there have been five accessions by baptism, three by letter, and one reclaimed, with two more applicants for baptism. My love to you all. I remain yours in Christ Jesus.

Cripe, The best of order prevailed throughout the meeting, and many good resolations formed. Hoping by the help of God they may be carried out.

MICHAEL FLORY.

From Elk Lick, Pa.

Dear Brethren:—

SINCE my fourth of July report of additions we were again made to rejoice in the God of our sulvation. On the 30th there were two more added to the fold of God in this part of his heritage; one who was a back-slider for some time has grown weary in wandering away from the fold and has returned penitent, and we trust her confession is also accepted with God, (who alone can see the heart) as with the church. The other was a prumising young sister who was present at our glorious celebration held on the 4th. She, having been disappointed in going to the world's celebration held on that day at Berlin, Pennsylvania, resolved to zisit Salisbury, and by the Christian influence of some dear sister, was brought to the waterside where she witnessed baptism for the first time performed by the Brethren. She was convicted of the truth as there praticed, and upon due reflections and ample time to count the costs, she came to our council, having gladly received the word, and was haptized. Thus we may well say we had a glorious foorth when such results follow our labors.

Thus ends the labors of the month of July. with six additions, and while we were made to rejoice, our hearts were also smitten with sadness over the death of our Sister Shoemaker, who after a severe suffering of over a month, passed quietly in death caused by cancer in the stomach. She was fully resigned to the will of the Lord, and was faithful to the last, calling for the elders, and being mounted in the name of the Lord - Muny neglect this duty. Brethren in charge, visit the sick, comfort them through the word of God.

Dear Brethren.-

TAME church here is in an excellent working condition. We have preaching every Sunday; have two meeting houses; they are four miles apart. Meeting yesterday at the upper house; house filled to overflowing with enger listeners; could not all get in. One young sister came forward and requested baptism. Counsel taken, no objection, all were glad to receive her. Then went to Wild Cat; about two miles distant, and baptized her according to the great commission. Trust all went home rejoicing. May the Lord bless and keep her from the evil of the world. Three weeks ago we received two by haptism; so you see that the good work is progressing slowly but surely. I think there are many more near the kingdom.

Brother George Cripe, from Fairview Church will commence a series of incetings on the 21st of September, and we anticipate a good meeting. The elders and officers of the church were counseled and were united in holding such a meeting, and that is the way 1 think it should be, then there will be love, and union and peace, and I will just say right here to my breihren and sisters, let us put our trust und confidence in God, for we know that Brother George may plant or sow the seed, but the increase must come from God. Will report CHRISTIAN LESH. again.

Dear Brethren:-

AM glad you keep your paper free from articles of a schismatic nature, causing division instead of unity. Keep from hitter personalities, and try as much as you can to live peaceably with all men. Advocate the characteristics of the church which tend to keep us separate, that we may know each other and be known. If not, then we must be pained to hear that the church has lost her purity and her glory.

From C. H. Balsbaugh.

MTE are in purilous times. Few of us are aware how the church is undermined by the irruption of the Zeitgeist. A general fast should be proclaimed, and such a fast as fills the scripture idea of the term.

Of this number was the faithful little band of eight persons, a number between which and that which proposal the world after the deluge. a striking coincidence is observable. And one of the reight persons, and, one, too, who was prominent among them, was Alexander Mack Sen, the subject of the following Memorr. Mack's Writings, p. 7.

So according to Mr. Quinter, this leading Tunker anthor, these original Tunker! "made the christian tabernacle"—the chiech—and repeopled the earth with true saints after the deluge of sportinal apostacy had destroyed all oth-

Again Mr. Quinter, p. 9, says: "Alexander Mack, Sen , author of the following work was in 1679, in Schreisheiman the Electoral of Palatia, between Manheum and Heidleberg, in they many." "He was a Presbyterian and educated in the Calvinstic faith." "His occupation was that of a miller, and he possessed a very profitable mill, and a handsome patrinions, and sereral vineyards at Schreisheim."

After describing his marriage and family relations, on p. 10, Quinter says:

"There is a large comber of his decendants still living and in membership with the christran community which their worthy ancestor did much, as an humble instrument in the bands id thod, to organize and escablish."

According to this, the original Touker church was organized and established under the leadership and instrumentality of Alexander Mack. This is Tunker testimony. Continuing on p. 10, Mr. Quinter says:

"Becoming dissatisfied with the religious system in which he had been brought up, and desing anxious to ascertain the mind of the Lord. as revealed in the Scriptures, to this source was his attention directed in searching for the old paths. He became convinced by his reading of the Scriptures that an immersion in water was the New Testament baptism, and a lediever the only proper subject for the ordinance. and that the doctrines and practices defended in the following work are such as believers should receive and obey. Accordingly, he and his wife and six others, in 1708, were immersed in the river Eder, and covenianted together to walk in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lard."

Also on p. 11, of their original Tunker church, Mr. Quinter says:

"The same spirit which actuated the great red dragion with seven heads and ten horns, that stand ready to devour the man-claid which the woman clothed with the sun was to bring forth, Rev. 12: 1-6, monifested aself at Swartzenan to devour the mant community which the truth had conceived and brought forth.

From these instorical facts from the Tunkers themselves, the original Tanker church was concerned and brought forth under the ministry of Alexander Mack, in Germany, in the year 1708. This is neither Baptist bash, nor rehash; but it is the family recorded the parentage and birth of the original Tunker church. Ag an, on p. 13, Mr. Quinter, of Alexander Mack says:

"He was the first manister in the little chais tian community, organized at Schwartzenau in It is to be honed however that he shift 1708, and lidered realizely and successfully a ed of Alexander Mack, Sen. And while we venerate his churacter, may we honor the system of faith and practice which he and coadjutors have hunded down to us."

So it turns out instead of following the faith and practice handed down to us by Christ and the apostles, the Tunkers are controlled by the faith and practice handed down to them by Alexnuder Mack!

"The Prefuce or Introduction" to the Writings of Alexander Mack, was written by Alexander Mack, Jon., who was the son of the original Tunker bader. He was also a prominent preacher and author in his father's new church. In this Prefice, pp. 23-25, of the original Tunker church, Mr. Mexander Mack, Jun., says:

"Finally in the year 1708, right persons consented together to enter into a covenant of a good conscience with God, to take up all the commandments of Jesus Christ as an easy yoke, and thus to follow the Lord Jesus, their good and faithful shepherd, in joy and sorrow, as his true sheep, even unto a blessed end. There eight persons were as follows; namely, five brethren were-George Greld, from Hesse Bassel, the first; Lucas Vetter, bleevise from Hessia, the second; the third was Alexander Mack. from the Palatinate of Schriesheim, between Manheim and Heidleberg; the fourth was Andrew Bony, of Basle in Switzerland; the litth John Kipping, from Bareit in Wurtemberg. The three sisters were Johannic Noethinger or Bony the first; Anna Margaretha Mack, the second; and Johanna Kipping the Hund,"

These eight persons coveranted and united together us brethren and sisters into the covechurch of christian believers. And when they had found in authentic histories, that the primmave christians in the first and second centuries uniformily, according to the command of Carist, were planted into the death of Jesus. Unrist by a threefold immersion into the water bath as holy haptism, they examined diligently the New Testament, and finding all perfectly harmonizing therewith, they were auxiously deshous to use the means appointed and practiced by Christ hunself, and thus according to his own salutary counsel, go forward to the fulfilment of all righteousness.

Now the question arose, who should administer the work externally unto them? One of their number, who was a leader and speaker of the word in their meetings, had visited, in sincere love, different congregations of Bajdists (Taut questionten) in Germany, most of which admitted that hely baptism when performed by an immersion in water and out of love of Christ, was indeed right; but they would also, tendes this, maintain that the journing of a handful of water might also do very well, provided all else would be right.

The conscience, however, of them (the Brethren) could not be satisfied with this. They there Fore demanded of him, who led in preaching the word, to immerse them according to the example of the primitive and best christians, upon their faith. But he, considering himself as unlandized, required first to be baptized of some one of them before he should baptize another So they concluded to mate in fasting and jouyer, in order to obtain of Christ lamself, the founder of all his ordinances, a direction and openme in this matter. For he who was requested to haptize the other, wanted to be looptized by the church of Christ, and the rest had the same

In this their difficulty, they were encouraged by the words of Christ, who has said so notintalis, Where two or three are gathered in my name, there am I in the midst of them.' With such confidence in the precious and sure prouises of God, they, under "isting and post of esthas who had the four brithcen should be grade. that terether, who so auxously desired to be captized by the church of Christ They mus-ever divulge who among them had haptized first , according to the lot,) in order to ent off all occasion of calling them after any man, because they had found that such foolishness had abready been reproved by Paul in his writing to the Corinthians.

Being thus prepared, the eight went out together one morning in solitude, to a stream called Eder; and the brother, upon whom the lot lad fallen, haptized first that brother who desired to be baptized by the church of Christ, and when he was baptized, he haptized bim by whom he had been haptized and the remaining three brothsen and three sisters.

Thus these eight were all haptized at an early bear of the morning. And after all had come up out of the water, and had changed their garments, they were also at the same time made to reforce with great inword joyinhoss, and by grace they were deeply impressed with these significant words, Be ye fruitful and multiply? this accurred in the year above mentioned, 1708. But of the mouth of the year, or the day of the month or week, they have left morecord."

From the above testbrony as given by Mr. Mack, dr., we gather the following historical facts: First: The above maned five brethren and three sisters, eight persons "covenanted and united together" "to form a church of christian believers," Second They learned from "antherdie histories" (minispired) that early charbans were longitized "by threefold immersion into the water-bath," Third. These eight souls were all unlequized persons, and necording to the Tunker doctrine, children of the devil, Fourth. They all wanted to be "Implized by threshipped of Obeles " this store than it is church in the world, F/th. It was decided that one of the four brethren, who were all unbaptized aliens, should baptize Alexander Mack, who in turn should bigding all the rest. South. They east lots which of the four brethrep should. baptize Mr. Mack, "who so naxiously desired to be haptized by the church of Christ"! Was that unbaptized alien the church of Chart? Secontly, "They mutually pledged their word, that no one should ever through, who among them had baptized first," according to the let, Lighth. Thus prepared, these eight delated seals "went out together one morning" as solunde to the river Eder and The "brother agon whom the lot had fallen" buptized. Absymder Mack, "and when he was baptized, he baydezed him, by whom he had been baptized, and the remaining three brethren and three sis, rs," Were these eight souls haptered by the abaseh of Christ? North After these eight soul-had come mount of the water and changed their garments, they were deeply impressed with the words, "Be ye fruitful and multiply"! This occurred in the year above mentioned, 1708."

In the face of these instorical tacks and the contession of all honest Tunker writers, Mr. Stein is so destitute of the love of the fruttethat he has attempted to make the impression, that the original Tunker charch leg to prior to the year 1708. But at last driven from his frichfromal Tunker succession, he claims that the Tunkers "are proper successors of the apostolas churches, because they have their fatt and practice.' Thus is utterly take, for he cannot show where a single apostobe church was orgamzed by eight imbigured labels to mereng each other. BAPTISM FOR THE REMISSION OF SINS.

BY WW. BURGLON

"Repent and he handized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of $s_{10}s^{21}$ Acts 21 ϕs

N examining this subject carefully, it is necessary first, that we bear in mind who spoke this holy language; see andly, to whom, where and when; third the edgect and his authority.

Eirst, the apostle Peter is the author of this language. 2. It is a portion of his memorable sermon delivered, on the day of Pentecest at Jerusalem in Judea to the Jews. 3. The object was, that they might be saved and receive eternal life. This event had been foretold by Christ himself when he said, "Repen thance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations. beginning at Jerusalem." Luke 24: 47. Theo this no doubt was the beginning. as we find that it was the first sermon goenched after the plan of salvation had been fully arranged.

We will now examine the authority of Post for saving what he did. In order to less, we will first notice a portion of We learn that he was a poor, Historian tisherman when Christ found beginned by laptized, every one of him and commanded him to follow him, I you in the name of Jesus Christ for the however, his traits of character were see remission of sins." Then adds, "and various that the Savior saw at to make we shall receive the gift of the Hohim his constant companion. Owing to by Ghost," We learn that about three some of his traits of character, he made, thousand souls obeyed Peter's command. many mistakes, but was always set right, for he quake as the Spirit gave him, at by his divine Master, and always respirerance. Hence we learn that this comceived his teachings and sharp, rebukes mand did not originate with Peter. But with more liness. In consequence of the than God made him an infallible instruter's mistakes while with the Savior. some people do not place much confidence in his teachings, saying that if he made mistakes while he was with his Master, he would be still more liable to to make them while not with him. To such, we will endeavor to show that Peter was not alone in this matter. "It is expedient for you that I go away; for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unito you. And when he is come he will reprove the world of sin. and of righteousness, and of judgment. John 16: 7, 8.

We will bring still another witness to bear upon this point. Christ said to his disciples, Peter being among the num ber, But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth. And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight." Acts 1: 8, 9. Again. and when the day of Pentecost was fully come they were all with one accord in one place." Acts 2: 7, and they were filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance." Acts 2: 4. We learn from these passages of Scripture that Christ must leave his disciples, that he would send them the Comforter, that he actually did leave them, and that he verily did send unto them the Comforter, that he should reprove the world of sin, righteorsness and judgment, that they (the disciples) should be his (Christ's), witnesses, and that they (the disciples) spake as the Spirit gave them utterance. Should not this by widence make h that Peter was not alone in this matter? But this is not all of Peter's anthority. Matt. 16: 16. We find Peter made confession there the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt land on earth, shall be bound in heaven, and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth, shall be loosed in heaven." Matt. 16; 19.

We would have you bear in mind that the disciples were also present, and he gave them a charge. We will now refer you again to the day when our text was first spoken, the disciples were all assembled at one place, were all filled with the Holy Glost, Christ sent the Comforter as he had promised. What was to be done next! The world must be repreceded sin, of righteensness and Who must commence of judgment." this represel? No doubt the disciples all understood who should commence this work, because they were present when Peter received his charge. They also knew that this would open the kingdom of Christ on earth; and Peter felt ne doubt that this duty devolved upon him. hence he arose and began to rebuke sin as the Spirit gave him afterance. Now when they (the Jews) heard, this, they were pricked in their hearts, and said unito Peter and to the rest of the apies tles, "Men and brethren, what shall we do," which signified that they believed what Peter said; hence he tells them to ment in his hands to say these things, and therefore originated with God himself, and is not a mistake of Peter's, neither did Peter make mistakes after he received this infallible guide. Again, Peter was told when he received the charge, "that whatsoever he bound on earth, should be bound in heaven." Peter bound this command on earth, and it certainly is bound in heaven and not to be evaded, but extends to the uttermost parts of the earth, and to the end of time.

BY JOHN L. SNAVELY.

Show the doctrine of those who chave erred concerning the truth? Strike for the right.

WHERE are those who have erred con cerning the truth, yet professing to have named the name of Christ, last have not departed "from all iniquity," have not held "fast the form of sound words" which was preached unto them by the apostles, and Jesus Christ, "who bath saved us, and called us with an ho ly calling;" and "who hath abolished death, and bath brought life and im mortality to light through the Gospel. But notwithstanding all this, "the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seat, "the Lord knoweth them that are

The temptations, and influence of the evils that are now filling our land with sorrow have gone on to such an alarming extent that many of the professed adherents of religion, and even ministers, have got to calling "evil good and good call," and consequently have verred concerning the truth," "have fel lowship with the unfruitful works of darkness." have quit reproving them, of Christ; Christ blessed him and gave but have consented to them by being si him a charge, saying, "I will give unto lent, and not showing the people their transgression, are ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, have a growing laxity of doctrine, which weakens the faith of both the preacher and the church, have consented to the language of the worldly-minded, which speaks unto us smooth things. If you do not, you are called a scolder and a grambler. How minny preachers now in these last days were it told them like the prophet, "cry alond and sparence," suppose you would think they had a hard task assigned them? and why? because they would be crying at the sins of the people, be made "partakers of the afflections of the gospel," would have to "endure hardness as a good soldier of the cross of Christ," and by their preaching would not win the paparlar approduction of the people. The world wants a religion that will not stir the heart and conscience, something that will not call on them to crucify the flesh. such a religion suits all classes. The preacher that can, and will preach in this style, and has got out of the apostles style of preaching, and has per red concerning the truth is now looked up to by the world, and even Christian professors, as a man that is introducing great trincilities, or enlarged views of harvest season in which to wrench from Christian activity," and this is looked on as a mark, or evidence, of great faith wages. as a Christian. The world loves, and smiles on such men, however contrary over reach in trade, defraud the I to the command of Jeho ah, preferring and sacrifice all their integrity of ch to cling to sin rather than to listen to be corrupon macamon's altar, deaf to the him who is the resurrection and the life. Strange infatuation of man, that he will dence; while thousands stifle the voice for our reform as individual members and the church of Christ, is to "have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them; Sister, brother, enter into an examina tion of yourself, and of the church, it may be you will conclude the churches that do not have "fellowship with dark. ness" are but few; should this be the case, we are the servants of sin, in bondage to the world. It cannot be otherwise with every one who endeavors to do ser. vice for one Master, while held in hondage by another, will have written up. on the last page of the history of each day—failure.

Where are we standing! What is our support! Have we for our support the word of eternal truth, which can on. ly keep us from falling, and which alone will stand through all eternity; or have we only the support and sympathy of those whose doctrine and conduct proves that they have "erred concerning the truth," are perceived to be connected with a disregard of many known duties and indulgence in such things; as it is said of those that do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of heaven. May we be among the faithful who are will. ing even under reproach, and at the expense of much self-denial, to give true testimony, though we may be hated for telling the truth, as Jesus was, and Je sus says, "follow me." Remember the evil that accompanies the saints will continue with them no longer than life lasts Here lies the comfort of the believer May we go forth in the spirit of the gentle Nazarene, to the conversion of sin ners, to the peace and purity of the church, and to the subversion of all anti-christian powers.

May the redeemed, with the strength and fortitude with which they are endowed, stand for the right, and success fully resist the temptations they may meet on their pilgrimage. Stand for the right; leave the result, or issue with him who is owner of the silver and the gold

MAN'S ACCOUNTABILITY.

TE recognize in our creation the hand of an Almighty Being who has endowed us with understanding and intelligence. We possess faculties, which under culture and development are weaderful. Certainly Omnipotence, in giving such matchless displays of his wisdom, has a jumpose.

Kind reader, what think you is the first great object of man's creation? this momentous question had, in every instance, a truthful and practical answer at the out start in life, the face of sec ety would bear the marks of unquestion able improvement, int what a tragic and lamentable reply the masses are giving to this question! Some seeking hono and worldly aggrandizement by girding on the sword, bridling up the steeds was, and driving iron shoes through set of blood and wreck, regardless of the widow's tears and orgdian's cries. Many thirsting for gold and plunder, armed with gleaming knife and revolver, choose the silent watches of the night as their the hands of honest toil the hard earned

Others again, but little less howards cries of want and the claims of beneve prefer the chaif to the wheat that is in conscience, and all the moral sensible ties of nature, denying the authentical The great necessity, dearly beloved of the Scriptures, the existence of a 600

al the virtues of the blood of the cross their God is earthly gratification, and the pumpering of the depraved appetites. Here the lufinite Architect of the unireter stamped such picturesqueness and beauty on the face of nature, flecked the bavens with stars, gave a seasonable asing and setting to the sun, that the earth may bring forth hountifully, mere-Win give man an opportunity of em ploying the limitless capacities of his nanue in living for no higher object than the gratification of his animal nature Is there no higher tribunal before which man must be accountable than his own preconceived notions of right and wrong Verily, "For every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give an account thereof in the day of judgment." An impartial reckoning will come sooner or later. Gainsay or make light of it if you dare. Pile the mountains on the words and acts of your life if you can, or roll the waters of the oceans over them, yet the Archangel's trump will resurrect

We may find a forcible illustration of what we are trying to impress upon the mind in the care of a poor unfortunate widow. The winter was inclement and cold; the pitiless blasts driving great takes of snow against the windows and through the chinks in her humble dwelling. The fuel was gone, nothing remained but a few smouldering embers. and the last crust of bread had been given to appease the gnawing hunger of her only child, while no work could be obtained. Thinly clad and shivering with cold, she appealed to the compassion and generosity of a wealthy neighhor for only a little food and fuel. But her reception at the door of affluence was as finitless and heartless as the mid winter storm.

The mother died; her little son grew into manhaad and became a distinguish. ed artist, but the remembrance of that inhuman conduct to his devoted mother never could be erased. He drew a most graphic deliniation of it on canvass which proved to be a master-piece. Years passed with their mutations, lights and shadows, simshine and darkness. A gentleman in passing along one of the great thoroughfares in a European City, entered an art-gallery. A moment more, and he stood transfixed and speechless before a great painting. He recognized in it one of the almost forgotten acts of his past life recoiling back upon him with a reflex power.

Dear reader, the eye of God is cognizant to all. You, too, will meet all the acts of your life in a coming day. When the records from the archives of eternity are hung up in the light of all the crimson colors of sin. If unforgiven, they will stand out naked in all their umnistakable deformity. It is said of one, arraigned for some supposed crime, that while giving in his defense, he heard the scratch of a pen behind a drawn screen, reminding him that every word was being recorded, and if not properly uttered would appear against him. With in the veil the Recording Angel is making an entry of all the transactions of your life. That record will survive the record of the universe, and be found indellible when the pale nation of the dead are stirring and the great white Throne is set.

You sometimes tell your hearers what they never would have known. Confine your preaching to your own views of truth. Never call names. Never say the Methodists or Unitarians believe so and so. Go right on, preaching the truth as you have received it from God's Word, just as though no other denomination existed under the sun.

2. Do not make any one point a hobby that you must ride every time you go into the pulpit. Preach all the truth. not one thing to the neglect of the rest.

3. Be cheerful and pleasant about it. Do not fall into a scolding, fretful, fault finding way. Be not censorious. But tell great truths in a pleasant way. man was ever driven or scolded into holding anything right or wrong.

4. Preach plainly. When defining nny term or phrase, use short words and short sentences. There is too much verbiage generally; too many words and too few ideas. Sentences long drawn out will never carry conviction to a mind: but a plain, terse statement of a truth will go like a rifle shot to the mark.

GLADNESS IN SERVING GOD.

WHE joy of the Lord is your ■ strength." The heart filled with gloom cannot be strong. As the sunshine is needed to bring out the fruitful harvest, so joy in God is needed for effectual, distinguished service in his cause He who is whipped to duty will never accomplish great things. The volunteer is ever more brave, and daring, and successful than the conscript. But of all duties, the service of God is the noblest in which man can engage, and, if gladness should fill the heart in any service, it should be the service of the Lord of hosts. Let there be perfect love for God, and no service will be counted mean or unworthy; all work will be dignified by him for whose sake it is undertaken.

"Tis lave that makes the cheerful leet In swift obedience move."

If our love be feeble or fluctuating, if self-love interfere with its perfectness, then we may find it at times, difficult to serve the Lord with gladness. Duties may then, at times, feel irksome, and the most reasonable service may clash with our inclinations; but let God be loved perfectly, and no sacrifice will be felt too great, and no service too difficult.

Let there be the fullest appreciation of God's character. Is he not the Lord! infinite in every perfection? Can be command an unwise thing! Is it not true that the sacrifices and the services rendered to him make the offer stronger in their very action! If so, let us think of these things, and we shall serve the Lord with the gladness of hearts fully consecrated, and shall come before his presence with singing, for glad hearts will make tuneful lips.—Sel.

It is easy to find fault, to pick flaws, to criticise and condemn. But can we improve upon what we blame! and is to act as censors of our friends! Do ligious namby-pambyism is altogether suspicion. Remember a contest of our life exalted enough to authorize us we not all live in glass houses!

Home and Pamily.

Husbands, love your wives. Wives, sulmit your selves unto your own implands. Children, obey your parents, Fathers, provokened your children to wraft, but bring them up in the nuriore and admention of the Lord. Servants, by obedient to them that are your masters.—PACL.

NO TIME LIKE THE PRESENT,

F you're told to do a thing. And mean to do it really. Never let it be by halves, Do it fully, freely.

Do not make a poor excuse, Waiting, weak, unsteady: All obedience worth the name Must be prompt and ready.

When father calls, though pleasant be The play you are pursuing, Do not say, "I will come when I Have finished what I am doing."

If you are told to learn a task, And you should begin it. Do not tell your teacher, "Yes, I'm coming no a minute."

Waste not moments nor your words In telling what you could do Some other time; the present is For done what you should do.

Don't do right unwillingly. And stop to plan and measure: Tis working with the hourt and soul That makes our duty pleasure.

THE FEAR OF GOD.

MEAR has come to be regarded with great disfavor, as a motive to right cous action. It is true that there are fears which are not especially potent in their influence for good, but the Scripture has made no mistake in telling us that "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom." Love is a higher motive; but in a world like this, where temptations assail man at every point and iniquities take hold upon him on every side, it is right that every motive which sways the mind of man should be pressed into the service of truth and righteonspess. Fear is such a motive not so much the fear of perdition, for that might be a purely physical tear, in which even beasts might partake, but the fear of the Lord,—the solemn con sciousness that God is near at hand; that his eyes behold, that his eyelids try the children of men; that his ear catches not only the marmirings of our lips, but the very thoughts of our hearts; and that his awful indignation, which Idazed out against the cities of the plain, which thundered from Mount Sinai his curse against iniquity, and which for ages has followed a blasted ungodliness on every hand-the thought that this same wrath of God is still "revealed from heaven against all annightenusness," - surely such a thought as this must be a most salutary restraint to keep men back from presumptuousness.

It is true that Christians knowing their Father's love and rejoicing in his grace, may not need this motive; they may indeed be beyond its influence, and swayed by the higher and more gracious power of love; but all men have not faith, and hope, and love; and the first form of religious life is naturally connected with fear. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."

Children are withheld from sin by fear; they are restrained by dread; when they become older, other motives enter in and have play; but in the beginning liar deprayeth his life with slander. of the natural, as well as the religious life, fear is an element which must red limit. indiscriminate sympathy which confound all moral distinctions prevail too widely in this world. We need, as Christians, that wholesome restraint, that solemn apprehension which tells us that the path of sin is the path of danger, and that however pleasure may allure us in the way of disobedience, calamity and death will overtake usere long if we persist in a sinful course.

Let us learn a lesson taught, alike by nature, providence and revelation; let us dread the least approach of iniquity, and "let us have grace whereby we may serve God acceptably, with reverence and godly fear; for our God is a consuming fire." -The Christian.

A SLANDERER'S PENANCE.

HHE following oft-repeated but very instructive lesson is by St. Phillip Neri: A lady presented herself to bim one day, accusing herself of being given to slander. "Do you frequently fall into this fault?" inquired the Saint, "Yes, Father very often," replied the lady. "My child, said the saint, your fault is great, but the mercy of God is still greater, for your penauce done follows: Go to the nearest market and purchase a chicken just killed and still covered with feathers, you will then walk to a certain distance, plucking the bird as you go along; your walk finished you will then return to me." Great was the astonishment of the lady at receiving so strange a penauce; but silencing all human reasoning she replied, "I will diey, Father." Accordingly she repaired to the market. Lought the fowl and set out on her journey, plucking it as she went along, as she had been commanded. In a short time she returned, anxions to tell her exactness in accomplishing her penance, and desirous to receive an explanation of one so singular, "Ah!" said the Saint, "you have been very faithful to the first part of my command: now do the second part, and you will be cured of your fault. Retrace your steps, pass through all the places you have already traversed, gather up one by one all the feathers you have scattered." "But Father." exclaimed the poor woman, "that is impossible. I east the feathers earelessly on every side; the wind carried them in different directions; how can I now recover them? "Well, my child," replied the Saint so it is with your words of slander; like the feathers which the wind has scattered, they have been wafted in many directions; call them back now if you can. "Go and sin no more." History does not tell if the Judy was converted; but it is very probable. It required a Saint to give the lesson; one should be a great sinner not to profit by it.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

THIROUGH the goodness of our Father, I was permitted to meet with the Brethren and sisters of North Manchester church Ind , on the morning of the 7th, inst. in conneil, Breth ren David Nelf and Jacob Metzger were pres end to assist in the labors. A number of defer red questions were presented, among them the Sunday School question. After considerable discussion, the church lay a vote of one hundred and eleven to tiffly, decided not to have a School. Some said first it, (the spection) was causing trouble, bence they voted against hava School among them. Others meentained that Sumlay Schools were conducted in a disorderly manner, hence said, may. Others, still said "may" because the word. Sunday-school is not found in the New Testament. While none of these plens seem to have the weight about them to commend them to reflective minds, yet they were sufficient to turn, the yours against those who orged the privilege of bringing their children "into one phose" it a reach them the Holy Scriptures. The immorday, like true Christmas should, yielded gracefully to the majority. May it never be said of those where are "zealous of good works" (Titus 2: 14) and who wish "to maintain good works for to exsist on use in order "that they be not unfrontal" (Pitus 3:10 that they become angestical and unbobearing whose they are hard-god - $(U_{\rm B})_{\rm total}$ as mech and humble girit can love and tellow-hap provide. The meetings here were well attended. On Sunday we again met at the waterside where baptism was administered. Since the beginning of the year this church has witnessed thirtyseven souls covenant with Christ in haptism, Many families were made to rejoice, for children and parents have been brought to a knowledge of the truth. Brother D. S. T. Butterbaugh and wife were made happy to see their son go down into the water the last Lord's day and yield himself obedient to God. All his children are now in the house of the Lord, and there is heavenly joy in that family. Brother B. is an active worker in the vineyard of the Lord, and among the young he finds a fruitful field of labor. O what good all may do by being "warm" in the Master's cause! To such I would say, work on; be not discouraged. Though your motives may be impugned, and men may make hard speeches against you, do not fail to look for the crown. Envy and jealousy lie at the bottom of all opposition; and the more good you do, the londer Satan will howl. Some people are drones; they are willing to eat the honey, but gather none. Cease not to encourage the young members, and thus strengthen them. O look to heaven for your reward! God sees you; he will not leave you to be cast down for-

There are now many young members in the North Manchester church, and we pray God to give the overseers abundant grace to care for these young. Dear, aged brethren and sisters you need to meet those tender lambs with smiles and kind words. They are feeling very unworthy and humble as we all do in our first love. O treat them tenderly! Besure that you do not slight them. They look for kindness and gentleress from you, and oh what a pity if some rinle act from you should drive them away from the fold! I write thus because I love those "little ones;" I write thus because you have experience and are placed over them to do them good. O how you may enrich them, by praying with them, by almonishing them to steadfastness. You may had them into the rich pastures of God by love, and you may drive them over the awful abyss by rudeness. Then with all long-suffering look after them for good. Loft in wonder where I would be if my aged brethren had not shown great love for me. O how they grasped my hand, and called on God to bless me! How often they met me with smiles and tears! How often the true and faithful met with me and junyed! Yes, had they been cold and formal; had they been distant. partial, rude and overhearing. I might now be in a cold and merciless world, a companion of sinners, an outcast from God. O Lord how good and excellent are all thy ways!

TESTIMONY ESSENTIAL TO FAITH

ence between knowing a thing when we have seen it ourselves and believing it when report. ed to us by credible witnesses. In the earlier ages of the world, men were moved more by knowledge, by experience and observation, than by faith. But as the number of people multiplied, and the means of communicating importaut truths to each other increased, the work of the former generations was received by belief in their testimony. Facts may grow less hy experience, but faith founded on reliable testimony increases. The more we see of an object, the less attractive it becomes, but hy an erer present faith, the effects of objects grow stronger. It follows, then, that faith is the best medium through which to reach our higher affections. And as the dispensation in which we live is related to things unseen and eternal. faith becomes the true medium through which the unseen things can be conveyed effectually to the soul. Fuith has an influence over the individual, not only is his conduct, but also over the character of the moral powers of his soul. We then see the importance of true faith; and as the faith is dependent upon the testimony we see the value of correct testimony. His hopes of eternal bliss, his desires for a rest with the people of God and an inheritance that is undefiled and that fadeth not away, depends on what he believes. The belief of falsehood destroys man's spiritual interests, while the belief of truth ever guides him right, and guarantees to him the highest and best enjoyment attainable.

In looking over the material system we find the witnesses to be "the eye, the ear, the smell, the taste, the feeling." The sense of seeing is the witness to the mind in regard to the form and arrangement of things. The scuse of hearing is the witness to the mind in regard to the sound of things. The sense of smelling is the evidence to the mind in regard to the order of things. The sense of tasting is the witness to the mind in regard to the flacor of things; and the sense of feeling is evidence to the mind in regard to the state of things. The mind has these witnesses to guide it, and upon them it relies with the utmost credibility to give it the truth of facts. If one of these witnesses, the eye for instance, be injured so that it can no longer testify as to the form, and arrangement of things-tacts-then the witness. feeling is strengthened to aid the mind. "Blad men say that black is rough, and white is smooth." Thus what was once communicated to the mind by the sense of sight is now communicated by the sense of feeling. How important that all these witnesses he reliable, and that when one is injured or destroyed, another may in a measure work for it.

Now since the mind needs no witnesses unless there be objects in the universe of which to testify, neither can there be any need for moral witnesses unless there he spiritual things of which to testify. Hence in the divine work of regeneration there must be witnesses of these things. God gave his Son to redeem man; this is a fact; hence it may be reported and believed. This being a divine fact, needs to be substantiated or reported by divine steatimony. First in order then, God lored the world; second, sent his Son to reconcile the world; third, his Son merced in the world; fourth, taught the people while here: filth, he dold for the people, sixth, was linearly seventh, www.tonathedead, eighth, ascendet intelionen, midth, they saw laim; feath, fley heard kim preach, eleventh, many of them believed in land twelfth, some of them to stelled at him, and were down for the bestimony. All this we know by the festimony of credible with sees, who some him, heard him, believed him. Every hope of the sorrow stricken soul rosts upon the testimony of the faithful witnesses. Not a single tear of pay or graditude not one may of hope for the manisons in the skies averages from the bosome of the man who notes heard of Jesus. The testimony is clear, pliable, sure. The witnesses testify that Jesus restricted, was buried, arose, talked, and walked with the disciples, and then ascended noto heaven. The witnesses are credible, reliable hence the faith must be true.

The testimony used by Jesus in his ministry and extraordinary. He was divine, the Son of nd as such used extraordinary means to convince the people of his Messialiship. All miracles performed by him are extraordinary witgess for him. They testify of his divine power. The miracle that does not testify of his dirine authority is not to be found. A miracle is the manifestation of the reserved power of God, and these are supernatural witnesses of Christ. They as surely testify of his divinity as the sin in the world testilies of Satan's iniquity. Does lesus full to convince the people? He feeds them with bread, brought from an unseen source. Do any of the people tail to accept him? He turns water into wine, and the testimony is ample.

The present constitution of min does not permit him to believe in the divine origin of the Christian system without it be confirmed by miraeles, witnesses extraordinary. The mind ot man infers that the acts of an Infinite Being will be superhuman. It looks to God for apperior actions just as it looks to the lower annuals for inferior actions. Reason massts that since it is natural for man to perform acts. superior to those beings beneath him, so God ought to perform acts superior to man, since he is fir above all creatures, even man. Mira cles, therefore, are necessary to convince man; they are the superior witnesses of God testifymy to superior actions performed by a Superfor Being. All the facts which Jesus revealed were supernatural, bence supernatural testimoby. And this supernatural testimony was in arder confirmed among the followers of Christ. Testimony that is designed to stand must be confirmed. Paul says: "Men verily swear by the greater; and an oath for confirmation is to them an end of all strife. Wherein God, willmy more abundantly to show unto the beirs of promise the immutability of his counsel, confirmed it with an earth."—Heb. 6: 16, 17. In this alone will we find our individual and ecclesiastical harmomy and strength. As we diverge from this centre will there be division, discord, and failure. The love that rorets the cross with its agony and ignominy to effect reconciliation, will give us a church typed after the personality of the Godman, exhibiting the undeniable credentials of her Divine character and mission.

All the way from Dakota comes an auonymous, Heaven-flavored missive, a single diminutive tablet, three inches by seven, bearing the image and superscription of Emmanuel, stamped with the Cross on both sides. the expense of harmony and prosperity with a view of substituting another less repugnant to the carnal mind is ignoble. Could more flexihility of thought be obtained in minor details without the deep, inward jar that threatens the very life of the Mystical Body, various changes would be permissible without either obliterating the general order, or compromising the higher life. But as this is absolutely out of the question, it evinces neither christian wisdom nor good common sense to keep the church in turmoil by straining after an impracticable object. Our diversities are far deeper than the surface. They lie at the core of our degemerate nature-the natural insubordination of the heart to the Divine order of redemption-life, liberty, a truly Deific beatitude by the shame and agony of the Cross. There is the sore irritable spot.

Those not personally acquainted with me, who imagine they are committed to principles. but who are only wedded to faction or tradition, often inquire, "to what party do you belong?" Verily, I am not of Paul, nor Apollos, nor of Cephas. Neither of these died for me, nor was I baptized in the name of either. cling to Christ crucified, and this means death to sin, opposition to the flesh, conflict with the devil, separation from the world, identification with the Most High and Holy in character and aim as manifest in Jesus of Nazareth. Brotherhood in these essentials constitute the household of faith, the elect of God, the single-hearted Bride of the Lamb.

"THAT THEY ALL MAY BE ONE."

O this wondrous, Trinity-expressive, bloodprinted, fathomless ONE. It is the sweet, soulentrancing, soul-amalgamating mystery of Love. It is the glory of the Cross, the inell dde At-one-ment which taxed the triune Jehovah to achieve, and which will be the song and transport and marvel of the endless ages. And yet what pherilities we allow to break this Divine harmony! Those who rightly conceive of it, welcome "sheepskins and goatskins," "dens, caves," "stripes and imprisonment," rather than suffer its sacred spell to be broken. The celestial rhapsody of Romans 8: 35, 39, is the inner melody which the blood purchased heir of Heaven is to chant unceasingly in his heart of hearts, and voice in every act of his life as the glad psalm of personal redemption. O how rashly, how inglorinsly do some publish to the world, NOT ONE, NOT ONE. "They glory in their shame." Love cements. is not pagnacious about overdrawn austerities. nor rebelliously bent on effecting schismatic, crass-slighting resolutions. It knows how to thear all things" and yet be immutable.

Of this oneness the Father and Son are the Type, and Holy Ghost the configuring energy Christ of course never specified nor prolabited ent or color of dress. He deals with the soul of truth. His utterances are all radical. He never leaves any thing back of his declaration to be discovered by some after-genius. When The speaks of oneness, the whole life goes into the account without specification. The Divine life in the soul has its intuitive proprieties. It waits not for councils and coercive measures. Dress is one of the great decays of the devil, one of the ensiest and most certain his Son Jesus Christ." Is there a real Chris. Jovennes to the heart, as well as one of its most natural expressions. It is unreasonable to suppose that in the oneness for which Christ prayed no reference is had to one of the most bisetting sins of human nature. The very first thing that sin calls for is dress, and such dress as represents both our lapse and recovery. Gen. 3: 7, 21. This principle inheres in the fixed nature of sin and holmess, and is binding from Amaghty God. This is the religion of the the gide of the lower to the Gide of the Upper Eden. ment of corruption. It we go deep enough into Christ's meaning, and deep enough into our own nature-deep enough to comprehend our tendencies and wants, and the restrictions and provisions of the Incarnation, all this clamor for liberty to the inferior side of our constitution, will subside. Holiness naturally issues in that world-separating simplicity which befits the redeemed, even as the Cross is the most fitting symbol of the Redcemer's character and office.

I am not pleading for any particular style of dress, not even for that which as truly expresses christian character as the manger and the Cross express the Divine idea of redemption; hut I plend for the very life of God in the soul, which employs the body as the exponent of the Divine perfections. The individual indwelling of God does not of necessity bloom into a round coat, or a broad brim, or a plain cap, as human vitality produces essential human peculiarities; but it does separate from the unredeemed, even in dress, with as distinct a line of demarcation as the genus hours preserves from identification with lower animals. It is a burlesque on Christianity to contend that it does not as truly shape a person's dress as his heart.

A professor of religion who conforms to the fashions of those who openly disavow alleginuce to Emmanuel, is no more a Christian than a monkey is a man. Brute-life must issue in brute form, and flesh-life will take on its approprinte exterior. No legerdemain of logic can nullify the force of this fact, to which Heaven and earth bear testimony in all their countless vital manifestations.

I do not much pity the dilemma of those who make a fetich of a capapie ecclesiastical costume, or of any thing else of sacred significance; but my whole soul is in arms against the movement that would allow the Christian to select his apparel from the devil's ward-robe. He is "the god of this world," and to affiliate with the world is to own his paternity. There is no logic of religion but the logic of life; and the life of religion is the life of God in the flesh and expressed by it; and this is "holy, harmless, undefiled, and Sevarate from Sin-NERS." The essence and characteristics of life are uniform, with many minor variations, and God takes the same general way of develorment and munifestation in the Christian as in Christ. He has no sin-bruising crown for the Head of Eminionicl, and a Hesh-pleasing, sinentering rigging for the head of Saints,

"Christ is for me and I am for Christ, His life for mine, mine for His. Right hand, right foot, right eye, all, even to the last drop of blood, must go before I will run counter to the sacrilice of the Cross, or grieve the Holy Ghost by dallying with the world," This is the sentiment of the lidden Dakota member, and no less of all who have come out of the matrix of the All-holy. The elect are vergin-born and virgin-charactered, and keep their garments unspatted from the world. The name of Jehovahshummah is on their forchead, they carry the Heaven-borm-hed wedding ring of their eternal betrothal on their hand, and their raiment is redolent with the pertume of the love-thrilled, bliss-throbbing, fadeless Paradise of Holiness. There is not a mammon-worshiper, nor a selfseeker, nor a fashion-devetee, nor a Cross-despiser among them. "With strong crying and tenra" they have passed through Matt. 7: 14, and will enter traumphantly through Rev. 21: Gittes of Pearl open only to those who are "without spot, or wrinkle, or ANY SUCH THING.

Hebron and En-gedi.

W E left Solomon's Prods on Monday morn-ing, May 12th Tot 11.3..... [From the "Childen Sheaderd" by special Archigenout [is about twelve miles, and though the road passes up hill and down almost continually, there is a general ascent, so that the highest elevation in all Palestine is reached about three miles north of Holdon. His 3,300 feet allove the sen. When we were within a mile of Hebron we furned to the right, and crossed over to the plain of Maurie, in order to visit. Abraham's rook. Near the upper eml of a valley which descembs toward Hebron, and widens as if descends, is a very large and ancient oak tree, which tradition has designified as the one under which Ahraham entertained the three angels. It is 32 feet in diameter, and at about nine feet from the ground it divides into four very large branches, which reach out to an immense distance almost horizontally. One of them is dead, and another almost so, and both these are supported by props. The trunk is also decayhands that propped the drooping limbs, have built around it a good stone wall about four and filled this in with fresh earth. For this care we are indebted to the Russian government, which has bought the surrounding land, enclosed it with a good wall, set it in vines and fruit trees, and built, on the slope of the bill above, a large lospice, or free lodging house, for the julgrims of the Greek Unurch. Thousands of these pilgrims, many of them very poor people, flock to the Holy Land every year, and they are provided with comfortable holgings. liberality of the Russian government. The oak whose life is thus cared for is certainly not the Valley of Eshcol, where the spies out the banch of grapes which was horne on a staff between two. Such hunches grow there still. I saw many bunches with the grapes just form; ing, that were ten or twelve inches long, and were destined to be nearly two fest long when the grapes are ripe. Hebron is represented as the best district for grapes in all Western Asia, with the single exception of Damaseus, and its vineyards are far superior to any others that I have ever seen. The grapes are not utilized to the extent that they would be by an enterprising people, but many of them are made into raisins. I wanted some of the raisins to take home as a specimen; so I told our dragoman to buy me some, and I was surprised to receive about four pounds.

Our tents at Hebron were pitched on the slope of a hill west of the town, and as the town lies on the opposite slope, it was in full! view from our tent door. It claims about 8,000 inhabitants, and is a stirring place, though intensely Mohammedan. We could see from our camp the ancient stone wall, supposed to have been built by Solomon, which surrounds and congeals the Cave of Machpelah, wherein lie boried Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Resbekah, Jacob and Leah. We could see the roof and part of the wall of the church built within the inclosure during the Christian period of Palestine, and afterward burned into a mosque by the Mohammedans. We were also permitted, under the escort of the Sheik of the city. to walk round the enclosure itself, looking into the doors, but not entering, while the women and boys were cursing as in Arabic, and wishing that they dured to stone as This burial place is so sacred in the eyes of Mohammedans. that no Christian was allowed to pollute it by passing its threshold, until, in 1862, the Prince of Wales was allowed to enter it, as a special royal favor granted by the Turkish Sultan with the unwilling consent of the Pasha of Jerusalem. Even be was not normitted to descend into the cave itself, which is covered by the floor of the mosque. The privilege, therefore, was of little value, seeing that it left still nusettled the question whether the emisdined hedy of Jacob, and the crumbled hones of the other patriarchs and their wives, are yet to be found there. Alacob was embalmed and Jarried with all the skill of the Egyptions, and without regard to expense; consequently it is but reasonable to suppose that his body is still preserved; but whether it is or not, will remain an open question until Moslem bigotry shall give way before the advance of civilization.

From Helmon we made an excursion to Engedi, an oasis on the desolute western, shore of the Dead Sea. Our object was not only to visit the place, conspicuous in Old Testament history, but to see the barren hills which form the western shore of the Dead Sen, and reach westwand about ten unles. The path which we tollowed was very direct, and the greater part | blacksmith bush, and the other the bachelor of it was a much better road than I expected bash. The last is well named, for you never to see; but at two places we had a trial of see two of them growing together. A ride mountain riding which surpassed any an our through this region is usually attended with previous experience. Our road, for a limbe or great discomfort and some danger to health, on two, was a mere goat path on the side of a account of the glare of the white hillside in mountain, whose slope was so steep that if man or beast should full, there would be no stopping short of the rocky bed of the raying. and that was at least a thousand feet below us. The path in many places, was not more than twelve inches wide, and it had a little slant in the wrong direction. I could not look down ling when the Ziphites betrayed them to Saul; without being nervous, but though dotried to ward occasionally. To add to my nervousness, my horse persisted in walking on the conterfeet high, enclosing a space 30 feet in diameter, ledge of the path, while I leaned and drew the rem in the apposite direction. He remaided me of many young Christians who are constantly freeling on the verge of propricty, as if to show how near they can approach destruction and yet escape it. I spoke of dismounting, but the dragonian insisted that it was safer for both the horse and myself that I should remain in the saddle, and the closed by saying, "The horse is very wise," - so I trusted to horse wisdom, and passed through in sidely. at Jerusalem, Bethlehem, and Hebron, by the The other place was the cliff which rises above En-gedi. passed, and we stood on a beach of a mountain, confect yet above the sea, by the side of a rushing stream of pure and sparkling water. It gushes forth from under mountains which look as if they had never received a drop of rain; it makes verdant a few acres of ground; it rushes down the remainder of the precipice, turning a mill, when the mill is in repair, as it goes. Although it has only a half mile of beach to cross after completing the descent-so thirsty are the sands of that beach the stream is lost before it reaches the sea.

After a brief rest we walked down to the sea to take a bath. There was a stiff breeze from the north, and the waves were rolling two or three feet high. This delighted as, for we expected to have a wave buth after the fashion at Cape May; but when we tried it we found that our feet regeld fly up, and our heads down. The first we knew our eyes were foll of the water. and smarting so that we could not open them until the tears washed out the brine. Meantime, we were learning how to keep our feet under, and were getting farther from shore When we learn to keep open our eyes, the ride over the waves as they came in was delightful.

After enjoying this to our satisfaction, we Imraind toward the shore, and experienced the add difficulty in a new form. There was an undecentrent drawing us out to sea, and as we tried to swim against it, every wave that overtook as threw our feet out of water, so we were compelled to swim with our lands alone. The exertion was so great that by the time I reached water in which I could touch bottom, the strongth of my arms was almost completely exhausted. No one who is not a good swimmer should venture into the Dead Sea beyond his depth when the waves are rolling. After our bath, we started for the mouth of an enormous tissure in the mountains, a short distance to the right, whose grandeur had excited our admiration. As we approached it we came to a leelde stream of water just sinking in the sand. The further we went the broader and stronger this stream became, and when we entered the month of the gorge, we saw before us a fine cascade leaging over a perpendicular ledge of rock 25 feet high. It had scooped out, where it fell, a round basin in the solal rock, six feet deep and about 30 feet in diameter, which was full to the brim with sparkling water. We were soon plunging about in this, to wash away the gummy coating which the Dead Sea Water had left on our bidies. This coating unde one feel, to us Brother Taylor's expression, as if we had been smeared all over with molasses.

The fulls composing the wilderness along the western shore of this ser consist chiefly of a soft limestone which varies in color from a tawny to a dark brown when long exposed, but is almost as white as snow when freshly ancovered. Nothing grows there except two little shrubs, one of which is called by the Arabs the the sun; lost we were favored with a cloudy day and a north wind, for which we were truly thankful.

On our retorn from En-gedi to Helmon, we made a detour to the southward in order to see Ziph, near which David and his men were lurkand Carnel, where were the possessions of the keep my eye fixed on the path before me, I churlish Nabal, (1 Sam. 43: 46-29; 25.) There is nothing left of the town, except its eisterns and sepulctores, and the broken pottery that is scattered through the soil. The terraced sides of the full and its leveled summit are cultivated in grain. As I stood there and looked around where the dust of David's betrayers had enriched the sail, I felt like saying, You Ziphites, you were a mean set, you deserved the fate which has befallen you; for you betraved the princeed to make favor with the proveital May such be the fate of all who follow your detestable example,

The grounds of this supposition are, hrst, that it was one of the Levitical cities, (Josh, 21: 16) in one of which we might expect the priest Zachariah to dwell; and second, that it is in the hill country of Judah, as is required by the text (Luke 1: 39; 40). No other city of Judah answers the natural requirements of the case so well. The evening occasion was very solemn, and reminded us of that time when Jesus washed his disciples' feet, ate his last supper with them. and made the unleavened bread and the wine the emblems of his broken body and shed blood. Such occasions ought to bring us very mear heaven, and surely will if we appreciate the opportunity.

Our next Love-feast is appointed for the 25th day of September, at the Welty Meetinghouse.

APPLICANTS FOR BAPTISM,

On Sunday after the Love-teast above referred to, it was my duty, as well as my sacred pleasure, to help in the visit to two applicants. for baptism.

On Tuesday following we started for Annual Meeting, and arrived just in time to hear a portion of the first day's proceedings. We enjoyed the meeting and the association of the dear brethren and sisters. What a happy time that will be when we meet on the other shore, where the ransonned church of God will have no one to trouble its burders and cause aching hearts. Be faithful, brethren, and make no compromises with error or worldly religion. We hope to meet again by bud by,

On our return we learned that we had several more applicant (for baptism, so on the 45th of June eight were haptized near the Welty Meeting. house. There is joy in heaven, and why should there not be on earth? We are made glad to see the harvest work of the Lord. Young and old, take up the cross, and promise to follow the Master humbly. O what a cross the world thinks it is thus to change. But it is the Lord's doing, and wonderful in our eyes. May the Lord keep them near the cross. Two more were laptized July 13th, and still one more on the 27th. We are made ghal beyond expression. O may the Lord continue to work about the hearts of our neighbors, and may the good work grow among us. Eleven souls have been added unto the church, we tro ', "such as shall he saved."

We should remember that we cave so ne of it to the Lord. These are poor who need help. The labover should be well paid and not compelled to take extremely low wages. Then the church constantly needs money, to hold its Love-teasts. support its poor members, and seen. We can be

On the 27th, we met again it the Welty Meeting-house for harvist thanksgiving. Brother Jesse Roop and Brother David Lone were with us. Hymns and prayers of thanks were offered. Brother Roop spoke upon the words, "The goodness of Godleadeth thee to repeniance." Brother Long followed in a hearty testimony, and called us to duty and diligences

Next day, Sunday. Brother Roop preached two sermons, and our meetings were ended. One was added by haptism, as before scaled, the same being now an old man, and having long had a distre to be numbered with the Brotherhood. He was happy in his obelience. MOVING TIME. We are moving animals. We would more properly say we are migratory beings.

Our first move was a sad one -from the beautiful garden of God's presence and love, to the "low grounds of sorrow" and darkness. Since then we have groped and wondered and stumbled through ages of moral and spiritual degra-

Through the antediturian period, through the patriarchal period, through the Mosaic period, through storms of divine judgment, through seasons of blood and tears and sorrows, through terrible despotisms and persecutions and great wrongs, through incomprehensible beart troubles and vexations and disappointments and "manifold temptations," through struggles with the Satanic elements, through the most amazing moral, social, political, and religious resolutions; this moving world with its moving swarms of immortal beings has plodded its weary pathway until the goal is nearly reached. And still it moves, and still we move. God says to the people, "Go forward," and we go, sweeping onward, the rushing charact of time bears us to the verge of life. Let us stand still awhile if we can. Say, brother, which way are you moving, apward or downward, backward or forward? Are you advancing or retreating? Are you progressing or digressing? Now look in your diaries and see. Compare the entries of to-day with those of last year. Do you love God and his Book and his people and his service now as you did then? Forward, March. Is your love growing painfully less, and your light growing dim? Right about face, - Forward, March. Don't halt a moment.

The seasons move too. How bewilderingly rapid do the seasons chase each ather "all the year round." The bleak, frozen season is hurried unt of the path to make room for levely Spring, and it falls gently to sleep in the lap of Summer. Why we are right in the midst of a bountiful

HARVEST.

Abillions of animate beings and creatures must be fed, and God gives his annual harvest. Reader, do you know God. He must be good who is kind and affectionate and benevolent. Who gave us that nice basket of blushing tomators? Where did that crass of peaches come from? Thirty bushels of wheat per acre did you say? And provender enough for the beasts next Winter? Corn. oals, apples, berries, fish, game, etc., why the earth fairly greans under the great loads of rich gifts.

"Teank you, mam," said a little mass of twelve bright Summers. We love grateful litthe earls and love. It don't matter how cold and hard the world has made us, we will love grateful and pretty children. They are outposts of the beautiful land "over the river." Shall our Father's children he less dutiful? We think not: "Except we become as hib-Addom," doct it say? Let every congregation of the fathlul appoint a

We were happy yesterday. It was a day of REJOICING AT JOHNSVILLE.

Two birds from the fowler's net escaped its murderous meshes and, pluming their pinions, they started on their glorious flight to the realms of peace and safety. Two of Satan's servants struck for better wages and now take joyfol employment in the Father's vineyard. Two youthful voyagers over the ocean of time took passage on the good old ship "Zion" and are ticketed for the port of glory. How we rejoiced to take them aboard. They came in at the door of baptism, with profound solemnity, the consecratory ceremonies. It was indeed a solemply, joyful meeting and one that will hinger long in our memories. They were just beginning to work out the grave and intricate probtem of life, and how wise to put themselves at once under the tuition of a Master so wise as "Our Father." We bid you God speed, dear young brothren. Go forward in the blessed work. It will end in a good reward. You will have to wear the thorn crown here. The ironbarbed cross will tear the flesh, but be patient and you will "come out conquerors, yes, more than conquerors through him that loved us and gave himself for us," D. C. Моомам,

Dear Brethren:-

ISOLATED as I am from the main body of the church, and being deprived of going to hear the Brethren preach very often, I feel somewhat lonesome, and often times I feel a litthe forsaken. The good Lord knows whether we will ever have a church here or not. We hope and pray that some good minister will come and locate in our part of the country. I think much good might be done here.

We were rejoiced to see Sister Sarah A. Daggett come to our parts, and more so when she prorchased a farm near us; for 1 think, as she will settle among us, that will be the means of bringing more members here. She is from IIIanas; a sister to Brother Lemmel Hillery.

We have as good a country here as enu be found in North-western Kansas any where, I see in our clourch papers of so many ministers traveling East. Why not more come West, where they are needed the most? I often wish I could be at some of the good meetings I read about, but have to be content with my lot, and hope for a bofter time and more meetings here. For this we hope and pray,

STEIN AND RAY DEBATE.

Prop. 1st—Brethren (or Tunker) Churches possess the Bible Characteristics which entitle them to be regarded as Churches of Jesus Christ.

J. W. Stein, Athrns.

D. B. RAY. Denies.

J. W. STEIN'S 19TH AFFIRMATIVE.

FRANKLY acknowledge that I have not I seen the work of Bro. Mack, Sen., from which Mr. Requotes, neither had I seen the statements of Bro. Mack Jr., till Brethren called my atlention to them since my allusion to the articles of Messes, Brown and Edwards. I hope my hav years with the church and the multiplicity of engagements which love crowded them, will be inflicient apology for the over-sight. It still remains, however, that I was not mistaken about those articles being "Baptist documents," masuruch as they were not reproductions of Bro. Mack's article, but were compiled by Baptists, and my attention and been called years ago by Bro. Moomaw to the assertion of Mr. Brown, that the Swartzenan Brethren "did not know that there were any Baptists in the world," as being incorrect. That is "the part" of Mr. Brown's statement that I referred to as being "outrue." I hope, therefore, that my friend will have the honor to withdraw his premature charge of "talse accuser" and other maligning epithets, and have some regard to Articles 2, 4 and 6 of Hedges Logic, by which he agreed as a gentleman to be governed during our debate. I regret the necessity of alluding to this, but it seems that he proposes, since his arguments ful, to try the virtue of jevsamil unliquity and upon casult. Is such "the Spirit of Christ?" How it not prove his defeat?

I do not question the correctness of Brother Mack's statements, as he had an apportunity of knowing whereof he affirmed. But they, in to way, affect my position on the question of true church succession. I have occur claimed for the Brethren number unted succession, through bland dance" the oath to others of ask my the Waldenses or any others; thousand are bebeverthat Bro Mach was a Waldersian vet I plainly admitted that the modern Waldenses had apostatized from the uncient faith and were have the Brotheon ever tang'e that 'children swellowed up in the movements and names of of the devil are unling to their own doctrin" may Mr friend traces a large proportion of the rows.

the Reformation. I maintain that the Brethren are proper successors to the uncient Waldenses, Albigenses, Novatians, primitive Catholics and apostôlic churches, because they succeed them in adhering to the same principles. faith and practice. Mr. Ray would do well to consider the evidences already adduced in proof of this, and if he cannot refute them, which he has not yet attempted, to hold his peace. His mere assertions only fight the wind. He has persistently refused to notice my arguments on the nature of church succession, and hence leaves me without a respondent on that issue.

When the ordinances of God had been corrupted and discontinued, and the priests had apostatized from the teaching and practice of the divine law, and even forgotten it, and Hilkish found the book of the law (notice, he did not receive the pure ordinances by uninterrupted personal succession from good men) and Josiah the king caused it to be read, and Israel returned to the commandments of the Lord, and governmented to walk according to them and observed them and were blessed (see 2 Kings, 23), were they "blasphemers?"

Had hades prevailed against the divine theocracy? Was the subsequent church of that dispensation founded upon Josiah? or Hilkiah? Were the people "presumptuous," "dasphemons," because they dared to obey God in the midst of a rebellions and apostate generation? Were Josiah and Hilkiah "blasphemers" because they were reformers-Cod's instruments to gecall the people from apostasy and error? Mr. R. cannot show that the church of God in any age, whether aute-diluvian, Mosaic, or Christian, ever depended on an arder of men, or uninterrupted personal succession. Mr. Powell truly remarks that "when gospel truth has been preserved against error, a real rectual of apostolic faith and gospel holmess has been bought. about, God has employed men sor m this scheme of succession. The gospel would larve perished if left to this succession. Man corrupts everything. He is not to be trusted with so precious a treasure as christianity. God keeps his own work in his own hands. He and he only holds the keys of the ministry of his word - * -When ministers forsake God, God forsakes them," (this is also true of churches." "He then raises up others; he sets his own seal to their poety, doctrine, labors and sufferings, by making them abundantly successful in the converson of sumers and in the edification, and extension of his church. The residue of the Spirit is with him. The hearts of all men are in his keeping. He can case up and qualify instruments for his work from any quarter." Thrist says: "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me, shall be leved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him." John 14:21.

According to my friend any number of menmay have Christ's commandments, but cannot keep them nuless they can find other men who have an argume uninterrupted personal connection, through others just like themselves, to the apostles, to give them the privilege of obeying Christ. He and his co-workers "venture to suspend the validity of their own ministry and ordinances, and the whole christianity of all their people, up in this doctrine" of a reasecuptedpresand sing asim. This the Brethren have never done. In submitting to Christ's author ity, they built up or him - Matt 7: 24, 25), not mpon Bro. Mack's or any one else in, or before or after 1708. My friend utterly fails to show that the "fath and practice handed down" by Bro. Mack was not the same "handed down by Christ and the apost es." All true christians friend of the nest ehristians were and gathered baptize, etc. They do teach that men may desert the devil, forsake sin, and then become christians. It is not true that the Brethren derived their baptism from "uninspired" histories. but having "examined diligently the New Testament," they found it commanded by Christ kimself (Matt. 28: 19), as we have shown. And the very fact that they practiced the "primitive baptism," shows that it had not ceased. It still prevails. My friend may denounce it as "new baptism," but he cannot point to its beginning this side of the great commission. True, he asscrts, in his Baptist succession (p. 355) that: "After the rise of the Arian controversy, the Catholics originated the practice of trine immersion." For this bold statement he offers no proof; of course he has none. I asked him in several kind communications, years ugo, for the source of this information, but he treated my queries with silent contempt. I have proven the statement to be false, hence, it is a calumny upon the truth; and now lask him (if he regards truth, as a professed historian) to have the honor to correct it and acknowledge it to be an error as publicly as he has declared it. Will he do it?

But Mr. R. thinks the Brethrens' organization at Swartz-nau "blusphemous," etc. What, then, must become of the Baptists, and of him, for fellowshiping them?

Mr. Rogger Williams, who founded the Baptist church at Providence, in America, "was baptized by one Hollingan; then Mr. Williams rehaptized him and some ten more," "March 1639," See Backus' Hist, of New England Baptists, (edition of 1777) Vol. 1, p. 106, Mr. Williams' apology for starting this church was les tollows: "It my soul could find rest in joining unto any of the churches professing Christ non extant, I would gladly do it." Idem, pp. 144. 145. We further learn from this old Bajdist history that "this Baptist church at Providence appears to be the second distinct society of that denomination in all the British empire." Idem, pp. 148, 149.

We will now look across the ocean to the first church of Tarticular Baptists' in London, and in the world as far as we have ever been able to learn. "Several persons in the society" of Independents) "finding that the congregation kept not to their first principles of separatism, and being also convinced that baptism was not to be administered to infants, but such only as professed faith in Christ, desired and obrained liberty, and formed themselves into a distract church, Sept. 12, 1623, having Mr. John Spalsbury, for their minister." Idem, pp. 106, 107. The following was Mr. Spilsbury's apology for starting laptism: "Mr. John Spilsbury.pastor of the first Baptist church in London, says: "Because some think to shut up the ordinances of of God in such a strait, that none can come by it but through the authority of the popedom of Rome; let the reader consider who haptized John the Baptist before he baptized others, and if no man did, then whether he dul not haptize athers, he himself heing unbaptized? We are taught by this what to do upon the like occasion." Idem,pp. 101 111. Mr. Benedict the Baptist historian, callthis "a new haptism," Benedict's Hist, of the Bapists(eddion of 4813), Vol 1, p. 498.

Was that "blusphemous?"

Mr. John Smith, and some other Episcopol dissidents, focused themselves into the First Church of "General Baptists," in England, about 1606 or 1608, by starting baptism anew also. See Robison's Works, Vol. 3, p. 168.

Respecting the origin of the Welsh Baptists, Mr. Benedict says, "The first Baptist church in Wales, of which we can give any clear account, was founded at Snansen, in that country, in 1849. The principal usin among them was John Miles, who a rerwards same to synerical their love-offering to S. T. Rosserman, Danie es from two optized alternative having been une and counded the church at Swanses, in Massas Objet tensurer of the City Mission Service mersed by John, an unbaptice I man? Where chusetts." Benedict's Hist, of Baptists (1840), Vol. 1, p. 229.

American Baptist churches to these Welsh Baptists. See Baptist Succession, pp. 62-74. If this first Welsh Buptist church at Swansea, had any organic connection, it was from the Baptists of London (whose origin we have noticed), by sending "Mr. John Miles and Mr. Thomas Proud," to Loudon; who "were well received and were soon sent back into their own country again, and were instrumental of gathering a Baptist church." Backus' Hist. of New England Baptists (1777), Vol. 1, pp. 350, 351. Mr. Backus, this Baptist historian, gives us the following from the "records" of this church in Wales, gathered by "Miles" and "Proud." "When there had been no company or society of people, holding forth and professing the doctrine, worship, order, and discipline of the Gospel, according to the primitive institution, that ever we heard of in all Wales, since the apostasy, it pleased the Lord to choose this dark corner to place his name in, and honor us, undeserving creatures, with the happiness of being the first in all these parts, among whom was prewhed the glorious ordinance of baptism, and here to gather the first-church of baptized. believers" Idem, pp. 350, 351. Thus the Buptists originated from self-constituted and selfbaptized chareles, who substituted one backward dip for the christian ordinance of immersion into the name of ruch person of the Holy Trinity as our Lord commanded. Matt. 28: 19. I must here say to my friend, "this proverb, Physician, heal thyself." I am still of the opinion I can make out a better case of church succession than Mr. Ray.

My friend tries to evade the oath question by talking about "universal application." I apply it just where Christ did, to the members of his church. I did not say the U.S. Government was a model for church government. I asked Mr. Ray of it was a "centralized hierarchy," and he evudes my question, as he has also my questions respecting the anointing. He misrepresents us again as having a "Congress." Our general councils are no more a congress than Baptist associations and conventions. It gives advice and refuses fellowship with the violators of the gospel.

My 3rd reason why the Brethren possessed 5th characteristic, was that they haptize by a farward bowing postare. This I supported by 13 distanct arguments, to seven of which Mr. It did not even attempt a reply. His quibbles on the others were lost.

My 4th reason why the Brethren possessed this characteristic was, that they observe the laying on of hands and prayer after baptism. In support of this I offered five arguments based respectively upon: (1) Its observance in the early chuerh; (2) Its primitive prevalence; (3) Our obligations to retain a postolic traditions (2 Thess. 2: 15: 3: 6, 11): (4) Upon the fact that it had never been repealed by divine authority: (5) That it is assigned to no peculiar period or conditum of the the church more than is ministerial ordination. To these I had no respondent.

My 5th reason why the Brethren possess this characteristic was, that they teach that persevering faith and faithfulness in well-doing are divinely appointed means by which christians attain to eternal idessedness and trution. Mark 10; 31; 10m; 2; 7; 1 Tim, 6; 12; Heb. 14, 13. To these I had no re-pondent.

Did you say, brother, that I am begging too much? The church commissioned me twelve years ago to beg the people to serve the Lord. and I have been and am determined as much as in me lieth to discharge that sacred trust, and I hope the dear brethren will judge me with righteous judgment, and in the meantime send

IT IS SWEET TO BE REMEM-BERED,

T is sweet to be remembered, Even when life's sky is bright, It adds new fragrance to the pleasure, New radiance to the light, And birds among leafy branches, Sing with sweeter tone-Hope's softer fire it knolleth, To know we're not alone.

It is sweet to be remembered, When skies are dark with gloom, And tried and trusted friendships, Are buried in the tomb. It makes our hearts grow lighter. When faith is growing dim, And lists our spirits heavenward, To trust and lean on him.

It is sweet to be remembered, By the loved ones far away. And the kindly words they said to us, Shed a gentle, cheering my. Old are we still remembered, Say we softly through our tears? Do they keep our memory sacred, Through the weary toilsome years?

It is sweet to be rengembered, When the dying loar is near, And the prayers of our beloved, Make our faith more pure and clear, And to death's dark shadowy angel A lonely smile is given; Ab! it is blessed to be remembered By that better Friend in heaven. Selected by Marca Cross-s.

BAPTISM FOR THE REMISSION OF SINS.

BY WM. IDEROUGH.

NUMBER 11.

"Repent and be laudized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." Acts 2: 38.

APTISM for the remission of sins. "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus. Christ. for the remission of sins." Acts 2: 38. In order to comply fully with this command three conditions are necessary. A. To believe: 2. To repent: 3. To be baptized. Hence baptism is designed only for those who can receive it under those conditions. To such it is not a source of pardon unless those conditions are jointly complied with. These are divinely appointed means by which all may receive pardon. Christ says, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God."

Man is composed of body and spirit, both of which have sinned. The hody belongs to Christ as well as the spirit; they are both his by redemption; both are to glorify God. The body is given to Christ in baptism, while the spirit is renewed by the Holy Chost; and the man is born of water and of the spirit, without which he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. Therefore Christ gave his apostles a great commission, saying, "Go ye therefore and teach, all pations, baptizing them in the name of the Fath. er, and of the Son, and of the Holy Tiliest; Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." Matt. 28: 19, 20. Here are two specifications of luty; first, teaching; second, baptizing, but when we add the testimony of Mark, [mersionist says, "I baptize thee in the Luke, and John, we learn that there are five specifications of duty given in this [1 say I raise corn in Indiana, but don't great commission. First, teaching or preaching; second, belief or faith; third, he don't do it. I say and in Illinois, repentance: fourth, baptism: fifth, re but don't doit; he says, and of the Homission of sins, or pardon.

to whom Christ gave this great commission which extends to the end of time, To remit or pardon sins is what God did, and always will do when these specifications are properly complied with, There is, however, but one specification upon which there is any great difference. of opinion in regard to the manner in which they should be complied with, and that is haptism.—Christ says, "Baptize them in the name of the Father," Here is an assemblage of words expressing an idea; it is imperative; it express es a command. To comply with this command requires action; it is also transitive having for its subject, you or thou nuderstood. Baptize, the verb, them, the object. Here is action expressed as passing over from the subject or administrator to the object or receiver. There fore when an administrator says, "I hap tize thee in the name of the Father, and the object or receiver receives no action, the administrator does not do what he says, he therefore does not obey the Sa vior's command, and besides tells an untruth; but we pass on to the next word; and is a co-ordinate, copulative conjunction connecting similar elements, then we have the same subject repeating the same action upon the same object or receiver, in another name; hence if the old ject receives no action, he laters under the same misfertune that he did before, and the administrator commits another violation of Christ's command, and tells another untruth. He says, "I baptize thee in the name of the Father," but he does not, then he says; "and of the Son," but he does not, then he says; "and of the Holy Ghost," and does what he says, using the same connective, having the same office, he being the same administrator, expressing the same action upon the same object in the third name, yet the first action has just taken place. "O consistency where art thon!"

A prominent writer upon this subject brings up the issue before us in these words: "Son is a noun in the objective case, and must have the preposition of to govern it. Of is a preposition, and must have the noun name understood before it as its antecedent term of relation. Name is a noun in the objective case, and must have the preposition in understood to govern it. In, a prepar sition must have the participle haptiz ing understood as its anterselent term of relation. Baptizing, an active transitive participle, must have the pronounye understood as its nominative. Just in this same manner and just as simple and plain is the secondary sentence." and of the Holy Chost, to be analyzed and parsed under the same rules.

We will now endeavor to explain the meaning of the language of the commis soon in such a manner that those can understand who do not understand the rules of grammar. If I say, I raise my corn in Indiana, and in Illinois, and in Iowa, and only idant in lowa, and you would learn the facts in the case, you would certainly think I had told you an untruth. Notwithstanding it is parallel with single immersion. The single imusing of the Pather," but he don't do it, i do it; he says, "and of the Son" but by Ghost," and performs the action of Taking the event of our subject into immersion. I say and in Iowa, and raise consideration we find that teaching or a crop. We certainly think the immerperform the immersion. He does just what he says; then says, "and of the Son," and performs the immersion; again he does what he says; and then says, "and of the Holy Ghost," and performs the third immersion. He has done just what the Lord told him to do, that is he has per formed one haptism.

Again, if I say I raise corn in Indiana. and produce corn there I do just what I say; and in Illinois, and raise a quantity of corn there, I again do what I say, and in lows, and plant and harvest a quantity there, I will then have done just what I said I would. I will then have raised one crop, although it required three efforts to raise corn in three States. Just so with baptism, it requires three efforts to baptize into three names, and constitutes one haptism. Then we have cone Lord, one faith, one baptism." Eph. 4:5. And we firmly believe that the mission of immersion in the first two names destroys the validity of baptism. from the fact the candidate is not baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, or of the Son, (another title of the same per son). Christ distinctly says, "He that entereth not by the door into the sheep. fold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a rolber," John 10: 1. He further says, "I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved." John 10: 9. Again he says, "No man cometh to the Father, but by me." From these Scripture passages we find that Christ referred to the church when speaking of the sheepfold of which he himself is the door; he is also the Shepherd and went in at the door when he was haptized of John. Entering in at this door, is to be haptized in the name of Jesus Christ, which is also put fing on Christ, by which we can also come to the Father. Before we proceed further we wish you to bear in mind that there is no command, or ordinance given in the word of God wherein the name of Jesus Christ is ever invoked upon a penitent, wishing to come into the field of Christ, except in the ordinance of laptism, let the form of the name be what it may. "Then how shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation." Christ says if we enter in at this door, Our past sins, that is our sins shall be then do as Paul says, be buried, by burl of such objections. Although these "inof sins, calling upon the name of the like exposing these silly objections. Lord. This done, you may go in and out and find pasture, that is, you may then walk in newness of life, and grow in grace,

EXAMINATION OF SOME OBJEC-TIONS AGAINST THE DIVINE ORIGIN OF THE BIBLE,

BY LEWIS COREMAND.

QOME person sent me a copy of the Truth Secker in which are many preaching is what Peter was doing. To sionist would lack as much truth in his objections against the divine origin of taken place in unison with the taws of believe or have faith is what the Penter case as I would in mine. If we reverse the Bible, Touth Scaker is the most the Universe, which are never supersedcostian dews did; to repent is also what the case, the administrator says, "I hap appropriate name for a liberal paper that | cd." That it is "impossible" for these they did; to baptize is what those did tize thee in the name of the Father," and could be found in the English language ("events" to "have taken place in unison for it is evident that infidels are always seeking for truth and never able to find it. In the first place infidels have no knowledge of truth, and can therefore not find it. If a man sought peaches in an apple orchard he would not find any, or if a man imagined that a peach was an apple, he would feel sure he had a peach, when in fact he had an apple.

Before a man seeks for troth he must know what truth is, or else he cannot find it, and then he must have some knowledge of the means by which to find the truth, or else he cannot find it, al. though he had a knowledge of truth, It is however, doubtful, whether a man can have a correct knowledge of truth and be ignorant of the means by which it is acquired. The man that has a cor. rect knowledge of truth is a philosopher in the true sense of the word, and infidels are the men that are destitute of this knowledge, and therefore the dapes of their own sophistry. The copy of the Truth Sceker now before me is a fair representation of this fact, for it is like all other objections that have ever been urged against the divine origin of the Bible-entirely urelevant, and has no more direct bearing upon the issue than it has upon the tides of the ocean,

The Truth Sucker heads his article, "Interrogatories to Jehovah," and then starts out in the following strain: "Great Jehovah, are there not many character. istics appertaining to thy revealed Word. not yet alluded to, which are well calculated to shake the confidence of thinking people in its divinity. While it narrates the occurrence of many events impossible to have taken place in unison with the laws of the Universe, which are never superseded, does it not omit to state important eras and events which have had a certain existence?

Does not the Bible fail to say any. thing about the upheavel of mountains and continents which is now well known to have occurred from time to time since the earth existed !

By the marine shell deposits, sea shells, etc., which have been formed on the summits of the highest mountains in the world, like the Himalayas in Asia, and the Alps in Europe, and many of the mountains and hills on this continent, we shall be saved, saved from what? have we not conclusive proof that they once emerged from the bed of the ocean remitted or remembered against us no The Troth Socker goes on with a long more. This proves clearly that Peter list of similar "interregatories" and this knew what he was doing when he spoke [is his 34th No., so that it would require the words or language of our subject to a long time to examine them all if we the Pentecostian Jews than to those who | had them, but as this No., must have are desirons to come into the fold, we been considered unanswerable or one of would say follow the example of the the lost out of the 34 numbers, (or else Shepherd: go to the river or where there [it would not have been sent to me.) > Can any man that thinks such interrogations have any bearing against the real issue, ever expect to find the truth? The only time the Truth Socker touches the issue, he assumes the very point in delate, and then goes on like a wild man that just entered the arena. Why does the Truth Secker not sustain his allegations by competent testimony instead of simply denying what it is his business to prove?

> He says the Bible "narrates the occurrence of many events impossible to have ent testimony on this point, why did to know it. be pass this point with a mere demal. lis whole proceedings show him to be either incompetent to defend his case for the want of competent testimony or else ignorant of all laws of controversy. If the Truth Sicker thinks his readers are a familiar with the testimony from its usual introduction that he deemed it unnecessary to give it here. I would just remind him that the testimony usually afered on his point is irrelevant, and could not come into any court.

The testimony usually urged or offer-

gation than it has upon the tides of the oven. NATHER is the only witness that infidels ever bring upon the stand to tes fiffy. Now just how nature can testify in this case is more than I can see. How call Nature prove that her laws "were superseded"? Would Nature be a com netent witness? Any man that will loing Nature into court as a competent witness shows himself ignorant of the first principles of controversy, and will never find the truth and if he seeks for it until he is gray headed. If the Truth Suker contends that Nature is a competent witness in the refutation of this question, will be be kind enough to tell me what would be competent testimony prestablish the affirmative? Does the Truth Secker think if the Bilde said amething about the upheavel of moun mins, that the divine origin would then be established! If the objection is valid and dispreves the divine origin, would it not prove the affirmation or the opoare side. If that is all that is essential with evidence to establish the divine origin, then I must confess the infidels have a great deal of "common sense" or "reason," and Christians have none. If Ifind in the Bibbe what every school by could tell me without any revelanon from God I would vertainly feel assured that it was of divine origin, but if I was to find such information that was impossible to be acquired through any natural chainel claiming God as its auther I would of course think that was all bosh, and that the anthor was a man. What wonderful reasoning powers these intidels have? If the Bible only contained some account of "the updicavels of mountains" how conclusive the evidence would then be! How readily would in blels accept the Book then as the production of God !! What force there is then in the Truth Sicker's adjections when they are reversed and used in the affirmative instead of the negative! If I world thun the Fruth Socker, I would | Respostill. Let intidely bring a single 4-300st the divine origin of the Bible, it they can. I will risk the credit of my understanding in making the assertion that infidels cannot produce a single competent witness to testify against the laceture more than I can examine in 'we're mouther crestry in its favor, so hat a man that determines with from lmagination, can soon determine in his Ovn mind which is the truth. It would against itself must fall. Let us keep eeives the slander.

with the laws of the Universe," we not the entirely useless to attempt to introadmit, but contend, but these duce testimony in this examination, but events' did take place which the Truth infidels must either take their challenge Steker denies is just what we affirm, and out of market, or else meet the issue fair what establishes the divine origin and square. The world is about full the Bible. Now if the Truth Secker enough of such infidel stuff. If they an prove by competent testimony that want to illuminate the world, and set it these revents did not take place, then right, they must show themselves capa he must be considered the victor, but if ble of doing the job. If we are not to be cannot do this the battle is lost. Now be governed by argument and compe-The could have furnished any competent testimony, but fanaticism, I want

> The Bilde says that "events" that have "superseded natural law, did take place, and these events are recorded in detail, now the Truth Secker says they did not take place, that it is an impossibility for them to have taken place. Now what is the legitimate rule to set the the controversy? Why, by competent and relevant testimony not subject to impeachment. If the menthat say they saw these "events transpire, are comprtent to testify" and are men of truth, are we to reject their testimony and shout "falde, fable!"

Could any man think of a God, and describe his character and his own relation to him, if there were no God? Could any fabulous religion exist if there were nogenuine: Could any man impose connterfeit money if there were no gennine? Before a fable or falsehood can exist there must be a genuine or truthful.

The fact that many religious in the world are spurious does not prove all religions spurious as infidels insist, but they prove that there is a genuine religion. In this way I might go on and prove the Bible of divine origin by selfevident propositions regardless of any human testimony, but as it would require months if not years to present all my evidence I shall pay little attention to this point in the examination of these objections, by pointing out their irrelevancy. In every light that I can view infidelity, it is arbitrary in first princiides, and opposed to self-evidence. It feeds upon imagination, lives in doubts, and dies in despair. I will now close No. 1, by congratulating the Truth Sockor with the information that I do not doubt the uplicavel of mountains, etc., but I am very doubtful it he would beheve the Bible of divine origin if it gave the most descriptive account of such things.

DY JAMES A. SELL.

TAVING now accepted (though some what reluctantly four appointment as managers of the "City Mission Ser vice," we now make this announcement to the public. Brother 5, T. Rosserman of Dunkirk, Ohio is both secretary, and treasurer. All suggestions and money should be sent directly to him, and for the executive part he will confer with us. We want the work to go forward at once. We have now two evangelists selected and if they are at corrobisposal. could affer no better arguments to the they will be sent as the necessary ar rangements can be made. The field will no doubt be the City of Chicago, Ill. competent witness into court to testify | But this will be officially made known when fully arranged.

Now, brothren, we need a few things to make this service a success, and they are available. 1. We want good menable men -such as fear God, good rep divine origin of the Bible, while I can resentatives of the Church and her doc trines- men who are not afraid or ashamed of the truth when unpopular, and who can defend it when assailed, 2. pumpetent testimony instead of a wild We want to keep united. down prejudice, and think kindly and charitably of those who have the work to do. There are doubtless abler minds and better hearts for the work than those of us who have been chosen, but as we were selected we feel like doing what we can. The work is beset with many difficulties, and to begin to find fault and criticise will be like frost to the early flower. Living remote from each other, we cannot move as expeditiously. and, perhaps, not as cantiously and prudently as we would like. 3. We need money. The exact amount cannot be told. In fact, the more we have of it the farther the work can be proscented. Now brethren and sisters, you have voluntarily offered your money to start a glorious work, and we have been appointed to see that it is judicially applied. This we will try to do, but we need more if the work is to go on. After the work is started in a particular locality, and the Lydias are found, the expenses may not be so great. 4. We need the prayers of all. If the Lord heard and answered the prayers of devont hearts in behalf of imprisoned Peter, he will surely come to our assistance if prayers are offered up to him in hehalf of the "City Mission Service." Let this service be held up to the Lord in the public assemblies, at the family altar and in private devotions, and let all feel while at their daily round of duty that there is a great work now begun. Let dollars go up to Dunkirk by the thousand and prayers up to heaven by the ten thousand, and success must crown the effort. 5. We need sugges tions, advice, and assistance. These we are willing to receive and will respectfully consider in love any that may be

All money should be sent S. T. Bosserman, Dunkirk, Hardin County, Ohio. All letters sent to me should be directed to McKees, Blair County, Pa., as it is more convenient than Newry. Yours in love.—Primitive Christian.

IS IT WHAT IT OUGHT TO BE?

Sour daily life what it ought to be: Do we not allow petty vexation and trivial things to some our temper and darken our brow—the impulse of nature to get the better of us! That impatient word just now; you were fretted, but did it make you feel any more pleasant? Those light and trifling thoughts: they have gone to give their account against you. That witticism at anoth er's expense; you meant not harm, but was it, after all, quite right, and doing just as you would be done by? And then the words that are unspoken; the apportunities neglected which might be productive of so much good! How much evil we do when we might do good! How much reproach we bring. more conselves by our inconsistencies! How little we do unto others, what we would that they should do unto us! How selfish we are, and ready to listen to the promptings of self interest! How | we permit little jealousies, animositus to rankle in our hearts, and pride, vanuand impotent, to fill it. How little of charity do we feel for an erring brother. or sister, as if we never erred correlves! How imperfect and incongratous are our Tives! -- Sil.

GRIEVE NOT THE SPIRIT.

BY MARY IS BUATER.

RIEVE not the Spirit when you bear J It call you o'er and o'er, Its voice is low, his accents clear, He bids you sin no more.

O hasten sinner while it 'tis day, The night will surely come. When all mankind shall weep and pray, For death they cannot slinn.

How sad if we shall grieve and sparn That kind and tender voice; Our Savior then would from us turn, For sin would be our choice.

Yet O how often do we grieve That Savior meek and low; While he so ready to forgive, If we but humbly go,

O let us try by day and by night, That Spirit to aboy: The word of God the only light To lead us on the way,

Thea when our trials all are past And we shall be no more, We'll join the beavenly throng at last, And rest forever more,

STEIN AND RAY DEBATE.

ELIC TO BURNY'S EIGHTEENTH REPLY.

(Concluded from last week.)

In keeping with these blasphemous pretendons the Tunkers claim power to cast out devils, speak with tongues, heal the sick and use the key power of binding and loosing.

In answer to the question: "What kind of men are qualified to conduct the office of excommunication 2" Mr. Alexander Mack, Sen., the father of the Tunker church, in his Writings, p. 163, says:

"Now observe the nature and quality of faith as pronounced by Jesus, the Son of God. Mark 16: 17. Here the Lord Jesus says to his disciples, and these signs shall follow them that behere in my name, i. e., in his doctrine, word and commandments. They shall east out devals; first out of themselves, and then also out of others who believe on him, and by their word are converted. They hall speak with new tongues, and take up serpents, and if they drink any deadly tlong, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover! To such believers eternal life is proraused, and to such behavers at is commanded by Christ, to exclude from their communion all sunful, offensive and self-loving spirits; and what they land on earth, that will most certainby he bound in leaven, and what they shall louse on earth, shall be foused also in heaven."

As the Wintings of Mr. Mack are endorsed by the present Tunkers, they claim like the modern Mormons, the blasphemons power to work miracles. Surely such a church has no just claim to be the church of Christ.

Though Mr. Stein does "not doubt that Christ has always hid churches, somewhere, on earth," which were true; yet he does not dare to name even one local congregation during the fitteen centuries prior to the eighteenth that presessed the characteristics of the Tunkeys. This amounts to a surrender of the hisnone field for filleen centuries. Notwithstanding, Mr. Alexander Mack, Sen., admitted, that has company had "commenced" a "new logdism and church" (Writings, p. 139), and that they were "THE NEW BAPTISTS" (p. 112); yet maler the horse of his own "Ground-searching Questions," he was compelled to confess:

"We do be acre, and think it may be shown also from ancient lastary, that primitive hapuser as ordina d by Christ, never los reased to be practiced, it follows as a consequence, anat the tirm tchurch never ceased to exist, though eshould (at some periods) have consisted of ant few members.

Also he says:

"We believe that the gates of hell have not prevailed against the church of Christ, left it has remained, and will remain even until the end of the world." The Writings of Alexander Mack, p. 117

Thus, the historical question as to the origin of the Tunker chanches is definitely settled by themselves. DOCTOR CARTER of New Orleans reports several cases of leprosy in that city. His patients were natives of this country, and worked at hair cleaning for mattresses. It is thought that they were poisoned by the hair, though they were scrupulously neat in regard to their persons. No medicines had any effect upon them, and after years of suffering they died.

Will some one of our readers please tell us how many times Elder Ray has said "The Tunker Churches are not churches of Jesus Christ"? We don't know how often it is necessary to repeat an assertion in order to make it true, but we believe Elder Ray does; so it some one will kindly inform us how often he repeats, we shall then know one more thing than we now do.

Not for many years has this country in general been blessed with such bountiful crops. How much of the blessing shall be turned to the Lord's work? There is the Danish Mission, do not forget at while distributing your favors. The City Mission needs a little of the bounty, and the poor Saints are worthy a share of the increase. God is trying the people of this country, and it remains to be seen whether they will consume the favors upon their lusts or to the glory and honor of God.

We are especially desirous that all schools of learning be conducted in order, gospel singlacity, so that those who lear the results may learn to admire and assist. Then, too, such a course leaves) in deglad by seeing good fruit.

It is a fact that Moses saw a flame of fire in a bush, and our only business is to believe it; but when a man says he thinks it was a cedar bush, it is an opinion, and we have nothing to do with the opinion. If we believe his opinion we are none the wiser, neither are we the worse if we believe it not. Whether it was cedar or oak, it matters not. If it were necessary to know it. God would have caused it to be written. May we not learn a lesson from this?

BUOTHER HOPE writes under date of July 22nd; "I am sick with diptheria, but must go four miles to hold meeting." Few of us indeed know the privations and self-denials of our dear brother whom God has chosen to set up again the standard of truth in Denmark. Luhoring in a country whose customs are very different from ours, and whose people are wedded to State religion, his difficulties are little understood by us who have not been there. To see the condition of the people is to draw pity and sympathy from any Christian heart. To know the great bondage of the people to the tradition and commandments of men, is to untie our love for them, and open our purse strings to the preactong of the Gospel in all its primitive simplicity. We hope Brother Enoch Eby will soon give as an arricle on the customs and habits of the people in Deromark, and then why Bro. Hope needs our aid,

The helpmate made by the Lord can sympa. thize, meditate, study, speak, and enjoy like man. Sarah was indeed a helpmate to Ahraham. God bestowed great honor upon Abraham, and on this account Sarah called him "lord." But this by no means destroyed her individuality. God bade Abraham thus: "In all that Sarah hath said unto thee, hearken unto her voice." Gen. 21:12. Here the servant of God. the pious Ahraham, was directed to listen to the advice of a pious wife. And in giving counsel to her husband she did not assume leadership, nor usurp authority over him, but was a helpmate—one who assisted in heavenly and divine

Israel was called out of Egypt, led through the wilderness and finally placed in the land of Canaan. Joshua ruled them and was at last gathered with the fathers. The chosen people rebelled, just away God's law, and God gave them unto the hand of Jabin, king of Canaan, who for twenty years oppossed them. At this critical juncture of the nations history, God called a woman to occupy the idace of chief magistrate. The Bible says: "And Deborah, a prophetess, the wife of Lujoloth, she judged Israel at that time * * * and the children of Israel came up to ber for judgment." Herethe Lord himself recognizes woman worthy the same position as man. Does this look as if thad restricted woman's sphere to domestic daties? Where God has given an example, can any one say it shall not be so? We pass by the cailing of Miriam, and look at that of Huldah. "So Hilkiah the priest, and Ahakim, and Achbor, and Shapham, and Asahiah, went unto the prophetess, the wife of Shallum the son d Tivkah, the son of Harbas, keeper of the ward-robe; (now she dwelt in Jerusalem in the college;) and they communed with her. And she said unto them. Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Tell the man that sent you to me. Thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof. even all the words of the book which the king of Judah bath read: Because they have forsaken me, and have burned incease unto other gods, that they might provoke me to anger with all the works of their hands; therefore my wrath shall be kindled against this place, and shall not be quenched."-2 Kings 22: 14-17.

She was a prophetess, and through her the hard spake to Hilkiah. The sacred writer even states where she dwelt, "in the college in Jernsalem." Thors this revealing his will through naman look like undervaluing her talent? Does it look like restricting that gift, which has been given her as well as man? Shall we refuse the example of the Lara God? If he in ages past used woman as well as man to rule, and as a mediam through which to reveal his will, (two of the noldest stations in Infe), can we justly con-It there in greature by observed our paper clude that woman is debarred from the rights and privileges of man now? If hy grace and nature the was fitted for the Load's work under the Law what has she done to debar her from doing the work of the Lord under the Gospel? More might be said of such women as Hanoah, Ruth, Estirer, but enough has been produced to show that God used the talent of woman as well as that of man under the Old Testument dispensation. "And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my Spirit open all flesh; and your sons, and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions:"-Joel 3: 38,

In my next, I shall try to show the mind of the Lord in this matter as revealed to us through has Son and the Holy Spirit. Whether woman is performing her part, enjoying the liberties and privileges guaranteed her by the gospel, and whether there is male and female in Christ, are questions agitaling some of the most pions and bearing of this icre. Let us reach for the to the

SOME OTHER THINGS AND PREACHERS

S we went from Lanark to Mt. Morris last Week and looked over the field- of grass and grain, we felt that if any people on earth ought to thank God for blessings certainly those of Northern Illinois should. It is to us the Palstine of America. As Brother Moomaw expresses it, "The earth fairly groans under the load of rich gifts "

We wanted to go a way we had never gone before, and as we started late in the afternoon we thought of stopping over night with a Brother Duchl. Not knowing where the brother lived, we inquired of a preacher who had heen there. After receiving instructions we started and obeyed them until near the place to which we were directed. Here we saw a complehors, and as we were near a town, we thought they could sid us in finding the place, and to we asked them about it and they said we had strendy passed the place. We at once turned back and was soon at the place pointed out by the Loys, but no one was at bome. We crossed the road then and inquired of a family there if they knew who ther Mr. D.'s would be at home at night. (It was nearly sun set then), but in our surprise and disappointment we I und we must yet go lack twice the distance the lovs had told us to go. Here we stopped again; and, seeing a man at the gate, inquired it John Diehl hyed there. The man said that was his name. Although we had seen Bro. Do h) we did not think we would recognize him again, still we felt we were not at the right place, so we asked if he was a member of the Brethren Church the booked just like some who are). He said ga. Then we knew we were at the wrong place and asked if he did not know a John Diehl who is a member. He said he dul, that he lived seven or eight miles distant. It was now dark. and to drive that distance after night where we knew neither the reads nor the people we did not wish to do. We asked then if we might remain there over night. He said he guessed we could, but he must see his mile first, that the had so much to do, was all above, had visitors and harvest hands that day, etc., etc. Of course we were then to the mercy of the woman. But on the great day when she is placed at the right of the Judge and the bing shall say, "Come ye ldessed of my Father inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the boundation of the world: For " " " I was a stranger, and ye took me in" and she will say, "Lord, when saw we those a stranger, and took the wind Then will she hear, "Inn-much as yo have done if unto one of the least of these my boothing

Next morning after breakfast Mr. Dichl kindly showed as his domestanded fish. As this was new to us we thouk likely it is to most of our readers. The broat of lish kept are spotted front and California salmon. He keepthem in an artificial pendedout fitty feet long (welve beet wide, and room - x to twelve feet deep. The bottom is over had with rock. The point is supplied by a spring, and the water car ried away to means ad papes with screens given the ends where inserted into the parol. An embankment around it makes to proof a calus floods. The fish no led such meets as are raily caught, heel liver, and tored. He led there common horse flyes the moreng we were with him. The always freds to an at the same place According to his stab up in they are as profit able to have as anything one can more. Mo Dielil takes pleasure in explaining all about them to any one who has a desire to learn Although we were disappeared we were very kindly entertained and lay ded to call again.

We now start the Mr. Morris to meet a preacher who had telegraphed to us to do so The prember did not stop and so we were ag to disappointed. At Mt. Morris we first met. Sisfor Hopson who now has charge of the enliners

Dunkirk, Ohio. He has been one of our best agents and we were very glad to meet him. We hope he may find his change of location and business conducive to the present and eternal interests of both himself and fellow-man. We also luid the pleasure of meeting Bro. T.'s wife, Sister Lear and daughter, and Prof. Jenks. The arrangements of the school are very good; the patronage will be much better than was expected. Nearly all of the rooms have already been engaged. All of the teachers were on hand except Prof. Lockard who was expected yet that day. We would not have been thus minute had we not wanted the preceding nar ative to illustrate an important religious truth. How similar are the two circumstances of a preacher describing the way to Canaan and the way to some place on earth, and telling us to meet him in he iven and he not be permitted to stop there. Each are given by the same faculties and powers. They are just as liable to make mistakes in telling the way to the one place as they are the other. Canaan is no more every thing and every where than Bro. Diebl's place is every thing and every where, and just as impossible as it would be to get to The Diehl's by going ony way is it to get to Cardan bygoing "any way." As we were led astray and deceived by misplaced condidence, in these numsters in finding a place and meeting a person on earth, so we may be in finding Camean and meeting them after leaving this world. Just as little as we are likely to find a place or person on earth by being sincere and honest in a faith based upon an error, -just so little can we expect to reach Caman and meet in heaven by being sincere and honest in a faith not based upon fact. Instead of sincerity being an advantage, when our faith is a delusion, it is a serious hindrance to us, for just in proportion as we are sincere, have we condidence in our faith; and just as we have confidence in our faith, so do we exclude every possibility of seeing how false it is:

Since we know preachers have the same weaknesses other men have, shoold we expect more from them than from others? The preachers and otheers know that the votes of people may give them the liberty to use what powers they have, but can votes give intellizence, zeal, character, or anything lelse which poolities them for the office the votes may have chosen them to 632 Has God anywhere promised to likes preachers more than others? Beloved:—

TE are naturally loth to lose the fruit of our wrestling at the ford Jabbok. Every article is a mirror of the writer, but few know their own likeness. Many a well-written essay has a sin-marred visage grinning out of every word. Self will out. The devil came to Eve in the form of a serpent, but often comes to us in henvenly-worded prayers, and eloquent sermons, and polished essays. You have it as your prerogative to basket every thing that conflicts with your judgment; but you must be filled with all the fulness of God if you can keep the devil out of your columns in what you approve and retain. To be "light in the Lord," so as to 'discern the spirits' of darkness, where least suspected, demands a deliverance of ourselves to the immolation of the Cross so all-in- then return to my engagements in Indiana. To clusive, that but few are "clothed with the this end may the prayers of God's children as-Sun," and "walk in the light as He is in the light."

To-day I sent an article to your office entitled, "The Glory of the Cross," which had been in my hands for some time for want of stamps. At last I look of my bread and butter to compensate Brother Jonathan for carrying my manuscript. I might often sparen nugget for our periodicals, but as my pen is my only remunerative resource, I must employ it where its appreciation means food and raiment no less than untration for the higher life.

When you read my article mailed to-day, please do not misread me where I say "I am not pleading for any particular style of dress &c,' The context will perhaps make it clear that what I do plead for will render it unnecessary to maist on the adoption of a distinctively Christian costume. Plain buts must be judged by their matives, and there is no possibility of galleeing a motive from the Cross and its objects that will prefer a plain hat for a sister to a bonnet. There is not a plea, grounded on any principle that has even the semblance of honesty, that has not been urged ten years ago by our fashion-worshiping sisters in behalf of hoops. Should plain hats become the decision of the entire outside world, as the plain cap is, all this jotiful plending for permission to wear it would be linshed at once.

REPLY. Dear Brother:-We much appreciate your consciousness of the predicament in which editors are placed. Few realize it as it is, and as you express it. Certainly "every article is a mirror of the writer." We would to God that all might "know their own likenesses." When you say "self will out," numerous examples of it are instantly before the mind's inaginary eye. We think of persons who have had all the advantages of school, travel, books, and society. "The Worth of Truth no Tongue Can Tell.

This department is designed for asking and answering questions, drawn from the Bible. In order to promote the Truth, all questions should be brief, and clothed in simple language. We shall assign questions to our contributors to answer, but this does not a plantage, there is no the design of the design of the standard of the standar but this does not exclude any others writing upon the same topic.

Will some one explain Heb. 1:1? "And of the angels he saith. Who maketh his angels spirits, and R. T. CROOK. his ministers a flame of fire."

Will some one please tell us, through the BRUTH-REN AT WORK who wrote the latter part of the last chapter of Deuterenomy, from fifth verse to end of chapter? A. E. M.

Will some one please explain Matt. 8: 22? "But Jesus said unto him, Follow me; and let the dead bury their dead." H. Stewart.

Will some one be kniglenough to explain Heb. C.J. HEAD.

Will some one please explain Matt, 11: 11. In particular we would like to know who is the least, and why called the kingdom of heaven? Justina Millagu.

Will some brother or sister please, explain what things were done in Bethabara. That which is spoken of in St. John 1, 28, Samuel W. Yost.

I believe that it is generally claimed by use that we are strictly scriptural in our panetice. Willsome brother or sister please fell us where the comtoxid or example was given by Christ or the apostles for the practice of the salutation between the supper and communiton? True, Lieut, Conder ventures the suggestion that the most eastern well is of modern construction, but I see no reason for the assertion. THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN FAITH AND BELIEF.

RY J. W. SOFTHWOOD,

MATTH acts Belief only exists. Faith is an · netive light. Belief is a dead faith. Faith a hat mucht be called a faith by works, an naugeheal, practical, or a living faith. Belief andy an historical faith.

Webster says, "Faith is the belief in the facts at truth of the Scriptures, with a practical fore of them, especially that confiding and afschanare belief in the person and work of thrist which effects the character and life, and nikes a man a true christian, called a practical, wandedical, or living faith."

Faith makes a man a christian. Belief only makes a man have confidence in the christian ath. Laith is what James would seem to call path by works. Belief is what he terms a joid faith. Belief is a confidence m, or a credit gren to an evidence. Faith and helief are synanymous, yet faith is something more than beet "Faith is the substance of things hoped M, the evidence of things not seen." Heb. 11:

Now we see that both is that evidence, while bellet is only a confidence in that evidence, or a tredit given to it as evidence. According to part fresh is the sub-tance of things hoped for, all c belief only admits that such things exist. A man may be a believer in the religion of pens Christ, and vet never become a Christian. hat when he has taith then he will act, and this become a follower of Christ. Many persons believe, and yet have not faith. Faith is what people much need; that is faith by works, aliving, practical faith.

Truly to be found of the laying, Omnipotent Shephera, and truly to find Him and ourselves, is to set unto deadly opposition with ourselves and the mighty, seductive legions of darkness. It is a life and death encounser. That mysterious inner something which puts as into conscious relation with God and Eternity is poised at the core, and it is by a slow and painful process of extraction that we are purified and healed. The Devil is intrenched in the citadel of moral being, and will fight for the supremacy as long as soul and body are in fellowship. To use a civic comparison; in the unregenerate Apollyon occupies Washington, while in the redeemed and sanctified he is confined to the Indian Territory, and a deal of trouble he makes there. What soul-blood is often shed, and what ruinous expenditure of moral resources, in suppressing the insurrections of the "sin that dwelleth in our members," The old serpent twists his fall, darts his helldripping tongue, and infuses his virus till the sun sinks behind the golden bars of the eternal morning. But "thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our hord Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 15: 57. Let this to your study and solace in your isolation. The Devil is a mighty destrover, but Jehovah-Jesus is an Almighty Deliverer. Man sins by innate propensity, and falls an easy prey to the arch-fiend; but Emmanuel is Lord of sin and devils, and can countervail all adverse gravitation. What the will is none can explicate, and what free will is none can fathom; but both are conscious facts, and therein Heaven and Hell find their triumphs. Volition unlocks the Gates of Pearl, and unbolts the gates of the Bottomless Pit. Without it God could have no New Jerusalem, and the Red Dragon no Pandemonium. In the treedom of the will is fought the decisive Armageddon for Eternity. Rev. 16: 14-16, N_0 soul is documed to destruction. By any D_{12} vine arrangement to that end. The door of Eden is open to the entrance of Abaddon, Int. the inner sanctuary of our being we must open ourselves. Damnation is our own work, and so, in a corresponding sense, is salvation "Work out your own silvation, &c." Lord stands within sight of every soul that has ever heard of Jesus, and the blood of the Crucified is offered in its omniquetent efficies to every prodigal, every wandering sheep, every lone pilgeim, every isolated, heart sick, Christhungering saint no matter in what far-off moral Siberia or Saharah he may sojoorn. The Good Shepherd has a rill from the Crystal River, and a patch of fresh, tender pasture for every loyal soul. The God man still turns thistles into roses, water into wine, and Marahs into Elims. Only so that we hearless to His yeare, and follow the flaming pillar C. H. Baisbuch,

A Proposition.

E iscertain from Brother Sell's article in The Primitive Christian in No. 1, page 492, that the workers in the City Mission Service will seen be in the field, and we should teel a deep and prayerful concern about their "necessities," The movement is one fraught with the gravest and most far-reaching consequences. It from henceforth, ceases to be the "Manmaw Proposition," and ter mes, the aded to the Great Sympathizer and Self-lemer as vance forborn hope of God's church moving me to the enemy's territory, and against his strong-15. Who would not give all he has for such an encomium as the dear, faithful ones received in Phil. 4, 10, 20? Read that, brothren and sisters, and by doing likewise a record in heaven that will afford you an elernity of bliss.

Without mature reflection it will appear difficult to provide the means to sustain the Mission Service, but when we compute the treasares of the church, the supposed difficulty will vanish like the morning vapor.

1. We have a rich Father to draw supplies from. Boundless, fathomless, and infinite as divinity are the treasure chambers of the Father,

2. Faith will draw therefrom whatever His beloved cluldren need. "Whatsoever ye ask the Father in my name, that ye shall receive. Oh, doubter, get thee hence, and "hinder not the work,"

3. Prayer is the magic key in the hands of thrice blessed full to unlock the treasures which were bought for us by the blood of Christ,

4. Millions of gold have been lent to the church, and now, as faithful stewards, we should lay up a memorial of praise against the day of final adjustments. It is marvelous, yet true, that we can contribute "once and again" from the goods that the Lord has lent us, and every act will make us richer both in soul and hody. This brings us to our

PROPOSITION:

Let every member of the church fast one meal each month, and spend the time that would be occupied in eating, in humble, faithful, prayer to God for his blessing on the City Mission Service. and contribute the price of the "meat" in the sustentation of the same. Each meal will average in value about five cents. This will aggregate sixty cents a year, computing the membership at 80,000, the aggregate contribution would reach the sum of $48,320. Supposing that only one-fourth of the members will read this proposition, and that one-filth of that number will respond to it, we still have the handsome amount of $2,400. This sum added to the freewill, love offerings of the Lydias and Gainses that admind every-where, will enable the committee to put several companies of workers in the field, a consummention for which we should deventedly pray.

But a brother across the table objects that we should fast in secret, and if we thus contribnte fitteen cents quarterly or thorty cents semiannually we advertise our fasting to all the world. Brother, we could only infer that you fisted, and you would not be responsible for your inferences. Let us each enclose our quarterly low-offerings to S. T. Bosserman, Dunkark. Ohio, and the Lord will preserve the memorial. Each congregation could collect the contribution and remit together, and thus save a consideralde sum in a stage.

We knolly solicit the editors of our periodreals to publish the "Proposition" once each D. C. MOORAW. acouthly?

That Sister in Need.

Dear Brethren:-

AVING a personal acquaintance with Sister Lilia C. Ingleright, I can bear testimony to her extreme need of a suitable sister companion in her much afflicted condition. She has tried to tell us something about her suffering through the BRETHREN AT WORK; but I am sure the half has not been told. She now makes another appeal, in which she offers the comforts of a Christian home to some one who is destitute or lonely and without a home.

Dear sisters, you who are suffering the rough waves of adversity, go, try Sister Ingleright's offer. Did you say you would if you were acquainted with her? Well, now, I trust you are acquainted with her and your Pather, and I know He is well acquainted with you both, and will give a pleasant and happy introduction. Sister Ingleright, pray on, and "don't faint." Remember the importunate widow. And to the rest I would say, let us remember the parable of him that showeth mercy, and go and do likewise." Don't "pass by on the other side.'

Dear Brethren:-

() UR meeting at Water Shed last Sunday was well attended; and the appreciative andience of brethren and friends were both surprised and gratified to bear a well delivered discourse (the first effort) by our young minister, B. F. Redding, who was chosen the first day of Jone last. Indeed he handled the sword with the dexterity of many having much experience. May be, as well as his dear comjourion, continue to be faithful learners at that sacred shrine, and become bright and noble examples of humility, and submissive incekness to their brothren and sisters as well as the world around them, and with God's blessing attending his public efforts, become a strong witness for our great King Brethren and sisters of Laporte, let us, as a band of God's children, always be found at the post of duty that be appoints us.

B. RAY has often said that our church. which be calls the "Tunker Church, is not the church of Christ, because it was started only in 1708, when there was no Tunker in existence, which is not true. The Tunker Church, as Ray calls it, started with John the Baptist, (or Dipper, i. e., Tunker), and continued on under great persecution from century to century until in the year 1890, the persecuted M. Christians - apostolic Tunkers - the "Brethren" again found a place of retuge in the valleys of the Alies in the western part of the Alies in the Paulmont, where they fixed in peace a short time, but they were so in again horribly persecuted. Then eighteen years afterward in the year 1708, there was a place of liberty found in Schwartzenau, where they organized again. Ephrata, Lancaster Co., Pa.

A Sad Occurence.

O'N the 18th of August a sad accident happened in Nappanee. Elkhart County. Indiana, About 3 P. M. several voices were heard at the depot, screaming, lamentable. Finally men and women were seen running to the place, and the alarm was made known. Some boys were lying around (as often is the case) and hothering Mr. Stoner, the grain manager. So he drove them away, but they slipped around, went up stairs and began to play on the wheat in the hopper where there were nearly 1,000 bushels of wheat, and Mr. Stoner was filling a car at the time, taking fifteen minutes to fill one, which held 400 hushels. After the wheat began to run out, there, was a draught, and the boys would see how long they could stand, and then jump out, when to their great surprise the downward dringht was so great they could in a extricate themselves, any more. Two poys outside made the alarm, which prought Mr. Stoner up, but they were so badly scared that they could not tell what the trouble w.e. Finally Mr. Stoner saw two hats lying in the wheat bin; and then supposed they were | ber. Meeting to continue over Lord's Day.

in there. He ran down stairs to shut off the wheat; but could not close it, and did not know the course until a closer examination was made, when to his great astonishment, he found two feet sticking out at the spout. By this time there were men enough on the ground to do some lively work. Some throwing the wheat out, and some knocking holes in the side, and letting some three or four hundred bushels of wheat out below. Finally the boys were rescued, but life was extinct. What a horrible death they must have died. Their mouths, noses and eyes were filled with wheat, and the print of the wheat could easily be seen through the clothes on their person.

What a gloom was cast over the little village. Parents ought to take a solemn warning from this sad scene, and never allow their children to be loafing around such places; and many accidents would be avoided.

Arrangements were made to have both funerals preached at the same time. The oldest boy was Milo Alexander, son of Benjamin Frazier aged 10 years, 6 months, and 15 days. The youngest William Lowis, son of Friend John and Sarah Eshenbough, aged 5 years, 4 months. and 17 days. Mr. Bremman, of the Reformed Mononite Church, was called to assist the writer in conducting the toneral services. The Union Church in Nappanee was filled, and over one hundred could not get in.

It is said this was the greatest accident ever occurred in or near the place. So solemn was the scene that the whole congregation wept. Text, "If I he bereaved of my children, I am bereaved." Thus we see the old adage is true. "In the midst of life we are in death." May the Lord help us so to live that at any moment when called upon we may be ready to go.

STEIN AND RAY DEBATE.

Prop. 1st—Brethren (or Tunker) Churches possess the Rible Characteristics which entitle them to be regarded as Churches of Jesus Christ.

J. W. Stein, Affirms.

D. B. RAY, Denies.

ELD, IC E. RAY'S NINLTEENTH REPLY.

R. Stein bases his "apology for the over-sight" of denyme our resettion ag the origin of the first Tunker church with Mr Mack in 1708, on the fact that he did not know any better. We advise him not to deny separatively where he does not know the facts. Why does be take it as "personal mulignity and gen insult" for us to formish the grouds to corteet his Julse statements about the Tunker sucession, through the Waldenses? He now admis "the correctness of Mr. Mack's statements" concerning the origin of the Tunker church, in Has, by "umbaptized" aliens baptizing each other, and forming thems-lives into a church. He thinks the "true church succession" allows "unbaptized" alien sinners to originate and start the church of Christ! Such is the jutiful intidelity of Tunkerism.

The example of the idolatry of the kings and people of angient Israel does not help the Tunker succession. Even in the dark time of Manasselt, prior to the faithful Josiah, God had "his servants the prophets" that faithfully reproved and 2 Kings 21: 10. Also, in these times Hilkids the priest. Shaphan the scribe, and "Huldan the proquetors," with many others, "dealt faithfully," as true servants of God. The antent chosen political Israel did not become exfract, and heathen alien idedaters start a new Israel, who were not of the seed of Abrahon. Bed always reserved at least a "small renomant" seven thousand in Israel"—that never leowed to Red. The parameter was nationed a book said Law scripter shall not depart from Junes. For clawgiver from botween testest, until Sheloh come." Gal's promisent a political succession 4d act fail. Neither has his promise of per-Printy to his church been broken. The man During the could we drove Mr. S. to admit Tunker a miches have added to the great com lamither.

that contends that the kingdom of Christ has become extinct, so that aliens must start anew. makes God a liar. The Tunker church contends that the church established by Christ became extinct, so that aliens must start anew. Therefore, they give the lie to Jesus Christ. Cousequently they are anti-christian, and cannot possibly be churches of Christ.

Mr. Stein thinks that as John the Baptist was an "unbuptized" administrator, therefore it is right for an unbaptized alien to start a new church! John was filled by the Holy Spirit. and sent of God to baptize. John 1: 33. Was Mr. Mack sent of God to start a new dispensa-

Mr. Stein shows his surrender of the historic question by leaving his proposition and devoting so much space to the Baptists. He knows that Baptists do not claim their origin from John Smith, Roger Williams, or any one else this side of Christ and the apostles. He cannot show that any hving Baptist has baptism by succession from Smith or Williams. His repeated charge on our succession is another evidence of his defeat.

Grant that there is an inaccuracy as to the date of the rise of "true immersion," the truth remains that it originated with the Catholies, the same party that invented infant baptism and all the other traditions of Rome.

SUMMARY REVIEW.

- 1. Mr. Stein affirmed that the Tunker church's "foundation is Christ;" but he did not introduce one solitary proof, sacred or profane, that referred to the Tunker church. This we pointed out; but he says, "To these we had no respondent"! He knew better when he uttered this "columny," but with him it seems that the "end just dies the means."
- 2. His 2ml characteristic affirms that the Tunker church "is a spiritual house"! Here we introduced our jorst negative, that the Tunker churches are based upon a carnot membership. We showed from the testimony of their own writers that the Tunkers propose to haptize the children of the devil upon a dead faith, to pluck them from Satan, in contrast with the Scriptmes, that require spiritual regeneration prior to landism and church membership.
- 3. Mr Stem says that the builder of the Tunker church is God ' While he referred to several Scriptures, he did not find a single proof. in or out of the Bible that mentions the Tunker churches. We answered his assertious by proving from the Tunkers themselves that they hult themselves into a church, under the leadership of Mr. Mack in 1708.

This was our second negative pathot the Tunker charcles were built by weenspiced mea." Yet. with unblushing recklessness, he says: "I had no respondent"!! He knew better.

- 4. Mr. Stein affirms that the Tanker charch is the pillar and ground of the trath. He tried to sustain this:
- Because the Tunkers hold that haptism is "for the remission of sins". He argued for baptism as essential to salvation, to pardon, to the new birth, to spiritual cleansing, to heart obedience, to freedom from sin, to the washing away of sins, to a good conscience, to coming to the blood of Christ, to getting into the name of the Father, Son and Holy Spirit, and to salvation by grace!

This brought as to our Negative Third, that | the Tunker churches are not the churcher at Christ, because they hold the blaspheasure laway of looplesmal salvations. All the proof texts from Scripture, cited by our friend, only showed that in baptism we have the emblematic washing imany of sins, as we eat the flesh and drink the blood of Christ in the supper. We showed that raphismal saviation was fidse 1. Hocause in contox) is sine to color salvation, administered by Christ. Luke 7: 5% 2 It contradicts the teachings of Christ, John 5, 24 - 3 - It contra dicts the voice of the prophets. Acts 10 43 that none but the "regenerated" should be haptized. Thus he surrendered the Tunker doctrine, that baptism and regeneration are the same thing.

As a second reason why the Tunker church is the "ground of the truth," Mr. Stein brought in "trine immersion"! Or rather three immersinus instead of the one immersion of the Bible. He admits that the three immersions are not expressed in the Bible, but they must be infer red supplied in the commission by "ellipsis"!! He contended that haptism unust be "into each of the names-Father, Son and Holy Spirit.' Here we introduced our Fourth Negative-That the Tunker charches are not the Clavehes of Christ, because they have added to the words of our Lard's great commission. When filled up to suit the Tunker doctrine, the commission reads, "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, bantizing them in the name of the Father, and longitizing them in the mame of the Son, and long ting them in the name of the Holy Ghost.' They have wilfully added to God's requirements. Re. 32:18. We proved that we are to obser but "one baptism" in the name of the triand God-that the commission is not elliptical. desis just every word into it that is necessary to the complete grammatical construction. We showed-

1 That Jesus was only baptized once-we must regard his example. 2. That John's baptism was but one immersion. The original church members received this one baptism. 3. The commission requires but one baptism, Mark 16: 16, "He that believeth and is baptrand"-not haptized three times! 4. The death of Christ was called a baptism. Luke 12: 50. He died but once. We are baptized-"idanted"-"in the likeness of his death," but once. 5. Baptism is a larrial with Christ, but once, as he was buried fait once, 6. Baptism represents the resurrection of Christ; and as the rose but once, we must rise but once in baptism. 7 Bajdism is a pledge and monument of the resarrection of the dead; therefore, as the dead are to rise but once, we must rise but once in baptism. S. Baptism declares our death to sin. Rom. 6: 25 Therefore, as we die to sin but once, we must declare that death, but once in Japtism. 9. The Tunkers make "born of water" mean haptism. Therefore, they have three water births' 10. The typical haptism unto Moses, was but one. Therefore the literal must be but one haptism. 11. The salvation in the ark was "the like figure" as baptism. Was Noah saved in the ark three times! 12. Paul says; "one Lord, one faith, one haptism." Eph. 4:5. But the Tunkers have three boptisms!

We laid down the following historical facts which remain unanswered-

- I. It is a fact, that no example in classic Greek can be produced where the Greek verb haptize means more than one submersion.
- 2. It is a fact, that no example in sacred tireek can be produced where the word buptize means more than one submersion.
- 3. It is a fact, that there is no mention of 'trine mimersion' in the Puble.
- 4. It is a fact, that not one of the four up of today fathers mentions "trine immersion."
- 5. It is a fact, that there is no mention of 'trine immersion' in the literature of the world. whether sacred or profane, till about the commencement of the third century.
- 6. It is a fact, that when "trine immersion" first made its appearance in church, history, it was associated with infant loadism, infant comminnion, and a swarm of other traditions.
- 7. It is a fact, that "trine immersion" was regarded by early church writers as only an mostobe tradition.
- s. It is a fact, that "trine immersion" can such things, he ti seed and a through the Bomiso and throck Catholic courches, meto accept the negrooms of the third ceatury.

mission, and have thereby rebelled against Jesus Christ.

Our Fifth Negative says that the Tunker churches are not churches of Christ, because they reject the word of God and take the tradition of the Greek church,

We showed from Mr. Moore, the Tunker author, that they "confidently confide in" the 'opinion" of the Greeks in order to learn the number of actions required in the commission. Trize immersion, p. 26, 27.

We showed that the Tunkers follow the Greeks in making "the scriptural and traditional nuthority" "equally binding!!" 2. They too confidently confide in the wisdom of the Greeks to learn the number of actions required in haptism. 3. The Tunkers "yo to the Greek church to learn the meaning of the Greek commission" II

The Tunker churches are not churches of Christ, because they interpret the Scriptures by tradition, and thereby reject the Bible as the standard of authority.

SPECIAL PROVIDENCE.

BY I CONCLAST.

PHERE are some professed Christians who claim that it is all superstition to believe nra special interference of Providence, and quote Scripture in justification of their position. With them I shall not dispute, but many cases have come under my observation, that are at least, singular. Reference is only here made to rone-a widow lady whose husband, in his life time was well-to-do-but to further provide for his family, after his death, he got his life insured. He was afterwards killed by accident and left this widow with a large and delicate tannily. When the estate was wound up by trusted lawyers very little remained, and if the insurance company ever paid anything she never found it out. Under These vircumstances it was not expected that she could put her trust in man any longer. Fortunately, her son is a short-hand writer, and has a situation in a Rail Road office, from his salary the whole family is supported. He is a good and religious boy, and promises to support his mother until she has other help. But his situation may not be permanent, and his life uncertain; but she continnes to trust in God

If there is no special interference of Providence, who settens the hearts of people to build or Johan asylums and other charitable institutions Unhelievers seldom concern themselves about

GOD'S SCHOOL,

NE by one, as the days go by, To learn our lessons we bravely try: For every home some task is set-Difficult, easy, short, or long-And whether we come to it weak or strong. Somehow or other it must be met.

Graded well is this school of ours, Each one's duties within his powers, And his task the thing that he needs to know And many a time does the page grow dim, And before tired eyes the hard words swim, And the hours go by so slow, so slow.

Skillful teachers assembled lare, Patiently labor year by year; Never mistake in their work was known; Only the scholars, weary and vexed, Idle, impatient, tried, perplexed, Soffer from errors all their own.

The spirit teaches the highest class; Time takes all as they onward pass; Joy is claimed by the happy few, While care, experience, labor, pain, Treasures of knowledge help as gain, And conscience conducts the grand review.

But, patiently tearning day by day, We are longing to hear the Master say, That our school days here are done; And after the last long term shall pass. To be transferred to that upper class, In which the advanced work is begun.

-Set.

NUMBER II.

WHILE writing number one I thought I would make fait a few quotations from the "Truth Sceker," but since then I have determined to quote him revbatim in order to show more fully the weakness of his mental digestion.

The writer continues his finterrogntorics" by asking the following questions; "Were they not by the forces in the interor of the earth, projected rapid. ly or slowly from beneath the waters of the ocean to the altitude, they now occupy?" Now if any man can see what this has to do with the divine origin of the Pable, he can deserv the inhabitant of the moon with the naked eye, "Have not these mighty uphenvels or curred at various times over the entire surface of the globe? Do not all the mountains and hills over the earth, in the strata of rocks, gravel, clay, etc. af ford the clearest proofs that indicavels have taken place?

While islands and continents have sunk beneath the waters of the oceans, have not others arisen in other localities? Have not these changes taken place, for thousands of years?

Does the Bilde contains any allusion to these momentous events, or does it intimate that anything of the kind has ever occurred:

Those it make the slightest allusion to the Glacial Period, when in the long ago, from about the 40th degree of neath latitude to the pole, both on the Eastern and Western Hemisphere, immense mas ses of ice, rocks, gravel, and clay, moved by the action of water, were carried to great distances, to be dimily melted by the action of the sun's rays, deposit ing the rocks and earth thus moved, to the left as "drift," by which term such deposits are now known?

 Δ re there not abundant proofs in the rubbie worn, scratched and polished sta-era in the history of the globe? If the writers knew aught of it, should they not have said something about it, even though it preceded by thousands of years the advent of man upon the earth.

I think by this time my readers are all able to estimate my antagonists reasoning powers, and know what confiwise men of the nineteenth century. the events that they narrated? I care not whether they were ignorant of these changes or not, so they knew what they wrote was actually so—this is the point in debate, and not their knowledge of such events that have nothing to do with the issue. But the getleman showed himself ignorant of all the essential elements of a controversialist, or else he would not take the very thing for granted that it is his business to prove. Does the silence of grammar and mathematics in a spelling book or history of Kansas, prove conclusively that the author of the spelling book was ignorant of these things? Oh infidel! shame at such silly evasions. Seek the truth from ration ad premises. If the writers of the Bible had said something about these momentous events, would it not prove their knowledge of such "events," and does their writings of a future state of existence and our relation to that government not prove that they had some knowledge of those things? Can a man write a history of any country and describe its laws without a knowledge of such things? A man cannot write a history of something that is nothing, or has no existence. Men can imitate and change the truth, but they cannot write a falmions history until there is first a genuine. The writers of the Bible could not have given a history of such things us the "Truth Secker" thinks soessential, without mjury to the design of their work. If a man was writing a history. of Kansas and would occasionally get on to mathematics, grammar, and goodegy, etc., would any man lany such a book! Would such a course of procedare recommend itself to may sound mind ed man, and yet infidels are obliged to urge such nonsense in their objections. There must be great lack of evidence when men will resort to such adjections as the "Truth Seeker" offers, and his are as good as any, for there are mone that have any relevancy to the real issue, The writer keeps going on with his vinterrogateries" a follows: "Is it not a little sungular that the great. Continent of America, extending nearly ten thous sand miles, embracing all varieties of climate, and destined to be the home of millions of the luman race, was wholly unknown to the writers of the book!

If they drew their inspiration from the source of all knowledge and truth, how is it that so important a matter, so connected with the life of man on the earth, was never alluded to? Alps had even raised from the depths or it be said Brother dered imagination of all the statements made, but before I admit all of them I want the proof; but should all these things be so, what bearing can it have with the issue. The gentleman is simply telling God what he ought to have put in his book in order to gain his confidence, and if he had put all there that think something else ought to be there. What would their ignorance of these I do not say that everything recorded things have to do with a knowledge of in the Bible is inspiration, for a large proportion of it is history; but all such information as pertains to a future world, and our relations to that world are, for it is impossible to give such laws and relations without communications with the inhabitants of that land. Whether or not the writers of the Bible had any knowledge of America, has nothing to do with the question; the question is, did they have any knowledge of our future existence and the world beyond the river, that is the question to be determined. And would a knowledge of America prove their knowledge of the upper world, or would their ignorance of Amer. rica prove their ignorance of the upper world? Can any man so destitute of a knowledge of evidence ever expect to find the truth. If the imaginations of the writer was taken for proof, then he would be a convincing reasoner; but these christians that infidels think feed upon faith alone, are the very men that demand evidence for their faith, and do not believe without evidence or disbelieve evidence like the infidel-the infi del believes without evidence and dishelieves evidence and of course must be in error all the time. I would say more if there were anything in the objections, but as they are so irrelevant as not to be deserving of any notice, I will pass them over and close this unarber, as the next will be more interesting, from the fact that the writer comes a little closer to the issue, and his objections will require a little more accumen. I think I have said enough to convince any infidel that. there is nothing in what I have quoted, and that it is entirely irrelevant, if not 1 am ready to hear from him.

The promptings which led me to this dence to place in such men as the only he thinks ought to be there, he would vow, are as follows: I gave my heart to Jesus when I was a youth, I felt that he was % precious Savior. He forgave all my sins, and I was happy in a Savior's love, and like the Eunuch went on my way rejoicing. As years passed away, I felt my acceptance with God, and all was peace within, though many trials, temptations and discouragements, have followed me in my christian journey. However, as time moved on, the enemy was at work, the little seeds began to grow, and after awhile the thorns came up, the cares of the world, and the de. ceitfulness of riches began to choke the word that was sown in my heart, and I was becoming unfruitful, or while I was sleeping the enemy sowed three among the wheat, and the wheat was becoming choked. While being in this condition and realizing that the enemy was gain. ing ground, I also realized my condition; I no longer felt that all was peace with. in; I no longer felt that smile of appro. bation, which I once felt from my blessed Savior. I no longer felt that if my Savior should call me now, that I was prepared, but doubts were in my mind, fearing that if he would call me, eternal death would be my certain doom. Oh! with those doubts and fears I was not happy. Oh, how often I have prayed for forgiveness, and had well nigh thought that repentance was denied me. As only those who have felt a Savior's love know what it is. So only those who suffer for their sins, know what sorrow it is. Oh, that I could write with the pen of Almighty God upon the tab. let of every heart that has felt the joy of a Savior's fave! Beware! oh beware lest you fall from that sweet communion with God which you once enjoyed, and, in consequence of which you will have to weep bitter tears of sorrow. DRESS.

BY LEWIS HANG.

m D^{EAR}}$ forethren and sisters, the primitive Christians were noted for their contempt of the world; among the things to be avoided by them, was the ettravagance in dress. Dr.Cave who wrote some two hundred years ago on this subpet, says: "They were exceedingly careful to avoid all costliness and finery. choosing such apparel as expressed the greatest lovliness and innocency." Clement of Alexandria, who lived in the latter part of the second century, says, The garment that we should wearought to be mean and frugal, not curiously wrought with divers colors—the emdem of craftiness and deceit—but white odenote our embracing and professing simplicity and truth. Our ontward dothing is an indication of the tempers of our mind. That is true simplicity of babit which takes away what is vain and superfluous; and the best and most solidgarment which is furtherest from art and currosity, and most apt to preserve and keep the body warm."

The plea is with some, because they merich, and have the right to make use of their estate as they be pleased. To this, Cyprian, who flourished in the third entury, answers: "That they are only nch that are rich in and toward God; that the world ought to be despised, the pumps and delights whereof we then turned to God, with the loss of whom all that is in the world, the lust of the lesh, and the lust of the eye, the pride of life; it is not consistent with the word of God. Tertullian, who lived in the second century, and was one of the ablest defenders of christian faith, condemns the vanity of curious costly dress, and concludes with these wise counsels to the sisters of his time: "To clothe themselves with silks of honesty, the fine vesture of piety, the purple of modesty, and being thus beautified and adorned, God him self will be their God," Let humility he a self-sealer to obedience.

EUCHARIST-THE GIVING OF THANKS.

NAME applied to the sacrament of the holy communion, or the feast of the Lord's Supper in allusion to the blessing and thanksgiving with which the last supper of our Savior with his disciples began and ended. This solemn festival has been kept in all Christian churches from the time of the resurrection in commemoration of the pas sion and death of our Lord, and in obedience to his own divine institution. Among the earliest disciples in Judea. the Lord's Supper seems to have been a regular meal, probably the principal meal of the day in each family into which the commemorative breaking of bread and partaking of the cup of bless ing were introduced as a part, subsequently the disciples of many families came together and held a festival in common, in the course of which the breth ren saluted each other with a holy kiss. The abuses which grew out of this, and which are severely rebuked by St. Paul in the first epistle to the Corinthians led to a separation of the two institutions and the commemorative observance has since been celebrated with a solemnity in harmony with its character by itself. OLD FOLKS.

(1) the young people ever think that they will be old? Only a few short years ago that aged man and feeble woman were young, strong and full of life; their loving hearts were gushing with tenderness and care for the little ones who now stand in their places. Do not jostle that aged coulde out of your pathway, but rather lift them with ten der care over the rough declining road. You may have forgotten how carefully they kept your tender feet from stumbling, and with what care they watched your advancing steps. But they have not forgotten, and the time will come when you will be forcibly reminded of it, by the love you have for your own little ones. Will they ever hand you the same bitter exp to drink that you pour out for that aged father and strick en mother? Verily with "what meas ure ye meet, it shall be measured to you again." Think of the anxious days and nights your mother has watched by your sick-hed; remember her loving care; her patience and long suffering with your fretfulness, and then let the blush of shame dye your brow, that you should be impatient or unkind to her, now that she is old. Old folks are such a trial! Yes, they know it: they feel it! and so will you be such a trial to your chaldren in the days that will surely come, ave, and you will remember too. S.7

LOVE AT HOME.

TPHERE is beauty all around, When there's tove at home; There is joy in every sound, When there is love at home. Peace and plenty hereabide, Smiling sweet on every side, Tame doth softly, sweetly glide, When there's love at home.

In the cottage there is joy, When there's love at home; Hate and envy ne'er annoy, When there's love at home. Roses blosom 'neath our feet, All the earth's a garden sweet, Making life a bliss complete, When there's love at home, Kindly, heaven smiles above, When there's love at home; All the earth is filled with love, When there's love at home. Sweeter sings the brooklet by, Brighter beams the azure sky; Oh, there's One who sunles on high, When there's love at home.

Jesus show thy mercy mine, When there's love at home; Sweetly whisper, I am thine, Then there's love at home. Source of love, thy cheering light, Far exceeds the sun so bright— Can dispel the gloom of night; When there's love at home.

A LETTER TO THE GIRLS.

 $\mathcal{T}\mathsf{OU}$ have all heard, no doubt, of the banyan tree which grows far off in the Eastern countries. It grows up straight at first, but the branches from the trunk grow downward to the ground again and taking root fasten there as firmly as the trunk itself is fastened.

Now let me tell you a true story to illustrate my subject. Λ few years ago, two girls about the ages of eleven and thirteen years, gave their hearts to Jesus, and started on the road to heaven, at the same time. They were sisters; quite well instructed in the way, and saw many things that they would be addiged to give up, in order to serve their kind Master in the right way. But they were determined to do their duty. Before they had had their clothes trimmed and in fashion, but now they saw that it was not right. So they had their dresses made over plain, and their hats trimmed in a simple way; they looked as neatly as little girls can look and were as happy as the day was long.

No one enjoyed the Sabbath school or the prayer meeting more than Ella and Lizzie, and they were always ready to tell what the Lord had done for them. This was during the Summer vacation. In the Fall, school again commenced, and it was a hard matter for our girls to determine to go to school in their plain dresses, while the others were dressed cin style." Finally Ella (the older) concluded to have an overskirt made to match her dress, and a few extra bows on her hat to look more like the others; but Lizzie would do nothing of the kind.

In a short time Ella was like the oth et girls. She was no longer seen at the prayer meeting, and took foir little interest in the Saldbath school. Patient it is often by way of excuse to our little Lizzie went alone to the meetings, treater is he who causes good deeds land at school when the others would laugh at her for being so plain and the like the other girls, she would reply,. would give their hearts to Jesus, they would then be so much happier.

Now do you see how Ella was like the banyan tree? She started right on the road that leads to beaven, but stepped off on the branch road which led her back to the world again, and rooted her as firmly to her old ways as before she started.

Now, my little friends, beware of the branch roads, and don't give up your hope of heaven for a little laugh.

When you start for a place you expect to get there if you keep the path; but if you step into another path you are sure to miss your way. When you are tempted to turn back just a little, think of Ella and the hanyan tree,

THE POOR GIRLS.

THE poorest girls in the world are those who have never been taught to work. There are thousands of them. Rich parents have petted them. They have been taught to despise labor and depend upon others for a living, and are perfectly helpless. If misfortune comes upon their friends, as it often does, their case is hopeless. The most forlorn and miserable women upon the earth beloog to this class. It belongs to parents to protect their daughters from this deplorable condition. They do them a great wrong if they neglect it. Every daughter ought to be taught to earn her own living. The rich as well as the poor require this training. The wheel of fortune rolls swiftly round—the rich are very likely to become poor and the poor rich. Skill to labor is no disadvantage to the rich, and is indispensable to the poor. Well-to-do parents must educate their children to work. No reform is more imperative than this,— Sel_{γ}

DOES THE GOSPEL PERMIT WO MEN TO PRAY AND PROPH-ESY PUBLICLY?

SUMBLE B.

DABL rays, "The head of the woman as the man, the head of Christ is God." and the head of every man is Christ." draws a circle, juits God in the center, desus first within that circle, man second, and wohan third. They are all inside the circle, may onjoy rights and privileges, guaranteed, them, by the Hend of all Good the Father. Then it God being the head of Class, does not prevent Christ performing public duties, and Christ being the head of more diese not prevent manfrom performing public dates, pray has does the fact that man is the head of the woman prevent her from doing religious, work, publicly? But let us look again. The aposite fortherabeliares: "But every woman that provethor prophesical with love head nancovered disimporeth her head; for that a leven all. if she were shaven."-I Cor. f1:3c

Men were not permitted to pray and proples sy with their leads cavered, nor were women allowed to pray and prophesy with their heads uncoverid. Whatever prayer or prophery meant with regard to man, it introd precisely the same with regual to women. The the same epistle Paul says: "He that people reth speaketh unto men to edification, and exhorter in and comfort," -- I Cor. 11; 3. He defines prople ecy as consisting of exhartation, counters and editionion. Women were then permitted to edity, to exhort, a counfort the sangts publicly as well as men. But this is not all the proof Paul says to the lacthround Collosse. "Let the word of Christ dwell in year ichly ratially widom: teaching and adminishing ordinas har no psalms and spiritual songs, singing with grad the members of the charch, —male and tegrals -were required to teach and admine to car another. "Let the woman learn in si- sleeping mind and infuse life into the dead in fence with all subjection. But I suffer not a trespasses and sins. The Lord help us to come woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over right up to the truth, accept it, and hold fast the man, but to be in silence."-1 Tim 2: 11, 12, to it. These passages are plain and positive. They prove beyond contradiction that a restriction is laid upon woman in some particular. She is required to learn something in silence; not to do wind men are permitted to do. Let us learn Modes of Baptism severa' years ago we knew his what that is. The customs of the people in the apostolic age were different from ours. Had their costom of conducting public meetings been as ours is, Paul would not have found necounty to by down this restriction. Dr. Adam desire to obtain the truth, but do not agree Clarke says: "It was permitted any man to ask] questions, to object, altercate, attempt to refute a speaker in the synagogue, but this liberty was not allowed a woman." This is not the cuscon now. A minister is not disturbed, but is permitted to paish his discourse, both men and women keeping silence while he speaks; not so, however, in apostolic times. Any man could ask a mustrou, dispute, object or refute a minister's assertions in the midst of his discourse. This privilege Paul forbade women. He says: "It they will learn any thing," showing that the woman in such cases must seek informatom elsewhere, but lays down no restriction labout praying and prophesying-teaching. True he says, "I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp anthorsty over the man," but he has reference to the custom of teaching as already referred to. To say that it prevents a woman opening ber mouth at all in church, or to teach men, is going farther than Paul went. In his letter to. Titus he insists that women-aged women—he "teachers of good things." He not only says that she shall teach, but fells what she shall teach and whom. Would it not be a little strange if Paul should instruct some sisters to keep silent, not to preach in public, and then tell Tirns to instruct women to truck? Discossion is furbidden, but to plead in gentle tones and wield the sword of the Spirit to detroy the work of Salan, is no crime. May not s mucher instruct her son, the vonue man? In so doing would she make herself the head? Thes she not teach in singing? Certainly; for the apost a says that is one method of beaching. Mark well the language of God's servant. "Speaking to yours lives in psalms and livings and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in year heart to the Lord."

Paul does not by any means contradict himself, but by the H dy Spirit permits, woman to prophesy (1 Cor. 41; 5); for she being endowed with gifts of the spirit as well as man, is reourred to everyse therein. The only restriction is, that she shall not assume authority or dietaforship over man, (and would it not be equally wrong for man to ussnate authority over the woman), but shows required to be in subjection. ELDER CHRYSTAL'S POSITION

WE did not think that the Elder was opposed to true immersion, for busing to true immersion, for, having read his position. Nor did we wish to convey the idea that the Elder is opposed to trine immersion. We meant to criticise his position in a friendly way; for we admire his frankness and earnest with him in his attempt so lasten infant haptism upon the church since the "Law of the Spirit" does not so teach. We believe that the Elder knows that the Brittinen would not hesitate to baptize infents if the New Testament so taught, but to accept it because it seems to have been practiced quite early with some other innovations, we do not think would please our heavenly Father. We do not hesitate to practies what God requires, but the things about which he says nothing we fear to accept as conditions of eternal life. Now for a few ques.

First.—Is "the gospel of Christ the power of God unto salvation" to those who cannot be.

Second.-Did Christ and the Apostles teach that infants should be baptized?

Third.—If the New Testament teaches successional trine immersion, does it not also teach successional faith?

A VISIT TO MT. MORRIS.

Lear Assistant Superintendent Carrie Price, Secretary, Melchor Newcomer, Treasurer, Delilah Tombaugh and Mary Yarger, Labrarians. Two Bible classes were formed. one under the care of Bro. J. W. Stein, the other in care of Sister Mattie A. Lear, Good order and harmony prevailed, and the school starts out with excellent prospects.

On Monday we visited the college, and found teachers and pupils cheerful and busy. There were seventy-seven students present and twenty eurolled that had not yet arrived. Obio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska are represented by students. Prospects for a large patronage very good. The curriculum embraces a complete university course. Should any one desire to take simply an English course, he can be accommodated. This is a good feature, since some do not desire to study the languages but wish to become proficient in English liter-Plainess of dress and simplicity of manners are prominent characteristics of the teachers and students. Ruffles, flounces and all unnecessury apparel are laid aside, and simplicity is apparent every where.

AN EXPLANATION

Friend "M. M. E."

N the issue of the "Brethren at Work" of August 4th, 1879, occurs language from which I infer that you think I oppose trine immersion in haptism.

Permit me by way of explanation, as my poation has been somewhat misander, tood, to set it forth more plainly, and to add what I hope will interest your readers, on account of how I have set trine immersion performed in the East thurch, where it is still the law. My early studies convinced me that trine immersion was the only made of baptism, though at first the number of dips, necessary to constitute it, did not engage my attention. Afterward I gave it more core. In 1859 I was ordained denoted in the Protestant Episcopal Church, and in 1860, presbyter, that is elder, m it. I never was fulis satisfied with that organization. I did not believe it to be in all respects a reproduction of the anostolic church not as twenty quarreling igmeanings anderstood it, but as it was underand by the Christian writers while the charele mill remained pure, that is before A. D. 260 Yet as the first Anglican Prayer Book in A D. 1549, commanded trine innuersion in the bapnsm of infants (there was no adult leartism in England then, for there were no opposers of Indant Baptism there), and as dipping, abough the number of dips in one baptism is not specsfield is still communided in the present. Prayer Book of the Church of England for the well. and as it is the first mode mentioned in that of the American Protestant Episcopal Church, and as the language of Joth those churches contemplate ats use in most cases, I thought the thrice dipping might possibly be restored. And I thought if it he, and the infint confirmation and infant communion could be, and its thorough Profestantism of the Reformation epoch could also be, then it would be far nearer to the church before A. D. 260, my idea of a model church, than any other. For as there came a restoration in Jerusalem, after the Reform in Babylon under the Old Technicut, so most there came in our time or after a R storation. not of shreds and patches, but of all that was before the fall of idolatry

And so, in the early years of inv. moustry, I wrote, and in 1861 published, my History of the Modes of Christian Baptism (Lond-ay and Blakiston, Philadelphia, Paut I think I can say without exotism that I fran-level and gave more fully than any other work does, every passage from conneils Ecumenical and Lacal, from those called Fathers, and from what is vastly important the ruloics of different churches, because such rubaies do not represent mere private opanions, but were the law and the practice of the communious to which they belogged.
